"A SLIGHT COLD," COUGHS, Hoarseness, or Sore Throat,

Which might be checked with a simple remedy, if neglected often terminates seriously. Few are aware of the importance of stopping a cough or "SLIGHT COLD" in its first stage; that which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if not attended to soon attacks the lungs.

The administration of medicinal preparations in the form of a lozenge is of all modes the most eligible and convenient, more especially as regards a COUGH REMEDY. Medicines for inflammation of the bronchial tubes or lungs are unlike others which are taken at stated intervals, being used only as the urgency of the symptoms demand. A lozenge, therefore, from its portability, its not being liable to change by keeping, its demulcent ingredients which lubricate the throat, and thus allaying the irritation induced by coughing, is infinitely to be preferred to either pills or draughts, more particularly as in this case the remedy contains nothing deleterious, so that they may be taken as often as occasion requires. "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough Lozenges, allay irritation, which induces coughing, giving instant relief in consumptive, bronchial, and asthmatic complaints.

"BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES"

Were first introduced in the year 1850. It has been proved that they are the best article before the public for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, CATARRH, the Hacking Cough in CONSUMPTION, and numerous affections of the throat, giving immediate relief.

PUBLIC SPEAKERS AND SINGERS can use "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough and Voice Lozenges, as freely as requisite, containing no OPIUM, or ANYTHING THAT CAN INJURE THE SYSTEM. They are invaluable in allaying the hoarseness and irritation incident to vocal exertion, and also a powerful auxiliary in the production of melodious enunciation, EFFECTUALLY CLEARING and STRENGTHENING the voice.

To me the "Bronchial Troches" are a staff of life.

Prof. EDWARD NORTH,

Pres. of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y.

My communication with the world has been very much enlarged by the Lozenge, which now carry always in my pocket; that trouble in my throat (for which the "Troches" are specific) having made me often a mere whisperer.

N. P. WILLIS.

I have never changed my mind respecting them from the first, excepting to think yet better of that which I began thinking well of.

peculiar to Asthma.

Rev. A. C. EGGLESTON, New York.

I have been much afflicted with Bronchial Affection, producing Hoarseness and Cough. The Troches are the only effectual remedy, giving power and clearness to the voice.

Rev. GEORGE SLACK, Minister Church of England, Milton Parsonage, Canada.

When somewhat hoarse from cold, or overexertion in public speaking, I have uniformly found Brown's Troches afford relief.

MONTREAL, May 9, 1861.

HENRY WILKES, D.D.,

Pastor of Zion Church, Montreal.

Effectual in removing Hoarseness and Irritation of the Throat, so common with Speakers and Singers. Prof. M. STACY JOHNSON, Teacher of Music, South. Female College, La Grange, Ga.

Great benefit when taken before and after preaching, as they prevent hoarseness. From their past effect, I think they will be of permanent advantage to me.

Rev. E. ROWLEY, A.M., Pres. of Athens College, Tenn.

CAUTION.—The market is full of imitations, representing to be the same as "BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES," which are, in most cases, productive of positive injury. Many dealers will recommend inferior preparations and lower priced articles, affording more profit to themselves. Ask for, and obtain, only "BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES," which by long experience have proved their value, having received the sanction of physicians generally, and testimonials from eminent men throughout the country.

THE Calendar pages of this Almanac exhibit the time of high-water at New York and Boston. To find the time of high-water at any of the following places, add to, or subtract from, the time of high-water at New York, as below. (There is a great deal of uncertainty about the tides, in consequence of the direction and strength of the winds.)

ECLIPSES FOR 1863.

THERE will be four Eclipses this year, as follows:

I. A Partial Eclipse of the Sun, May 17, invisible in the United States except in the Northwestern part of our country. At San Francisco it begins at 6h. 57m., morning, and ends at 7h. 53m.

II. A Total Eclipse of the Moon, June 1, visible generally in the United States as a partial eclipse, which will be upon the Moon when it rises. It will last about 45 minutes after the rising of the Moon, at which time that body will be about two thirds obscured.

III. An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, November 11, invisible in America.

IV. A Partial Eclipse of the Moon in the morning of November 25, visible generally throughout the United States. Size, 11.472 digits. (See table below.)

VENUS. This splendid Planet will be brightest on the 22d of August, being at that time an Evening Star in the West. It will be brightest again November 5, being then Morning Star.

ASTERIODS. There are now seventy-two of these little Planets between Mars and Jupiter, all of which, except four, have been discovered within a few years.

DIRECTIONS FOR FINDING THE TRUE TIME.

THE Sun is on the meridian at 12 o'clock on four days only in the year. It is sometimes as much as 16½ minutes before or after twelve when its shadow strikes the noon-mark on the sun-dial. On each calendar page of this Almanac is shown the exact time when the Sun reaches the meridian, or the shadow the noon-mark; and in order to set a clock or watch correctly, it must, when it is noon by the sun-dial or noon-mark, be set at the time indicated in the Almanac. Thus, on the 25th of January, when the Sun is on the noon-mark, the watch must be set 12 minutes and 44 seconds past twelve, which will be the true time. The practice of setting time-pieces by the rising or setting of the Sun or Moon is not strictly correct; as the unevenness of the Earth's surface and intervening objects, such as hills and forests, near the points of rising and setting, occasion a deviation, in every place, from the time expressed in the Almanac, which time is adapted to a smooth, level horizon. The only means of keeping correct time is by the use of a noon-mark, or a meridian line.

The above does not include our American Domestic Missions under the care of the several annual conferences.

It ought to be noted and well considered, that our various missions at home, under the care of the several annual conferences, have in their progress produced numerous self-supporting Churches, and acquired a large amount of Church property much exceeding in value the appropriations of the Missionary Society made for their support during their several infancies; and almost all of them are contributors to the missionary treasury, and some of them contributed very liberally.

The colleges and academies and newspapers in Kansas, Nebraska, Washington, Oregon, and California have grown up, to a large extent, under the planting, watering, and culture of the Missionary Society.

The missions in Scandinavia, India, and Bulgaria have had birth during the last ten years. The Foreign German mission was just born in the beginning of 1850.

The general business depression caused by the war has had its effect upon the Sunday-schools of the land and upon the operations of this Society. The department of publication has been somewhat curtailed in its operations, yet it has added forty-nine new volumes to the libraries, gift-books, and requisites, besides a number of smaller works in paper covers. The Sunday-School Advocate attained a maximum of 218,500 copies in its circulation, which was about 9,000 less than the circulation of the previous year. The Sunday-School Teachers' Journal, which went up in 1860, its first year, to 25,000, fell at the commencement of the war to 15,000. The Sunday-School Bell, the German child's paper, printed at Cincinnati, has a circulation of 14,500; and The Children's Friend, published in Germany, has 2,400 subscribers.

The number of pages of Sunday-school books printed by this Society at New York during the year 1861 was 59,000,000, and the number of books bound, or put up in paper covers or packages, was 994,594. The number of books now published in the Youth's Library has reached 711; in the Children's Library, series B, 239; series A, 237. Besides these, there are gift-books, text-books, requisites, etc. Three numbers of a series of Graduated Sunday-School Text-books form a valuable addition to the publications of the Society.

In the department of benevolence the receipts of the Sunday-School Union were $11,214 64, and its disbursements $9,373 81. Nearly all of this latter sum was given directly to needy schools, many of them new. The balance in the treasury was $4,150, forming a basis for the operations of the spring.

TRACT SOCIETY OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Office 200 Mulberry-street, New York.

REV. DANIEL WISE, D.D., Cor. Secretary; REV. J. PORTER, D.D., Treasurer, New York.

J. M. PHILLIPS, Assistant Treasurer, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE state of the country has affected this department of benevolence more than any other. While the demand for its active operations has been greatly increased, its means are lamentably deficient. The home demand has been so great for religious reading in the army that the foreign fields, hitherto cultivated so advantageously, have been greatly neglected. The entire contributions to the Parent Society during the year 1861 amounted to only $4,042. This amount has been used with the greatest possible economy, involving scarcely any expense for agencies beyond express and freight charges. Men have been found who distributed gratuitously many tracts, and over 4,000 copies of Good News monthly in the army, East, West, and South. In the aggregate, this Society distributed to the army during the last eight months of 1861 200,000 pages of Good News, and nearly half a million pages of tracts and books. The present circulation of the Good News is over 51,000 copies.

The present tract list contains 70 volumes and 547 tracts, 16 of which latter, besides 3 miniature tracts for soldiers, have been added during the year 1861. This estimate does not include Sunday-school nor Hand-bill tracts, nor those published in foreign languages.

A plan has been recently put in operation by which, on due application, ten copies of the Good News is sent to every congregation taking a collection in our favor and forwarding the same to us. The Good News is a beautifully illustrated little paper, published monthly at the following rates. Terms, always in advance: 10 copies to one address for one year, $1 00; 50 copies, do., $4 50; 100 copies, do., $8 00. Order of Carlton & Porter, New York, or at any of our Depositories.

THE Board of Managers consists of thirty-six laymen, and all clergymen who are Life Members; it being an express provision of the Constitution that all such have the same powers as managers elected.

The Board is divided into nine Standing Committees, composed partly of lay managers and partly of clerical.

The Society has about 3,000 Auxiliaries, who are mainly superintended and directed by Agents of the Parent Society appointed by the Board.

During the past year the receipts of the Society were $378,181 81, of which sum $178,901 23 were for books. The volumes of Scripture printed during the year were 1,069,919, and the volumes issued were 1,099,843, besides 421,316 copies of the Bible Society Record, being about 35,101 per month. The value of the books issued gratuitously was $51,480 67, while $28,800 were expended on foreign work, in grants of money, besides agents and colporteurs. The total issues of the Society from the beginning amount to 16,100,400 volumes. More than 650,000 volumes have been distributed in the Army and Navy.

Footprints of a Dead Missionary.

A MISSIONARY visiting Shiraz, in Persia, some time since met a gentleman of high culture, who proved to be a believer in the Christian religion. Inquiry into the origin of his faith brought out the fact that some years before he had visited a sick beardless youth who was then in Shiraz teaching the Christian faith. With this youth the Persian had disputed much, had been convinced, but concealed his convictions. Just before the youth left Shiraz the Persian paid him a final visit, which sealed his conversion. A book given him by the young man had been his faithful companion ever since. He produced the book; it was a copy of the New Testament. On one of its blank pages was written, "There is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth.—HENRY MARTYN!"

Yes, Henry Martyn had left his footprint in Shiraz. His body fell in an eastern wild, but his work remains to this day.

Our Nation's Prayer.

If thy people go out to battle against their enemy, whithersoever thou shalt send them, and shall pray unto the Lord toward the city which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I have built for thy name: then hear thou in heaven their prayer and their supplication, and maintain their cause.—1 KINGS viii, 44, 45.

Pithy Passages.

"A BEAST hath one kind of eye, a natural man two, a Christian three. The beast hath an eye of sense; the natural man of sense and reason; the Christian of sense, of reason, and faith."

"To want the eyes of angels is far worse than to want the eyes of beasts."

"Riches are called bona fortuna, the goods of fortune; not that they come by chance, but that it is a chance if they ever be good."

"Philip was wont to say, that an ass laden with gold would enter the gates of any city; but the golden load of bribes and extortions shall bar a man out of the city of God."

"Whosoever thinks himself wise enough, or virtuous enough, is in a fair way never to be either."

"It is not wealth, but vice, that excludes men out of heaven."

"There are some that 'kiss their own hands' (Job xxxi, 12) for every good turn that befalls them. God giveth them blessings, and their own wit or strength hath the praise."

"It is usual with God, when he hath done beating his children, to throw the rod into the fire. Babylon a long time shall be the Lord's hammer to bruise the nations, at last itself shall be bruised. Judas did an act that redounds to God's eternal honor and our blessed salvation, yet was his wages the gallows. All these hammers, axes, rods, saws, swords, instruments, when they have done those offices they never meant, shall, for those they have meant, be thrown to confusion."

"The five senses are the Cinque Ports, where all the great traffic of the devil is taken in."

"When the heart is a good secretary, the tongue is a good pen; but when the heart is a hollow bell, the tongue is a loud and lewd clapper. Those undefiled virgins admitted to follow the Lamb have this praise: 'In their mouth was found no guile.'"

"To create so little a piece of flesh, and to put such vigor into it; to give it neither bones nor nerves, yet to make it stronger than arms and legs, and those most able and serviceable parts of the body."

"Because it is so forcible, therefore hath the most wise God ordained that it shall be but little, that it shall be but one. That so the parity and singularity may abate the vigor of it. If it were paired, as the arms, legs, hands, feet, it would be much more unruly. For he that can not tame one tongue, how would he be troubled with twain!"

"Because it is so unruly, the Lord hath hedged it in, as a man will not trust a wild horse in an open pasture, but prison him in a close pond. A double fence hath the Creator given to confine it—the lips and the teeth—that through those mounds it might not break."

"St. Paul had three wishes, and they were all about Christ: that he might be found in Christ; that he might be with Christ; and that he might magnify Christ."

"Many men pass fifty or sixty years in the world; and when they are just about going out of it they bethink themselves, and step back, as it were, to do something which they had all the while forgot, namely: the main business for which they came into the world, to repent of their sins, and reform their lives, and make their peace with God, and in time to prepare for eternity."

The High Places in Human Life.—"Pride is as Mount Seir to those who cherish it. But alas, how unsafe! if stronger against, and further removed from, the hand of man, yet nearer to God's hand in heaven, though we acknowledge no place far from God or from his thunder. But we say it is not always the safest sailing on the top of the mast. To live on the mountainous height of a temporal estate is neither wise nor happy. Men standing in the shade of humble valleys look up and wonder at the height of hills, and think it goodly living there, as Peter thought Tabor. But when, with weary limbs, they have ascended, and find the beams of the sun melting their spirits, or the cold blasts of wind making their sinews slack, flashes of lightning, or cracks of thunder, soonest endangering their advanced heads, then they confess (checking their proud conceit) the low valley is safest. For the fruitful dews that falls fast on the hills stay least while there, but run down to the valley; and though, on such a promontory, a man further sees, and is further seen, yet, in the valley, where he sees less, he enjoys more!"
—Thomas Adams.

The Sweetness of Affliction.—"There is so much comfort in sorrow as to make all affliction to believers a song in the night. Adversity sends us to Christ, as the leprosy sent those ten. Prosperity makes us turn our backs upon Christ and leave him, as health did those nine, (Luke xvii.) David's sweetest songs were his tears. In misery he spared Saul, his great adversary; in peace he killed Uriah, his dear friend. The wicked sing with grasshoppers, in fair weather; but the faithful (in this like Sirens) can sing in a storm. When a man cannot find peace upon earth, he quickly runs to heaven to seek it. Affliction sometimes maketh an evil man good, always a good man better."

The Written in Heaven.—"They that are written in the eternal leaves of heaven, remaining believers, shall never be wrapped in the cloudy sheets of darkness. A man may have his name written in the chronicles, yet lost; written in durable marble, yet perish; written on a monument equal to a Colossus, yet be ignominious; written on the hospital gates, yet go to hell; written on his own house, yet another come to possess it. All these are but writings in the dust, or upon the waters, where the characters perish as soon as they are made. They no more prove a man happy than the fool could prove Pontius Pilate a saint, because his name was written in the Creed. But they that are written in heaven are sure to inherit it, provided they continue to cling to Christ."

Retribution Predicted.

WHEN that martyr to freedom, SIR HARRY VANE, stood on the scaffold at Tower Hill he prayed, saying:

"When my blood is shed upon the block, let it, O God, have a voice afterward!"

Such was the martyr's prophetic prayer. Three years later the toll of death bells, and the night-long roll of the burial carts, and the terrible summons "bring out your dead!" was heard in the city. The angel of the plague, clothed in yellow mantle, purple-spotted, walked the streets of London, and thus the martyr's death had "its voice afterward!"

OUR BIRTHDAYS! solemn birthdays!—monitions kindly given;
Life's milestones—may they record bear, we're one year nearer heaven.

Dying Words of Eminent Men.

MONTESQUIEU'S DYING WORDS.—"Sir, are you truly conscious of the greatness of God?" inquired the curate of St. Suipice as he stood at the bedside of the dying philosopher.

"Yes, and of the littleness of man," was the striking reply.

LORENZO DE MEDICI.—"Do you believe entirely in the mercy of God?" inquired Savonarola of Lorenzo as that duke was dying.

"Yes, I feel it in my heart."

"Are you truly ready to restore all the possessions and estates which you have unjustly acquired?"

The dying duke hesitated. The priest thundered the pains of hell into his ears until the duke said: "I am ready to make restitution."

"Will you resign the sovereignty of Florence, and restore the democracy of the republic?"

That was asking too much. It would crush his long-cherished hopes of being father to a line of princes. "No, not that—I cannot part with that," he cried. The priest left him, and Lorenzo died.

The last Hours of Washington.

WASHINGTON took cold while riding on his estate at Mount Vernon; being caught in a shower it produced a brief illness, which terminated in death. When he felt that he was dying, he said to Dr. Craik, when that gentleman went to his bedside, "I feel myself going; you had better not take any more trouble about me, but let me go off quietly: I cannot last long." He suffered much, but was patient and resigned. He was surrounded by his weeping family and friends. He died so calmly that they did not know the exact moment of the soul's departure, and Mrs. Washington asked the doctor, who was standing by his bedside, "Is he gone?" One of his last requests was that he might be buried privately, and that no funeral oration might be pronounced over his grave.

My Times are in thy Hand.

Father, I know that all my life
Is portioned out to me,
And the changes that will surely come
I do not fear to see;
But I ask Thee for the present mind
Intent on pleasing thee.

* * * * *

Wherever in the world I am,
In whatsoever estate,
I have a fellowship of hearts
To keep and cultivate;
And a work of lowly love to do
For the Lord on whom I wait.

So I ask thee for the daily strength
To none that ask denied,
And a mind to blend with outward life
While keeping at thy side;
Content to fill a little space
If Thou be glorified.

And if some things I do not ask
In my cup of blessing be,
I would have my spirit filled the more
With grateful love to Thee:
And careful less to please Thee much
Than to please Thee perfectly.

There are briars besetting every path
Which call for patient care;
There is a cross in every lot,
And an earnest need for prayer;
But a lowly heart that leans on Thee
Is happy anywhere.

In a service that Thy love appoints
There are no bonds for me,
For my secret heart is taught the truth
That makes Thy children free;
And a life of self-renouncing love
Is a life of liberty.

UNNECESSARY CRITICISM.—If you would be beloved as a companion avoid unnecessary criticism on those with whom you live. The number of people who have taken out judge's patents for themselves is very large in any community. Now it would be hard for any man to live with another who is always criticising his actions, even if it were a just and kindly criticism. But these self-elected judges, like their prototypes, are very apt to have the persons they judge brought before them in the guise of culprits.

God's Nobleman.

BONNIVARD, Prior of the Church of St. Victor at Geneva, embraced the reformed faith A. D. 1520. Charles III. of Savoy cast him into a dungeon in the Castle of Chillon. In that dismal hole he lived six years chained to a stone pillar. Pricked in conscience for his cruelty, Charles visited his prisoner one night in disguise and offered him liberty on the condition of his return to the bosom of "Mother Church." The free soul of the prisoner spurned his lordly tyrant's offer, saying:

"I have left the abominations of the seven hilled harlot. I will not again p'ace myself within her unhallowed embrace. You have your answer, Duke of Savoy! Press me no further."

"Chillon! thy prison is a holy place,
And thy sad floor an altar: for 'twas trod
Until his very steps have left a trace,
Worn, as if thy cold pavement were a sod."

Bonnivard did not die in his Chillon dungeon. Protestant Switzerland drove the Duke of Savoy from Geneva. It then set Bonnivard, with many kindred spirits, free, and crowned him with honor and comfort to the end of his days.

"Each man should think himself an act of God,
His mind a thought, his life a breath of God;
And each should try, by great thoughts and good deeds,
To show the most of Heaven he hath in him."

Amusing Anecdotes.

A Strong Puff.—A manufacturer and vender of quack medicines recently wrote to a friend for a strong recommendation of his (the manufacturer's) "Balsam." In a few days he received the following, which we call pretty strong: "Dear Sir—The land composing this farm has hitherto been so poor that a Scotchman could not get his living off it, and so stony that we had to slice our potatoes and plant them edgeways; but hearing of your balsam, I put some on the corner of a ten acre field surrounded by a rail fence, and in the morning I found that the rocks had entirely disappeared, a neat stone wall encircled the field, and the rails were split into firewood, and piled up symmetrically in my back yard."

A costly Opinion.—When on his death-bed, the Emperor Joseph, of Austria, asked Quarin his opinion of his case. The physician told the monarch that he could not possibly live forty-eight hours. In acknowledgment of this frank declaration of the truth the emperor created Quarin a baron, and gave him a pension of more than $10,000 per annum to support the rank with.

Worth more than a Man.—It is well known that all ladies have an intense admiration for a sewing machine, and that their delight in the possession of one calls out enthusiastic terms of praise. A lady called at a sewing-machine agency to purchase, and inquiring for some one who had a machine of whom she could learn of its merits, was, among others, referred to a lady then present, a quiet, demure-looking maiden lady. Upon being questioned, this individual at first replied with modest reserve; but finally the absorbing delight every sewing-machine proprietress invariably feels got the better of her diffidence, and she warmly eulogized the object of the inquiry, and finally her eyes brightened, her cheeks grew rosy, and she sprang to her feet, and with an energetic voice said: "Like my sewing machine? To be sure I do! Why, I wouldn't begin to exchange it for a man!"

A Scotch Farmer, celebrated in his neighborhood for his immense strength and skill in all athletic exercises, very frequently had the pleasure of fighting people who, led by curiosity, came to try if they could settle him or not. Lord D., a great pugilist amateur, had come from London on purpose to fight the athletic Scot. The latter was working in an inclosure at a little distance from his house when the noble lord arrived. His lordship tied his horse to a tree and addressed the farmer: "Friend, I have heard a great deal of talk about you, and I've come a long way to see which of us is the best man." The Scotchman, without answering, seized the noble lord by the middle of the body, pitched him over the hedge, and then set about working again. When his lordship had got up, "Well," said the farmer, "have you anything more to say to me?" "No," replied his lordship, "but perhaps you'd be good enough to throw me my horse."

Anecdote of Lord Brougham.—Lord Campbell related of Lord Brougham what he calls a "napery" anecdote, and which has been attributed to meaner authorities. Mr. Brougham, while a youth, resolved on performing a pedestrian tour to the Trossachs. At Stirling he "put up" at the house of a lady who had dealings with his father. Everything was arranged for the comfort of the future chancellor till the morning, when a loud knocking was heard at the door of the young barrister. "Get up, Maister Henry," cried the old hostess, "there's two Southrons come to their breakfast; your sheet is the only table-cloth we've got in the house, and we wad like to be decent."

A Well-paid Physician.—When Dr. Dinsdale, an English physician, went over to Russia and inoculated Catharine, the Empress of Russia, and her son, in the year 1768, he was rewarded with a fee of $60,000, a pension for life of $2,500 per annum, and the rank of Baron of the Empire.

A Bishop in the Wrorg Cont.—Richard I. having taken Philip, the martial Bishop of Beauvois, threw him in prison; and the pope sent to desire his release as a son of the Church. Richard sent the pope the armor the bishop wore when taken, with these words of Jacob's sons: "This we found; see whether it be the coat of thy son or no."

On a Tombstone in a church-yard in Ulster, England, is the following epitaph: "Erected to the memory of John Phillips, accidentally shot as a mark of affection by his brother."

A large Fee.—The largest fee Sir Astley Cooper ever received was paid him by a West India millionaire named Hyatt. This gentleman having occasion to undergo a painful and perilous operation, was attended by Drs. Lettsom and Nelson as physicians, and Sir Astley as surgeon. The wealthy patient, his treatment having resulted most successfully, was so delighted that he fed his physicians with three hundred guineas each. "But you, sir," cried the grateful old man, sitting up in his bed and speaking to his surgeon, "shall have something better. There, sir, take that." The that was the convalescent's nightcap, which he flung at the dexterous operator. "Sir," replied Sir Astley, picking up the cap, "I'll pocket the affront." It was well he did so, for on reaching home he found in the cap a draft for one thousand guineas. This story has been told in various ways, but all its tellers agree as to the amount of the prize.

Willie, Butter, and Grammar.—"Willie," said a doting parent at the breakfast-table to his son, who had just entered the grammar-class at the high school, "Willie, my dear, will you pass the butter?" "Thir-tainly, thir—takthes me to pathe anything. Butter ith a common thubthantive, neuter gender, agreeth with hot buckwheat caketh, and ith governed by thugar—m-latheth underthood."

Value of Life-Boats.

THE total number of persons saved from shipwreck by the British National Life-boat Institution, counting from its commencement in 1824 to the end of 1861, was 12,272. The effectiveness of the force has gone on steadily increasing since its origin. During the first year the means at the disposal of the institution enabled it to save only 124 lives, while in 1852 as many as 778 were rescued; in 1853, 678; and in the course of the last year 4,624 persons were saved from drowning, of whom 743 owe their lives directly to the services of the life-boats.

Who can number the multitude saved by our divine life-boat, "the cross!" It is a multitude which no man can number. Glory be to God!

Remarkable Passage in Chinese Theology.

LE-EURL, the cotemporary of CONFUCIUS, wrote a book which contains the following most singular passage:

That which is invisible is called Ye,
 That which is inaudible is called He,
 That which is impalpable is called Wei.
 These three are inscrutable,
 Therefore they are blended in one.
 The first is not the brighter,
 The last is not the darker.
 It is interminable, ineffable,
 And dates from a time when nothing existed.
 It is a shape without shape, a form without form,
 A confounding mystery!
 Look back, you cannot discover its beginning.
 Look forward, you cannot discover its end.

These wonderful lines certainly teach the doctrine of God invisible, eternal, immaterial, a trinity in unity. Where did Le-Eurl learn this great first truth? Probably he visited Babylon and learned it from the Jews. Combine Ye, He, Wei, Yehewei, and you have a word very similar to the JEHOVAH of the Jews.

Varieties.

Oysters and their Ages.—The age of an oyster is not to be found out by looking into its mouth; it bears its years upon its back. Everybody who has handled an oyster-shell must have observed that it seemed as if composed of successive layers or plates overlapping each other. These are technically termed "shoots," and each of them mark a year's growth; so that, by counting them, we can determine at a glance the year when the creature came into the world. Up to the time of its maturity the shoots are regular and successive; but after that time they become irregular, and are piled one over the other, so that the shell becomes more and more thickened and bulky. Judging from the great thickness to which some oyster-shells have attained, this mollusc is capable, if left to its natural changes unmolested, of attaining a great age.

The sting of a bee consists of two long darts, adhering longitudinally, and strongly protected by one principal sheath. In stinging, the sheath is first inserted, then the two darts protrude, and make a further puncture. Each dart has nine or ten barbs at the point.

Our Hair.—God covered the skull with hair. Some people shave it off. Mischievous practice. It exposes the brain. God covered a part of man's face with hair. Some people shave it off. Mischievous practice. It exposes the throat and lungs—the eyes, likewise, say wise physiologists. Men become bald. Why? Because they wear close hats and caps! Women are never bald except by disease. They do not wear close hats and caps. Men never lose a hair below where the hat touches the head, not if they have been bald twenty years. The close cap holds the heat and perspiration. Thereby the hair glands become weak; the hair falls out. What will restore it? Nothing. After the scalp becomes shiny. But if in process of falling out, or recently lost, the following is best: Wash the head freely with cold water once or twice a day. Wear a thoroughly ventilated hat. This is the best means to arrest the loss, and restore what is susceptible of restoration. What will beautify a woman's hair? Whatever will invigorate the hair glands! Oils and most other applications debilitate the hair glands. Cold water is best. At first the head looks like a witch, but after a few weeks it makes the hair luxuriant. By the persistent use of cold water I have seen thin, poor hair become rich and curly. Only the part of the hair next the scalp should be wet. It must be thoroughly dried.

A devout slaveholder in Louisville was exhorting a poor, pious old female to be very humble, reminding her that the Saviour Jesus had neither house nor home. "Yes," she replied with emphasis, "blessed be God—he had no house, no home, and no niggers!"

Bourbon Instruments of Torture.—The Cumpana della Gancia, of Palermo, mentions a discovery which has just been made in the castle of that capital. On digging up the floor of a storehouse of artillery, three horrible instruments of torture, used under the Bourbons, were brought to light. One was the cap of silence, consisting of two copper hoops, one of which used to be screwed tight round the head, and the other tight round the face. The other instruments were the burning-chair and the foot-burner. The former is also of copper, on which the victim was strapped down, while plates of red-hot iron were let into a cavity in the back. The other is a kind of metal boot resting on an iron box, in which a fire is kept up while the prisoner had his foot in it.

Pipes and Coffee.—On visiting the house of a Turk the other day, we found the proprietor, with his legs crossed, smoking his pipe, seated upon a sofa which extended round three sides of the room; the sofa was about four feet wide, and was raised a foot from the floor, with deep fringe hanging down to the floor. Not a chair was in the room. After being introduced and seated, pipes were ordered, as many servants as there were visitors appeared, with pipes five or six feet in length, placing the bowl on the floor, and with a great deal of accuracy presenting the mouthpiece of amber to each guest within an inch or two of the mouth. They then knelt down and put a brass plate under the bowl of the pipe; after which coffee was presented in small cups with small silver holders, the servants retiring to the bottom of the room with hands crossed, each watching the cup he has presented and has to carry away.—GUY VASSAR.

The Armies of the Five great European Powers.—Austria, 783,344 men, 1,088 guns; Prussia, 719,092 men, 1,444 guns; Russia, 850,000 men, 1,160 guns; France, 626,482 men, 942 guns; Great Britain, (including India, colonial corps, etc.,) 534,527 men, 30,072 horses, 672 guns. Reserves, available for home defense, 223,240 men.

Kings and Scavengers.—It sounds very strange to hear that the most healthy class of men are the scavengers, but such is the fact; and it is assumed that the power of ashes to absorb noxious emanations of all kinds is at the bottom of the striking immunity which the scavenger exhibits from all febrile complaints. Of the upper classes the clergyman lives longest, the physician next, the lawyer next. The gentry may be reckoned as long-lived as the clergy; but the higher aristocracy are below the learned professions; and the members of the royal houses, again, average three years' less existence than even the aristocracy. Hodge, under his hedge, has a chance of thirteen years' longer life than a Bourbon or a Guelph, on the authority of those learned in vital statistics; so that we have contrasts to ponder on in modern life which our ancestors never dreamed of.

Dealing out Blessings.

"The poorest poor
Long for some moments in a weary life
When they can know and feel that they have been Themselves the fathers and the dealers out
Of some small blessings,—have been kind
To such as needed kindness: for this single cause,
That we have all of us a human heart."

A Heroic Speech.

WHEN the Marquis of Montrose was sentenced to death, the judge ordered that his head and limbs should be severed from his body, and hanged in the Tolbooth in Edinburgh, and in other public towns of the kingdom. The marquis heard the sentence with a grim smile of pride, and in the fierce anger of a generous defiance cried:

"I wish I had flesh enough to be sent to every city in Christendom, as a testimony to the cause for which I suffer."

Such admirable heroism transfigures the prisoner, while the ferocity of his sentence degrades the judge. Who would not rather be the marquis than the judge?

"He never Speaks Kindly to Me."

Conversing the other day, says one, with an interesting little girl between six and seven years old, I took occasion to impress upon her mind the debt of gratitude due from her to her heavenly Parent for bestowing upon her so good and kind a parent, whom everybody loves. I was perfectly thunderstruck with her answer. Looking me full in the face with her soft blue eyes, she replied, "He never speaks kindly to me." Perhaps this Christian father, harassed with the cares of life, was unconscious that he had roughly checked the fond attention of his child; but could cares or the interruptions of his child excuse unkindness, or a total want of tokens of endearment? Will fathers examine their habits on this point?

A POOR CHANCE FOR PEDDLERS.—A peddler called on an old lady to dispose of some of his goods, and inquired of her if she could tell him of any road which no peddler had traveled. "Yes," said she, "I know one, and only one, and that is the road to heaven."

Alphabet of Proverbs.

A GRAIN of prudence is worth a pound of craft.
 Boasters are cousins to liars.
 Confession of a fault makes half amends.
 Denying a fault doubles it.
 Envy shooteth at others and woundeth herself.
 Foolish fear doubles danger.
 God reaches us good things by our own hands.
 He has hard work who has nothing to do.
 It costs more to revenge wrongs than to bear them.
 Knavery is the worst trade.
 Learning makes a man fit company for himself.
 Modesty is a guard to virtue.
 Not to hear conscience, is the way to silence it.
 One hour to-day is worth two to-morrow.
 Proud looks make foul work in fair faces.
 Quiet conscience gives quiet sleep.
 Richest is he that wants least.
 Small faults indulged, are little thieves that let in greater.
 The boughs that bear most hang lowest.
 Upright walking is sure walking.
 Virtue and happiness are mother and daughter.
 Wise men make more opportunities than they find.
 You never lose by doing a good turn.
 Zeal without knowledge is fire without light.

Exceptional Facts in the Lives of American Statesmen.

Martin Van Buren is the only man who held the office of President, Vice-President, Minister to England, Governor of his own State, and member of both Houses of Congress.

Thomas H. Benton is the only man who has held a seat in the United States Senate for thirty consecutive years.

The only instance of father and son in the United States Senate at the same time is that of Hon. Henry Dodge, from Wisconsin, and his son, Augustus C. Dodge, from Iowa.

Gen. James Shields is the only man who ever represented two states in the United States Senate. At one time he was Senator from Illinois, and subsequently from Minnesota.

John Quincy Adams held position under the Government during every administration from that of Washington to that of Polk, during which he died. He had been Minister to England, member of both Houses of Congress, Secretary of State, and President of the United States. He died while a member of the House of Representatives.

The only instance where three brothers occupied seats in the lower House at the same time was when Elihu B. Washburne represented the First District in Illinois, Israel Washburne, Jr., the Third District in Maine, and Cadwallader Washburne the Third District in Wisconsin.

Popular Preachers.

Few popular preachers have been effective in the work of conversion, while those on whom the whole storm of the world's wrath has been driven have left the most lasting work. Those whom the world has most execrated have been those who have most blessed the world. Theirs is the crown of true Christian power, for the world is forced to submit to those who despise it. This our Lord tells us in these profound words: "He that is last shall be first." And Chrysostom has well paraphrased this as follows: "Condemn glory, and thou shalt be glorious; condemn injuries, and thou shalt be conqueror; condemn rest, and thou shalt gain rest; condemn earth, and thou shalt gain heaven."

Christian Charity.

A PASTOR was making a call upon a parishioner, an old lady, who had made it an habitual rule never to speak ill of another, and had observed it so closely that she always justified those whom she heard evil spoken of. Before the old lady made her appearance in the parlor her several children were speaking of this peculiarity of their mother, and one of them playfully added:

"Mother has such a habit of speaking well of everybody, that I believe that if Satan himself were the subject of conversation mother would find out some virtue or good quality even in him."

Of course this remark elicited some smiling and merriment at the originality of the idea, in the midst of which the old lady entered the room, and on being told what had just been said, she immediately and involuntarily replied:

"Well, my dear children, I wish we all had Satan's industry and perseverance."

The Last Saying.

A GOOD story is told of Lord Elphinstone and the minister of Cumbernauld, which is quite characteristic, and if the minister preached without notes, it was not likely he could answer his lordship. "Wauken, wauken, Lord Elphinstone!" "I'm no' sleepin', minister." "Then what did I say last?" "O. just wauken, Lord Elphinstone." "Ay, but what did I say before that?" "I'll wager a guinea, minister, ye canna tell that yersel'."

Use more Corn for Food.

A TABLE-SPOONFUL of coarse corn meal (Indian) stirred in a glass of cold water, and drank quickly on rising in the morning, has frequently had an excellent effect in keeping the system healthful and free. Living for a week wholly on sweet, fresh, pure milk, with corn meal mush, has a most wholesome effect where there is headache, dullness, cold feet, and an indifferent appetite. It would be well for dyspeptic persons to use corn meal more freely in their diet, preparing it in a great variety of ways, so that it may not pall on the taste.

A delightful Corn Griddle-cake is thus made: Scald at night half the quantity of meal you are going to use, add the other half, and mix the whole with water sufficient to give it the consistency of thick batter; add a little salt, and set it to rise; it will need no yeast. In the morning the cakes will be light and crisp. Skimmings, where meat has been boiled, is best for frying them with. Fry slowly.

Corn Muffins.—Take one pint of sifted meal, half a tea-spoonful of salt, two table-spoonfuls of melted lard, a tea-spoonful of saleratus (dissolved in two large spoonfuls of hot water.) Wet the above with sour milk, as thick as for mush or hasty pudding, and bake in buttered rings on a buttered tin.

Corn-Bread.—The American Agriculturist says, that of a multitude of competitors, Mrs. James O'Brien, of Carriek, Penn., makes the best corn-bread thus: To two quarts of meal add one pint of bread-sponge; water sufficient to wet the whole; add half a pint of flour and a table-spoonful of salt; let it rise; then knead well for the second time, and place the dough in the oven, and allow it to bake an hour and a half.

The following is an excellent recipe for the genuine Yankee Rye and Indian Loaf, a standard bread in New England, eaten both hot and cold. If preferred, wheat flour or "shorts" may be substituted for rye flour: Scald two quarts Indian meal, and when cold add one quart unbolted rye flour, three quarters pint molasses, one table-spoonful salt, and water enough to make a stiff sponge or batter. Pour into deep iron pots or kettles, and bake in a slow oven for three or four hours. If in a brick oven, leave it over night.

An Excellent Corn-Cake may be made by taking one pint of corn meal, one quart of sour milk, four eggs well beaten, two table-spoonfuls of sugar, and soda enough to sweeten the milk. Mix all well together, and bake in pans. To have any corn-cake, with eggs, light, the eggs must be well beaten. When saleratus is used it is always desirable to dissolve it thoroughly before adding it to any preparation of corn meal.

Baked Indian Pudding.—Three pints of milk, ten heaping table-spoonfuls of meal, three gills of molasses, salt, and a piece of butter as large as a hen's egg. Scald the meal with the milk, and stir in the butter and molasses. Bake three to five hours.

Some add a little chopped suet in place of the butter. If whey is wanted, pour in a little cold milk after all the rest is mixed.

"Whitpot" has the advantage of requiring far less time in cooking. Take one quart sweet milk, half pint Indian meal, two or three eggs, half tea-spoonful salt, and four table-spoonfuls sugar. Boil one pint of the milk, stir in the meal while boiling, cook five minutes, and add the remainder of the milk. Beat the sugar and eggs together, and when cold stir the whole thoroughly, and bake one hour in a deep dish. To be eaten either hot or cold.

Boiled Indian Pudding.—Take one quart sour milk, one large tea-spoonful saleratus, half tea-cupful molasses, one cup chopped suet, and meal enough to make it stiff. Tie in a cloth or bag, leaving plenty of room for the meal to swell, and boil two hours. The best sauce for this is sour cream sweetened with good molasses or maple sugar. For variety omit the suet in the above, and substitute raisins or thin slices of apple, or, better still, dried currants, and eat with sweet cream, sweetened to the taste.

Samp.—This is a good method of using corn, and a popular one when well tried—made not of the white hominy of various grades of coarseness, and sold in small bags in various stages of freshness, but yellow corn, fresh plucked from the fields or well preserved, and but recently crushed (not ground) at the village mill. It should be boiled two or three hours over a moderate fire to avoid scorching, and carefully salted. Very much of the relish both of samp and of mush depend on their having exactly the right amount of salt, and this actual experiment alone can decide satisfactorily. Thus prepared, no dish is more popular with children, and many grown people, particularly in Autumn and Winter. It can be used with syrup, or good milk, or sugar, or both. Like hasty pudding, it is good for the second day, when it should be cut in slices or made into cakes, and fried to a nice chestnut brown on a buttered griddle. The various grades of "hominy" are very good articles of food, but not so cheap nor always so good as samp.

Boiled Indian Corn (ripe).—Take common yellow corn, and boil it in a weak lye until the hulls are broken and easily slip off. Then pour off the lye and rinse the corn thoroughly, and clear out all the hulls. Boil it until soft in clear water, adding a little salt. Eat with cream and sugar, or butter and syrup, or simply with butter and pepper as a vegetable.

Maize Gruel for Invalids.—Stir a large table-spoonful of Indian meal into a tea-cupful of cold water, and salt. Have ready a quart of cold water in a spider, pour in the mixture, and boil it gently twenty minutes, stirring it constantly the last five. To make it richer, boil raisins in the gruel, add sugar, nutmeg, and a little butter.

The Garden.

A Pleasant Fertilizer for Garden Plants.

—Dissolve half to three quarters of an ounce of sulphate of ammonia (obtained cheaply at the druggists) in one gallon of water. Apply it only once a week, and then only to growing plants. It may be used with great benefit on beds of strawberries, on peas, on dwarf pears, grape-vines, dahlias, and for all kinds of pot-plants. This mixture increases the size of the foliage of plants, and gives a dark, shining green color. The flowers also are improved in proportion. And, not least important, this fertilizer will do no harm.

How to Grow Melons, Cucumbers, Squashes, etc.—As soon as the seeds begin to crack the ground in upward vegetation, lay over each hill half a newspaper or other sheet, a little raised in the center, and place a hoeful of dust at each corner, so that the winds cannot blow the papers away. Keep them on till the third leaf grows, and no bugs will trouble the vines, and they will grow as fast as in a hot-bed.

Double Pinks.—The journal of the Paris Horticultural Society states that an experienced Italian cultivator of flowers has discovered how to distinguish between single and double pinks in the seedling state. Those having, as usual, but two leaves will be single, while those having three leaves will produce double flowers. He considers this infallible.

Hints concerning Evergreens.—In our climate evergreens flourish best when transplanted in the Spring. They should be set out on wet or misty days; and while they are being transported their roots should be covered and kept moist. Great care should be taken, from the first, not to injure the delicate fibers attached to the roots; and before the tree is placed in the ground, all portions, either of the roots or branches, which have become broken or injured, should be carefully removed, cutting from the under side at an angle of about 45°. In transplanting, dig the holes of a sufficient depth and size to allow all the fine rootlets to be spread out in their natural directions. Remember, a hole surrounded by poor hard soil is little better than a box or a pot. Many persons, in transplanting choice evergreens, dig the holes in the form of a star or a Greek cross, so that the growing fibers of the young trees may be introduced into the more compact soil by degrees, instead of all at once. This plan is, however, unnecessary, when the land is, as it should be when properly cultivated, one large hole filled up with good earth. Remember, in setting out a tree, that a "well-prepared soil" does not necessarily imply one highly charged with barn-yard manure and Peruvian guano. If you forget this, you will be apt to kill your choicest specimens with over kindness.

A House Conservatory.—The following bit of taste and economy is well worthy of imitation: "The box that held the soil was about one foot square, and the roof of the conservatory was made of five panes of glass, fastened together at their edges with gum arabic and paper. The occupants of the soil were lichens, mosses, and ferns, brought by the children from the woods, and one or two plants of larger growth. This garden was in the highest state of prosperity, doing its own raining and dewing, and needing but very little irrigation from without. This conservatory was an object of general interest to the whole household, the unfolding of any new flower being hailed with great acclamation. Its expense, not the least important item these hard times, was, box, 6 cents; glass, 25; gum, 2; plants from hot house, 6; total, 39 cents."

Cabbage should be cooked in pure water till perfectly soft. Butter and salt are a good trimming for it.

The Mothers' Page.

NOT WRATH BUT LOVE.

Provoke not your children to wrath.—EPHES. vi, 4.

NEVER punish a child when you are angry. Wait till you are cool. If you punish in a passion, you are but rousing bad passions in return. You are souring your child's temper, and hardening his young heart.

We greatly increase the need of punishment by punishing too often, and by dealing out the same correction for small offenses as for great. You thus wound your child's sense of justice. Your child may have broken a plate, or spilt a jug of milk, through accident; or he may have done so in wanton disobedience. The loss to the mother is just the same, and the trouble is the same. But the offense is widely different, and the punishment ought not to be the same. Never mistake an accident for a fault.

Never forget that the true secret of a mother's sway over the mind and conduct of her children is LOVE. If she is loving and thoughtful toward her children, she will generally meet with love and obedience in return. We shall generally reap according to the seed we sow. If we sow the bitter seeds of unkindness, we shall mostly reap their bitter fruits. If we sow the sweet seeds of kindness and tenderness, with God's blessing we shall mostly gather the dutiful fruits of love and obedience.

It is never too soon to begin to sow the seeds of love. Begin at once. Even the little baby on your lap knows the difference between a loving smile and an unloving look, when it turns from its mother's bosom to the face bending over. The smile of love is soon answered by baby's own smile. Love for love—smile for smile.

Mothers! these things are no trifles. I know a mother, a small and feeble woman, crippled by rheumatism, and often unable to lift an arm or to move a foot. Six tall, stout sons grew up around her. It was beautiful to see the loving reverence of these great boys for this little mother. To dispute her words, or to disobey her wishes, never seemed to enter their honest heads. And now, though scattered over the world, each in his own little world of action, the lads still remember the crippled mother, praying for them at home. "What would mother think?" is still a question which settles many a conflict with sin and temptation. The secret of her authority and of their obedience is love. And the secret of her love is the knowledge of a God of love who has given us the twofold exhortation, "Children, obey your parents—Parents, provoke not your children to wrath."

Intercourse at the Table.

To meet at the breakfast-table father, mother, children, all well, ought to be a happiness to any heart; it should be a source of humble gratitude, and should wake up the warmest feelings of our nature. Shame upon the contemptible and low-bred ear, whether parent or child, that can ever come to the breakfast-table, where the family have met in health, only to frown or whine, and growl or fret! It is prima facie evidence of a mean, and groveling, and selfish, and degraded nature, whencesoever the churl may have sprung. Nor is it less reprehensible to make such exhibitions at the supper-table; for before morning comes some of the little circle may be stricken with death.

Children in good health, if left to themselves at the table, become after a few mouthfuls garrulous and noisy; but if within at all reasonable or bearable bounds it is better to let them alone; they eat less, because they do not eat so rapidly as if compelled to keep silent, while the very exhilaration of spirits quickens the circulation of the vital fluids, and energizes digestion and assimilation. The extremes of society curiously meet in this regard. The tables of the rich and nobles of England are models of mirth, wit, and bonhomie; it takes hours to get through a repast, and they live long. If anybody will look in upon the negroes of a well-to-do family in Kentucky while at their meals, they cannot but be impressed with the perfect abandon of jabber, cachinnation and mirth; it seems as if they could talk all day, and they live long. It follows, then, at the family table all should habitually make a common interchange of warm affections and cheering mirthfulness, and that generosity of nature which lifts us above the brutes which perish.

INDIANA INSTITUTION FOR THE BLIND.

"PITY THE BLIND!" "I am blind!" Who can pass a man or woman with one of these sad notices fastened to hat or waist without an emotion of pity? Blind! Who that enjoys the gift of sight can fathom the great depth of that word, BLIND! To be blind is to dwell in a living tomb; to be in the midst of life, and yet to be, in a great degree, excluded from participating in its activities. What a perpetual temptation to impatience and discontent blindness must be! How grateful should those be who possess the gift of sight for the priceless blessing!

In what better way can gratitude for sight be shown than by practical sympathy for the blind? Our national sympathy for them is fitly expressed in not less than twenty institutions for their instruction and comfort. The Indiana Institution for the Blind, as represented above, was organized in 1847. It has no superior in America.

Press On.

"What, wearied out with half a life?
 Scarred with this smooth, unbloody strife?
 Think where thy coward hopes had flown
 Had heaven held out the martyr's crown.
 How couldst thou hang upon the cross,
 To whom a weary hour is loss?
 Or how the thorns and scourgings brook,
 Who shrinkest from a scornful look?"

SECRET OF PULPIT SUCCESS.—The true secret of pulpit success, says an exchange, has been well said to lie, not in grace of manner, nor richness of voice, nor fullness of matter, nor even all these combined; but in that indescribable unction which is obtained by prayer, by profound meditation upon divine truth, by a deep conviction of the overwhelming importance of eternal things to speaker and hearers. This is the ineffable anointing of the Spirit, which no man can counterfeit, and which no people can mistake.

Hints for the Household.

Skeleton Leaves and Flowers.—Select firm and perfect leaves, flowers, or green seed pods. Steep the firmer varieties in water a few minutes (the softer will not need it) and then lay them in cold soft water, and keep them covered for two or three or more weeks, or until the soft parts are quite decayed, not changing the water. Then take them out, lay them on a plate with a little water, and with a camel's hair pencil remove the pulpy parts entirely. If they need bleaching, prepare a liquid for this purpose as follows: To one quart of water add one spoonful of chloride of lime. Shake well, and let it stand some hours. Pour off the clear liquid, and put your skeletons into it till sufficiently bleached. Then dry and arrange in bouquets to suit the fancy under glass.

In the time of nest-building put up boxes around the premises for the wrens and bluebirds. They will be an ornament to your grounds, while the birds will sing for you and protect your bees, and vines, and fruit from insects.

Cleanse the inside of jars by filling up with hot water, and stirring in a spoonful or more of pearlash. Then empty at once, and if not perfectly clean fill again and let it stand a few hours. For large vessels lye may be used.

A beautiful ornament for the parlor mantel or center-table is made by taking large pine burrs, sprinkling grass seeds in them, and placing them in pots of water. When the burrs are soaked a few days they close up in the form of solid cones, and then the spires of grass begin to peep forth from behind the lamina, and the ornament is complete.

Coal Ashes.—The best use to which they can be applied is in making garden-walks. If well laid down no weeds nor grass can grow, and they become as solid and more durable than bricks.

Moths.—There is no preventive against the ravages of this insect more reliable than to wrap the articles to be preserved closely in linen or cotton cloths. Some practice pasting them close in stout paper.

Cleaning Silk.—The lightest colored silk may be cleansed and brightened by this process, also cloth, velvet, or crape; Pare and slice thin three medium sized Irish potatoes; pour on them half a pint of boiling water, and add an equal quantity of pure alcohol. Sponge the silk with this on the right side, and when half dry iron on the wrong side.

Small vermin of all kinds may be killed and effectually cleared out of their favorite resorts by the free use of burning-fluid. Caution, however, must be used in its application to woodwork, as it injures paint.

To remove Glass Stoppers.—When the stopper of a glass decanter is too tight, a cloth wet with hot water, and applied to the neck, will cause the glass to expand, and the stopper may be removed. In a vial the warmth of the finger may be sufficient.

Cleaning Silver.—Silver door-plates are most expeditiously cleaned with a weak solution of ammonia and water—say, one teaspoonful of ammonia to one tea-cup of water, applied with a wet rag. It is equally useful in cleaning other silver plate and gold jewelry.

Home-made Chloride of Lime is a powerful deodorizer, and quite as good for all out-of-door purposes as the article bought of the apothecary at twenty times its cost. To one bushel of salt add water barely sufficient to dissolve it, and with a part of this salt water wet-slack one barrel of lime. Add a little of the remaining salt water daily until all is taken up, and the chloride is ready to be applied whenever offensive odors are generated. It should be kept moist and under shelter. Its odor, unlike that of quick lime, is innoxious.

Useful Recipe.—The Scientific American advises the ladies, when they wish to wash fine and elegant colors, to boil some bran in rain-water and use the liquid cold. Nothing, it is said, can equal it for cleaning cloth and for revivifying effects upon colors. Try it, ladies.

Oil your noisy door-hinges and locks, and save yourself a world of annoyance.

To cleanse Mattresses.—Hair mattresses that have become hard and dirty can be made nearly as good as new by ripping them, washing the ticking, and picking the hair free from bunches, and keeping it in a dry, airy place several days. Dry the ticking well, fill it lightly with the hair, and tack it together.

Drying Dishes.—Much time is wasted by housekeepers in wiping their dishes. If properly washed and drained in a dry sink, with a cloth spread on the bottom, they look better than when wiped, besides the economy of time and labor.

To remove ink from paper or cloth, wash the spots with a solution of oxalic acid and water. If the cloth be colored or printed great care will be necessary, as the acid will be likely to remove the colors also. It is well also to remember that oxalic acid, taken internally, is a deadly poison, and to have suitable caution in its use.

Mutton vs. Pork.—Physicians recommend mutton as the most wholesome meat, the most easily digested, and best suited to invalids, while pork, as is well known, is the most unwholesome flesh that is eaten. In England mutton is a favorite dish, and we apprehend that it is to this, rather than to roast beef, that the Englishman owes his robust health and rosy complexion. Our people eat too much pork and too little mutton. And yet mutton can be produced pound for pound at much less than the price of pork, and yields more nourishment when eaten; and keeping sheep does not exhaust a farm to the extent that feeding hogs does.

The King-Fisher.

THE King-Fishers, of which we give an engraving, are found in their various varieties in all parts of the world. The one from which our drawing is made (the common king-fisher) has a beautifully variegated plumage of greenish and azure blue, buff, and bright orange. It is an exceedingly voracious bird, and is remarkable for the wonderful rapidity of its flight. It builds on the banks of streams, sometimes taking possession of a rat's hole in which to lay its eggs. Of the belted American variety, Wilson says: "Like the love-lorn swains of whom poets tell us, he delights in murmuring streams and falling waters; not, however, merely that he may soothe his ear, but for a gratification somewhat more substantial. Amid the roar of the cataract, or over the foam of a torrent, he sits perched upon an overhanging bough, glancing his piercing eye in every direction for his scaly prey, which, with a sudden plunge, he sweeps from his native element and swallows in an instant." His voice resembles the sound of a watchman's rattle, and is loud and harsh. By the ancient Greeks the king-fisher was called Aleyone, from the daughter of Æolus, who, it is said, threw herself into the sea, and was metamorphosed into one of these birds. There have been, indeed, many superstitious stories with reference to the king-fisher, and even to this day he is regarded with a kind of awe by the South Sea Islanders.

The Prayer of a Christian Philosopher.

"O ETERNAL WISDOM! I am not a light to myself; and the bodies which surround me cannot illuminate me: the superior intelligences themselves, seeing that they contain not in themselves the reason which makes them wise, cannot communicate that reason to my mind. Thou alone art the Light of angels and of men; Thou alone art the universal Reason to all minds. Thou art the very Wisdom of the Father—Wisdom eternal, unchangeable, necessary, who makest wise creatures, and even, though in a manner altogether different, the Creator. O Thou, my true and only Master, show thyself to me! Cause me to see light in thy light. I appeal only to thee. I would consult none but thee. Speak, thou Eternal Word, the Word of the Father, that has been always uttered, that utters itself now, that will utter itself forever. O speak, and so loudly that I may hear thee through all the confused noises which my senses and my passions are continually making in my soul. But O, Jesus, I beseech thee to speak in me only for thy glory, and to make me know only thy greatness, for in thee are hidden all the treasures of the wisdom and knowledge of God. He who knoweth thee knoweth the Father, and he who knoweth thee and the Father is perfectly blessed. Cause me, then, to know, O Jesus, what thou art, and how all things subsist in thee. Penetrate my mind with the brightness of thy glory; consume my heart with the fire of thy love. Grant me in this work, which I compose only for thy glory, expressions clear and true, full of life and soul; expressions worthy of thee, and such as shall increase in me, and in those who share my meditations, the knowledge of thy greatness, the sense of thy mercies."—Malebranche.

"Press nobly on! the goal is near;
 Look upward, onward, never fear!
 Why shouldst thou faint? Heaven smiles above
 Though storm and vapor intervene—
 That sun shines on whose name is Love,
 Serenely o'er life's shadowed scene."

Coals of Fire.

A RESPECTABLE colored man called on a merchant of New York one day and asked him to aid a colored church with a subscription. His credentials were good, and among those who knew him he stood high. The merchant cried, "Yes, I will give you something." He took the negro by the collar, showed him to the door, kicked him into the street, and said: "There, take that." The darkey had not made up his mind what to do. The ejection was summary and complete. His subscription-book lay in the gutter, his hat on the sidewalk, and himself in the street. His first impulse was to break the assailant's windows; but he concluded he would not do that. He gathered up his property and sought a more hospitable shelter. He told his tale, and before night his gains footed up fifty dollars; and a bright thought struck him, that he must put down the assault and battery as so much toward the church, and see what it would come to. He went on his way. Money came in. He told his story, and, like the two mites, it promised more than any one had put into the treasury.

The assailant heard of the story. He was ashamed of his conduct. He wanted to stop the mouth of the black rascal, as he called him. He sent for him, made an apology, and put his name down on the book and gave the money into the hand of the black man. But it did not stop his mouth. He told it so much the more. And now he goes on his way—he tells how the man assaulted him. "He caught me by the wool and swung me round just so. He put his name on my book. Jest look a here—dare hem be if you don't believe 'um." And the agent for the little, small, weak black man's church among the poor of our city thinks that the day he was so beaten was the "best day's work this nigger ebber did." Not a bad illustration of that old command to heap coals of fire on the head of your enemy.

The Centenary of Methodism.

In the year 1839 the hundredth anniversary of Methodism was celebrated throughout the connection. The movement was specially marked by an extraordinary spirit of liberality. In Great Britain the objects set apart to be remembered on this occasion were, 1st, the Theological Institution; 2d, a new edifice, to be called the Wesleyan Centenary Buildings and New Mission Rooms; 3d, the relief of distressed chapels; 4th, the better support of worn-out preachers and their widows; 5th, the erection of a centenary chapel in Dublin; and, 6th, the Education Committee. The sum of £80,000 was fixed for the desired amount; but the free and grateful contributions of the people, in acknowledgement of the benefits of Methodism, continued to flow in, notwithstanding the commercial depression then existing, until they reached the noble sum of £216,000, or $1,080,000. The elegant building represented in the above engraving was one of the results of this munificent donation.

Beware of Fine Words.

DR. BATES was elaborate and somewhat artificial in his style. He preached soundly and well, but rather too finely for many of his audience. He once complained to a friend of the small success he had found in his ministry, and received the following keen but faithful answer: "Thank your velvet mouth, doctor; it is too fine to speak market language." Ministers must speak home to their hearers. They must secure the attention of the poorest and the youngest. They must get at their people's minds, they must get at their hearts; but, above all, they must get at their consciences. Of an old minister it was once remarked, "He had a wonderful grasp of the conscience." Of another it was said, that men "fell before him like slaked lime." But it is not by rounded periods, or elaborate logic, or high-flown figures, or excited declamation, or irreverent humor, that ministers will ever grasp the conscience or lay low the sinner. "So speak," says an old writer, "that the bride may hear and know the Bridegroom's voice in your sermons. Be grave, that the Spirit of Christ may rest upon thee. Preach the preaching that God bids thee. Let thy matter be sound and spiritual, and never fear but an arrow so feathered will reach home. Take no further care of thy words than that they may decently suit the matter thou art delivering."

Dr. Milne.

WHEN the late Dr. Milne, of China, was a working tradesman at Leith Hall, the seat of the late General Hay, now of Sir Andrew Leith Hay, in Aberdeenshire, he was ever ready to act out John Newton's principle: "I make it a rule of Christian duty never to go to a place where there is not room for my Master as well as myself." It so happened that on one occasion when a ball was to be given in honor of some family event, orders were issued to send invitations to every person on the estate. When the grieve received the name of William Milne, he said to the steward, "You need not invite Milne, he won't come; balls don't do with his religion." "But you can take the invitation whether he accepts it or not," replied the steward, "for my instructions are to invite all." The grieve sent the message to William Milne, who, on receiving it, gravely said: "Tell the grieve that when William Milne has no work for eternity he will attend to balls." The answer was an arrow from the quiver of divine truth. It pierced his heart, and he could get no peace until it was withdrawn by the great Physician, and the balm of Gilead applied. The grieve still lives, and in a higher sphere of labor has long been a useful and consistent member of the Church of Christ.

THE heart which bleeds for others' woes
 Shall feel each selfish sorrow less;
 The breast which happiness bestows
 Reflected happiness shall bless.

Pictures.

A ROOM with pictures in it, and a room without pictures, differ by nearly as much as a room with windows and a room without windows. Nothing, we think, is more melancholy, particularly to a person who has to pass much time in his room, than blank walls with nothing on them, for pictures are loop-holes of escape to the soul, leading it to other spheres. It is such an inexpressible relief to a person engaged in writing, or even reading, on looking up, not to have his line of vision chopped off by an odious white wall, but to find his soul escaping, as it were, through the frame of an exquisite picture, to other beautiful and perhaps heavenly scenes, where the fancy for a moment may revel, refreshed and delighted. Thus pictures are consolers of loneliness; they are a sweet flattery to the soul; they are a relief to the jaded mind; they are windows to the imprisoned thought; they are books; they are histories and sermons, which we can read without the trouble of turning over the leaves.

What an Old Man said to his Wife.

Ah, don't be sorrowful, darling,
And don't be sorrowful, pray;
Taking the year together, my dear,
There isn't more night than day.

'Tis rainy weather, my darling,
Time's waves they heavily run;
But taking the year together, my dear,
There isn't more cloud than sun!

We are old folks now, my darling,
Our heads they are growing gray;
But taking the year all round, my dear,
You will always find the May!

We have had our May, my darling,
And our roses long ago;
And the time of the year is coming, my dear,
For the silent night and the snow.

And God is God, my darling,
Of night as well as of day,
And we feel and know that we can go
Wherever he leads the way.

Ay, God of the night, my darling—
Of the night of death so grim;
The gate that leads out of life, good wife,
Is the gate that leads to Him.

MAN.—Philosophers have puzzled themselves how to define man, so as to distinguish him from other animals. Burke says, "Man is an animal that cooks his victuals." "Then," says Johnson, "the proverb is just which says, 'there is reason in roasting an egg.'" Adam Smith has hit the case. "Man," says he, "is an animal that makes bargains. No other animal does this—no dog exchanges bones with another."

The Farmers' Page.

Kill the Millers.—A farmer in New Jersey says: "Some ten years ago I purchased the property where I now live. The former owner, being quite a man for fruit, had set a large variety of trees. The farm was noted for producing more fruit, and greater variety probably, than any other farm in the neighborhood. At the time of my purchase the trees were on the decline. The cherry and plum trees were covered with black knots, and the fruit was wormy and worthless, so that I was about to cut them down and supply their places with shade trees; but disliking to part with the fruit, and observing that the enemies were at one stage of their existence in the form of a miller, my plan was to destroy them while in that stage. With that object in view, and observing that they were fond of a light, in the early part of the summer of 1855 I commenced their destruction. To do this I elevated a brisk blaze about five feet from the ground in the vicinity of my trees. The first evening, between eight and eleven o'clock, the millers destroyed might have been counted by hundreds, which gradually diminished, so that at the end of one week there were none to destroy. I then discontinued my fire until the latter part of summer, when I discovered another crop of millers, and again built them a blaze. I have followed the same course whenever the candles have drawn them, to give them a light of their own, which has been twice in the summer. Now for the result: My trees have gradually resumed their former rich green; those knots have fallen from the cherry and plum trees; and this year the crop of Morella cherries has been probably as large as they ever were, and that on trees that were considered worthless five years since, and the cherries and plums not wormy."

How to Test the Quality of Wool.—Take a lock of wool from the sheep's back and place it upon an inch rule. If you can count from thirty to thirty-three of the spirals or folds in the space of an inch, it equals in quality the finest electoral of Saxony wool grown. Of course when the number of spirals to an inch diminishes, the quality of the wool becomes relatively inferior. Many tests have been tried, but this is considered the simplest and the best. Cotswold wool and some other inferior wools do not measure nine spirals to the inch. There are some coarse wools which experienced wool-growers do not rank as wool, but as hair, on account of the hardness and straightness of fiber.

Relative Value of Food for Milch Cows.—The Scottish Farmer observes: "Several French and German chemists estimate the relative value of several descriptions of food for milch cows as follows: That 100 pounds of good hay are worth 200 pounds of potatoes; 460 pounds of beet root, with the leaves; 350 pounds of Siberian cabbage; 250 pounds of beet root, without the leaves; 250 pounds of carrots; 80 pounds of hay, clover, Spanish trefoil, or vetches; 50 pounds of oil-cake or colza; 250 pounds of pea straw and vetches; 300 pounds of barley and oat straw; 400 pounds of rye or wheat straw; 25 pounds of peas, beans, or vetch seed; 50 pounds of oats; or 500 pounds of green trefoil, Spanish trefoil, or vetches.

Scarecrows.—After the season of planting our corn-fields exhibit all sorts of artistic ingenuity, in the shape of old clothes statutory, and a very odd and expressible tableau, as well as a great amount of never-ending twine; glittering pieces of tin hung on poles by ever-twisting and twisting strings; old coffee pots and dilapidated hats; all to intimidate that very sable, but sagacious bird, the crow. Mr. Crow generally laughs in his sleeve at all this expenditure of cast-off toggery, and takes the corn he wants before the farmer is up, or in the house at his meals, or gone to meeting, or absent from the premises from some other cause. The best mode that we ever adopted to keep this inveterate poacher from pulling up our corn, was to surround him with assailants of his own kind. Make bird fight bird. We once set up a couple of martin boxes on poles in our corn-field. These were occupied by families of martins; and woe fell on every crow's devoted head that dared to show itself anywhere near the premises. They were out as early as Mr. Crow himself, and ready to give him battle all summer, or until their young had flown, and they got ready to migrate South. There was many a battle fought over the field, but no corn was pulled up that year.—Maine Farmer.

Calves with Sheep.—A correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph remarks that late calves, when they come to the barn in the fall, will, if confined in yards with older animals, frequently sicken and become debilitated. Being weak and small, they are usually shoved about and deprived of their due share of the food, and in consequence "fall away" rapidly. Now, I never allow animals of this description to associate or be confined with larger ones, but put them with my sheep, where there is no danger of their doing or receiving harm. Sick calves, I have observed, often pick up and devour with avidity the hay and straw from among the sheep dung. It is medicinal, and I know of no article that has a more immediate and salutary effect in restoring diseased calves to health than sheep dung. I have practiced this usage for many years, and have never lost an animal, though I had many sick when they came to the barn.

Destroying the Apple-Tree Worms.—As soon as the nests are large enough to be readily seen, which is while the worms are quite small, make a soap-suds of the consistence of thin cream, take a light pole of length adapted to the height of your trees, tie firmly on the small end a swab, letting it project four or five inches over the end. With this apply the suds to the nests, twisting them around the swab, and thoroughly wetting the worms and the limb where the nest is. Rest assured they will soon be "deadly sick" of "soft soaping." Of various methods, I find this the easiest and most effective.

The Bird-world.

THE activity of birds when they have young is most surprising. We have a record of the observations made on a pair of blue titmice when rearing their young. The parent-birds began their labor of love at half past three in the morning, and did not leave off until after eight o'clock in the evening, after being almost incessantly engaged for nearly seventeen hours. A person counted their various returns to the nest, and found them to be 475. Up to four o'clock, as a breakfast, they were fed twelve times; between five and six, forty times, flying to and from a plantation more than one hundred and fifty yards from their nest; between nine and ten o'clock they fed them forty-six times, and they continued at their work till the time specified, sometimes bringing in a single caterpillar, and other times two or three small ones. The number of destructive insects removed by birds when feeding their young must be astonishing, if they are in any degree as active as the two blue titmice so patiently observed by this person.

"To a Whip-poor-will.

"Why whip poor Will? what sin of mine
Deserves so harsh a word?
How impudent! I half incline
To quarrel with the bird.

"Close to my chamber-window, love,
That creature, every night,
Comes perching on the boughs above—
An ill-commissioned sprite.

"And in that cool, sarcastic style
To pity me pretends:
Calls me 'poor William,' yet the while
A whipping recommends.

"Poor Will! Poor Will! yet 'whip poor Will?'
Thou contradictory thing;
What's my offense, and wherefore still
So cross a carol sing?

"Thus at my chamber-window, love,
Hid in that elm-tree shade,

From heaven's reproofful eyes above,
He screams my serenade.

"Till, in the stillness of the hour,
Beneath those solemn stars,
His chant with a mysterious power
My midnight slumber mars.

"My little monitor! I own
That, in the hush of night,
Thy cry comes o'er me like the tone
Of conscience—thou art right.

"Since, though for knowledge incomplete
Some pity I deserve,
Full oft with weak and willing feet
From duty's path I swerve.

"And pity must be mingled still
With chastisement—I know it—
Or else my native bent for ill
Might spoil both man and poet."

HECTOR FALLS, SENECA LAKE, N. Y.

Interesting Discovery at Jerusalem.

ACCORDING to the Jewish Chronicle, the foundation of the inner wall of Jerusalem (referred to in Lam. ii, 8, under the name of rampart, and also in Isaiah xxii, 11, where the two walls are spoken of) has lately been discovered. As far as it is laid bare it consists of very large stones, and the solid masonry is just the same as that of the western wall of the temple. It is about four yards distant from the present wall. The spot was visited by many Europeans, among whom are mentioned the Austrian and French consuls, as also by Dr. Rosen, the Prussian consul, distinguished for his topographical knowledge of the Holy City, and they all agreed in pronouncing this remnant of hoary antiquity the foundation of the "rampart." It was discovered while digging to lay the foundation of a new building, the "Abode of Peace," erecting for the Jewish poor at the expense of a deceased benefactor. On the same plot of ground was also discovered a very large and equally ancient cistern, thirty-six yards long by nine and a half wide, and fourteen deep.—London Builder.

Library of the British Museum.

THE expenses of the British Museum for the past year were £99,012, being £502 less than during the previous year. 34,589 new books have been added to the library, of which 23,097 were purchased, and the rest secured by copyright. Valuable additions have also been made to the collections of ancient statuary and of manuscripts. Among the latter are over a hundred letters of William Cowper, including the autograph copies of "John Gilpin," "Alexander Selkirk," and "The Loss of the Royal George."

THE PAST AND THE PRESENT.—A clergyman thus describes the difference between his experience in the past and the present: "Formerly," said he, "I committed my soul to God; now I commit the keeping of my soul to him, and he does keep it."

We have seen many dictionaries of quotations, but this surpasses them all in extent and system. The subjects are those that come before the preacher's mind, and he will open this book as he is preparing a sermon, and find happy lines to adorn and enrich his discourse, and astonish his hearers by his familiarity with the poets! It will also lead him to the study of poetry, and introduce him to authors whose acquaintance he would never have cultivated, but for these brief and sententious extracts from their works. More than four thousand quotations are here made.—N. Y. Observer.

Here we have an admirable memorandum book, the want of which has been felt, we venture to say, very generally, by our ministerial brethren. It contains the following departments: Funerals attended, sermons preached, alphabetical list of members, alphabetical list of probationers, alphabetical list of friends not members, record of baptisms, record of marriages, subscribers for periodicals, cash accounts, general accounts, general memorandum, etc.—Canada Christian Advocate.

Sermons by Jabez Bunting, D.D.

Volume I. 8vo. Price, $2 25.

The sermons are theologically of the conservative order, thoroughly Wesleyan of course, indulging in no bold, unsafe, or doubtful speculations. Great thoughts are ponderously massed together, apparently flowing slowly from his pen, not unfrequently laboriously expressed, each one nevertheless standing forth in clear light. As we read them we turn to the portrait fronting the title-page, and think of a mighty man, with his heavy tread upon the solid pavement, turning aside in no by-paths, indulging in no eccentric notions of a better private road through the jungle and morass than the old public and well-known highway. When he discusses the great themes of the Gospel he is as the rapt seer beholding glories unseen by mortal eye. Those preached on special occasions were prepared in the ripe maturity of his manhood, and show, especially the four missionary sermons, the greatness of his powers. The odor of the closet is strong upon them. His full skill was employed in their composition. If we may suppose that the thoughts here expressed were, in their delivery, expanded or outrun in the untrammelled and loftier conceptions of the moment, we can perceive, the aid of the Divine Spirit being always understood, how the large congregations so attentively listening to his words should sometimes be thrilled and almost overpowered. We hope the remainder of the series, when issued, will be equally valuable.—Methodist Quarterly Review.

A Complete System of Christian Theology;

Or, a Concise, Comprehensive, and Systematic View of the Evidences, Doctrines, Morals, and Institutions of Christianity.

BY SAMUEL WAKEFIELD, D.D.

Large 8vo. Price, $2 50.

The design of the author was to furnish a clear and comprehensive outline of scriptural theology, which, though especially intended for the benefit of those who are preparing for the Christian ministry, should at the same time be adapted to the wants of all classes of readers, from the aged theologian to the Sabbath-school scholar.—Preface.

A Commonplace-Book,

Designed to assist Students, Professional Men, and General Readers in treasuring up Knowledge for Future Use.

BY JAMES PORTER, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION, BY REV. WILLIAM RICE.

Quarto. Price, $2 50.

The title well defines the book, and a valuable book it is for men of system, industry, and reading. First we have an index, under the letters of which the reader will place the subjects alphabetically, referring to the page where he will enter the extract, or the hint, or reference he will make. In these pages he will from week to week embody a vast amount of knowledge, and be able to lay his hand upon it at any time. We advise every man who has patience and perseverance to make use of such a book as this, and it will repay him for all the labor it costs him.—New York Observer.

PRONOUNCING BIBLE.

Large 8vo. Price, $3 50 to $8 00.

We have lately issued the best Bible in print, a PRONOUNCING BIBLE, having these advantages: 1. The proper names are divided and accented, so that a child can pronounce them correctly. 2. Each book has a short introduction, showing just what every reader ought to know about it. 3. It has a much improved class of references. 4. It contains a map of Old Canaan and its surroundings, and one of Palestine, according to the latest discoveries.

The method is more simple and easy than any other we have seen. The pronunciation marks are very judiciously confined to the proper names, leaving the remainder of the text unencumbered. The multitudes of Bible readers who stumble at the hard names of people and places may find a very satisfactory relief by using this edition. For family worship, or private devotional reading, this edition has strong recommendations.—Presbyterian.

In this Bible the proper names are divided into syllables and accented, so that it is hardly possible to mispronounce them. The "Introductions" are brief, but contain a large amount of useful and necessary information. The "references," as far as we have had time to test them, are decidedly the most accurate we have met with. It is one of the most beautiful and complete Bibles in the world, and it will be an acquisition to the study, the family, the Bible class and the pulpit.—Evangelical Witness.

Whedon's Commentary.

A Commentary on the Gospels of Matthew and Mark.

INTENDED FOR POPULAR USE.

By D. D. WHEDON, D.D.

12mo. Price, $1 50.

The first volume of this work has been on sale for the past year and a large number of volumes have been sold. It is a 12mo. of 422 closely printed pages, embracing a fine map of Palestine, and other valuable illustrations. It is the cheapest book for the price that we have issued in many years. The two volumes which are to follow will be announced in due time. All the notices we have seen, as well as the remarks we have heard, go to the effect that this book is a timely, able, and valuable addition to our literature.

Dr. Whedon has furnished the people with the results of critical study, modern travels and Christian reflection, in brief and pithy comments on the difficult or obscure words and phrases in the first two evangelists, enlarging on occasional passages of importance.—Congregational Herald.

It gives the results of patient study and the careful examination of the works of those who have preceded him in the same field, in few words well chosen.—Christ. Observer, Phila.

Dr. Whedon is one of the clearest, strongest, and boldest writers in America. He addresses the intellect, not the passions; reason, not the feelings. The principal value of this commentary is found in exposition, while its real spiritual utility will depend much on the piety of the reader, and hence a boundless field is before him. Religious truths are presented in vivid distinctness; the popular mind is instructed.—Richmond Christ. Adv.

STEVENS'S HISTORY OF METHODISM.

The History of the Religious Movement of the Eighteenth Century, called Methodism,

CONSIDERED IN ITS DIFFERENT DENOMINATIONAL FORMS, AND ITS RELATIONS
TO BRITISH AND AMERICAN PROTESTANTISM.

By ABEL STEVENS, LL.D.

Vol. I.—From the Origin of Methodism to the Death of Whitefield.

Vol. II.—From the Death of Whitefield to the Death of Wesley.

Vol. III.—From the Death of Wesley to the Centenary Jubilee of Methodism.

12mo. Muslin Price, $1 25 per volume.

8vo. Illustrated edition, morocco. " 2 75 "

This History of Methodism is a work of such rare excellence that we wonder that any Methodist family able to procure a copy will consent to be without one. Some, we are aware, are waiting until the work shall be completed. In this they commit a capital mistake. The probability is, if they adhere to their purpose, that they will never read the work. The first three volumes are full of interest. They cannot be read by any Methodist without advantage. We owe it to ourselves and to the Church, as parties to the grand enterprise which they discuss, to read them and push them into circulation. No books published by our Book Concern are better calculated to give our denomination a commanding influence. Methodists who are able should keep a copy to loan to neighbors of other denominations. The following extracts express the general sentiment with regard to their character and adaptation:

The Boston Evening Journal says: "We shall have something to say of the work as a whole when it is completed in the mean time we would advise all those who desire to become familiar with the names and things which have changed the whole current of religious affairs, to read the history of such men as John Wesley, and of such institutions as that of Methodism."

The Christian Guardian says: "The student of Methodist history will find this masterly production all that he can require."

The New York Post gives nearly a column to it, and says: "Its style is direct, simple, and very energetic. The author is clear and rapid in statement, and maintains the interest, even the enthusiasm of the narrative without flagging."

The Christian Intelligencer (Dutch Reformed) says it is an "elaborate and classic history. We have read it with equal avidity and delight. It bears the impress of a mind at once acute and comprehensive."

The Christian Observer, (Presbyterian,) Philadelphia, says: "This work will be sought for and read with avidity, not only by Methodists, but by many others who are interested in the history of religious opinions."

The Episcopal Recorder (Philadelphia) says: "It is compiled with industry, and written with spirit."

The Pittsburgh Advocate says: "Take it all in all, we know not where to find a book of more absorbing interest. That the work will have a wide field outside of the Methodist Episcopal Church we cannot doubt, and within its fold an effort should be made at once to place it within the reach of all."

Elements of Logic.

By REV. C. K. TRUE, D.D.

Price, 60 Cents.

We are glad to see that this excellent book is being introduced into many schools and seminaries. If our friends connected with school committees through the country will take a little pains they may introduce it into thousands of schools with advantage to all concerned.

We believe that, with a treatise as simple as Dr. True's, all college students might understand logic, and the higher classes of our academies and grammar schools be emboldened to study it; while the study of the treatises in ordinary use is now almost wholly confined to colleges, and the understanding of them to a small percentage of each class. We give the book, therefore, our cordial commendation. It is short and simple, not because it is shallow and superficial, but because the author has the mastery of his science, knows how it ought to be taught, perceives the utility of its study to all persons of intelligence and culture, and has adapted his presentation of it to this so desirable end.—North American Review.

This is a thorough popular treatise on the Elements of Logic, the best undoubtedly in the market for schools and colleges. Those who have not had the advantages of schools would do well to give it a thorough study.—Zion's Herald.

Dr. True's book is just the thing for a self-taught young man to study. It simplifies the science, and places its principles within the grasp of any mind of ordinary industry and intelligence. It is also admirably fitted for a text-book in academies and colleges.—Teachers' Journal.

Rudiments of Public Speaking and Debate.

REVISED, WITH NOTES, BY REV. L. D. BARROWS.

Price, 80 Cents.

"Speech is the body, thought the soul, and suitable action the lips of eloquence."

He has oratory who ravishes his hearers, while he forgets himself.—Lavater.

Eloquence is vehement simplicity.—Cecil.

The object of this book is to assist public speakers in perfecting themselves in the art of speaking effectively. Too many exhaust themselves on the matter of their discourse, and utterly fail in the manner of it. The tendency of this book is to correct this error, and secure a better and more impressive style. Please read the following notices of it:

We cordially commend Dr. Barrows's volume to all ministers, young and old, and in fact to public speakers of all classes. It is full of marrow and fatness.—Western Advocate.

A close study of it will save the young public speaker from many blunders which, if uncorrected, will impair his usefulness and hinder his success.—Northern Advocate.

A Record for the Quarterly Conference.

Price of the Book, $2 00; Sheets, $3 per hundred.

Preachers, exhorters, stewards, and leaders are hereby advised to supply themselves with the QUARTERLY CONFERENCE RECORDS AND BLANKS for the use of secretaries. They save time, secure system and correctness in the Minutes, and, with care, will give to the Churches using them a permanent record of their official doings.

The climate from the extreme southern part of the State to the Terre Haute, Alton and St. Louis Railroad, a distance of nearly 200 miles, is well adapted to winter.

WHEAT, CORN, COTTON, TOBACCO.

Peaches, Pears, Tomatoes, and every variety of fruit and vegetables is grown in great abundance, from which Chicago and other Northern markets are furnished from four to six weeks earlier than their immediate vicinity.

THE ORDINARY YIELD.

of Corn is from 50 to 80 bushels per acre. Cattle, Horses, Mules, Sheep and Hogs are raised here at a small cost, and yield large profits. It is believed that no section of country presents greater inducements for Dairy Farming than the Prairies of Illinois, a branch of farming to which but little attention has been paid, and which must yield sure profitable results.

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

The Agricultural products of Illinois are greater than those of any other State. The Wheat crop of 1861 was estimated at 35,000,000 bushels, while the Corn crop yields not less than 140,000,000 bushels besides the crop of Oats, Barley, Rye,

Buckwheat, Potatoes, Sweet Potatoes, Pumpkins, Squashes, Flax, Hemp, Peas, Clover, Cabbage, Beets, Tobacco, Sorghum, Grapes, Peaches, Apples, &c., which go to swell the vast aggregate of production in this fertile region. Over Four Million tons of produce were sent out the State of Illinois during the past year.

CULTIVATION OF COTTON.

The experiments in Cotton culture are of very great promise. Commencing in latitude 39 deg. 30 min. (see Mattoon on the Branch, and Assumption on the Main Line), the Company owns thousands of acres well adapted to the perfection of this fibre. A settler having a family of young children, can turn their youthful labor to a most profitable account in the growth and perfection of this plant.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Traverses the whole length of the State, from the banks of the Mississippi and Lake Michigan to the Ohio. As its name imports, the Railroad runs through the centre of the State, and on either side of the road along its whole length lie the lands offered for sale.

CITIES, TOWNS, MARKETS, DEPOTS.

There are ninety-eight Depots on the Company's Railway, giving about one every seven miles. Cities, Towns, and Villages are situated at convenient distances throughout the whole route, where every desirable commodity may be found as readily as in the oldest cities of the Union, and where buyers are to be met for all kinds of farm produce.

EDUCATION.

Mechanics and working-men will find the free school system encouraged by the State, and endowed with a large revenue for the support of the schools. Children can live in sight of the school, the college, the church, and grow up with the prosperity of the leading State in the Great Western Empire.

The SOCIETY OF INDUSTRIAL ARTS AND SCIENCES AT PARIS, FRANCE, after repeated exhibitions in competition with other machines, decreed the

First-Class GOLD MEDAL for the WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine.

Similar awards have been made in England.

One feature in the use of the WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine, resulting from the wide range of its application, is the varying branches of business to which it is applied as fashion changes. Thus, a house or a person furnished with these machines may, at different seasons, employ them in making skirts, or mantillas, or diamond ruffling, or shirts, or stitching hats and caps, etc. It is not as if they were limited to one branch of manufacture, and must remain unused unless that particular article were in demand. So long as sewing is to be done these machines are sure of something to do. Hence the WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine is the machine for all kinds of FAMILY SEWING, and for the use of Seamstresses, Dressmakers, Tailors, Manufacturers of Shirts, Collars, Skirts, Cloaks, Mantillas, Clothing, Hats, Caps, Corsets, Ladies' Gaiters, Linen Goods, Umbrellas, Parasols, Silk Goods, etc.

The LOCK-STITCH made by this machine cannot be raveled and presents the same appearance upon each side of the seam, a single line of thread extending from stitch to stitch. It is formed with two threads, one upon each side of the fabric, and interlocked in the center of it. In beauty and regularity, and in the firmness of the seam formed, it excels hand sewing.

The qualities which recommend the Wheeler & Wilson Machine are:

1. Beauty and excellence of stitch alike upon both sides of the fabric sewed.
2. Strength, firmness, and durability of seam, that will not rip nor ravel, and made with
3. Economy of thread.
4. Its attachments and wide range of application to purposes and materials.
5. Compactness and elegance of model and finish.
6. Simplicity and thoroughness of construction.
7. Speed, ease of operation and management, and quietness of movement.

Graduated Series of Sunday-School Text-Books.

BY REV. JAMES FLOY, D.D.

The last General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church directed the publication of a series of graduated text-books adapted to a regular course of study in our Sunday-schools. That series will consist of seven separate volumes in the following order:

- I. The Old Testament History.
- II. The New Testament History.
- III. Bible Morality; or, the Elements of Moral Science.
- IV. Doctrines and Institutions of Christianity.
- V. Sacred Geography.
- VI. The Evidences of Christianity.
- VII. Church History.

The lessons are fifty-two in number, it being intended that they should occupy just a year. The same plan will be observed in all the volumes of the series. On the day for revision, which occurs once a quarter, the teacher may propose such additional questions as may be thought proper.

To the officers of schools intending to adopt this series of text-books, we suggest that where the pupils of eight or nine years old number more than six, they should be organized into a department containing as many classes as may be required, to be called the primary department, or the department of Old Testament History. When they graduate at the end of the year into the next volume in the course, let them constitute a second department, or a department of New Testament History, and so on until the whole school is organized into as many departments as are demanded by the number of the books in the course.

No. I. Lessons in Old Testament History.Price, per dozen, $2 00.

This volume is the first of a series of text-books for Sunday-schools. It is designed for pupils of from eight to nine years of age, and is therefore written in a simple style, and for the most part in short easy words. Its purpose is to impress an outline of the leading facts taught in the Old Testament on the minds of young children.

The lessons are to be so far committed to memory by the pupils as to enable them to answer the questions at their close with readiness. Those teachers who think it best can allow the lesson to be read by their classes before hearing it recited, and can accompany the reading with such remarks of their own as they may deem pertinent.

II. Lessons in New Testament History.Price, per dozen, $2 00.

This volume is the second of a series of text-books for Sunday-schools. It is designed for pupils of from nine to ten years of age. Its purpose is to impress an outline of the leading facts taught in the New Testament on the minds of children.

III. Bible Morality; or, Elements of Moral Science. For Sunday-schools.Price, per dozen, $2 00.

This volume is the third of the series. Its object is to teach the elements of morality, as derived from the Scriptures, in a manner adapted to the young. Simplicity and directness of style and language have been aimed at, and almost every point is illustrated by anecdote or story.

THE CHEAPEST AND BEST.
MASON & HAMLIN'S NEW HARMONIUM
FOR PARLORS, CHURCHES, AND SCHOOLS.

Powerful and Cheap.

Loud-voiced and Low-priced.

THE SCHOOL HARMONIUM.

Two Sizes, Four and Five Octave. Price of Four Octave, only $80;
 Five Octave, $100.

Both Instruments contain TWO Sets of Reeds.

The SCHOOL HARMONIUM has been designed and constructed by the manufacturers, MASON & HAMLIN, with especial reference to affording the greatest possible volume of organ-like tone for a very moderate amount of money. It has two sets of reeds, a four and five octave finger board, is finished in both Black Walnut and Oak cases, to correspond with different styles of architecture, and has from three to four times as much power as any Melodeon costing the same amount of money. An important feature of this Instrument is the simplicity with which all gradations of power are obtained upon it. By blowing gently, the faintest whisper may be obtained; increase the force of blowing, and the power of the Instrument may be increased at will to its utmost capacity. For music of a tender, plaintive character, the appropriate quality of tone is obtained by simply closing the swell. Thus a great variety of effects may be obtained without taking the fingers from the key board.

This is owing to its having a DOUBLE BELLOWS and TWO BLOW-PEDALS, a feature peculiar to MASON & HAMLIN'S HARMONIUMS.

The great popularity of the new HARMONIUM is evidenced by the fact that its sales amounted to the large number of ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-FIVE during the first four months of its manufacture. It has already received the hearty approval of several State Superintendents of Public Schools, and of many of our most distinguished musicians. It is equally desirable for family use as for schools and churches, being capable of the effective performance of rapid music, such as runs, trills, arpeggios, etc., as well as sacred music.

For the requirements of small churches, Sabbath-schools, etc., the new SCHOOL HARMONIUM is immeasurably superior to any other instrument of similar cost.

MASON & HAMLIN continue the manufacture of Melodeons in great variety of styles, and at prices varying from $45 to $200. Also Harmoniums and Organ-Harmoniums, with six, eight, and twelve draw-stops, one and two rows of keys, with and without pedal bass, at prices varying from $200 to $500.

The FIRST PREMIUM has been awarded to the Instruments of MASON & HAMLIN in every instance when exhibited in competition with others. TWENTY-SIX FIRST PREMIUMS have been awarded them during the past five years.

Catalogues and Circulars descriptive of their various Instruments will be sent to any address upon application to the undersigned.

Tide Table.

THE Calendar pages of this Almanac exhibit the time of high-water at New York and Boston. To find the time of high-water at any of the following places, add to, or subtract from, the time of high-water at New York, as below. (There is a great deal of uncertainty about the tides, in consequence of the direction and strength of the winds.)

The above table has been corrected from official tidal establishments, as made by the United States Coast Survey. Those ports in italics, however, are the only ones thus corrected; the others stand as they have stood for many years, and are supposed to be nearly correct.

Eclipses for 1864.

THERE will be two Eclipses this year, and both of the Sun.

I. A Central Eclipse of the Sun, May 5, in the afternoon just before Sunset. This will be invisible in the United States east of the Mississippi River, except in Wisconsin and the Western part of Illinois, in which regions, and in all the States and Territories West of that river, except Louisiana, it will be visible as a small partial eclipse. In California and Oregon the Eclipse will be quite large, being at San Francisco three fourths of the Sun's disc, and at Portland, Oregon, 7 digits, beginning at San Francisco at 4 o'clock 28m., and ending at 6h. 49m.

II. An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, October 30, invisible in the United States, except a mere contact of limbs in New Mexico and Texas.

Directions for Finding the True Time.

THE Sun is on the meridian at 12 o'clock on four days only in the year. It is sometimes as much as 16½ minutes before or after twelve when its shadow strikes the noon-mark on the sun-dial. On each calendar page of this Almanac is shown the exact time when the Sun reaches the meridian, or the shadow the noon-mark; and in order to set a clock or watch correctly, it must, when it is noon by the sun-dial or noon-mark, be set at the time indicated in the Almanac. Thus, on the 25th of January, when the Sun is on the noon-mark, the watch must be set 12 minutes and 34 seconds past twelve, which will be the true time. The practice of setting time-pieces by the rising or setting of the Sun or Moon is not strictly correct; as the unevenness of the Earth's surface and intervening objects, such as hills and forests, near the points of rising and setting, occasion a deviation, in every place, from the time expressed in the Almanac, which time is adapted to a smooth, level horizon. The only means of keeping correct time is by the use of a noon-mark, or a meridian-line.

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night

AT any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the Sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

Difference of Time.

WHEN it is twelve o'clock at noon at New York city, it is forenoon at all places west of New York, and afternoon with all places east, as in this table:

Hints about Fires.

House on Fire.—On being awakened at night by an alarm of fire preserve presence of mind, and do not act till a moment has been taken for reflection. Preservation may depend on the choice made of going up or down stairs. In making way through a burning house it is best to creep along on hands and knees, the freest air being to be had close to the floor.

Chimney on Fire.—Should a fire break out in a chimney, a blanket wetted should be nailed to the upper ends of the mantel-piece, so as to cover the opening entirely; the fire will then commonly go out of itself. A solution of pearlash in water thrown upon a fire extinguishes it instantly; dissolve a quarter of a pound in hot water, and pour into a bucket of water.

Escape from Fire.—In case of a person's clothes being set on fire, instead of throwing open the door and running into the road, let the person—particularly if a female, whose dress ignites rapidly—fall on the ground, and roll in a carpet, rug, blanket, curtain, cloak, or whatever thick woollen article may be at hand. If any other persons are present they should assist in doing this, and be particularly careful to keep doors and windows shut, as every draught of air feeds the flame which it is the object to suppress.

The number of books now published in the Youth's Library has reached 720; in the Children's Library, series B, 240; series A, 237. Besides these, there are gift-books, text-books, requisites, etc.

In the department of benevolence the receipts of the Sunday-School Union were $9,595 80, or $1,618 75 less than in 1861. Its disbursements were $10,394 03. Nearly all of this latter sum was given directly to needy schools, many of them new.

J. M. PHILLIPS, Assistant Treasurer, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE state of the country has affected this department of benevolence more than any other. While the demand for its active operations has been greatly increased, its means are lamentably deficient. The home demand has been so great for religious reading in the army that the foreign fields, hitherto cultivated so advantageously, have been greatly neglected. The entire contributions to the Parent Society during the year 1862 amounted to only $4,756 82. This amount has been used with the greatest possible economy, involving scarcely any expense for agencies beyond express and freight charges. Men have been found who distributed gratuitously many tracts and over 5,000 copies of Good News monthly in the army, East, West, and South. This Society distributed to the army during the year 1862 tracts and Good News to the value of $714 63. The present circulation of the Good News is about 50,000 copies.

The present tract list contains 70 volumes and 549 tracts. This estimate does not include Sunday-school nor Hand-bill tracts, nor those published in foreign languages.

A plan has been put in operation by which, on due application, ten copies of the Good News is sent to every congregation taking a collection in our favor and forwarding the same to us. The Good News is a beautifully illustrated little paper, published monthly at the following rates. Terms, always in advance: 10 copies to one address for one year, $1 00; 50 copies, do., $4 50; 100 copies, do., $8 00. Order of Carlton & Porter, New York, or at any of our Depositories.

Mechanism of the Human Voice.

By means of the laryngoscope, Mr. John Bishop has succeeded in watching the movements of the larynx during the utterance of vocal sounds. When the lower tones are made, the vocal cords vibrate through their whole length. As the pitch rises, the vibrating length diminishes, and the cords are pressed more closely together. In falsetto notes, it is only the extreme end of the cord that vibrates. Moreover, the vocal cords form a kind of valve, which is situated in a tube, and acts like a reed. Thus, the organs of the voice perform the double office of reed and string.—Proc. Royal Soc.

Taking advantage of the laryngoscope, Professor Czermak has succeeded in photographing the glottis, its condition during vocalization, and the changes which take place in the cords during the different chest and falsetto notes.—Annual of Scientific Discovery for 1863.

A Barrel of Woes.

"I SAY, BILL. I wonder how many COURT-MARTIALS there are inside here?" said a soldier to his comrade, pointing as he spoke to a barrel of rum they were rolling from the depot into camp.

"O, I don't know," replied the other; "but I never knew a soldier punished except through drink in some way or other."

These soldiers were old campaigners. They knew that rum spoiled the soldier, that it made him idle, passionate, impertinent, neglectful of duty, and that it exposed him to punishment. I hope the noble volunteers, who are as yet little better than novices in the mysteries of soldier life, will accept the testimony of those veterans, and banish rum from their camps.

Who can estimate the amount of misery contained in a barrel of rum? The amount of good within its hoops may be represented by a minus quantity. There is no good in it. But the evil it holds, what figures can represent that? It contains brawls, blows, oaths, crimes, woes, sorrows, ruined homes, broken hearts, and diseases innumerable. Who can deny this?

Why will you drink it then, O victim of drunkenness? Why buy and put into your mouth a liquid that obscures your reason, chills your affections, stimulates your worst passions, benumbs your conscience, unfits you to live on earth, and prepares you for damnation in hell? Why? Stand up before the bar of your own reason, of public opinion, and of God, and defend your practice! You can't do it! Then be a man! Seek help from God, and renounce the slavery of the bottle!

Wonders of Sleep.

IN Turkey, if a man fall asleep in the neighborhood of a poppy field, and the wind blow toward him, he becomes narcotized, and would die, if the country people did not bring him to the next well or stream, and empty pitcher after pitcher of water on his face and body. Dr. Appenhenim, during his residence in Turkey, owed his life to this simple and efficacious treatment. Dr. Graves, from whom this anecdote is quoted, also reports the case of a gentleman thirty years of age, who, from long-continued sleepiness, was reduced to a complete living skeleton, unable to stand on his legs. It was partly owing to a disease, but chiefly to abuse of opium; and at last, unable to pursue his business, he sank into abject poverty and woe. Dr. Reid mentions a friend of his, who, whenever anything occurred to distress him, soon became drowsy and fell asleep. A student at Edinburgh, upon hearing suddenly of the unexpected death of a near relative, threw himself on his bed, and almost instantaneously, amid the glare of noonday, sunk into a profound slumber. Another person, reading to one of his friends stretched on his death-bed, fell asleep, and with the book still in his hand, went on reading, utterly unconscious of what he was doing. Dr. Macnish mentions a woman who spent three fourths of her life in sleep; and Dr. Elliotson quotes a case of a young lady who slept for six weeks and recovered. The venerable St. Augustine, of Hippo, prudently divided his hours into three parts, eight hours to be devoted to sleep, eight to meditation, and eight to converse with the world. Maniacs are reported, particularly in the eastern hemisphere, to become furiously vigilant during the full of the moon, more especially when the deteriorated rays of its polarized light are permitted to fall into their apartments: hence the name of lunatics. There certainly is greater proneness to disease during sleep than in the waking state; for those who pass the night in the Campagna di Roma inevitably become infected with the noxious air, while travelers who go through without stopping escape the miasma.

The Bright Side.

LOOK on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine, and not the cloud, that makes a flower. There is always that before or around us which should cheer and fill the heart with warmth. The sky is blue ten times where it is black once. You have troubles, it may be. So have others. None are free from them. Perhaps it is as well that none should be. They give sinew and tone to life, fortitude and courage to man. That would be a dull sea, and the sailor would never get skill, where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean. It is the duty of every one to extract all the happiness and enjoyment he can without and within him, and above all, he should look on the bright side of things. What though things do look a little dark? the lane will turn, and the night will end in broad day. In the long run the great balance rights itself. What is ill becomes well; what is wrong, right. Men are not made to hang down either heads or lips, and those who do only show that they are departing from the paths of true common sense and right. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than in a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom. Therefore, we repeat, look on the bright side of things.

UNSUCCESSFUL IN THIS LIFE.—I confess that increasing years bring with them an increasing respect for those who do not succeed in life, as those words are commonly used. Heaven is said to be a place for those who have not succeeded upon earth; and it is surely true that celestial graces do not best thrive and bloom in the hot blaze of worldly prosperity. Ill success sometimes arises from superabundance of qualities in themselves good; from a conscience too sensitive, a taste too fastidious, a self-forgetfulness too romantic, a modesty too retiring. I will not go so far as to say, with a living poet, that the "world knows nothing of its greatest men;" but there are forms of greatness, or at least excellence, that "die and make no sign;" there are martyrs that miss the palm, but not the stake; there are heroes without the laurel, and conquerors without the triumph.—George S. Hilliard.

The Mignonnette on the City Window-Sill.

I SAW a window dim and tall,
Far down a city lane;
Full seldom could the sunbeam fall
Against the dingy pane.

Yet, mindful of things green and sweet,
Some hopeful hand had set
Upon that dirty window-seat
A pot of mignonnette.

The paint had fallen from the wood
That bound the narrow ledge;
The sooty sparrow came and stood,
And twittered on its edge.

The crumbling earth lay hard and bare
Around the ragged roots;
The little flowers showed dull and rare
Amid the stunted shoots.

But, when the sash was upward thrown,
'Mid all the dirt and gloom,

A gentle fragrance, all their own,
Passed to the inner room.

The weary woman stayed her task
The perfume to inhale;
The pale-faced children stopped to ask
What breath was on the gale.

And none that breathed that sweetened air
But had a gentle thought,
A gleam of something good and fair
Across his spirit brought.

So, deeds of love will cheer and bless
A low, laborious life;
So, words of peace and gentleness
Glide in and soften strife.

So, prayers in crowded moments given,
Of tumult, toil, or woe,
Will sweeten with a breath from heaven
Our weary path below.

The closer we lay the flowers of our earthly mercies to our breasts, the sooner they wither. A nosegay in the hand will long continue fresh and sweet.—G. Swinnocke, (1640.)

Pleasantries.

Crying in Dutch.—The following rich scene is said to have occurred in one of our courts of justice, between the judge and a Dutch witness all the way from Rotterdam. Judge: "What's your native language?" Witness: "I pe no native. Ise a Dootch-man." J. "What is your mother tongue?" W. "O, fader say she pe all tongue." J., (in an irritable tone.) "What language did you first learn? What language did you speak in the cradle?" W. "I tid not speak no language in te cradle at all; I only cried in Dootch!"

A Scotch Parson's Prayer.—A Scotch parson in his prayer said, "Laird, bless the grand council and parliament, and grant they hang together." A country fellow standing by replied, "Yes, yes, with all my heart, and the sooner the better; and I am sure it is the prayer of all good people." "But, friends," said the parson, "I don't mean as that fellow does, but pray that they may hang together in accord and concord." "No matter what cord," replied the other, "so that it is a strong cord."

A gentleman riding down a steep hill, and fearing that the foot of it was unsound, called out to a countryman who was ditching, and asked him if it was hard at the bottom. "Ay," answered the man, "it is hard enough at the bottom, I warrant you." But in half a dozen steps the horse sank up to his saddle girth, which made the rider use whip and spur. "Why, you rascal," said he, "did you not tell me it was hard at the bottom?" "Ay," replied the fellow, "but you are not half way to the bottom yet."

The Sentimental Schoolmistress and her Prodigy.—There is something inspiring in the manner in which plodding practicality brings the visionary aeronaut down to earth's dead level. "My dear boy," said a kind-hearted schoolmistress to an unusually promising scholar, whose quarter was about up; "my dear boy, does your father design that you should tread the intricate and thorny path of the profession, the strait and narrow way of the ministry, or revel amid the flowery field of literature?" "No marm," said the juvenile prodigy, "dad says he's goin' to set me to work in the tater patch."

The Dunce Block.—I was teaching in a quiet country village. The second morning of the session I found leisure to note my surroundings, and among the scanty furniture I espied a three-legged stool. "Is that the dunce-block?" I said to a little girl of five. The dark eyes sparkled, the curls nodded assent, and the lips rippled out, "I guess so; the teachers always sit on that!" The stool was unoccupied that term.

A jockey lord met his old college tutor at a great horse fair. "Ah, doctor," exclaimed his lordship, "what brings you here among these high-bred cattle? Do you think you can distinguish a horse from an ass?" "My lord," replied the tutor, "I soon perceived you among the horses."

Oxford Wit.—The following epigram originated at Oxford, England:

There was once a Bishop Colenso,
Who counted from one up to ten so
That he found the Levitical
Books, to his eyes critical
Unarithmetical,
So he wrote to tell the black men so.

A Genuine Papist.—A peasant, being at confession, accused himself of having stolen some hay. The father confessor asked him how many bundles he had taken from the stack. "That is of no consequence," replied the peasant; "you may set it down at a wagon load, for me and my wife are going to make it that."

A Queer Speech for a Child.—Florie B. is a tolerably well-grown "little one," but very full of her odd speeches. Her father has been absent from home many weeks, and one day, seeing her mother removing some of his clothing from one closet to another, she exclaimed with all earnestness, "O dear, wouldn't you be glad, now, to see those old pantaloons walking about the house?" "Why, child, what do you mean?" her mother asked, startled at such a novel suggestion. "O, of course I should want father in them!" laughed the little witch.

Keeping an Umbrella Dry.—One very rainy day, as Dr. Lawson, an absent-minded Scotch minister, was trudging along a road, a friend whose door he was passing saw the plight in which he was, and shoved an umbrella into his hand. As he went along, the rain still falling, a person met him, who noticed that the umbrella was buttoned up in his overcoat. Thinking that it had given way, he said, "Doctor, I am sorry that your umbrella has not served you in this heavy rain." "O," replied he, "I have a good umbrella, but I have covered it here, lest it get wetted by the shower."

An Absent-minded Husband.—Dr. Lawson was once returning, with his wife, from a sacrament in the country. As was the custom then, they rode upon the same horse; she on a pad behind him. At her request he made a detour, that she might call on a friend. Having slipped off the horse, Mrs. Lawson went and made her call, he promising to wait till her return. She was not long gone when the horse quietly walked away, and soon reached Selkirk. "Here," called the doctor to the servant, "come and help your mistress off." The servant looked surprised, and told him that Mrs. Lawson was not upon the horse. He immediately rode back and took up his wife, who was making the best of her way homeward.

"It's Salt."—A lady passing along the street one morning noticed a little boy scattering salt upon the sidewalk, for the purpose of clearing off the ice. "Well, I'm sure," said the lady, "this is real benevolence." "No it aint, ma'am," replied the boy, "it's salt."

Spring.

The snowdrop beams with beauty rare
As Spring returns again;
The daisy's seen with head so fair
Upon the verdant plain.

The primrose tells the merry tale
To the stately forest trees;
The violet, with a merry hail,
Gives fragrance to the breeze.

The early lark trills forth his lay
With music sweet and clear;

The blackbird from the holly spray
Sends forth his welcome cheer.

The linnet sings its joyful note;
The woodland dales do ring;
And music from the rills doth float
To welcome merry Spring.

The sunbeams fall with florid light;
The sighing zephyrs sing;
And Nature shines with radiance bright
To hail the dawning Spring.

The Story of Certain Hymns.

HYMNS have sometimes been curiously used in stirring times, especially about the Reformation period. More than once the Romish preachers have been compelled to abandon the pulpit by the vigorous singing of one of Luther's. They have played their part in battle. At the famous battle of Leuthen, one of Heerman's hymns was raised by a regiment before going into the fight, and one after another took it up, until all the columns were singing it as they advanced. "Shall I silence them?" the general asked as he rode up to stern, tobacco-loving, heroic King Fritz. "No! with such soldiers God will give me the victory;" and leaping down among the ranks and crying, "Now, children, in God's name," he led them into battle. When the battle was won, the field was strewn with dead and wounded; it was night, and the soldiers were weary. Then one began to sing a hymn of thanksgiving, the bands joined in, and presently it rose from the army in full and mighty chorus, that reached and greatly moved the king, who turned round, exclaiming, "What a power there is in religion!" It was at the great battle of Leipzig that Gustavus sang, with his army, Luther's Carmen Heroicum, and after it that, kneeling on the field, he thanked God for the victory in a stanza of the same hymn. The Te Deum won the fight at Liegnitz; it was a "Poor Sinner's Song" of Luther's that the peasant raised before the battle of Frankenhäusen; and brave Earl Oldenburg triumphed at Drakenburg by the Song of Simeon.

So curiously are the lives of these hymns interwoven with fiercest human struggles and profoundest human joys; with kings, and politics, and famous battles that determined the fate of kingdoms; with poor peasants and lonely and nameless households; with crimes that leave the reddest stains in his ory, and softening of rugged and wild hearts. And it is pleasant to take up a hymn that has connected itself with past events, and can be traced into many a house and heart by its comfortable thoughts. Herbert's Hymn on Sunday gains a certain mournful delicacy when we know that he sang it himself upon his death-bed; that

Like a sweet swan, he warbles, as he dies,
His Maker's praise and his own obsequies.

Gerhardt died repeating one of his own hymns, and even with the very words,

Him no death has power to kill.

And there is a touching legend by which, as King Christian of Denmark lay sick at Christmas time, an angel came to him in a dream and told him he would live but eight days. And on New-Year's day his chaplain preached him a farewell sermon; but when his courtiers would not sing death songs over him, he cried, "Then I will sing myself, and you with me; and it shall be said the King of Denmark sang himself to the grave." And he lifted up his voice, clear and strong, and they sang the Song of Simeon; but as they sang he fell asleep in Jesus.

Be Cheerful at Your Meals.

THE benefit derived from food taken depends very much upon the condition of the body while eating. If taken in a moody, cross, or despairing condition of the mind, digestion is much less perfect and slower than when taken with a cheerful disposition. Very rapid and silent eating should be avoided, and some topic of interest introduced at meals, that all may participate in; and if a hearty laugh is occasionally indulged in, it will be all the better. It is not uncommon that a person dining in pleasant and sociable company can eat and digest well that which, when eaten alone, with a mind absorbed in some deep study or brooding over cares and disappointments, would be long undigested in the stomach, causing disarrangement and pain, and, if much indulged in, becoming the cause of permanent and irreparable injury to the system.

PERFECT LOVE casts out the fear of hell; but perfect love brings in the fear of sin.—
Hugh Binning, (1650.)

"I Prayed till the Lord sent Deliverance."

THE waves dashed most furiously over a vessel called the Elizabeth, of Lowestoft, England, during a terrific storm. Joseph Spence, the captain, was fearful that all on board would perish. His wife and babe were seated in the boat, which was secured by ropes and chains on the deck of the vessel, when, sad to relate, a tremendous sea swept the deck, carrying overboard the boat, the shrieking mother, and her helpless babe! No helping hands could be outstretched, and in a few moments both mother and child found a watery grave. The vessel now began to sink, and the poor heart-broken captain took his two motherless little ones, and a niece about twelve years of age, and fastened them with ropes in the rigging as high as he could, out of the reach of the foaming waves. He then fastened himself in the same manner. After a few hours of fearful suspense, they were observed by the people on the coast, and as soon as the wreck could be reached, they were safely landed, although well-nigh in a dying state. By the kindness and attention of the villagers they gradually revived. Mr. Gillatt, an esteemed sailors' missionary, had the pleasure of administering to the wants of these shipwrecked ones. He informs us that the little girl of twelve years had been twice wrecked in previous storms. He found that she had been a Sunday scholar, and had not forgotten the pious instruction of her teacher, for when asked, "What did you do during the storm?" her reply was, "I prayed, sir, until the Lord sent deliverance."

The Minister's Page.

A Lie on the Church.—The Rev. Dr. M'Leod was proceeding from the manse of D. to church, to open a new place of worship. As he passed slowly and gravely through the crowd gathered about the doors, an elderly man, with the peculiar kind of wig known in that district—bright, smooth, and of reddish brown—accosted him. "Doctor, if you please, I wish to speak to you." "Well, Duncan," says the venerable doctor, "can ye not wait till after worship?" "No, doctor. I must speak to you now, for it is a matter upon my conscience." "O, since it is a matter of conscience, tell me what it is; but be brief, Duncan, for time presses." "The matter is this, doctor. Ye see the clock yonder on the face of the new church. Well, there is no clock really there; nothing but the face of a clock. There is no truth in it but only once in the twelve hours. Now it is in my mind very wrong, and quite against my conscience, that there should be a lie on the face of the house of the Lord." "Duncan, I will consider the point. But I am glad to see you looking so well. You are not young now; I remember you for many years; and what a fine head of hair you have still!" "Eh, doctor, you are joking now; it is long since I have had any hair." "O, Duncan, Duncan, are you going into the house of the Lord with a lie upon your head?" This settled the question; and the doctor heard no more of the lie on the face of the clock.

What Makes a Man.—The longer I live, the more I am certain that the great difference between men, between the feeble and the powerful, the great and the insignificant, is energy; invincible determination; a purpose once fixed, and then death or victory. That quality will do anything that can be done in this world; and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunities, will make a two-legged creature a MAN without it.—Sir F. Bacon.

Common Sense.—A Scotch clergyman, being asked by a father what he thought of his making his son a minister, said, "I tell thee, man, he has no mother-wit. If a man want learning, he may get that; and if he want riches, he may get them; and even if he want grace, he may get it; but if a man want common sense, I tell thee, man, he will never get that."

Charity.—It is a pious and valuable maxim which says, "A judicious silence is always better than truth spoken without charity."

BUNYAN'S PULPIT, BREACHWOOD.

An Important Distinction Overlooked.—Mr. Newton once paid a visit to a minister who affected great accuracy in his discourses, and who, on that Sabbath day, had occupied nearly an hour in insisting on several labored and nice distinctions made in his subject. As he had a high estimation of Mr. Newton's judgment, he inquired of him, as they walked home, whether he thought the distinctions just now insisted on were full and judicious? Mr. Newton said he thought them not full, as a very important one had been omitted. "What can that be?" said the minister; "for I have taken more than ordinary care to enumerate them fully." "I think not," replied Mr. Newton; "for when many of your congregation had traveled several miles for a meal, I think you should not have forgotten the important distinction which must ever exist between meat and bones!"

Noisy Speakers not always the Best.—Pass through a crowd of boys busy with fire-crackers, and you will see how much more fond each lad is of his own particular noise than of that of his companions. The same thing may be observed of some public speakers and private talkers.

Bible Literature.—Get a taste for Bible literature, and you will never tire of it; all human compositions will then appear weak and insipid in comparison with it. It was once said of Homer,

Read Homer, and you'll read no more,
All other books they seem so poor.

This is indeed true of the Bible.—Hewel.

A Noble Answer.—When the young and gifted Summerfield was preaching in the city of New York, and immense audiences were held entranced by his eloquence, a wealthy lady threw herself into his society, and conferred upon him many favors. She addressed him a note, in which she told him that "her heart, her fortune, and her hand were at his disposal." The noble reply of the devoted and eloquent minister of the Gospel was as follows: "Give your heart to the Lord Jesus Christ; give your fortune to the poor; and give your hand to the man who asks for it."

Tree Planting.

"HAVE you never heard of the student who, on being told that the crow would sometimes live a hundred years, bought a young one to try the experiment?" Yes, indeed, we have heard of him—the irony is excellent—and of Dr. Johnson's growl about "the frightful interval between the seed and the timber." Still, we say, plant trees. They who plant at once, instead of wasting their breath in selfish complaints of the shortness of life, find luxuriant foliage waving over them much sooner than they expected. But, whether you live to see the maturity of your trees or not, be benevolent enough to plant for posterity. Transmit to your children the inheritance of rural beauty received from your fathers, greatly augmented. By all means plant, and plant well, and the result will overpay the labor. And let not your labor end with planting. Feed your trees from year to year with generous food, and guard them from injury. And in the words (slightly altered) of an old planter, "What joy may you have in seeing the success of your labors while you live, and in leaving behind you to your heirs or successors a work that, many years after your death, shall record your love to your country! And the rather, when you consider to what length of time your work is like to last." If you have country homes to embellish, be content with simplicity. Remember that a great establishment is a great care, and that the proprietor is apt to become a slave to it. Let your dwelling-place be marked with what painters call "repose." Make them the abode of comfort and refined enjoyment, places which always afford you agreeable occupation, but do not oppress you with care.

The Double-Minded Man.

Of all things on earth, he would not do for a Christian. For that character and service a very different man indeed was needed (in primitive times.) But not now, neither, will this double-minded man be of any value to himself, to men, or to God.—John Foster.

Better Things.

BETTER to smell a violet,
 Than sip the careless wine;
 Better to list one music tone,
 Than watch the jewels' shine.

Better to have the love of one,
 Than smiles like morning dew;
 Better to have a living seed,
 Than flowers of every hue.

Better to feel a love within,
 Than be lovely to the sight;
 Better a homely tenderness,
 Than beauty's wild delight.

Better to love than be beloved,
 Though lonely all the day;
 Better the fountain in the heart,
 Than the fountain by the way.

Better a feeble love to God,
 Than for woman's love to pine;
 Better to have the making God,
 Than the woman made divine.

Better be fed by another's hand,
 Than eat alone at will;
 Better to trust in God, than say,
 My goods my storehouse fill.

Better to be a little wise,
 Than learned overmuch;
 Better than high are lowly thoughts,
 For truthful thoughts are such.

Better than thrill a listening crowd,
 Sit at a wise man's feet;
 But better teach a child, than toil
 To make thyself complete.

Better to walk the realm unseen,
 Than watch the hour's event;
 Better the smile of God alway,
 Than the voice of men's consent.

Better to have a quiet grief,
 Than a tumultuous joy;
 Better than manhood, age's face,
 If the heart be of a boy.

Better the thanks of one dear heart,
 Than a nation's voice of praise;
 Better the twilight ere the dawn,
 Than yesterday's mid-blaze.

Better a death when work is done,
 Than earth's most favored birth;
 Better a child in God's great house,
 Than the king of all the earth.

—George M' Donald.

Repartees.

SOME persons seem to have an electric current of wit, which flashes the moment it meets an opposing one; and it is our purpose here to give from memory a few specimens of this sort of wit, for which we would give the authors proper credit if we knew their names; beginning with two of Lamb's, which cannot be left out of such a catalogue, familiar as they are. First, his reply when he was rebuked for coming in to business at the India House so very late in the morning: "Yes; but you know I always go away very early in the afternoon." And the still older one to the anxious passenger's query on entering a crowded omnibus: "All full inside?" "I don't know how it is with the rest of the passengers; but that last piece of oyster pie did the business for me."

It is related of some friends of Campbell, the author of Hohenlinden, that in leaving his room after a gay supper, one of the number had the misfortune to fall down a long flight of stairs. The poet, alarmed by the noise, opened his door, and asked, "What's that?" "Tis I sir, rolling rapidly," was the immediate reply of his fallen friend.

Sheridan is said to have remarked, on entering a crowded committee-room, in parliamentary language, "Will some member move that I may take the chair?"

Also, on being asked how the sensitive Fox would tax a salary provided for him by his charitable friends, replied, "Quarterly."

A poor poet, desiring a compliment, asked Curran, (referring to his own recently published poem of that name,) "Have you read my 'Descent into Hell'?" "No; I should like to see it," replied the wit.

A prosy member of Parliament having asked him, "Have you read my last speech?" he replied, "I hope I have."

Two old New England ministers were riding by a gallows, when the older one asked the other, "Where would you be if that tree bore its proper fruit?" "Riding alone, sir," was the immediate reply.

An Irish girl at play on Sunday was accosted by the priest, "Good morning, daughter of the devil;" and meekly replied, "Good morning, father."

Two friends meeting, one remarked, "I have just met a man who told me I looked exactly like you." "Tell me who it was, that I may knock him down," replied his friend. "Don't trouble yourself," said he; "I did that myself at once."

The celebrated Davy Crockett, on visiting a menagerie, was comparing the countenance of a monkey to that of one of his fellow members of Congress. Turning round, he saw that the gentleman had overheard his remarks; so, to make matters pleasant, he said, "I do not know which to apologize to, you or the monkey."

Two deacons were once disputing about the proposed site for a new graveyard, when the first remarked, "I'll never be buried in that ground as long as I live." "What an obstinate man!" said the second; "if my life is spared, I will."

Poor Splintext, who was not much of a pulpit orator, came into the church one day drenched with rain, and said to a brother, as he shook his clothes, "I shall certainly take cold if I go into the pulpit so wet." "O no, you won't; you are always dry enough there."

A Year after the Wedding.

A YOUNG woman marries. During days of courtship, she had been stimulated perhaps to unwonted care as to her appearance. It was her aim to show herself to her lover neat and tidy. Her hair was always smooth, her face bright, and her dress, from bonnet to shoes, clean and becoming. These are good habits to begin with; and the young man reasons that a house kept with the same taste and care will be a pleasant place.

The house is furnished, and wedded life begins. If these habits are kept up, well and good. But if the husband is less considered than the lover was, all will go wrong. If a bride thinks that there is no longer any need to study neatness, and imagines that, having won a husband, every end is answered, his affection will soon cool. Everything that helps love needs keeping up. The stock of love that two persons possess on their wedding day will not last their lives. It must be replenished; and those means which nourished mutual affection before marriage are to be persevered in, or love will decay. By much slothfulness, by falling into slovenly habits, by dressing untidily, by gossiping with neighbors, and having a comfortless home for her husband, a young wife will forfeit his esteem, and probably banish him in the end to the haunts of sinners. There was a home built up by mutual love; it was fair and goodly to look upon; but "through idleness of the hands the house droppeth through," and domestic comfort becomes a ruin.

WORKING BACKWARD.—A worthy Scotch couple, when asked how their son had broken down so early in life, gave the following explanation: "When we began life we worked hard, and lived upon porridge, and such like, gradually adding to our comforts as our means improved, until we were able to dine off a bit of roast meat, and sometimes a boiled chuckie, (chicken); but Jack, our son, worked backward; he began with the chuckie first."

NOTHING is more impoverishing than an injudicious pursuit of wealth. Thousands of searchers after the philosopher's stone have died beggars.

THE best pill in the world is a grain of common sense. But it is not to be bought at the apothecary's, for it is not a drug in the market.

Lessons of Life for Young People.

Be Agreeable.—In journeying along the Road of Life, it is a wise thing to make our fellow-travelers our friends. The way, rough as it may seem, may be pleasantly beguiled with an interchange of kindly offices and pleasant words. Suavity and forbearance are essential elements of good companionship, and no one need expect to pass pleasantly through life who does not habitually exercise them in his intercourse with his fellows. The Ishmaelite whose hand is against every man may die in a ditch without a finger being outstretched to save him. And why should we rudely jostle and shoulder our neighbors? Why tread upon each other's toes? The Christian gentleman is always careful to avoid such collisions, for courtesy and loyalty to his race are a portion of his moral and religious creed; to be loved and honored of all, his highest earthly ambition. He seeks to turn away wrath with a soft answer, and if a brawler obstinately beset his path, he steps aside to avoid him, saying, as "My Uncle Toby" said to the pertinacious fly, "Go thy ways; the world is wide enough for thee and me!"

There is another and meaner view of the subject, which we commend to the consideration of the worldly-wise and selfish. It always pays to be courteous, conciliating, and mild of tongue.

Secret of True Gentility.—Depend upon it, religion is, in its essence, the most gentlemanly thing in the world. It will alone gentile, if unmixed with cant; and I know nothing else that will alone.—Coleridge.

Books are masters who instruct us without rods and ferules, without words or anger, without bread or money. If you approach them, they are not asleep; if you seek them, they do not hide; if you blunder, they do not scold; if you are ignorant, they do not laugh at you.

Front Bravely the object of your worst apprehension, and your stoutness will commonly make your fear groundless.

Aim High.—It is the mark of a generous spirit to aim at what is lofty, to attempt what is arduous, and ever to keep in view what it is impossible for the most splendid talents to accomplish.—Seneca.

The Best Way to do good to ourselves is to do it to others; the right way to gather is to scatter.

Improve every moment to some valuable purpose. Cultivate an intimate acquaintance with the Scriptures. Reverence the name, the laws, and the worship of God.

Keep Your Temper.—Few men in public or in private life escape the tongue of scandal. There is a propensity in human nature to cover its own defects by prating of the misdeeds of others. And it is not easy for the Christian, even, always to hold his peace when idle tongues are dealing with his fair name. If wise, however, he will do so, and let a lie die a natural death, instead of galvanizing it into life by the battery of passion.

There is much good sense and sound philosophy in the following extract: "I like the story of the blacksmith who was advised to bring a suit for slander. He said he could go into his shop and hammer out a better character in six months than all the courts in Christendom could give him.

Dying Counsel.—I once entered a room where a beloved youth was dying; and having directed him to Jesus as his only refuge, and urged him to give his heart to God, I asked him, "And what shall I tell your young companions?"

"Tell them," said he, in effect, and with a look and tone of voice which I shall not attempt to describe, "tell them to repent, and give their hearts to the Saviour; tell them to seek religion now; a death-bed is a poor place to prepare for eternity!"

A French Writer has said, that "to dream gloriously you must act gloriously while you are awake; and to bring angels down to converse with you in sleep, you must labor in the cause of virtue during the day."

Privileges of the Christian.—Cast yourself wholly upon God's promised grace. Think without wavering that you are God's child, a citizen of heaven, the temple of the Holy Ghost. If hereby you be assured as you ought to be, then shall your conscience be quieted; then shall you lament more and more that you want many things which God loveth; then shall you labor to be holy both in soul and body; then shall you go about, that God's glory may shine in you in all your words and works; then shall you condemn this life, and desire to be at home with your good and sweet Father; then shall you labor to mortify all things that spot either soul or body.—John Bradford.

Nicknames.—It is better to go to heaven with a nickname, than to hell without one.

It is much easier to pull up many weeds out of the garden than one corruption out of the heart.

Concentrate your Powers.—The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers on a single object, can accomplish something; the strongest, by dispersing his over many, may not accomplish anything. The drop, by continually falling, bores its passage through the hardest rock; the hasty torrent rushes over it with hideous uproar, and leaves no trace behind.

Guard your Heart.—Admit no guest into your soul that the faithful watch-dog in your bosom barks at.

The Best Life.—A holy life, spent in the service of God and in communion with him, is without doubt the most pleasant and comfortable life that any man can live in this world.

HANSON PLACE SUNDAY SCHOOL, BROOKLYN.

Children and the Piano.

WHAT is the best age for children to commence learning to play on the piano? We think the age of seven years is not too early to begin the practice of the piano; but it should be done judiciously. Children, at this tender age, should not be required to practice much or study much. What they do should rather be as a recreation than otherwise. It is well to begin early to train the fingers, but of course they will be weak, and unable to bear much exercise; and too much of it would only tend to stiffen them. Fifteen or twenty minutes at a time, and this repeated three or four times during the day, is all-sufficient for so young a scholar. You should engage a careful and experienced teacher, who understands not only music, but the nature of the young mind and young hand, that he may train both properly.

A YOUNG fop, of an infidel turn, while traveling in a first-class railway carriage, sought to display his smartness by attempting to pick flaws in the narratives of Scripture. After trying to show the inconsistency and improbability of several events described in the Bible, he referred to the life of Nebuchadnezzar, and argued that it was utterly absurd and impossible for a man to so forget his human instincts as to eat grass like a beast. Having stated his views, he asked the opinion of his fellow-travelers, and among the rest, of a grave-looking Quaker, who had hitherto taken no part in the conversation. "Verily, friend," answered the Quaker, "I see no great improbability in the story, if he was as great an ass as thou."

Thoughts and Facts for Fathers and Mothers.

Childhood's Lesson.—Children may teach us one blessed, one enviable art: the art of being happy. Kind nature has given to them that useful power of accommodation to circumstances which compensates for many external disadvantages, and it is only by injudicious management that it is lost. Give him but a moderate portion of food and kindness, and the peasant's child is happier than the duke's: free from artificial wants, unsated by indulgence, all nature ministers to his pleasure; he can carve out felicity from a bit of hazel twig, or fish for it successfully in a puddle. I love to hear the boisterous joy of a troop of ragged urchins, whose cheap playthings are nothing more than mud, snow, or oyster shells; or to watch the quiet enjoyment of a half-clothed, half-washed fellow of four or five years old, who sits with a large rusty knife and a lump of bread and bacon, at his father's door, with a serenity that might move the envy of an alderman.

Sow your Seed early.—When a lady once told Archbishop Sharpe that she would not communicate religious instruction to her children until they had attained the years of discretion, the shrewd prelate replied, "Madam, if you do not teach them the devil will!"

"Where is your Boy?"—We saw him last, late in the evening, in the company of very bad boys, and they each had a cigar, and now and then some of them used very profane language. As we looked at your son we wondered if you knew where he was, and with whom he associates. Dear friend, do not so closely confine yourself to your shop, office, or ledger, as to neglect that boy. He will bring sorrow into your household if you do not bring proper parental restraint to bear upon him, and that very soon. Sabbath and public school teachers can help you, but you must do most.

The Mother's Hand.—"When I was a little child," said a good man, "my mother used to bid me kneel beside her, and to place her hand upon my head while she prayed. Before I was old enough to know her worth she died, and I was left much to my own guidance. Like others, I was inclined to evil passions, but often felt myself checked, and, as it were, drawn back by the soft hand on my head. When I was a young man I traveled in foreign lands, and was exposed to many temptations; but when I would have yielded, that same hand seemed to be upon my head, and I was saved. I appeared to feel its pressure as in the days of my happy infancy, and sometimes there came with it a voice in my heart, a voice that must be obeyed, 'O, do not this wickedness, my son, nor sin against thy God!'"

Choicer than Marble.—No statue that the rich man places ostentatiously in his window is to be compared to the little expectant face pressed against the window pane, watching for his father when his day's labor is done.

Don't Forget your Girls.—A great traveler and writer observes, "When I lived among the Choctaw Indians I held a consultation with one of their chiefs respecting the successive stages of their progress in the arts of civilized life; and among other things, he informed me that at their start they made a great mistake: they only sent boys to school. These boys came home intelligent men, but they married uneducated and uncivilized wives; and the uniform result was, the children were all like their mothers! The father soon lost all his interest, both in wife and children. 'And now,' said he, 'if we would educate but one class of our children we should choose the girls, for when they become mothers they educate their sons.' This is the point, and it is true. No nation can become fully enlightened when mothers are not qualified to discharge the duties of the home-work of education. Parents! give your daughters, as well as your sons, the best education in your power.

Teach your Children to Tell the Truth.—Dr. Johnson said: "Accustom your children to a strict attention to the truth, even in the most minute particulars. If a thing happen at one window, and they, when relating it, say that it happened at another, do not let it pass, but instantly check them; you do not know where deviation from truth will end. It is more from carelessness about truth than from intentional lying that there is so much falsehood in the world."

The Widower.—The death of a man's wife is like cutting down an ancient oak that has long shadowed the family mansion. Henceforth the glare of the world, with its cares and vicissitudes, falls upon the old widower's heart, and there is nothing to break its force, or shield him from the full weight of his misfortune. It is as if his right hand was withered; as if one wing was broken, and every movement that he made brought him to the ground. His eyes are dim and glassy; and when the film of death falls over him he misses those accustomed tones which have smoothed his passage to the grave.—Lamartine.

Zeddy to Eat.—When our little Emma Louisa, recently gone to be an angel, was two and a half years old, we had green peas one day for dinner. She had no recollection of ever having enjoyed the luxury before, and was much delighted, and a little impatient to commence eating. Being seated in her high chair she called to her father, "Pa, dinner's zeddy, tunc twick;" then bending reverently she said, "O Lord, bless the peas for Christ's sake, amen. Now, ma, I'm zeddy to eat."

Parlor Blood.—Little Addie, whose eldest sister and brother have been sent for from the drawing room, declares, "I don't see why I shouldn't go down stairs as well as you and Albert. I've as much parlor blood in my veins as you have!"

Pardoned and Won.

"HERE is Blake again. What can we do with him?"

Thus spoke the colonel of a regiment one day when he read on the list of offenders the name of a man who had broken military rules and had been punished so often that there seemed to be no hope of his reform.

"Excuse me, sir," said the sergeant-major, "there is one thing which has never been done with him yet."

"What is that, sergeant-major?"

"He has never been forgiven."

"Forgiven? How can he be forgiven? His case is entered," said the colonel.

"True, sir; but he is not yet before you. You can cancel it."

"Bring him in," cried the colonel.

The soldier came in. He was a noble looking fellow, who seemed worthy of a better fate. The colonel looked him in the face and said,

"What have you to say to these charges?"

"Nothing, sir, only I am sorry for what I have done," said the soldier.

"Well," said the colonel, "we have resolved to forgive you."

The poor soldier was like one thunderstruck on hearing this unexpected utterance. It touched his heart.

He wept, left the room, and was never known to offend again. Pardon conquered him. Mercy reformed him.

And thus does God seek to conquer thee, O sinner! Wicked as you are, countless as are the transgressions charged against you, if, like the soldier, you would stand before your Maker and say "I repent; I am sorry for my sins; I cast my soul on Jesus;" he would reply, "You are forgiven," and send his Holy Spirit to testify to the glorious news. That pardon once received would melt and win you. You would "go and sin no more." How could you sin against such pardoning love?

Go then, precious soul; go, confess your sin, be pardoned, and sin no more!

Seed-Thoughts.

There is a charm, a power that sways the breast,

Bids every passion revel or be still,
Inspires with rage, or all our care dissolves;
Can soothe the distraction, and almost despair;
That power is music.

The anger which flushes the face is not so deadly as that which makes it pale. The red heat is less intense than the white.

A man, to be a man,
Must rule the empire of himself; in it
Must be supreme.

We pause sometimes in a path to scan our own footprints, but it is too late to remodel or to retrace them.

Happiness lies in the taste, and not in the thing. It is from having what we desire that we are happy; not from having what others think desirable.

Resignation to the will of God is the whole of piety; it includes in it all that is good, and is a source of the most settled quiet and composure of mind.—Buller.

If the Christian religion is a cunningly devised fable, there are two things relative to it which can never be satisfactorily accounted for. The one is, that a falsehood should be surrounded with so many of the evidences and circumstances by which truth is characterized; the other, that an imposture, proceeding from minds corrupt, should be marked with such purity in its moral principles.—Alexander.

When thou art in the greatest pinch, strength shall come. When the last handful of meal was dressing, then was the prophet sent to keep the widow's house.

There are in heaven many thousands of as rich monuments of mercy as ever thou canst be. The greatest sinner did never surpass the grace of Christ.

If but one or two of the shallowest waves should roll in upon the shore of your heart from the ocean of God's love in Christ, you would shake off your unbelieving fears, and run after God, longing to be bathed in the unfathomable ocean of that love. Did you know in any measure "what is the breadth and length and depth and height of the love of Christ which passeth knowledge," you would flee into the embrace of his everlasting arms with bold awe and confident reverence.

To show us the worth of time, God, most liberal of all other things, is exceedingly frugal in the dispensing of that; for he never gives us two moments together, nor grants us a second till he has withdrawn the first, still keeping the third in his own hands, so that we are in a perfect uncertainty whether we shall have it or not. The true manner of preparing for the last moment is, to spend all the others well, and ever to expect that.—Fenelon.

The hours of a wise man are lengthened by his ideas, as those of a fool are by his passions. The time of the one is long, because he does not know what to do with it; so is that of the other, because he distinguishes every moment of it with useful or amusing thoughts; or, in other words, because the one is always wishing it away, and the other always enjoying it.—Addison.

Self is the great seducer, greater than the serpent which seduced Eve. It is in forgetfulness of self that peace consists. Wherever self enters it throws the heart into convulsions, and there is no good antidote for this subtle poison. Happy the man who surrenders himself to God without reserve, without regret, without even reflecting that he is surrendering himself!

"Leisure and I," said Wesley, "have taken leave of one another. I propose to be busy as long as I live, if my health is so long indulged to me." This resolution was made in the prime of life; and never was resolution more punctually observed. "Lord, let me not live to be useless!" was the prayer which he uttered.—Southey's Life of Wesley.

True faith has to do with God; it rests on God, not on man. Faith believes what God says, because He has said it, not because man may authorize it. Faith receives the Gospel message, "not as the word of man, but as it is in truth the Word of God."

The peculiarity of the Christian faith, the secret of its strength, is this, that all which it has, and all which it confers, is laid up in a person. This is what has made it strong, while so much else has proved weak, that it has Christ at its middle point; that it is not an indefinite circumference without a center; that it has not merely a deliverance, but also a Deliverer; not a redemption only, but a Redeemer as well. This is what makes it fit for wayfaring men. This is what makes it sunlight, and all else, compared with it, but as moonlight: fair, it may be, but cold and ineffectual.

As the sun, though it discovers other things to us by its light, yet by reason of the greatness of its light hinders us from an immediate sight of itself; so, though God discovers himself in other things to us by his light, yet it is too immense for us to have an immediate knowledge of God.

He that is much in prayer shall grow rich in grace. He shall thrive and increase most that is busiest in this, which is our very traffic with heaven, and fetches the most precious commodities thence. He that sets oftenest out of those ships of desire, that makes the most voyages to that land of spices and pearls, shall be sure to improve his stock most, and have most of heaven upon earth.

Quaint old Fuller says, "Let him who expects one class of society to prosper in the highest degree, while the other is in distress, try whether one side of his face can smile while the other side is pinched."

Make your own Tar.—Among the thousand and one things in which farmers may decrease their expenses is that of making tar, which is so perfectly simple and easy that all can try it. Procure some good fat pine, and cut it into small pieces; fill a large kettle, that will contain at least fifteen gallons, with the pine you have prepared; then turn your kettle bottom upward on a large stone, place sods around it, leaving a small opening on the lower side for the tar to run out, and place a dish under the stone to catch it. All things made ready, build a good fire upon the top of the kettle to try out the pitch, and if your wood is good you will have from four to six quarts of good tar.

Fruit Growers, Save your Plums.—As soon as the blossoms are off the tree, take a bucket of slaked lime (air-slaked is the best) in a dry state, and when the tree is wet with dew in the morning throw the lime through the tree by handfuls; don't be afraid of it. If the tree is large, get a pair of steps or something else to stand upon, so that you can scatter the lime well through the tree, and the work is done until after the lime is washed off by a rain, and then you will give your tree another liming. In this way keep your tree limed until about the 20th of June, and I will insure that the plums will be safe. My experience has satisfied me that the above is an infallible defense against the curculio. One of my neighbors (Mr. C. D. Stark) and myself have tried it for two years past, with the most gratifying results. I had two plum trees growing in my yard; they would regularly bloom, but not one of the plums would stay on the trees to ripen. In the spring of 1861 a few plums on each tree escaped destruction by the frost; I limed one of them as above and saved the fruit, while on the other tree not one plum escaped being stung by the curculio. The next spring I limed both trees, and found it to be a complete success. I believe that no such plums were ever before produced in this country. One of them was a Golden Drop, and they were larger than Shanghai hen's eggs; the other was a beautiful reddish purple, covered with bloom, and of the size or rather larger than Green Gage. I believe I never saw a richer collection of fruit than those were. Mr. Stark met with the same gratifying success. I wish newspapers generally would call the attention of fruit growers to this remedy. It may be applied with equal advantage to all other kinds of fruit that insects are in the habit of destroying. And permit me to suggest the same as a defense against the ravages of the caterpillar.—Ohio Farmer.

Remedy for Cabbage Lice.—A writer in the Farmers' Advocate says that a cheap and effective remedy for this insect is within the reach of all. As soon as the plant begins to head, or as soon as the louse makes its appearance, open the leaves carefully with the fingers and sprinkle common salt between them. This is said to be an infallible remedy. We have used it with entire success. Plants served in this way produce larger and more solid heads than those left to themselves.

Potatoes.—In the suburbs of New York, especially on Long Island, many of the farmers make this their main crop, and not a few raise two thousand dollars' worth and more. They plow in horse manure, and plow deep. They select their largest potatoes, quarter, plant in drills about fifteen inches apart, and prefer to have only four stalks in a place. The product is of very uniform marketable size, with few or no small ones. These farmers doubtless know what is for their interest, and ridicule the notion of planting small potatoes to realize from.—American Agriculturist.

Useful Recipes.

French Rolls.—One quart sweet milk, one quarter pound butter, one cup hop yeast, two eggs, one tablespoonful saleratus. Mix about as stiff as biscuits; let them stand over night; in the morning make them up in rolls and bake for breakfast.

Indian Bread.—Scald one quart Indian meal, and sponge it with hop yeast. Next morning add two teaspoonfuls molasses, one teaspoonful saleratus, and a little salt. Harden with wheat flour, not making too stiff. Bake nearly an hour in a slow oven.

New-Year's Cake.—Three quarters pound butter, one pound sugar, three pounds flour, half pint water, one teaspoonful soda, two teaspoonfuls cream of tartar, and caraway seeds to your taste. Roll them out and cut in diamonds, stamping them with any pattern you choose. They are excellent, and will keep fresh a long time.

Lemon Pies.—Two lemons, squeeze the juice, chop the peel very fine, add one cup sugar, one cup molasses, one teacup raisins, chopped, three eggs. Beat all up together, then add one cup water and a pinch of salt, and you will have something extra for lemon pies.

Ginger Snaps.—One cup best molasses, one half cup sugar, two thirds cup butter, one teaspoonful alum, two teaspoonfuls saleratus, one half cup water, one tablespoonful ginger.

A Stuffed Beefsteak.—Prepare a dressing of bread, scalded soft, and mixed with plenty of butter and a little pepper and salt. Lay it upon one side of a round of steak, cover with the other, and baste it down with a needle and thread. Salt and pepper the outside of the steak and place it in a dripping pan, with half an inch of water. When baked brown on one side, turn and bake the other.

The Queen of Puddings.—One pint nice fine bread crumbs to one quart milk, one cup sugar, the yolks of four eggs beaten, the grated peel of a lemon, a piece of butter the size of an egg. Bake until done but not watery. Whip the whites of the eggs stiff, and beat in a teacupful of sugar in which has been stirred the juice of the lemon. Spread over the pudding a layer of jelly or any sweetmeats you prefer. Pour the whites of the eggs over this, and replace in the oven and bake lightly. To be eaten cold with cream. Is second only to ice cream, and for some seasons better.

Another Nice Pudding.—Three tablespoonfuls melted butter, mixed with one cup sugar, one egg well beaten, one pint flour, two teaspoonfuls cream tartar, one of soda, one cup sweet milk. Beat well, and bake thirty minutes. Serve hot, with the following sauce: Two cups sugar with one cup butter, one cup currant or other wine added a little at a time, as the butter and sugar are melted; the pan containing it to be set in hot water ten minutes or so. ("Spirits" again.)

Ginger Cookies.—Two cups molasses, one of lard, one of sweet milk, one tablespoonful soda, one of ginger.

Pumpkin Bread.—Stew one small pumpkin in the same manner as for pies; while boiling, stir in Indian meal until it becomes of the consistence of mush, adding a teacupful of molasses and a little salt. Then take it out in some wheat flour, have your sponge light, and when sufficiently cool, mix, mould, and bake.

Potato Pie.—Mix the crust in the same manner as for chicken or beefsteak pie, and place it in a deep pie dish or dripping pan; cut into it one small onion, and fill even full with finely sliced potatoes; add a little butter, and pour into the pan as much sweet milk and cream as it will contain. Season with salt and pepper to suit the taste, cover, and bake in a slow oven.

Mutton Chops should be cut from a loin or neck that has hung; if a neck, the bones should not be long. They should be broiled on a clear fire, seasoned when half done, and turned frequently. Take them up on a very hot dish, put a bit of butter on each, and serve hot immediately.

To Keep Preserves.—Apply the white of egg with a suitable brush to a single thickness of white tissue paper, with which to cover the jars, overlapping the edges an inch or two. When dry, the whole will become as tight as a drum.

To Clarify Sugar for Preserving.—Put into a preserving pan as many pounds of sugar as you wish; to each pound of sugar put half a pint of water, and the white of an egg to every four pounds; stir it together until the sugar is dissolved; then set it over a gentle fire, stir it occasionally, and take off the scum as it rises. After a few boilings up, the sugar will rise so high as to run over the side of the pan, to prevent which, take it from the fire for a few minutes, when it will subside and leave time for skimming. Repeat the skimming until a slight scum or foam only will rise; then take off the pan, lay a slightly wetted napkin over the basin, and then strain the sugar through it. Put the skimmings into a basin; when the sugar is clarified rinse the skimmer and basin with a glass of water and put it to the scum, and set it by for common purposes.

A Cure for Rheumatism.—Bathe the parts affected in the water in which potatoes have been boiled, as hot as it can be borne, just before going to bed; by the next morning the pain will be much relieved, if not removed. One application of this simple remedy has cured the most obstinate rheumatic pains.

Since the first publication of the above, the editors have received a letter from an invalid who had suffered for a long time with rheumatism, and was wholly cured by the use of this remedy.—Country Gentleman.

To Restore Persons apparently Drowned.

Send quickly for medical assistance. Cautions: Avoid all rough usage; never hold up the body by the feet, nor rub the body with salt or spirits. Convey the body carefully, with the head and shoulders supported in a raised position, to the nearest house. Strip the body, and rub it dry; then wrap it in hot blankets, and place it in a warm bed, in a warm chamber, free from smoke. To restore the warmth of the body, carefully move a heated covered warming-pan over the back and spine. Put bladders or bottles of hot water to the pit of the stomach, the armpits, and to the soles of the feet. Foment the body with hot flannels. Rub the body briskly, but not roughly, with the hand, but do not suspend the use of the other means. If possible, immerse the body in a warm bath.

A FACT WORTH KNOWING.—It may not be generally known that when a person is drowning, if he is taken by the arm from behind, between the elbow and shoulder, he cannot touch the person attempting to save him, and whatever struggles he may make will only assist the person holding him in keeping his head above the water. A good swimmer can keep a man thus above the water for an hour. If seized anywhere else, the probability is that he will clutch the swimmer, and perhaps, as is often the case, both will be drowned.

A SCOTCH NOBLEMAN, seeing an old gardener of his establishment with a very old and patched, though not ragged coat, made some passing remarks on its condition. "It's a verra guid coat," said the honest old man. "I cannot agree with you there," said his lordship. "Ay, it's just a verra guid coat," persisted the old man; "it covers a contented spirit, and a body that owes no man anything; and that's mair than mony a man can say o' their coat!"

ONLY TIGHT.—"How flushed, how weak he is! What's the matter with him?" "Only tight." "Yes, intoxicated."

Only tight! Man's best and greatest gift, his intellect, degraded; the only power that raises him from the brute creation trodden under foot of a debasing appetite.

He has brought sorrow to the affectionate hearts of all who love him; he has opened the door to a fatal indulgence; he has brought himself down to a level with the brutes; he has tasted, exciting the appetite to crave the poisonous draught again; he has fallen from high and noble manhood to babbling idiocy and heavy stupor; brought grief to his mother, distrust to his sister, almost despair to his bride, and has bowed his father's head with sorrow; but blame him not, for he is "only tight!"

Varieties.

The Faults of Others.

What are another's faults to me?
 Have I a vulture's bill
 To peck at every flaw I see,
 And make it wider still?
 It is enough for me to know
 I've follies of my own;
 I'll on my heart due care bestow,
 And let my friends alone.

The Very Latest Novelty.—A scientific journal announces a new feature in the application of gas to domestic purposes. Fire-flies of gold and brilliants already sparkle upon the graceful white feathers and fresh green leaves that adorn the brows of some of the youthful queens of the drawing-room. Clusters of diminutive gas-lights are now to spring from the elaborate tresses of beautiful matrons. The jets will issue from burners measuring a twentieth of an inch per hour, within transparent shades exquisitely cut, not larger than a cherry. The tube is to be of solid gold, connected with a reservoir of the same metal, which is to lie concealed in the meshes of luxuriant hair behind the head. The pressure will be applied to the golden tank, which is supported by an elaborate back comb, the top of which forms a row of little gas-lights. Before entering the ball-room the husband will "turn on the gas," and light up his blushing bride.

Random Expressions.—"I am tired to death." So you have said very often, and are alive still, and in very good health.

"I had not a wink of sleep all night." And yet you were heard to snore several times.

"I would not do it for the world." And yet you have done many things equally bad for a trifle.

"We were up to our knees in mud." You know very well the dirt was not over your shoes.

Old Irritable Caught.—Old Mr. Irritable, to prevent itinerant traders annoying him by knocking at his door to dispose of their wares, affixed to his knocker a label to this effect: "The inhabitant of this house never buys anything at the door: hawkers, beware!" He was dreadfully annoyed shortly after by a loud knocking at his parlor window, from which he saw two fellows with clothes-lines, mats, and pegs to sell. Throwing up the sash in a pretty considerable rage, he bawled out, "Can you read?" "Yes, master," answered the hawker. "Then don't you see a notice affixed to my knocker that I never buy anything at the door?" "To be sure we do; so we thought we would make bold and try to do a little business at the window." Old Irritable straightway made a purchase, but also sent for a painter, and had the following addition made to his announcement, "Nor at the window either."

A few short years of evil past,
 We reach the happy shore,
 Where death-divided friends at last
 Shall meet to part no more.

How to Return a Blow.—Mr. Marsh, of Mosul, relates of an Armenian named John, that when living at Constantinople he was hired by persecuting Armenians to strike a watchmaker. The latter, upon receiving the blow, nobly prayed, "May God bless you!" This remarkable answer was effectual, "for," said John, in allusion to the affair, "I could not strike again; and at night I said to the money, 'Instead of my eating you, you will eat me.'" John soon gave occasion for friends and foes to say of him, "Behold, he prayeth." Thus was the power of a soft answer strikingly illustrated.

There was not long since a devout but ignorant Papist dwelling in Spain. He perceived the necessity of his own private prayers to God, besides the pater-nosters; but so simple was he, that how to pray he knew not. Only every morning, humbly bending his knees and lifting up his hands and eyes to heaven, he would deliberately repeat the alphabet, "And now," he would say, "O good God, put these letters together to spell syllables, to spell words, to make such sense as may be most to thy glory and to my good."

Reading Books Thorough.—When I read, I wish to read to good purpose; and there are some books which contradict, on the very face of them, what appear to me to be first principles. You surely will not say that I am bound to read such books. If a man tells me he has a very elaborate argument to prove that two and two make five, I have something else to do than to attend to this argument. If I find the first mouthful of meat which I take from a fine-looking joint on my table is tainted, I need not eat through it to be convinced I ought to send it away. —Cecil.

The Extent of the Earth.—It is found that its diameter is equal to 7,958 miles in length; its circumference, 25,000 miles; its superficies, 198,944,206 square miles; its solidity, 26,393,000,000 cubic miles. It is also calculated that the unexplored portion of the earth and seas contain 160,522,026 square miles, and that the inhabited part of the earth is equal to 39,222,180, in the following proportions: in Europe, 4,456,065; in Asia, 10,968,428; in Africa, 9,854,817; in America, 14,142,875.

The Devil Repulsed.—Luther says: "Once upon a time the devil came to me, and said, 'Martin Luther, you are a great sinner, and you will be damned!' 'Stop, stop!' said I; 'one thing at a time. I am a great sinner, it is true, though you have no right to tell me of it. I confess it. What next?' 'Therefore you will be damned.' 'That is not good reasoning. It is true I am a great sinner, but it is written, 'Jesus Christ came to save sinners,' therefore I shall be saved.' So I cut the devil off with his own sword, and he went away mourning because he could not cast me down by calling me a sinner."

Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "what we do know," after thirty years' experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfilment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

We have patronized the house ourselves, and received entire satisfaction, alike as to material, style, and price. We say this without any 'consideration' or desire of any, but simply as a matter of justice to parties who advertise largely with us, and as a matter of interest to many of our readers, and especially clerical ones, who, we learn, receive especial favors at their hands."

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

The duties of the American housekeeper are numerous and often perplexing. She has to do for everybody about house, and everybody about house is always ready to criticise what she has done. The breakfast table is not unfrequently made the criterion of her capability in the culinary department, while the wardrobe is turned to for proof of her efficiency in the laundry. But the principal source of the many obstacles which she is compelled to encounter may be traced to the deceptive practices of unscrupulous traders; and it would be impossible for any housekeeper to excel, particularly in the preparation of food, when the materials supplied are misrepresented. This is a subject that should engross the attention of every household provider, and if their own judgment is inadequate for the protection of these most important interests, they at least should select articles which have an unquestionable reputation. Saleratus, Cream Tartar, Soda, and Spices, for example, although extensively used in every family throughout the country, are seldom sold in a pure state; indeed, if consumers understood the extent to which they are imposed upon, they would shrink with horror from the use of such vile deceptions. Take as an instance Cream Tartar, such as is generally sold by grocers, and of every hundred pounds it is safe to say that eighty pounds of it is an earthy substance, similar to chalk, or ground plaster, mixed with acid enough to give it the requisite taste, and although resembling Cream Tartar in color and taste, is nevertheless void of merit and unfit to be taken into the stomach; but neither housekeepers nor grocers are obliged to submit to such impositions.

JAMES PYLE'S

Saleratus, Cream Tartar, Soda, and O. K. Soap, which are obtainable everywhere, have a reputation for purity, good weight, and general usefulness, beyond dispute, even of competitors. The publishers of this Almanac will bear us out in this assertion, and so will the editors of nearly all the religious papers in New York. The grocer, however, may try to persuade you otherwise, for the simple reason that he sells something which he buys at a lower price and makes larger profit. We have known some under this influence to recommend the poorest goods in market; but it is right to have what you want, and their duty to furnish you.

PYLE'S SALERATUS AND CREAM TARTAR have been before the public seven years, and are generally conceded the best in market.

PYLE'S O. K. SOAP,

Although but little over one year in market, is now the most popular Soap in New York, and the demand is still increasing.

PYLE'S BLUING POWDER

Indeed is an important article for housekeepers. It not only makes the best and cheapest Bluening in use, but also produces a Brilliant Blue Indelible Writing Ink. It is the Washerwoman's favorite Bluening.

All these articles are sold in Packages bearing the name of JAMES PYLE, without which none are genuine. Several Large Silver Medals have been awarded to the proprietor of the above articles, and the following mention was made by the Judges at the last FAIR OF THE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

(Copy.) New York State Agricultural Society, Rochester Fair, 1862.

I hereby certify that JAMES PYLE, of New York, was awarded a special prize at the State Fair at Rochester on his O. K. Soap, Dietetic Saleratus, Cream Tartar, Baking Soda, and various other articles of exceeding great merit; and the Executive Committee of the Society give special commendation for the great excellence of the articles exhibited.

In witness whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name, and affixed the official seal

SEED-THOUGHT:

A Hand-Book of Doctrine and Devotion.

DESIGNED FOR CLASS-LEADERS, BIBLE-CLASS

AND SABBATH-SCHOOL TEACHERS, FOR YOUNG PREACHERS, AND FOR PRIVATE DEVOTION.

BY GEORGE C. ROBINSON.

Price. 65 cents.

The unpretending volume now offered to the Church public will the more readily explain itself if there is added, by way of completing the title-page, "Comprising Scripture Precepts, Scripture Examples, Hymns and Tunes, together with Selections from Ancient and Modern Religious Literature, the whole Alphabetically arranged under the leading topics of Doctrine and Experience." The book was originally undertaken with a view to the wants of class-leaders alone. But during the course of its preparation the list of topics has from time to time been extended, under the conviction that the volume, if serviceable at all, would prove quite as much so to Bible-class and Sabbath-school teachers, considering that no instruction could be more valuable than that which furnished and familiarized the young with the specific Scriptures upon which rest the theory and practice designed to guide their whole lives. . . . Here the compiler intended to stop; but the publishers, and others equally experienced and judicious, have insisted that the attention of young preachers should also be invited to the work as a sort of scriptural compend of doctrine and practice. The compiler has yielded this point with reluctance, and solicits their attention with sincere diffidence.—Preface.

STEVENS'S HISTORY of METHODISM.

The History of the Religious Movement of the Eighteenth Century, called Methodism,

CONSIDERED IN ITS DIFFERENT DENOMINATIONAL FORMS, AND ITS RELATIONS TO BRITISH AND AMERICAN PROTESTANTISM.

BY ABEL STEVENS, LL.D.

Vol. I.—From the Origin of Methodism to the Death of Whitefield.

Vol. II.—From the Death of Whitefield to the Death of Wesley.

Vol. III.—From the Death of Wesley to the Centenary Jubilee of Methodism.

12mo. Muslin..... Price, $1 25 per volume.

Svo. Illustrated edition, morocco. " 2 75 "

This history of Methodism is a work of such rare excellence that we wonder that any Methodist family able to procure a copy will consent to be without one. Some, we are aware, are waiting until the work shall be completed. In this they commit a capital mistake. The probability is, if they adhere to their purpose, that they will never read the work. The first three volumes are full of interest. They cannot be read by any Methodist without advantage. We owe it to ourselves and to the Church, as parties to the grand enterprise which they discuss, to read them and push them into circulation. No books published by our Book Concern are better calculated to give our denomination a commanding influence. Methodists who are able should keep a copy to loan to neighbors of other denominations.

PRONOUNCING BIBLE.

Large Svo. Price, $3 50 to $8 00.

We have lately issued the best Bible in print, a PRONOUNCING BIBLE, having these advantages: 1. The proper names are divided and accented, so that a child can pronounce them correctly. 2. Each book has a short introduction, showing just what every reader ought to know about it. 3. It has a much improved class of references. 4. It contains a map of Old Canaan and its surroundings, and one of Palestine, according to the latest discoveries.

WHEDON'S COMMENTARY.

A Commentary on the Gospels of Matthew and Mark.

INTENDED FOR POPULAR USE.

BY D. D. WHEDON, D.D.

12mo. Price, $1 25.

This is a 12mo. of 422 closely printed pages, embracing a fine map of Palestine, and other valuable illustrations. It is the cheapest book for the price that we have issued in many years. The two volumes which are to follow will be announced in due time. All the notices we have seen, as well as the remarks we have heard, go to the effect that this book is a timely, able, and valuable addition to our literature.

Lessons for Every Sunday in the Year

SERIES I.—FROM THE GOSPELS AND THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

SERIES II.—FROM THE NEW TESTAMENT.

Price, 10 cents single; $1 20 per dozen.

These are new Question Books on a new plan.

PLAN OF THE BOOKS.

I. The titles of the lessons are thrown together on page 6, where they are all presented to the eye in regular order.

II. The calendar of Sundays, on page 7, with the numbers, shows what lesson is set down for each Sunday in any year in which the book is used.

III. Each lesson is complete on two pages, opening together. The text of the lesson is printed in full at the head, with the probable time and place of its occurrence.

IV. A very important item is the condensed history, connecting each lesson with the preceding. In this manner the entire New Testament history is epitomized in chronological order.

V. In large type are the most obvious questions on the text, such as can be readily answered by small children.

VI. In smaller type are a series of interesting questions, directly and indirectly connected with the lesson. It will be seen that an answer is given to every question at all difficult, either in words or by a Scripture reference. This will be a very material aid to the great mass of teachers, who are not supplied with commentaries and other helps. The amount of information given in these questions and answers is very large, and much of it so valuable and attractive, and withal so new, that the book will be inviting and instructive for perusal by the old as well as young.

It is not only a question book, covering within the compass of a single year the most essential parts of the whole New Testament, and adapted to all classes of scholars, but it is also a chronology, a history, and a commentary combined.—Preface.

Sermons by Jabez Bunting, D.D.

Two volumes. 8vo. Price, $4 50.

In the publication of these volumes Messrs. Carlton & Porter have rendered invaluable service to the ministry and laity of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and to the furtherance generally of a truly evangelical ministration of the word of God. The editor of the sermons justly remarks that "if, according to the judgment of Sir James Mackintosh, eloquence results from the combination of 'reason, simplicity, and vehemence,' Dr. Bunting was a master of that transcendent art." The vehemence which distinguished his oral discourses, and which was an intensity of solemnity of thought and language, and not a mere physical ebullition, cannot be made fully to appear in these printed discourses. But the rich evangelism of that truly great man's pulpit efforts is happily preserved. No minister can read them without receiving new impulses in his holy work, and no logician can peruse them without being prompted to an increased watchfulness and diligence. They are emphatically a treasury of sound doctrine and practical counsels.—Commercial Advertiser.

Price of the Book, $1 50; Sheets, $2 per hundred.

Preachers, exhorters, stewards, and leaders are hereby advised to supply themselves with the Quarterly Conference Records and Blanks for the use of secretaries. They save time, secure system and correctness in the Minutes, and, with care, will give to the Churches using them a permanent record of their official doings.

THE CHURCH SINGER.

A Collection of Sacred Music.

THIS work has been prepared with great labor and expense, with the view of furnishing the Church with a "Standard Book." The plan of the work embraces a selection of the choicest old standard tunes, and easy, rich, melodious new music, in amount about equal to the old pieces, except in the ANTHEMS, SET PIECES, and CHANTS, which are nearly all new, and adapted to the greatest variety of occasions. The Churches have long experienced the inconvenience of frequent change of music books, and the constant introduction of new tunes, interfering greatly with congregational singing. The reason assigned is, that no one book contains a sufficient variety of pieces for the Particular Meters and for Special Occasions, so that three or four different collections are found in many of our Churches.

Prominent features of this work will be,

1. A sufficient number of tunes for all the Particular Meters, and such as can be easily sung by choirs and congregations.

2. A large number of SET PIECES and CHANTS for Missionary Meetings—Sunday-school Meetings—Dedication Service—Baptism Service—Opening Service—Closing Service—To be Sung during Collections, Funerals of Ministers, Young Persons, Adults, etc.; as well as a number for Prayer Meetings and other occasions.

3. The arrangements familiar to the people have been preserved in all the old music, while the harmonies of the new pieces are smooth and flowing.

4. A set of HALLELUIAHS and a CHANT FOR THE LORD'S PRAYER, which will be very effective.

5. Choirs will find that they can introduce the book at once, using the old tunes known by everybody, taking time to rehearse the new pieces, which will eventually become as familiar to the people as Old Hundred.

The Elements are presented in a brief and comprehensive manner, entirely new.

It is only necessary to say that several years' labor have been given to the work by the talented composer, CHARLES C. CONVERSE, Esq., known also in the book by the names, Karl Reden, E. C. Revons, and C. O. Nevers, of whom it was said, by one of the most eminent of German Composers, "If America produces such authors she can be quite independent." Mr. Converse has had the co-operation of Mr. S. J. GOODENOUGH, of this city, who has been for many years familiar with the musical department of the Church, and the combined effort has been to produce the best book ever before published.

The compilers are under obligations to Dr. LOWELL MASON, WM. B. BRADBURY, Esq., Dr. T. HASTINGS, THE GREATORREX COLLECTION, and others, for some of their best pieces, as well as to F. J. HUNTINGTON, Esq., for some of Mr. WOODBURY'S music.

Price, single copy, $1 25; per dozen, $10 00.

For sale also by POE & HITCHCOCK, Cincinnati, O.; J. P. MAGEE, Boston, Mass.; W. M. DOUGHTY, Chicago, Ill.; J. L. READ, Pittsburgh, Pa.; H. H. OTIS, Buffalo, N. Y.;
E. GOODENOUGH, 122 Nassau-street, N. Y.; and the Trade generally.

1,200,000 Acres, in Farms of 40, 80, 120, 160 Acres and upwards,
in ILLINOIS, the Garden State of America.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company offer, ON LONG CREDIT, the beautiful and fertile PRAIRIE LANDS lying along the whole line of their Railroad, 700 MILES IN LENGTH, upon the most Favorable Terms for enabling Farmers, Manufacturers, Mechanics and Workingmen to make for themselves and their families a competency, and a HOME they can call THEIR OWN.

ILLINOIS.

Is about equal in extent to England, with a population of 1,722,666, and a soil capable of supporting 20,000,000. No State in the valley of the Mississippi offers so great an inducement to the settler as the State of Illinois. There is no part of the world where all the conditions of climate and soil so admirably combine to produce those two great staples, CORN and WHEAT.

CLIMATE.

Nowhere can the industrious farmer secure such immediate results from his labor as on these deep, rich, loamy soils, cultivated with so much ease. The climate from the extreme southern part of the State to the Terre Haute, Alton and St. Louis Railroad, a distance of nearly 200 miles, is well adapted to winter.

WHEAT, CORN, COTTON, TOBACCO.

Peaches, Pears, Tomatoes, and every variety of fruit and vegetables is grown in great abundance, from which Chicago and other Northern markets are furnished from four to six weeks earlier than their immediate vicinity.

THE ORDINARY YIELD.

of Corn is from 50 to 80 bushels per acre. Cattle, Horses, Mules, Sheep and Hogs are raised here at a small cost, and yield large profits. It is believed that no section of country presents greater inducements for Dairy Farming than the Prairies of Illinois, a branch of farming to which but little attention has been paid, and which must yield sure profitable results.

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

The Agricultural products of Illinois are greater than those of any other State. The Wheat crop of 1861 was estimated at 35,000,000 bushels, while the Corn crop yields not less than 140,000,000 bushels besides the crop of Oats, Barley, Rye,

Buckwheat, Potatoes, Sweet Potatoes, Pumpkins, Squashes, Flax, Hemp, Peas, Clover, Cabbage, Beets, Tobacco, Sorghum, Grapes, Peaches, Apples, &c., which go to swell the vast aggregate of production in this fertile region. Over Four Million tons of produce were sent out the State of Illinois during the past year.

CULTIVATION OF COTTON.

The experiments in Cotton culture are of very great promise. Commencing in latitude 39 deg. 30 min. (see Mattoon on the Branch, and Assumption on the Main Line), the Company owns thousands of acres well adapted to the perfection of this fibre. A settler having a family of young children, can turn their youthful labor to a most profitable account in the growth and perfection of this plant.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Traverses the whole length of the State, from the banks of the Mississippi and Lake Michigan to the Ohio. As its name imports, the Railroad runs through the centre of the State, and on either side of the road along its whole length lie the lands offered for sale.

CITIES, TOWNS, MARKETS, DEPOTS.

There are ninety-eight Depots on the Company's Railway, giving about one every seven miles. Cities, Towns, and Villages are situated at convenient distances throughout the whole route, where every desirable commodity may be found as readily as in the oldest cities of the Union, and where buyers are to be met for all kinds of farm produce.

EDUCATION.

Mechanics and working-men will find the free school system encouraged by the State, and endowed with a large revenue for the support of the schools. Children can live in sight of the school, the college, the church, and grow up with the prosperity of the leading State in the Great Western Empire.

FORT EDWARD INSTITUTE.

SITUATED on the bank of the Hudson River, in the flourishing village of FORT EDWARD, Washington County, New York, accessible by Saratoga and White Hall Railroad, distant fourteen miles from Lake George and seventeen miles from Saratoga Springs.

For nine years—ever since its establishment—the best sustained Boarding Seminary in the state, as its records and the Reports of the Regents show.

The following are doubtless some of the causes of the singular prosperity of this Institution :

I. Its extensive, substantial and commodious brick buildings, their eminently healthful location and pleasant surroundings.

II. Its full and competent Board of Instruction in the various departments of study, both solid and ornamental, and the correspondingly extensive programme of studies provided every term, from which the student may select, constituting the Institute, in a very practical and important sense, a real PEOPLE'S COLLEGE. Thus, 1. At this Institute a good class is always preparing for Union, Middletown, or for Yale College. 2. Here all the approved appliances of the best modern Commercial College are in successful use, and a large class graduates each term. 3. There is provided also a SUPERIOR COURSE OF LIBERAL STUDIES, Classical, Scientific, and Ornamental; and a choice ECLECTIC COURSE for proficients in Painting and Music. These courses attract constantly and from a wide district scores of young ladies of the best capacities. As a LADIES' COLLEGE this Institute takes rank, both as to its facilities and the number, character, and culture of its graduates, with the oldest and best exclusive Female Seminaries. From these liberal courses young men are not excluded; hence very many choose FORT EDWARD INSTITUTE as the best available place of fitting for the duties of business and professional life. Not a few are attracted by the rare facilities the Institute affords for culture in original Composition and Oratory. To the advantages afforded by four permanent Literary Societies, and the constant stimulus of rare and critical audiences, is added each term the judicious award of valuable Prizes.

III. Its outspoken Christian character. While the most of its teachers are Methodists, and the approved means of grace are regularly employed to bring irreligious students to Christ, and to cultivate the religious element in all, no narrow sectarianism is tolerated; all the evangelical communions being made thoroughly equal in all the privileges of the Institute.

IV. The average maturity of its students and the broad national character of the Institute, students from not less than twelve States and the Canadas always being present.

V. The unity of its administration, the governmental and financial head of the establishment having been unchanged from its opening; the accumulated facilities and experience of years being thus made available to the Institute.

VI. The remarkably low charges for Board and Tuition, in comparison with the quality of the advantages afforded.

B. T. BABBITT'S NEW YORK CITY SOAP.

I am bringing out a new and useful article of Superior French Chemical Erasive Soap, or New York City Soap, put up in boxes of 60 Bars, one pound each. The genuine article of Erasive and Detersive Soap has, since its introduction to the American public, been most favorably known as the

BEST AND CHEAPEST WASHING SOAP IN MARKET.

Recent discoveries (known to no other manufacturer) enable me to produce an article possessing chemical "DETERSIVE AND ERASIVE" qualities far superior to any other Soap in market.

I Challenge the World to Produce its Equal.

This Soap is rapidly taking the place of all other soaps, wherever introduced. One pound will go as far as three pounds of ordinary family Soap. But one quarter the time and labor are required to do the same amount of washing as with the best of family soap. It will wash in either hard or salt water. Clothes need no boiling, and but little rubbing with the hands, thus avoiding their wear upon the washboard. It does not injure the fabric; on the contrary, it preserves it, and fixes the colors. It will remove paint, grease, or stains of all kinds. Directions sent in each box for making One Pound of the above Soap into Three Gallons of Handsome Soft Soap. Send for a box and give it a trial. If you do not want a whole box yourself, get your neighbors to join you, and divide it.

Please be particular, and give full directions for shipping the goods. Also, give the name of your Post-office, with the State and County in which you reside. Address,

B. T. BABBITT,
64 to 74 Washington-st., New York.

I WILL SEND ONE BOX OF SOAP ON THE RECEIPT OF $6.

Bradbury's Pianos are made of the BEST THOROUGHLY SEASONED material. He employs the BEST MECHANICAL SKILL and talent of the city—men who have been in his employ many years.

Bradbury's "New Scale," drawn and prepared expressly for his new instruments, is in advance of other improvements in POWER, BRILLIANCE, RICHNESS, PURITY, and EQUALITY of TONE, combined with DELICACY OF TOUCH and STRENGTH OF FRAME. He invites the closest criticism of the best unbiased judges. Every department of the business is conducted under Mr. BRADBURY'S own personal supervision. Every instrument fully warranted.

The most accomplished pianists and critics of the country have paid us the highest compliments. These gentlemen, whose reputation is world-wide, have carefully and repeatedly examined our New Scale Pianos, and we certainly could ask for no stronger indorsement than they have voluntarily given us. We subjoin two just received from those renowned artistes, GOTTSCHALK AND WM. MASON.

FROM GOTTSCHALK.

I have examined with GREAT CARE Mr. Wm. B. Bradbury's NEW SCALE PIANO-FORTES, and it is my opinion that they are VERY SUPERIOR INSTRUMENTS.

I have especially remarked their THOROUGH WORKMANSHIP, and the POWER, PURITY, RICHNESS, and EQUALITY of their tone. I recommend, therefore, these instruments to the public in general, and doubt not of their success.

NEW YORK, July 12, 1863.

L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

FROM WM. MASON.

MR. WM. B. BRADBURY:

NEW YORK, July 25, 1863.

Dear Sir,—After repeated tests of your NEW SCALE PIANO-FORTE, in almost every variety of musical composition and expression, I find that they possess, in the highest degree, all the essentials of a PERFECT PIANO-FORTE.

The grandness, purity, equality, and duration of tone are combined in a degree rarely to be met with, while the elasticity and the perfection of the action gives the most rapid response to the touch. I consider them a VERY SUPERIOR INSTRUMENT, and as such they will command the highest commendation of the artist, the critic, or amateur.

Yours, very truly,

WM. MASON.

Similar indorsements from the most renowned in the musical profession have been received.

Persons can order with the certainty of their directions being strictly followed. Our terms are CASH. We make a liberal discount to clergymen.

WELCH

THROAT AFFECTIONS, COUGHS, AND COLDS.

A COUGH, COLD, OR AN IRRITATED THROAT, if allowed to progress, results in serious Pulmonary and Bronchial affections, oftentimes incurable.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

reach DIRECTLY the affected parts and give almost instant relief. In Bronchitis, Asthma, and Catarrh they are beneficial. The good effects resulting from the use of the Troches and their extended use have caused them to be counterfeited. Be sure to guard against worthless imitations. Obtain only the GENUINE "BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES," which have proved their efficacy by a test of many years. Public Speakers and Singers should use the Troches. They are invaluable for allaying the hoarseness and irritation incident to vocal exertion, clearing and strengthening the voice. Military Officers and Soldiers, who over-tax the voice and are exposed to sudden change, should have them.

Extracts from a few of many Testimonials giving evidence of the efficiency of

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.

Your Troches are too well and favorably known to need commendation, but I will merely say that I have used them frequently during the past five years, and regard them as the best preparation known to me for the vocal organs.

Hon. CHAS. A. PHELPS, President Mass. Senate.

My communication with the world is very much enlarged by the Lozenge, which I now carry in my pocket; that trouble in my throat (for which the "Troches" always are a specific) having made me often a mere whisperer.

N. P. WILLIS.

NEW YORK, May 14, 1858.

I have been afflicted with Bronchitis during the past winter, and found no relief till I found your "Bronchial Troches." I shall take pleasure in recommending their use to a large class of pupils, and to others who may need this remedy.

C. H. GARDNER, Principal of the Rutgers Female Institute, New York.

Almost instant relief in the distressing labor of breathing peculiar to Asthma.

Rev. A. C. EGGLESTON, New York.

A knowledge of the manner in which various articles of the Materia Medica were combined by you to form the "Bronchial Troches" led me, three or four years since, to adopt their use. The results have been such as to induce me to continue the practice, believing them of great benefit in many affections of the Bronchial organs.

J. F. W. LANE, M.D., Boston.

It gives me great pleasure to certify to the efficacy of your Bronchial Troches in an affection of the throat and voice, induced by public singing. They have suited my case exactly, relieving my throat and clearing the voice so that I could sing with ease. I always keep them by me, but am now so much relieved that I seldom have occasion to use them.

T. DUCHARME,

For many years Chorister of French Parish Church, Montreal.

When somewhat hoarse from cold or over-exertion in public speaking, I have uniformly found Brown's Troches afford relief.

I have never changed my mind respecting them from the first, excepting to think yet better of that which I began thinking well of.

Customary Notes.

VENUS will be evening star until May 7, then morning star the rest of the year. MARS will be evening star until November 11, then morning star. JUPITER will be morning star until March 18, then evening star to December 31. SATURN will be morning star until January 19, then evening star until October 26, then morning star the rest of the year.

NOTE.—The superior planets are regarded as evening stars from their Western quadrature to conjunction.

MERCURY will be visible in the West, soon after sunset, about April 8, August 7, and December 3; also in the East, just before sunrise, about February 3, June 1, and September 26; at all of which times it is at its greatest brilliancy.

VENUS will be farthest east of the sun February 25, and grow brighter as evening star until April 1, when it is most brilliant. After this it fades slowly, and retrograding toward the sun, becomes lost in its superior light, and on the 7th of May it is in inferior conjunction with the sun, and its dark side presented toward us, rendering it invisible. It next appears west of the sun, and a morning star, increasing in beauty until June 13, when it is brightest again. It now very slowly lessens in splendor, as it moves off to the superior conjunction. On the 16th of July it is farthest west of the sun, and after May 27 it begins to move direct, or from west to east.

Tide Table.

THE Calendar pages of this Almanac exhibit the time of high-water at New York and Boston. To find the time of high-water at any of the following places, add to, or subtract from, the time of high-water at New York, as below. (There is a great deal of uncertainty about the tides, in consequence of the direction and strength of the winds.)

Eclipses for 1865.

THERE will be four Eclipses this year, two of the Sun and two of the Moon.

I. A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, April 10, in the evening, or early in the morning of the 11th, visible. Size, only $2\frac{1}{2}$ digits, one fifth of the moon's diameter. (See the following Table for the exact time.)

II. A Total Eclipse of the Sun, April 25, invisible in North America, but visible in most of South America and Africa.

III. A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, October 4, in the evening, visible. Size, only $4\frac{1}{2}$ digits, or about one third of the Moon's diameter. East of the Mississippi River the Moon will rise with the eclipse upon it at about sunset. In the Pacific states it will be invisible. (See the following table.)

IV. An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, October 19, in the morning, visible as a partial eclipse throughout North America. In the United States the Eclipse will be large, and from Nesqually on Puget's Sound, in Washington Territory, where the Central and Annular Eclipse first begins, to Lawrence, in Kansas, and thence through Southern Missouri, Western Tennessee, and diagonally through Middle Georgia to Savannah, the Eclipse will be central and annular, exhibiting a fine ring of light around the dark disk of the Moon, half a digit wide, leaving the size of the Eclipse along that line 11 digits in size. At all other places the Eclipse will be partial. The track crosses the Atlantic and ends in Africa. (See the annexed Table for the times.)

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night.

AT any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the Sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

The Emancipation Proclamation.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

WHEREAS, on the twenty-second day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, a proclamation was issued by the President of the United States containing among other things the following, to wit:

"That on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, all persons held as slaves within any state, or designated part of a state, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States, shall be then, thenceforth and for ever free, and the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authorities thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of such persons, and will do no act or acts to repress such persons, or any of them, in any efforts they may make for their actual freedom.

"That the Executive will, on the first day of January aforesaid, by proclamation, designate the States and parts of States, if any, in which the people therein respectively shall then be in rebellion against the United States, and the fact that any State, or the people thereof, shall on that day be in good faith represented in the Congress of the United States by members chosen thereto, at elections wherein a majority of the qualified voters of such states shall have participated, shall, in the absence of strong countervailing testimony, be deemed conclusive evidence that such State and the people thereof are not then in rebellion against the United States."

Now, therefore, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, by virtue of the power in me vested as Commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy of the United States in time of actual armed rebellion against the authority and government of the United States, and as a fit and necessary war measure for suppressing said rebellion, do, on this first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and in accordance with my purpose so to do, publicly proclaimed for the full period of one hundred days from the day of the first above-mentioned order, and designate, as the states and parts of states wherein the people thereof respectively are this day in rebellion against the United States, the following, to wit: Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, except the parishes of St. Bernard, Plaquemines, Jefferson, St. John, St. Charles, St. James, Ascension, Assumption, Terre Bonne, Lafourche, St. Mary, St. Martin, and Orleans, including the city of New Orleans. Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, and Virginia, except the forty-eight counties designated as West Virginia, and also the counties of Berkeley, Accomac, Northampton, Elizabeth City, York, Princess Anne, and Norfolk, including the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth, and which excepted parts are, for the present, left precisely as if this proclamation were not issued.

And by virtue of the power and for the purpose aforesaid, I do order and declare that all persons held as slaves within said designated States and parts of States are, and henceforward shall be free; and that the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authorities thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of said persons.

And I hereby enjoin upon the people so declared to be free, to abstain from all violence, unless in necessary self-defense, and I recommend to them, that in all cases, when allowed, they labor faithfully for reasonable wages.

And I further declare and make known that such persons of suitable condition will be received into the armed service of the United States to garrison forts, positions, stations, and other places, and to man vessels of all sorts in said service.

And upon this, sincerely believed to be an act of justice, warranted by the Constitution, upon military necessity, I invoke the considerate judgment of mankind and the gracious favor of Almighty God.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, [L. s.] this first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and of the Independence of the United States of America the eighty-seventh.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Circulars were sent to all the institutions named in last year's Almanac, asking for the items of information contained in this table. From many of these no response has been received. Twenty new volumes were added to the libraries during the year. The whole number of books in the Youth's Library is now 739.

The amount of printing for Sunday-school books and periodicals was equivalent to 469,750,000 pages 18mo., or over 2,000,000 volumes of 200 pages each.

The number of books bound or put up in paper packages or covers was 1,351,804.

The Sunday-School Teachers' Journal had a circulation of 14,000. The highest point to which the circulation of the Sunday-School Advocate reached was 243,000, an increase of 14,600 over the previous year. The average semi-monthly circulation was 224,500. The whole number of copies of the paper printed during the year was 5,382,000. The total number of pages was 21,528,000.

The receipts for 1863 were $12,978 48, or $3,382 89 more than in 1862.

TRACT SOCIETY OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Office, 200 Mulberry-street, New York.

Rev. D. WISE, D.D., Cor. Secretary; Rev. J. PORTER, D.D., Treasurer, New York;
J. M. PHILLIPS, Assistant Treasurer, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE following items are taken from the Annual Report for 1864:

The receipts for the year 1863 amounted to $8,718 25, or $3,961 43 in excess of the receipts of 1862. The disbursements were $5,518 85, of which $3,961 43 was expended on the army and navy.

There is no field of moral labor the culture of which is so desirable, so vital, indeed, to the present well-being and future destiny of this nation, as the army. The Board is anxious to cultivate it with unstinted liberality, and will devote to that object as much of the funds the Church intrusts to its keeping as may be compatible with other interests.

The circulation of the Good News has largely increased. In 1862 its monthly issue was 50,000, now it is 85,000. Its average monthly issue during the past year was 65,917. The total number of copies printed was 791,004.

Twelve new tracts were added to the list during the year. The whole number of pages of tracts printed was 5,604,000. Add to these the number of pages of tracts contained in the Good News, (counting each number of the paper as equivalent to thirty pages of an ordinary tract,) 23,730,120, and we have a total of 29,334,120 pages.

The Society is now in a more really prosperous condition than it has ever been before. Its income is enlarging, it has a solvent treasury, and a wide field for usefulness. With God's blessing and judicious management it may yet become a great power in the Church.

MONTHLY CONCERT.—The following resolution was passed at the last session of the General Conference:

Resolved, That we recommend the observance of the first evening of each month on which the regular evening prayer-meeting is held as a concert of prayer for missions, and that we recommend all our churches to observe the "annual week of prayer for the conversion of the world."

The Bible in the Trunk.

YOUNG MAN. whatever other books you put in your trunk before leaving home, be sure and find room for your Bible. But be not content with leaving it there unread. See the results of having and of using the Bible in the trunk:

Many years ago a young man, now a clergyman, was a clerk in Boston. He boarded in a house where were fifteen other clerks, two of whom were his room-mates.

The first Sunday morning, during the three or four long hours that elapsed from getting up to bell-ringing for church, he felt a secret desire to get from his trunk a Bible which his mother had given him, for he had been brought up to regard it as a duty to read his Bible frequently. But he feared, lest his companions, who were reading some miscellaneous books, should laugh at him. At length his conscience triumphed, and he boldly brought out his book and began to read. This produced an admission on the part of his room-mates that they too had Bibles, and had desired to read them, but each was afraid of the others. This foolish fear soon vanished, and all read from the blessed book, not only on that Sabbath morning, but at other times.

The influence of this practice was very salutary on themselves, and on their fellow-clerks as well. For the Bible-reading soon became noised through the house. Several careless ones had their consciences aroused, and the neglected Bibles were brought from their trunks. The result was, that in a short time every one of the sixteen clerks, without an exception, spent a part of his Sabbath morning in reading his Bible. They were soon known by the name of the "Bible-clerks!" They all became useful and Christian men, and more than one entered the ministry. So much for faithfulness and moral courage.

The United States Sanitary Commission.

THIS noble institution was organized by order of the Government in June, 1861. Its work is, in the highest degree, humane and charitable, for it visits and relieves the sick, destitute, and miserable. But its ultimate end is neither humanity nor charity. It is to economize for the national service the life and strength of the national soldier.

The Commission meets at Washington quarterly, and holds special sessions whenever they are required. During the intervals between its sessions its affairs are administered by its chief executive officer, the general secretary, and by a standing committee of five of its members, which meets daily in New York.

The work accomplished by the Commission embraces all matters pertaining to the physical comfort and health of the soldier. It has improved the ventilation of hospitals, dug wells to improve the water-supply of camps, built temporary hospitals and quarters to replace unwholesome and dangerous buildings, furnished and fitted up hospital transports, and converted ordinary railroad cars into railroad ambulances, with cooking apparatus and store-rooms, and litters hung on springs, in which thousands of men with fractured limbs have traveled thousands of miles without suffering or injury.

For each great division of the army the Commission provides a chief sanitary inspector, and a superintendent of field relief. Lodges and depots are also established at every important hospital center and convalescent camp to do such works of mercy as are not provided for by regulation, and cannot, therefore, be officially done at all. Special efforts are made for the relief of the sick and wounded. During and after every battle the agents of the Commission are engaged in assisting the wounded men. They help carry them from the field, they dress their wounds, provide clean garments for them, and give them such food and stimulants as the circumstances require. Their stores include all articles, whether of clothing or of food, necessary for suffering men. Thousands of lives have been doubtless saved through this organization. The loyal people of the land have with unsparing liberality contributed of their means to sustain the worthy objects of the Commission. The money thus freely given to aid our suffering soldiers amounts to several millions of dollars. Never was benevolence exhibited on a more gigantic scale.

The United States Christian Commission.

THIS is not, as some have strangely supposed, a rival organization to the Sanitary Commission. It has a field of labor peculiar to itself. The Sanitary Commission seeks to supply the bodily wants of the soldier; the Christian Commission attends more especially to his spiritual wants. At the same time it provides stores of food and clothing for the needy soldier, since Christianity cares for the body as well as for the soul. As the Sanitary Commission supplements the labors of the surgeon, so the Christian Commission supplements the labors of the chaplain. Thus each organization has its own field of labor, neither interfering with the other, but both laboring together for the welfare of our brave soldiers.

The United States Christian Commission originated at a Convention of Young Men's Christian Associations of the loyal states, called for the purpose, November 16, 1861, in the city of New York. Christian ministers and laymen, enlisted as unpaid volunteers, and sent as delegates to battle-fields, hospitals, and camps, form its first great distinctive feature and principal reliance, while the distribution of stores by the delegates is another most important feature of its plans and operations. Special endeavors are made to furnish the men with good religious reading. The Christian Commission, with its one head and all-embracing plans, is capable of expansion as a distributing agency for the supply of the entire army and navy with the Scriptures, books, papers, and tracts; and these publications are a power in the hands of delegates, enabling them to cheer and aid faithful chaplains in their work, by filling their hands with means of good, and adding also to the personal influence of the delegates themselves the power of the press through all the ranks of our national forces. The labors of the delegates of the Commission have been greatly blessed in the conversion of souls, the reclaiming of backsliders, and the general improvement of the morals of the army. In some camps extensive revivals have followed these faithful efforts. It is estimated, on good authority, that in Camp Convalescent, near Alexandria, Va., more than one thousand conversions occurred in a single year.

The Pharos at Alexandria.

THIS most celebrated lighthouse of antiquity was situated at the entrance of the port of Alexandria, at the mouth of the Nile. It was built by Sostratus of Cnidus, by command of one of the Ptolemies, about 300 years B. C. It was erected on an island named Pharos, which was connected with the mainland by a dyke or causeway.

Its style and workmanship were superb. Its form was square, and the material of which it was built was white stone. It was five hundred and fifty feet high, and in all respects of great dimensions. It was adorned with columns, balustrades, and ornaments, worked in the finest marble, and contained many stories, which diminished in width from below upward. The ground floor and the two next above were hexagonal; the fourth was a square, with a round tower at each angle; the fifth floor was circular, continued to the top, to which a winding staircase conducted. The upper stories had windows looking seaward, and torches or fires were kept burning in them at night in order to guide vessels into the harbor. Some writers assert that the light was visible at a distance of forty-one miles.

This wonderful specimen of architecture fitly ranked among the "seven wonders of the world," and remained for about sixteen hundred years. The exact date of its destruction is not known, but the cause is supposed to have been an earthquake.

Hindoo Wit.

A HINDOO, having been summoned to give evidence before the court of judicature in Calcutta, deposed that such a circumstance happened in her presence. The judge asked where it happened? She replied, in the veranda of such a house. "Pray, my good woman," said the judge, "how many pillars are there in that veranda?" The woman, not perceiving the trap that was laid before her, without much consideration, said that the veranda was supported by four pillars. The counsel for the opposition party immediately offered to prove that the veranda contained five pillars, and that consequently no credit could be given to her evidence. The woman, perceiving her error, addressed the judge: "My lord," said she, "your lordship has for many years presided in this court, and every day that you come here ascend a flight of stairs: may I beg to know how many steps these stairs consist of?" The judge confessed he did not know. "Then," replied she, "if your lordship cannot tell the number of steps you ascend daily to the seat of justice, it cannot be astonishing that I should forget the number of pillars in a balcony which I never entered half a dozen times in my life." The judge was much pleased with the woman's wit, and decided in favor of her party.

Themes for the Pulpit.

BE not afraid of devoting whole sermons to particular parts of moral conduct and religious duties. It is impossible to give right views of them, unless you dissect characters and describe particular virtues and vices. "The fruits of the flesh" and "the fruits of the Spirit" must be distinctly pointed out. To preach against sin in general, without descending to particulars, may lead many to complain of the evil of their hearts, while at the same time they are wholly inattentive to the evil of their conduct.—Robert Hall.

In the department of Christian morality, I think many of those who are distinguished as evangelical preachers greatly and culpably deficient. They rarely, if ever, take some one topic of moral duty, as honesty, veracity, impartiality, Christian temper, forgiveness of injuries, temperance—in any of its branches—the improvement of time—and investigate specifically its principles, rules, discriminations, adaptations. There is none of the casuistry found in many of the old divines. Such discussions would have cost far more labor of thought than dwelling and expatiating on the general evangelical doctrines, but would have been eminently useful; and it is very necessary in order to set the people's judgment and consciences to rights. It is partly in consequence of this neglect (very general, I believe) that many religious kind of people have unfixed and ill-fated apprehensions of moral discriminations. Hall told Anderson that in former years he had oftener insisted on subjects of this order.—John Foster.

A Hint to Young Preachers.

A YOUNG clergyman once called upon Dr. Dwight, and inquired respecting the best method of treating a very difficult and abstruse point in mental philosophy, upon which he was preparing a sermon. "I cannot give you any information upon the subject," the doctor replied; "I am not familiar with such topics. I leave them for young men."

The Sermon.

CLOSED was the preacher's last appeal,
The worshipers were gone,
Though some still lingered here and there
Round many a sod and stone,
When up there ran a little lad,—
"Sir, is the sermon done?"

"The preacher's words," replied the man,
"Are ended, it is true;
But those great duties he has taught
Demand attention too;
And so the sermon is not done,
But it is all to do."

"Tis easy a short Sabbath hour
To hear of wisdom's way,
To listen to the will of God,
And mark what preachers say;
But this is hard—throughout the week
To practice and obey.

"Then will the sermon, boy, be done,
When evil is abhorred,
God, not alone on this his day,
But every hour adored;
And piety makes every place
A temple to the Lord."

Statue of Howard in St. Paul's, London.

THIS world-renowned philanthropist was born September 2, 1726, and died January 20, 1790. His life was devoted to the cause of suffering humanity; more especially to the inmates of prisons and of hospitals.

He visited every prison in England, collecting information concerning various abuses which existed in prison usages and discipline. His soul was fired with indignation at many things he saw, and he made strenuous efforts to rouse the nation to a sense of the wrongs that had been suffered by the unfortunate. He succeeded at last in obtaining the passage by Parliament of a bill for ameliorating the condition of prisoners.

He next visited the prisons of France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden, Russia, Poland, Spain, and Portugal, initiating various and much-needed reforms. His whole-souled humanity prompted him also to enter the hospitals, lazarettos, and pest-houses of Marseilles, Malta, Zante, Smyrna, and Constantinople.

In these various efforts to do good he spent nearly the whole of a large fortune, and died in the sixty-fourth year of his age at Kherson, on the Black Sea, of camp fever, which he took while waiting on an inmate of the hospital.

God recognized in our Coinage.

EX-GOVERNOR POLLOCK of Pennsylvania, Director of the United States Mint at Philadelphia, in his last report renews his recommendation that there should be "a motto upon our coins expressive of a national reliance on divine protection, and a distinct and unequivocal national recognition of the divine sovereignty." These are his forcible and Christian words: "Our national coinage should do this. Its legends and devices should declare our trust in God—in Him who is the King of kings and Lord of lords. The motto suggested, 'God our trust,' is taken from our national hymn, the 'Star-Spangled Banner.' The sentiment is familiar to every citizen of our country. It has thrilled the hearts and fallen in songs from the lips of millions of American freemen. The time for the introduction of this or a similar motto is propitious and appropriate. It is an hour of national peril and danger; an hour when man's strength is weakness; when our strength and our nation's strength and salvation must be in the God of battles and of nations. Let us reverently acknowledge his sovereignty, and let our coinage declare our trust in God." We rejoice to see that the recent issues of the United States Treasury notes have shields engraved on them, on which are inscribed the mottoes, "In God is our trust," and "God our right." A similar inscription may be seen on the new two-cent piece.

A Profitable Mistake.

ONE day, as Felix Neff was walking in Lausanne, he saw at a distance before him a man whom he took for one of his friends. He went up to him, tapped him on the shoulder, and before looking him in the face asked him, "How does your soul prosper, my friend?"

The stranger immediately turned round and looked at him in surprise. Neff perceived his mistake, apologized, and went his way. About three or four years afterward a person came to Neff, and introducing himself, said he was indebted to him for his inestimable kindness. Neff did not recognize the man, and begged that he would explain himself. The stranger replied:

"Have you forgotten a certain person whose shoulder you once touched in one of the streets of Lausanne, and whom you asked, 'How does your soul prosper?' It was I. Your inquiry led me to serious reflection, and now I find it is well with my soul."

"Lo, all these things worketh God oftentimes with man, to bring back his soul from the pit, to be enlightened with the light of the living." Job xxxiii, 29, 30.

The Young Astronomer.

LA CAILLE, the celebrated astronomer, was the son of a parish clerk of a village. At the age of ten years his father sent him every evening to ring the church bell, but the boy always returned home late; his father was angry and beat him, and still the boy returned an hour after he had rung the bell. The father, suspecting something mysterious in his conduct, one evening watched him. He saw his son ascend the steeple, ring the bell as usual, and remain there during an hour. When the unlucky boy descended he trembled like one caught in the act, and on his knees confessed that the pleasure he took in watching the stars from the steeple was the real cause of detaining him from home. As the father was not born to be an astronomer he flogged the boy severely. The youth was found weeping in the streets by a man of science, who, when he discovered in a boy of ten years of age a passion for contemplating the stars at night, and an intelligence that found an observatory in a steeple, decided that the seal of nature had impressed itself on the genius of that boy. Relieving the parent from the son, and the son from the parent, he assisted the young La Caille in his passionate pursuits, and the event completely justified the prediction.

The Father with his Children.

"O FIE! how undignified," says Mr. Prim; "a full-grown man romping on the floor with his children, as though he were a child himself. He certainly can never expect to command the respect due to the relation he sustains to his offspring, by pursuing a course so entirely devoid of dignity."

Why, my good friend Prim, if your manners are as stiff as your language, it's very certain you will never romp with the children. Don't you know that there's a great deal of sham dignity in the world? It will not do any man harm to play occasionally with his little ones. Suppose you try it, Mr. Prim. Do come down for once from your sham and stilted dignity, and have a good old-fashioned frolic with the children. Let them pull your hair and throw it in confusion. The brush and comb will set it all right when the fun's over. Let them soil your shirt collar if they will; you can soon put on a clean one. If Master Tommy with his great copper-toed boots rubs a little of the red road on your coat and pants, haven't you a clothes brush? If sly little Sammy should happen carelessly to make a rent in your garments in his excitement at the fun, Mrs. Prim will no doubt have needle and thread ready to make everything right.

Let the little ones roll over you, get on your back, make a horse of you, or anything else their juvenile fancy may dictate. Then when they are panting with their protracted fun, and you find yourself a little weary, get up, brush your hair, put your apparel in order, and sit down like a philosopher to count up the results of the operation. You'll find yourself the gainer, Mr. Prim, and your children likewise.

"Brother Jonathan."

THIS is said to have originated as follows: General Washington placed great confidence in the good sense and patriotism of Jonathan Trumbull, who, at an early period of the American Revolution, was governor of the State of Connecticut. In a certain emergency, when a measure of great importance was under discussion, Washington remarked, "We must consult Brother Jonathan on the subject." The result of that consultation was favorable. From this event the use of the expression "Brother Jonathan" became more and more common, till it finally was applied to the American army, and from thence it soon passed to the people at large. This appellation has stuck to us as closely as "John Bull" has to the English.

Gems from Old Caskets.

Polished Jewels.—We see in a jeweler's shop, that, as there are pearls and diamonds, and other precious stones, there are files, cutting implements, and many sharp tools for their polishing; and while they are in the work-house they are continual neighbors to them, and come often under them. The Church is God's jewel; his work-house, where his jewels are polishing for his palace and house; and those he especially esteems and means to make most resplendent, he hath oftenest his tools upon.—Leighton.

Love and Prayer.—He who loves little, prays little; he who loves much, prays much.—Austin.

Objectors to the Gospel.—To reject the Gospel because bad men pervert it, and weak men deform it and quarrel about it, and bigoted men look sour on others, and curse them because they do not agree in every tittle among themselves, displays the same folly as if a person should cut down a tree bearing abundance of delicious fruit, and furnishing a refreshing shade, because caterpillars disfigured the leaves, and spiders made their webs among the branches.—Bogue.

Choice of Friends.—Antisthenes used to wonder at those who were curious in buying but an earthen dish, to see that it had no cracks nor inconveniences, and yet would be careless in the choice of friends—to take them with the flaws of vice. Surely a man's companion is a second genius to sway him to the good or bad.—Feltham.

Death and Life.

Death is a port whereby we pass to joy;

Life is a lake that drowneth all in pain;

Death is so near it ceaseth all annoy;

Life is so livid, that all it yields is vain.

And as by life to bondage man was brought,
Even so likewise by death was freedom wrought.
—Earl of Surrey.

Communion with God.—A monarch vested in gorgeous habiliments is far less illustrious than a kneeling suppliant ennobled and adorned by communion with God. Consider how angust a privilege it is when angels are present, when Cherubim and Seraphim encircle with their blaze the throne, that a mortal may approach with unrestrained confidence, and converse with heaven's dread Sovereign. O what honor was ever conferred like this! When a Christian stretches forth his hands to pray and invokes his God, in that moment he leaves behind him all terrestrial pursuits, and traverses on the wings of intellect the realms of light; he contemplates celestial objects only, and knows not of the present state of things during the period of his prayer, provided that prayer be breathed with fervency.—Chrysostom.

A Boundary hard to find.—It is very hard to fix the bounds of good and evil, because these part, as day and night, which are separated by twilight.—Whichcote.

Indolence.—Rather do nothing to the purpose than be idle, that the Devil may find thee doing; the bird that sits is easily shot, when tiers 'scape the fowler. Idleness is the dead sea that swallows all virtues, and the self-made sepulcher of a living man. The idle man is the Devil's hireling; whose livery is rags, whose diet and wages are famine and diseases.—Sutton.

The Bitter and the Sweet.—He that hath tasted the bitterness of sin will fear to commit it; and he that hath felt the sweetness of mercy will fear to offend it.—Charnock.

Worldly Pleasures.—Pleasures, like the rose, are sweet but prickly; the honey doth not countervail the sting; all the world's delights are vanity, and end in vexation; like Judas, while they kiss they betray. I would neither be a stoic nor an epicure—allow of no pleasure, nor give way to all; they are good sauce, but naught to make a meal of. I may use them sometimes for digestion, never for food.—Bishop Henshaw.

Against Self-Conceit.

Take heed of overweening, and compare
Thy peacock's feet with thy gay peacock's train.

Study the best and highest things that are,
But of thyself an humble thought retain.

Cast down thyself, and only strive to raise
The glory of thy Maker's sacred name;
Use all thy powers that blessed Power to praise,

Which gives the power to be, and use the same.
—Sir John Davies.

Death.—There is nothing more certain than death, nothing more uncertain than the time of dying. I will therefore be prepared for that at all times, which may come at any time, and must come at one time or another. I shall not hasten my death by being still ready, but sweeten it. It makes me not die the sooner, but the better.—Warwick.

Detection of Sin.—He who sins against men may fear discovery; but he who sins against God is sure of it.—Jones.

Reflection.—A man may as well expect to grow stronger by always eating, as wiser by always reading. Too much overcharges nature, and turns more into disease than nourishment. It is thought and digestion which make books serviceable, and give health and vigor to the mind.—Collier.

Christ is All.

He is a path, if any be misled;

He is a robe, if any naked be;

If any chance to hunger, He is bread;

If any be a bandman, He is free;

If any be but weak, how strong is He?

To dead men life He is, to sick men health;
To blind men sight, and to the needy wealth;
A pleasure without loss, a treasure without stealth.
—Giles Fletcher.

The Way of Life.—If the way to heaven be narrow, it is not long; and if the gate be strait, it opens into endless life.—Beveridge.

The Ostrich a Type of Careless Parents.

THE ostrich is nature's type of all unmotherhood. She hatches her young without incubation, depositing her eggs in the sand to be quickened by the solar heat. Her office as a mother-bird is there ended. When the young are hatched they are to go forth untended or unmothered, save by the general motherhood of nature itself. . . . There are many forms of nurture for the mind and character of children that are so far resembled to the ostrich nurture as to be fitly represented under that type. Practices are adopted, opinions accepted theories of church life and conversion taught, that make a true Christian parentage virtually impossible, and leave the child in fact to a kind of nurture in the sands.—Dr. Bushnell.

Parental Deportment.

So behave thyself among thy children that they may love and honor thy presence. Be not too fond lest they fear thee not; be not too bitter lest they fear thee too much. Too much familiarity will embolden them; too little countenance will discourage them. So carry thyself that they may rather fear thy displeasure than thy correction. When thou reprovest them, doe it in season; when thou correctest them, doe it not in passion. As a wise child makes a happy father, so a wise father makes a happy child.—Francis Quarles, 1625.

The Deaf Mother.

THE following curious anecdote is related of the Countess of Orkney, who died in 1790, aged seventy-six: "Her ladyship was deaf and dumb; and was married in 1753 by signs. She lived with her husband, Murrough, first marquis of Thomond, who was also her first cousin, at his seat, Rostellan, on the harbor of Cork. Shortly after the birth of her first child, the nurse, with considerable astonishment, saw the mother cautiously approach the cradle in which the infant was sleeping, evidently with some deep design. The countess, having perfectly assured herself that the child really slept, took out a large stone which she had concealed under her shawl, and, to the horror of the nurse, who, like many other ignorant persons, was fully impressed with an idea of the peculiar cunning and malignity of "dummies," seized it with an intent to fling it down vehemently. Before the nurse could interfere the countess had flung the stone—not, however, as the servant had apprehended, at the child, but on the floor, where of course it made a great noise. The child immediately awoke and cried. The countess, who had looked with maternal eagerness to the result of her experiment, fell on her knees in a transport of joy. She had discovered that her child possessed the sense which was wanting in herself."

Family Recipes.

Simplified Mode of making Coffee.—Put one ounce of ground coffee in a pan, which place over the fire; keep stirring until quite hot, but take care it does not burn. Then pour over quickly a quart of boiling water; close it immediately, keep it not far from the fire, but do not let it simmer; then fill your cup without shaking it. Or, pass it through a cloth into a coffee-pot, or it may be made some time previous and warmed again. The grounds can be kept and boiled for making the coffee of the next day, by which at least a quarter of an ounce is saved.
—From Soyer, the great French cook.

How to bake Squash.—To bake squash well it needs a long continuation of gentle heat—enough to cook it done, and also dry it considerably. Unlike the potato, it is not best cooked as quickly as possible, and eaten as soon as done, but is far better baked slow, the heat evaporating much of its juices, and leaving all its sugary sweets just right to tempt the palate.

"We are, now-a-days, luxuriating on baked squash," says a correspondent of the Rural American, "and give bread, and even cake, the 'go by' when we have a good supply of baked Hubbard slices. Cut them thin, bake and dry them until thoroughly done, and see if you do not corroborate my testimony."

Snow Cakes.—The use of snow as a substitute for yeast or other leavening substance is not new, though it is not known to all how to use it. The following recipe is vouched for by one who knows as a good one. Try it. "Put corn meal into a good-sized wood or other bowl, with sugar and salt to the taste; then add twice or three times its bulk of snow, and stir together with a spoon. When well mixed it appears like so much dry meal or snow. Fry a little on a hot griddle; if it cooks too dry to turn well, add more snow; if too wet to be light, add more meal; when just right, fry on the griddle in convenient sized cakes, and they will be as light as can be desired.

How to boil Rice.—Rice is one of those vegetables which is easily injured by poor cooking, and may be made really unpalatable by a little over-boiling. Rice should be carefully looked over, and thoroughly washed in two or three waters. The kernel will then have a pearly luster. It should be put into boiling water, in which a little salt has been thrown, and allowed to boil fifteen or seventeen minutes. The water should then be drained off, and the kettle set back from the violent heat of the fire. When it has steamed in this way for about fifteen minutes it will be perfectly soft, of snowy whiteness, and each kernel will retain its individuality, and not be lost in one solid mass of paste. A pint of rice may be boiled in three quarts of water.

Pop Overs.—Three cups flour, three eggs, three cups milk, a small piece butter, and a half teaspoonful of salt. Bake in cups.

Wafer Jumbles.—Three quarters pound sugar, one quarter pound butter, three eggs, one half teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful essence lemon, and flour enough to roll out. Roll very thin, and bake in a quick oven.

Indian Pudding.—One half pint Indian meal scalded by one pint boiling milk, one large tablespoonful flour dissolved in a pint of unboiled milk, one tablespoonful ginger, one cup molasses, two eggs, one half cup chopped suet. Bake in a hot oven.

Boiled Indian Pudding.—Take one quart buttermilk, two eggs, one teaspoonful soda, add meal enough to make it a thick batter, tie it tightly in a bag, drop it in a kettle of boiling water, and let it boil one hour. Eat it with sauce to suit the taste.

Ginger Snaps.—Two cups molasses, one cup lard, one teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful ginger, three teaspoonfuls soda. Let these ingredients come to a boil; then add flour until stiff enough to roll out. Roll out very thin, and bake in a quick oven.

Corn Meal Cup Cakes.—One quart corn meal, one pint wheat flour, three pints milk or water, one teaspoonful salt, one of lard, one of soda, two of cream of tartar, one half cup molasses, one or two eggs. Bake in small patty pans or old teacups.

Sponge Cake.—Two cups sugar, one cup milk, two eggs, three teaspoonfuls cream of tartar, one of soda, butter size of an egg.

French Omelet.—Three eggs. (the yolks and whites beaten separately,) three tablespoonfuls milk, one teaspoonful flour, and a pinch of salt. Stir the flour and milk with the yolks of the eggs. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, and mix with the other ingredients.

Troy Pudding.—One cup raisins, one cup chopped suet, one cup milk, one cup molasses, three cups flour, one teaspoonful soda. Boil or steam three hours.

Ginger Cookies.—One cup sugar, one cup molasses, one cup butter or lard, one egg, one large teaspoonful soda, a tablespoonful ginger, and one tablespoonful of vinegar. Mix with seven teacups of flour.

Sauce for Pudding.—One cup sugar, half cup butter, one teaspoonful flour, one glass cold water. Boil two minutes.

Waffles.—Two cups sugar, one cup butter, two thirds cup milk, half teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful cream of tartar, two eggs, and flour enough to thicken.

Balloon Pudding.—To one square baking tin use four eggs and three tablespoonfuls flour, well beaten together; a little salt; then fill up with sweet milk. Bake fifteen minutes in a quick oven. Serve with sweetened cream or any sauce you choose. It can be made with three eggs and four spoonfuls of flour.

In Pursuit of the Whale.

RATHER dangerous sport this, especially if Mr. Whale should take it into his thick head to turn upon his pursuers. The relative positions of hunter and hunted would then be reversed. There is danger sometimes to the whaler in the very efforts his prey makes to escape him. A single blow from the tail of the descending monster is enough to shiver the boat in fragments, and leave the poor sailors to the mercy of the waves.

Yet, dangerous as it is, there are men enough ready to risk life in hunting the whale. The business has been pursued for more than six hundred years, though now it seems to be declining.

The principal whaling ports in the United States are New Bedford, Fairhaven, Nantucket, Westport, Edgarstown, Provincetown, Holmes' Hole, New London, Mystic, Stonington, Warren, Sag Harbor, and Greenport. New Bedford is the largest whaling port in the world. Nearly one half the whaling vessels in the United States sail from that place.

What the Steam-Engine does.

It propels, it rows, it sculls, it screws, it warps, it tows, it elevates, it lowers, it lifts, it pumps, it drains, it irrigates, it draws, it pulls, it drives, it pushes, it carries, it brings, it scatters, it splits, it collects, it condenses, it extracts, it breaks, it confines, it opens, it shuts, it digs, it shovels, it excavates, it plows, it thrashes, it separates, it winnows, it washes, it grinds, it crushes, it sifts, it bolts, it mixes, it kneads, it moulds, it stamps, it punches, it beats, it presses, it picks, it hews, it cuts, it slits, it shaves, it saws, it planes, it turns, it bores, it mortices, it drills, it heads, it blows, it forges, it rolls, it hammers, it rasps, it files, it polishes, it rivets, it sweeps, it brushes, it scutches, it cards, it spins, it winds, it twists, it throws, it weaves, it shears, it coins, it prints.

Odds and Ends.

The Two Fools.—In a town between thirty and forty miles south of Boston there were two idiots: one, belonging to a family of note, held himself much superior to the other, who was of low degree. One day they met in the street, when the aristocratic idiot exclaimed to the other, "Lezer! Lezer! you are a fool!" "I know I am a fool!" answered Eleazer, drawing in his hanging tongue; "but, Philemon, you are a fool and don't know it." Philemon belonged to an extensive genus.

Good Authority.—"I call upon you," said the counselor, "to state upon what authority you are prepared to testify to the mare's age?" "Upon what authority?" said the ostler, interrogatively. "You are to reply to me, and not repeat the questions put to you." "I doesn't consider a man's bound to answer a question fore he's time to turn it in his mind." "Nothing can be more simple, sir, than the question put. I again repeat it: Upon what authority do you swear to the animal's age?" "The best authority," responded the witness gruffly. "Then why such evasions? Why not state it at once?" "Well, then, if you must have it—" "Must! I will have it," vociferated the counselor, interrupting the witness. "Well, then, if you must and will have it," rejoined the ostler with imperturbable gravity, "why, then, I had it myself from the mare's own mouth." A simultaneous burst of laughter rang through the court. The judge on the bench could with difficulty restrain his risible muscles to judicial decorum.

Opinions on Questions of Law.—We have it on excellent authority, that if A owes B money, and A is the owner of an elephant, B may detain the elephant's trunk till the debt is paid; and it is tolerably clear in all the books, that a boa-constrictor lying dormant, as if dead, in a box, is recoverable by an action on the case; but if the plaintiff mixes himself up with the boa-constrictor, so as to identify himself with it, he, the plaintiff, will not be recoverable at all. If the boa-constrictor, too, should unfold his tail early enough, the plaintiff may have a severance, but otherwise, says Mr. Justice, he must be inevitably quashed.—Punch.

Preaching and Practice.—Dr. Channing had a brother, a physician, and at one time they both lived in Boston. A countryman, in search of the divine, knocked at the physician's door. The following dialogue ensued: "Does Dr. Channing live here?" "Yes, sir." "Can I see him?" "I am he." "Who? you?" "Yes, sir." "You must have altered considerably since I heard you preach." "Heard me preach?" "Certainly. You are the Dr. Channing that preaches, ain't you?" "O! I see you are mistaken now. It is my brother who preaches; I am the doctor who practices."

A Wise Mayor.—The mayor was an old friend of mine, of whom I have bought many a pair of stockings. One day a man was brought before his worship accused of breaking into a neighbor's garden, and stealing thence a large quantity of fine ripe gooseberries. His worship was very wroth; he said to his clerk, "Fetch down from that there shelf 'Burns's Justice' and 'Blackstone's Cotemporaries.' Now, sir, (O, you rascal, I'll punish you!) now, sir, look out 'Gooseberry'—look out 'Gooseberry,' (I'll punish you—)" The clerk looked through the index of each book. "Please your worship, there's no 'Gooseberry' here—I can't find 'Gooseberry.'" The mayor looked himself, but "Gooseberry" was not to be found! "Ah!" said the mayor, "you've escaped this time; but I'll speak to the Parliament, and I'll take care a law shall be made, and I'll have no stealing of gooseberries for the future." Now, all this is true; and it is true that the said mayor was met in the meadows at Oxford, taking a walk. "How d'ye do, Mr. Mayor?" "Pretty well, I thank ye; but I was very ill yesterday, so I took an exotic, and I am now taking a spontaneous walk;" meaning, it was conjectured, solitary, for his worship was alone.—Bishop Sandford's Memoirs.

Too Much for Them.—There is a good sense of drollery in the fact that the prisoners of Clichy returned Alexander Dumas's works, of which he had recently made them a present, with the remark that the effort to read and be amused by them would considerably enhance the severity of the punishment they were already suffering.

Post-Office Literature.—A letter passed through the post-office, a few days since, directed to the "Orderer's Office, Washington." Another about the same time started in pursuit of "Jerrey Mire Jacobs," somewhere down in Connecticut. And still another for a man resident in the state of "New Gearsey." We are also authorized to request a lady in Wisconsin to look out for a letter, as there was one directed to her several days ago. No town having been specified, she is presumed to be a citizen at large in that small state. The following is, however, the richest specimen of an address that we have ever seen: "This wants too go too Pat O'Neal he usid too lyve in Weastfield but hese after being gorn too Southwicw now but he wil be in weastfield nex weke for after a Job and heo will Pay for itt."

The Witty Student.—An Oxford student joined without invitation a party dining at an inn, after which he boasted so much of his abilities that one of the party said: "You have told us enough of what you can do; tell us something you cannot do." "Faith," said he, "I cannot pay my share in the reckoning."

Queer Advertisement.—"Lost—a hickory gentleman's cane with the bark on that grows at Mount Vernon, with a gold head and a steel ferule on the end somewhere between the post-office and Milliken's.

The Soldier's Farewell.

GOING to war, perchance never to return! His voice falters as he turns and looks again on his little family, and waves them a last farewell. But his brave and manly heart is strong in the conviction that he goes forth in a good cause.

Home is a sweet and sacred place in the soldier's memory. A letter from home! How eagerly it is grasped, and opened, and read, and reread. And what sadness and disappointment the brave man feels when day after day the army mail is opened and there is no letter for him. Those who have friends in the army should write to them often, and write always in a cheery and encouraging tone. Keep up the spirits of the brave boys who are away from home.

General Rosecrans and his Sick Uncle.

A LADY once called on the general at Nashville for the purpose of procuring a pass, which was declined very politely. Tears came to her eyes as she remarked that her uncle was very ill, and might not recover.

"Very sorry indeed, madam," replied the general. "My uncle has been indisposed for some time. As soon as Uncle Sam recovers a little you shall have a pass to go where you please."

A Brave Officer.

LIEUTENANT WORDEN was in the pilot-house of the Monitor when the Merrimac directed a whole broadside at it, and he received severe injuries from the minute fragments of shells and the powder which were driven through the look-out holes. He was stunned by the concussion, and carried away. On recovering he asked, "Have I saved the Minnesota?" The reply was, "Yes, and whipped the Merrimac." To which he answered, "Then I don't care what becomes of me."

General Grant.

THE following story of General Grant will serve to illustrate his well-known antipathy to mingling politics and bayonets. The general, it seems, was a leather-dealer at the time the war broke out, and had become a most excellent judge of that commodity. While in the vicinity of Vicksburg some friends who paid him a visit introduced the subject of politics, and tried to convert Grant to their way of thinking. He replied that there was no use in talking politics to him; that he knew nothing about it, and had no one acquaintance that did. There was one subject, however, on which he was at home; let them talk on that and he was their man. "What is that?" inquired the gentleman. "Why," said Grant, "tanning leather." The subject was changed at once.

How to Unmask a Battery.

GENERAL SHERMAN at one time during his great campaign in the South-west found the rebel forces opposite him retaining their artillery fire for several days, and no amount of artillery practice from our side sufficed to draw the rebel gunners. Sherman was of opinion that the rebel artillery was there, but that Johnson or Ewell was tempting him to make an assault, and had secretly massed his guns to inflict a murderous repulse. How to discover where the rebel guns were placed was now the question.

All other efforts failing, Sherman at last uncovered the rebel batteries by the help of an ingenious practical joke. The railroad track stretched past a part of our front, and down close to the rebel line, which it skirted for some distance. Sherman started a locomotive down the track at full speed toward the right. They heard its shrill shriek, saw it with amazement come tearing down toward their breastworks, and suspecting they did not know what trick, at last, unable to hold in any longer, blazed away with their whole line of batteries at the mysterious monster. That was all Sherman wanted.

A Parody—after Leigh Hunt.

JEFFERSON DAVIS, (may his tribe decrease!)
 Awoke one night with ague in his knees;
 Seeing within the moonlight of his room
 A female form resplendent as the moon—
 Columbia, writing in a book of gold.
 Exceeding brass had made the Davis bold;
 And to the presence in the room he said,
 "What writest thou?" The vision raised its head,
 And with a look all dignity and calm,
 Answered, "The names of those who love our Uncle Sam."
 "And is mine one?" said Davis. "Nay, not so,"
 Replied Columbia. Davis spoke more low,
 But clearly still, and said: "I pray thee, then,
 Write me the names of those who hate their fellow-men."
 Columbia wrote and vanished. The next night
 She came again, with her new list all right,
 And showed the names humanity detest,
 And lo! Jeff. Davis' name led all the rest.

—UPSON DOWNS.

The Birds in the Battle.

AT the battle of Resaca a mocking-bird perched itself on the top of a tree, and imitated the whistling of bullets and other noises incident to a battle. During the fierce cannonading at Nickajack a small bird perched on the shoulder of an artilleryman, and would not be driven away either by the rapid and violent motions of the gunner, or the loud noise of the gun. Whenever the piece was discharged the bird hid its head in the gunner's hair, and after the report died away it resumed its place on his shoulder.

Rum and Ruin.

Look at him! half buried in the snow, his scanty clothes in tatters, his hair unkempt, his face marked with evidences of brutality, his eyes closed in the drunken slumber which may end in death. Do you see the bottle lying next his head? That is his idol—the Moloch which has slain him. How faithfully has he worshiped at its shrine!

Character of a Sot.

A sot has found out a way to renew, not only his youth, but his childhood, by being stewed in liquor. He is a child again at second hand, as purely fresh and simple and weak as he was at first. He has stupefied his senses by living in a moist climate. He is like a statue placed in moist air; all the lineaments of humanity are mouldered away, and there is nothing left of him but the rude lump of the shape of a man, and no one part entire. He has drowned himself in a butt of wine, as the Duke of Clarence was served by his brother. He has swallowed his humanity, and drunk himself into a beast. He is like a spring-tide; when he is drunk to his high-water mark he swells and looks big, runs against the streams, and overflows everything that stands in his way; but when the drink within him is at ebb, he shrinks within his banks, and falls so low and shallow that cattle may pass over him.

—S. Butler.

Didn't like the Jug.

A WEALTHY, popular, and gay young gentleman, who was addicted to strong drink, once boasted that he could walk home with any one of the members of a certain division of the Daughters of Temperance from church; he accordingly, after services were over on the next Sabbath, spruced up to a fair damsel, and with a polite bow tendered his arm. The young lady, as by instinct, drew back as from a serpent, and exclaimed: "No, sir; I'll never put my arm through a jug handle as long as I live!"

The Farm and Garden.

Preserving Clover Hay.—A Rockland county farmer adopts the following method: After carrying the hay from the field he stores it away between layers of straw, and never uses salt, which many farmers deem necessary to keep it from moulding in the barn. Several years ago he also salted his hay, but came to the conclusion that the practice was injurious—an opinion which is concurred in by many experienced agriculturists. Putting layers of straw between alternate layers of clover will no doubt preserve the latter effectually. The straw absorbs the redundant moisture, and keeps the clover from lying too compact in the mow. It will also be relished by the cattle, and consumed together with the hay.

Hungarian Grass for Sheep.—A correspondent of the Ohio Farmer tried the experiment of feeding one lot of his sheep with corn and fodder, and another with Hungarian grass. "The result was, those wintered on the Hungarian hay came through the winter much better than those fed on corn, etc., and the hay is a great deal cheaper to raise than corn, and much easier fed; and one acre of this hay will feed further than two acres of corn fed in the usual way." He grew four acres of this grass, which yielded four tons to the acre, he asserts.

Action of Light on Honey.—Honey fresh from the comb is a clear yellow syrup, without a trace of solid sugar in it; but on straining it gradually assumes a crystalline appearance, and ultimately becomes a solid mass of sugar. It has not been suspected that this change was due to a photo-actinic action, but this appears to be the case. M. Scheibler has inclosed honey in stoppered flasks, some of which he has kept in darkness, while others have been exposed to the light. The invariable result has been that the sunned portion rapidly crystalizes, while that kept in the darkness remains perfectly liquid. It is thus seen why bees are so careful to work in perfect darkness, and why they obscure the glass windows which are sometimes placed in their hives. The existence of their young depends upon the liquidity of the saccharine food presented to them; and if light were allowed access to this, the syrup would gradually acquire a more or less solid consistency, and would seal up the cells.—Scientific American.

Manure.—Abundant manuring is the secret of good gardening. "Get all you can and save all you get" should be the rule; add muck to the barn-yard and piggeries, and thus increase the supply. Manure may be drawn to where it will be needed.

Herbs for Drying.—The best state in which mint, balm, thyme, sage, and other kitchen or medicinal herbs can be gathered for drying to preserve for winter use is just as their flowers are opening. At that period of growth they are found to contain more of the essential oil on which their flavors depend than at any other.

Digging.—Gardens will be greatly benefited by having them dug deeply in the autumn, thus leaving the lower soil exposed to the action of the winter frosts. It is better than a dressing of manure. In the spring, when gardening operations begin, the ground will be found in the mellowest condition, requiring only one half the labor it otherwise would. The crops will also be largely increased. Remember, the ground cannot be dug too deeply. If the clay and virgin-soil turn up, so much the better.

Drainage.—The knowledge of vegetable physiology teaches us the value of drainage. A tree or plant will avoid stagnant water, but will seek out and multiply its roots in a running stream, the latter having a constant supply of fresh air. Water kept in motion becomes aerated. Roots of plants require change of air as much as fish or animals. Every shower on drained land leaves, by percolation and filtration, a new air and new fertility. Thorough drainage adds thirty per cent to the crops.

To destroy deep-rooted Weeds.—Cut off the top of the root with the corner of a hoe, and sprinkle thereon a few grains of common salt. Such is the effect of the saline particles upon that part of the root remaining in the ground that it decays in a short time, and is no longer troublesome.

Ventilating Corn-Cribs.—"Farmer," Lorraine county, Ohio, writes to the Agriculturist that a corn-crib should stand well up from the ground, and be built as open as possible, so that the ears do not fall out, especially at the bottom. To provide thorough ventilation, when filling the crib place billets of wood three to four inches in diameter, and two to three feet long, on the floor of the crib, each directly over a crack or auger hole. As the corn rises draw up the billets a few inches at a time, keeping the upper ends above the corn. When the crib is filled take the blocks entirely out, but before doing so place a few ears in position to prevent sliding in at the top. Every opening will remain as an escape-pipe for moisture. In this simple manner good corn may be saved from becoming musty.

A Hint about Horse-feed.—In the present high price of hay and feed, it is well to know that the floor of every hay-loft will furnish an article of food both nutritious and palatable. The seeds which drop from the hay are eagerly sought for by the horse; some horses will even throw the hay from the manger for the purpose of getting them. If these seeds are mixed with the ordinary ground feed, or ground meal, there need be no cut hay or straw used, and less feed or meal may be given than in the ordinary mode of feeding. The seed should be thoroughly wet before feeding.

To destroy Insects on Plants.—To six quarts of soft water, add half a pound of brown soap and one gill of turpentine. Apply to the stems with a common paint brush.

Prayer and Praise.

The Hour of Prayer.—The faithful muezzin, at the appointed hour of prayer, calls from his lofty minaret on all good Mohammedans to worship God. The pious Christian needs no outward call to summon him to this sacred duty. His time of secret prayer is to him a sweet and precious hour—the golden hour of the day. It is then he gains strength for life's burdens, courage for life's conflicts, wisdom for life's emergencies, and grace for life's needs.

Mohammedan Pharisaism.—Pharisaism is not limited to the Jews, as is evident from the following, from "Hay's Western Barbary:" "The country around was cultivated with the grain called dra, and there was every prospect of a favorable harvest. 'God be praised,' said the kaid, 'for his bounty; last year, in truth, we had a sad prospect for the crops; and had not my master ordered the Jews—God curse them!—to pray for rain, I know not what would have become of God's creatures.' 'Why did not the Mussulmans,' said I, 'offer up their prayers?' 'So they did,' he replied, 'and for twenty days and nights; and to the banner of each mosque was affixed a prayer written by the fekee himself. The prayers floated in the face of heaven, but all in vain; for the prayers of the faithful are like music to God, who is worthy of all praise; and therefore the Almighty, rejoicing in the sweet sound of our supplication, granteth not the desires of our prayers, for he wishes us to continue still to pray. But no sooner is he tormented with the disgusting prayers of Jews and infidels, than he granted forthwith their petitions, in order to be freed from their importunities.' Absurd as this may appear, it is, nevertheless, the general belief in Morocco."

Beautiful Swiss Custom.—The horn of the Alps is employed in the mountain districts of Switzerland, not solely to sound the cow-call, (Kuhreibu Ranz des Vaches), but for another purpose, solemn and religious. As soon as the sun has disappeared in the valleys, and its last rays are just glimmering on the snowy summit of the mountains, then the herdsman who dwells on the loftiest takes his horn and trumpets forth "Praise God the Lord!" All the herdsmen in the neighborhood, on hearing this, come out of their huts, take their horns, and repeat the words. This often continues a quarter of an hour, while on all sides of the mountains is echoed the name of God. A profound and solemn stillness follows; each individual offers his secret prayer on bended knees and with uncovered head. By this time it is quite dark. "Good-night!" trumpets forth the herdsman on the loftiest summits. "Good-night!" is repeated on the mountains, from the home of the herds and the clefts of the rocks. Then each lays himself down to rest.

Praise ye the Lord.

Come, O! come with sacred lays,
Let us sound the Almighty's praise;
Hither bring in true consent,
Heart, and voice, and instrument.
Let the orpharion* sweet,
With the harp and viol meet;
To your voices tune the lute,
Let not tongue nor string be mute;
Not a creature dumb be found,
That hath either voice or sound.

—George Withers, 1650.

Golden Thoughts on Prayer, from Mason.—They are safest who are most in their closets; who pray, not to be seen of men, but to be heard of God.

It is a comfort to Christians apart to think their prayers meet before a throne of grace, and their persons shall meet before a throne of glory.

God is a great God, and therefore he will be sought; he is a good God, and therefore he will be found.

Whatever you want, go to God by faith and prayer, in the name of Christ, and never think his delays are denials.

They that spend their days in faith and prayer, shall end their days in peace and comfort.

Coleridge on Prayer.—An hour of solitude, passed in sincere and earnest prayer, will teach us more of thought, will more effectually awaken the faculty, and form the habit of reflection, than a year's study in the schools without them.

WHEN prayer cannot unlock heaven, praise will often do it.—Anon.

Let them Sleep.—Early rising is all very good in its place, but one thing is certain: the human body requires a certain amount of rest, and must have it, or sickness is the result. This is especially true of children. If children get enough sleep to allow them to wake early, it is well. But if nature requires them to sleep late in the morning, (and if they do sleep thus it is evidently a requirement of nature,) why, let them sleep, even if they lie till noon. This may seem very absurd to those who think their children must be up with the sun, whether ready or not. But there is sound philosophy in it, as any physician will tell you. Let the little ones have all the sleep they need. It is often better than medicine, and no doubt frequently wards off approaching disease. Let them sleep.

A Noble Child.—At one of the anniversaries of a Sabbath-school in London, two little girls presented themselves to receive a prize, one of whom had recited a verse more than the other, both having learned several thousand verses of Scripture. The gentleman who presided inquired, "And couldn't you have learned one verse more, and thus have kept up with Martha?" "Yes, sir," the blushing child replied; "but I loved Martha, and kept back on purpose."

The Power of Kindness.—Many years since there lived in one of the central counties of New Jersey a poor mechanic, eminent for his pious zeal and consistency. He was very much tried by the conduct of an ungodly neighbor, who was in the habit of cutting his wood for the week on the Lord's day, and the sound of whose ax continually disturbed the old Christian's meditations. Father H., as he was called, often remonstrated earnestly and kindly with his neighbor, but without any effect. At length he adopted a different course. One Saturday afternoon his neighbor found the old man very busy at his wood pile, and inquired in astonishment what he was doing? "Why," replied Father H., "you will persist in cutting your wood on God's holy day, and it grieves me so much that I mean to do it for you this afternoon, so that you will have no temptation to do it to-morrow." The man was at once overcome, and exclaimed, "No, you shall not; I will do it myself. Nor will you ever, after this, have reason to complain of me for chopping wood on the Sabbath."

And he was as good as his word. The old man has long since gone to his reward; but this incident lives after him to enforce the divine direction, "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good."

Evils of Christianity.—The Tulees, an African tribe, address the following arguments to some of their number who have become converts to Christianity, in order to show the folly of their course, and induce them to return to their old religion and mode of life: "You see what your new religion costs you. You must buy clothes to wear, which are only an impediment to action; and buy soap to wash them, and thread and needles to mend them. You must buy dishes to eat in, and work in the garden just like a woman. But we live in idleness, which is both agreeable and manly; our wives dig the garden."

A Model Duel.—A model duel is at present the talk of Paris. One member of the Chamber of Deputies sent another member a bullet in a neat paper box, with his card; the other returned the compliment by sending another bullet in a mahogany box. After this exchange of bullets the antagonists declared their honors to be satisfied.

The Physician's Friends.—A certain physician, when he visited his rich and luxurious patients, always went into their kitchens and shook hands with their cooks. "My good friends," said he, "I owe you much, for you confer great favors upon me. Your skill, your ingenious and palatable art of poisoning, enables us medical men to ride in carriages; without your aid we should go on foot and be starved."

Forgiveness.

The sandal-tree perfumes when riven

The ax that laid it low;

Let man, who hopes to be forgiven,
Forgive and bless his foe.

Stitches in a Shirt.—The following is a singular calculation of the number of stitches in a shirt: Stitching the collar, four rows, 3,000; sewing the ends, 500; button-holes, and sewing on buttons, 150; sewing the collar and gathering the neck, 1,204; stitching wristbands, 1,228; sewing the ends, 68; button-holes, 148; hemming the slits, 264; gathering the sleeves, 840; setting on wristbands, 1,468; stitching on shoulder-straps, three rows each, 1,880; hemming the bosom, 398; sewing the sleeves, 2,582; setting in sleeves and gussets, 3,050; tapping the sleeves, 1,526; sewing the seams, 841; setting side-gussets in, 424; hemming the bottom, 1,104. Total number of stitches, 20,649.

Expedient of a Gull.—Yarrell, in his British Birds, (vol. iii, p. 465,) tells an anecdote of a gull, which, for the first time, had made a lark its prey, but had some difficulty in devouring it. After some ineffectual efforts to swallow it he paused for a moment; and then, as if suddenly recollecting himself, he ran off full speed to a pan of water. Shook the bird about in it until well soaked, and immediately gulped it down without further trouble. Since that time he invariably has recourse to the same expedient in similar cases.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Revenue stamps may be used indiscriminately upon any of the matters or things enumerated in Schedule B, except proprietary and playing card stamps, for which a special use has been provided.

Postage stamps cannot be used in payment of the duty chargeable on instruments.

It is the duty of the maker of an instrument to affix and cancel the stamp required thereon. If he neglects to do so, the party for whose use it is made may stamp it before it is used; but in no case can it be legally used without a stamp; and if issued after the 30th of June, 1864, and used without a stamp, it cannot be afterward effectually stamped. Any failure upon the part of the maker of an instrument to appropriately stamp it renders him liable to a penalty of two hundred dollars.

When two or more persons join in the execution of an instrument, the stamp to which the instrument is liable under the law may be affixed and canceled by any of the parties.

The Canadian Wesleyan Methodist New Connection Church.

THIS body, which has now been in existence nearly forty years, has within its jurisdiction 186 churches and 51 parsonages, estimated to be worth $129,630 55. There are connected with the Church 90 traveling preachers and 147 local; 8,028 members and 421 probationers; 114 Sunday-schools, 727 teachers, and 4,991 scholars. The Church sustains a weekly paper called the "Evangelical Witness," edited by Rev. J. H. Robinson, and a Theological Institute, of which Rev. W. McClure is Tutor.

Digest of the Proceedings of the General Conference of 1864.

I.—CHANGES IN DISCIPLINE.

1. Extension of Term.—The limit of ministerial service in the same charge was extended from two years to three.

2. Slaveholding.—The General Conference recommended to the Annual Conferences the suspension of the Fourth Restrictive Rule, so that the General Rule on Slavery may be made to exclude all slaveholders from membership in the Church.

3. Board of Trustees of the General Conference.—For the better security of donations, bequests, etc., for the Methodist Episcopal Church, it was ordered that a Board of Trustees be appointed, to be composed of ministers and laymen, and to consist of not less than five, nor more than nine.*

4. Sunday-schools.—Important changes have been made in reference to these, as follows:

(1.) The Sunday-schools and Sunday-school societies are placed under the supervision of the Quarterly Conference, and are made auxiliaries to our Sunday-School Union.

(2.) A committee is to be appointed by each Quarterly Conference to look after the interests of the schools under its care.

(3.) The preacher in charge, the Sunday-School Committee, and the superintendent are to decide what books are to be used in the school.

(4.) In addition to the items heretofore presented in the Sunday-School Report of the preacher in charge to the Quarterly Conference, he is to note the average attendance of the schools during the quarter.

5. Children's Classes.—Baptized children at ten years of age or earlier are to be organized by the preacher in charge into classes under suitable leaders, male or female. Unbaptized children are not to be excluded from these classes.

6. Supernumeraries.—The relation of supernumerary preacher is restored. Such a preacher is defined to be "one who, because of impaired health or some other disability, is temporarily unable to perform effective work."

7. Neglecting Means of Grace.—The course heretofore directed to be pursued with members of the Church who neglect class-meetings is to be followed also with those who habitually neglect other means of grace, "such as the public worship of God, the supper of the Lord, family and private prayer, searching the Scriptures, and prayer-meetings."

8. Education.—A new section is added to the Discipline on the subject of education. It recommends that each conference have at least one seminary under its care; that not less than four conferences shall unite in the support of one college; that efforts be made to endow our literary institutions; and that educational societies be established for the aid of poor young men.

9. Trustees.—Three changes have been made with reference to trustees:

(1.) A minority of them may be chosen from persons not members of the Church.

(2.) Where no specified mode of election is prescribed by the state, they are to be elected by the Quarterly Conference on nomination by the preacher in charge, or the presiding elder of the district.

(3.) They are constituted members of the Quarterly Conference, provided they are members of the Church, and are approved by the Quarterly Conference.

II.—RESOLUTIONS ON VARIOUS TOPICS.

1. On the Centenary of American Methodism.—We give the substance of the ten resolutions passed on this subject:

The centenary is to be celebrated by special religious services and thank-offerings, beginning on the first Tuesday in October, 1866, and continuing throughout the month.

It is proposed to raise two millions of dollars for two departments of Christian enterprise: the one is styled connectional, and the other local. The Board of Bishops, with twelve traveling preachers and twelve laymen, to be appointed by them, shall be a committee to determine the objects and to attend to the distribution of the connectional funds.

* The Board is constituted as follows: Bishop Clark, Rev. Joseph M. Trimble, Rev. William Nast, Rev. Adam Poe, Rev. William Young, A. N. Riddle, Esq., M. B. Hagans, Esq., Thomas H. Whetstone, Esq., John Fudge, Esq.

The local funds are to be appropriated to education and Church extension, under the direction of a committee of ministers and laymen, to be appointed by the Annual Conferences. Memorial sermons are to be preached before the Annual Conferences.

2. On Lay Representation.—Resolved, 1. That while we reaffirm our approval of lay representation in the General Conference whenever it shall be ascertained that the Church desires it, we see no such declaration of the popular will as to justify us in taking advanced action in relation to it.

Resolved, 2. That we are at all times ready to receive petitions and memorials from our people on this subject, and to consider them most respectfully.

3. On Day of Prayer for Colleges.—Resolved, That we recommend our people to observe the fourth Thursday of February of each year as a day of prayer for our colleges and other institutions of learning, and, where practicable, in a public manner.

4. On Temperance.—Each pastor is recommended to preach specifically on the subject; the editors of Church papers are requested to publish articles upon it; the publishers are requested not to insert advertisements of alcoholic drinks; the pure juice of the grape is recommended to be used in all cases in the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

5. On the State of the Country.—Resolved, That in this hour of the nation's trial we will remember the President of the United States, all other officers of the government, and our army and navy, in never-ceasing prayer.

Resolved, That it is the duty of the government to prosecute the war with all its resources of men and money till this wicked rebellion shall be subdued, the integrity of the nation shall be secured, and its legitimate authority shall be re-established, and that we pledge our hearty support and co-operation to secure this result.

Resolved, That we regard our calamities as resulting from our forgetfulness of God, and from slavery, so long our nation's reproach, and that it becomes us to humble ourselves and forsake our sins as a people, and hereafter, in all our laws and acts, to honor God.

Resolved, That we will use our efforts to secure such a change in the Constitution of our country as shall recognize the being of God, our dependence on him for prosperity, and also his word as the foundation of civil law.

Resolved, That we regard slavery as abhorrent to the principles of our holy religion, humanity, and civilization, and that we are decidedly in favor of such an amendment to the Constitution, and such legislation on the part of the states, as shall prohibit slavery or involuntary servitude, except for crime, throughout all the states and territories of the country.

Resolved, That while we deplore the evils of war that has filled our land with mourning, we rejoice in the sublime manifestations of benevolence it has developed, as seen in the Sanitary and Christian Commissions, and in the associations formed to aid the vast multitudes who have recently become freemen, and that we pledge to these institutions our hearty co-operation and support.

6. On the Sanitary and Christian Commissions.—Resolved, 1. That this nation owes a debt of endless gratitude to the Sanitary and Christian Commissions for their labors in behalf of the sick and wounded men of our noble army and navy.

Resolved, 2. That the Christian Commission is especially entitled to the cordial support and co-operation of the Church of God, inasmuch as the work which it aims to do is eminently Christian, as well as humane and patriotic, seeking to care both for the mortal and the immortal, and prepare man for all the perils that hover over the camp and the field of blood.

Resolved, 3. That as, according to the estimate of our honored senior bishop, the Methodist Episcopal Church has probably given one hundred thousand of her membership to the army and navy, we feel it to be our duty to follow them, not only with our prayers and words of cheer, but with active ministerial labors; and we deem it right and desirable when there is a call for men to care for the sick and the wounded, that our Churches take such action as will tend to furnish our due proportion of Christian men, and especially Christian ministers, for the holy work.

7. On Colored Pastorates.—It is declared to be the duty of the Church to encourage colored pastorates for colored people, and the bishops are authorized to organize colored Mission Conferences.

8. On Freedmen.—It is recognized as the duty of the Church to assist in relieving the wants of the freedmen. The associations organized for their welfare are endowed and recommended, and Congress is urged to establish a Bureau of Freedmen's Affairs.

9. On Church Extension.—A Church Extension Society was organized "for the purpose of enabling the several Annual Conferences to extend and establish our Christian influence and power throughout the United States and Territories by aiding, wherever necessary, to secure suitable houses of public worship and such other church property as may promote the general design." The society is to be under the management of a board of twenty-five laymen, and ministers not to exceed that number; each Annual Conference is recommended to organize an auxiliary; the Annual Conferences are to be "divided into as many districts as there are effective superintendents, and there shall be a committee consisting of one from each district, to be appointed by the bishops, and to be called the General Committee. It shall be the duty of this committee to meet annually, in the city of Philadelphia." The Board of Managers, Corresponding Secretary, and Treasurer are to meet with them, for the purpose of determining the amounts to be donated or loaned to churches in the various conferences.

III.—ADDRESS TO PRESIDENT LINCOLN, AND RESPONSE.

A committee, consisting of Bishop Ames, Dr. Cummings, Dr. G. Peck, Dr. Elliott, and Rev. G. Moody, was appointed to wait on the President, and convey to him the loyal sentiments of the Conference, and of the Church represented by it. The following is the President's reply:

GENTLEMEN,—In response to your address, allow me to attest the accuracy of its historical statements, indorse the sentiments it expresses, and thank you, in the nation's name, for the sure promise it gives.

Nobly sustained as the Government has been by all the Churches, I would utter nothing which might in the least appear invidious against any. Yet without this it may fairly be said that the Methodist Episcopal Church, not less devoted than the best, is, by its greater numbers, the most important of all. It is no fault in others that the Methodist Church sends more soldiers to the field, more nurses to the hospitals, and more prayers to heaven than any. God bless the Methodist Church! bless all the Churches! and blessed be God! who in this our great trial giveth us the Churches!

A. LINCOLN.

As the foregoing list is designed not so much to furnish items of news, as to afford a permanent and reliable record for reference, only those names are inserted which have been reported in the General Minutes, since the returns therein found are more complete and reliable than those contained in newspaper paragraphs. This will account for the nonappearance of the names of some preachers who have died between the sessions of conference and the publication of the Almanac. They will appear in due time. There are other deceased brethren whose obituaries have not been received at the publishing office though reported at the sessions of their conferences respectively. The number of these is twelve.

The average age of the seventy-five preachers reported in the above list is fifty-three years, and the average term of effective labor twenty-one years. The proportion of deaths to the numbers in the ministry is one to every seventy-eight. In the Minutes of the British Conference for 1864 thirty-three deaths are reported, being one to every eighty-four. The average age was sixty years, and the average term of effective service thirty years.

This article has been put up and sold for over thirty years, and we can say, in confidence and truth, of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine: never has it failed in a single instance to effect a cure when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "what we do know," after thirty years' experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfillment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

"Messrs. Golder, Maxwell, & Co., clothiers, whose advertisement will be found on another page, are personally known to us as an enterprising firm. We have patronized the house ourselves, and received entire satisfaction, alike as to material, style, and price. We say this without any 'consideration' or desire of any, but simply as a matter of justice to parties who advertise largely with us, and as a matter of interest to many of our readers, and especially clerical ones, who, we learn, receive especial favors at their hands."

ARTICLES THAT EVERY GOOD HOUSEKEEPER SHOULD USE.

Pyle's Saleratus,
Pyle's Baking Cream Tartar,
Pyle's Purified Baking Soda,
Pyle's Improved Yeast Powders,

Are all first class articles, designed for the best family trade. They are strictly wholesome, and put up good weight. A fair trial will satisfy any intelligent person of their reliability in producing the desired results, as well as economy in their use.

Pyle's O. K. Soap.

A new and popular article for the saving of labor and expense, that is without rival. Never before did any new article merit so extensive a circulation, in so short a time, as this Soap has. It is truly the people's Soap, for while it excels in mitigating the toils and expense in Washing Clothing, Scrubbing, Cleaning Painted Wares and Walls, it also serves well for ordinary Toilet purposes. It speaks for itself—try it.

Pyle's Bluing Powder.

The best, most effectual, and most economical Washing Blue ever invented. It imparts to Muslins, Laces, and Linens a clear Pearly tint, that cannot be obtained in any other way. It also makes a splendid Blue Writing Ink; hence the Ladies can give delicacy to the appearance of their Correspondence, as well as their Muslins and Laces.

All the best class Grocers have, or can readily get these articles. Some, however, endeavor to persuade customers that they can supply something as good or better, for the reason that they make a larger profit; but it is the housekeeper's right to have a preference, and the grocer's business to furnish goods bearing the best reputation. All articles bearing the name of JAMES PYLE can be relied upon for purity and just weight.

Sold in St. Louis by JOSEPH HAMILL, in Milwaukee by J. W. SEDGER, in Chicago by S. T. HINCKLEY and J. N. HERRICK, in Detroit by L. J. STAPLES, and by Grocers generally in these and other places.

FLAX BRAKES! FLAX BRAKES!

MALLORY & SANFORD'S Flax and Hemp Brakes are pronounced by persons who have used them the best in the world. They have been improved lately in their quality, and are better than when they were called the best. The No. 1 Machine weighs about 900 lbs.; occupies about five feet square, and requires one horse power; will break 2,500 lbs. Flax Straw in ten hours, taking out sixty-five to seventy per cent. of the woody matter. A man and boy can operate it without any danger to life or limb. Flax and Hemp, when dressed by this Machine, are always in demand. This Machine can be run with any power by simply applying a belt to the wheel. They do not easily get out of order. They have taken the first prize everywhere they have been exhibited, namely, in New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Illinois, etc. This Machine will save 120 lbs. to the ton of Flax more than any other Machine in the world, and will pay for itself in a few days. Flax is selling very high just now; and any farmer who will examine the matter will see he cannot afford to be without a Brake. Hundreds are using, and praise them highly. Send for a pamphlet, which we send free of cost, and learn more about them, and get the opinion of those who are using them, and you will be fully satisfied of their value.

1,200,000 Acres, in Farms of 40, 80, 120, 160 Acres and upwards,
in ILLINOIS, the Garden State of America.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company offer, ON LONG CREDIT, the beautiful and fertile PRAIRIE LANDS lying along the whole line of their Railroad, 700 MILES IN LENGTH, upon the most Favorable Terms for enabling Farmers, Manufacturers, Mechanics and Workingmen to make for themselves and their families a competency, and a HOME they can call THEIR OWN.

ILLINOIS.

Is about equal in extent to England, with a population of 1,722,666, and a soil capable of supporting 20,000,000. No State in the valley of the Mississippi offers so great an inducement to the settler as the State of Illinois. There is no part of the world where all the conditions of climate and soil so admirably combine to produce those two great staples, CORN and WHEAT.

CLIMATE.

Nowhere can the industrious farmer secure such immediate results from his labor as on these deep, rich, loamy soils, cultivated with so much ease. The climate from the extreme southern part of the State to the Terre Haute, Alton and St. Louis Railroad, a distance of nearly 200 miles, is well adapted to winter.

WHEAT, CORN, COTTON, TOBACCO.

Peaches, Pears, Tomatoes, and every variety of fruit and vegetables is grown in great abundance, from which Chicago and other Northern markets are furnished from four to six weeks earlier than their immediate vicinity.

THE ORDINARY YIELD.

of Corn is from 50 to 80 bushels per acre. Cattle, Horses, Mules, Sheep and Hogs are raised here at a small cost, and yield large profits. It is believed that no section of country presents greater inducements for Dairy Farming than the Prairies of Illinois, a branch of farming to which but little attention has been paid, and which must yield sure profitable results.

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

The Agricultural products of Illinois are greater than those of any other State. The Wheat crop of 1861 was estimated at 35,000,000 bushels, while the Corn crop yields not less than 140,000,000 bushels besides the crop of Oats, Barley, Rye,

Buckwheat, Potatoes, Sweet Potatoes, Pumpkins, Squashes, Flax, Hemp, Peas, Clover, Cabbage, Beets, Tobacco, Sorghum, Grapes, Peaches, Apples, &c., which go to swell the vast aggregate of production in this fertile region. Over Four Million tons of produce were sent out the State of Illinois during the past year.

CULTIVATION OF COTTON.

The experiments in Cotton culture are of very great promise. Commencing in latitude 39 deg. 30 min. (see Mattoon on the Branch, and Assumption on the Main Line), the Company owns thousands of acres well adapted to the perfection of this fibre. A settler having a family of young children, can turn their youthful labor to a most profitable account in the growth and perfection of this plant.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Traverses the whole length of the State, from the banks of the Mississippi and Lake Michigan to the Ohio. As its name imports, the Railroad runs through the centre of the State, and on either side of the road along its whole length lie the lands offered for sale.

CITIES, TOWNS, MARKETS, DEPOTS.

There are ninety-eight Depots on the Company's Railway, giving about one every seven miles. Cities, Towns, and Villages are situated at convenient distances throughout the whole route, where every desirable commodity may be found as readily as in the oldest cities of the Union, and where buyers are to be met for all kinds of farm produce.

EDUCATION.

Mechanics and working-men will find the free school system encouraged by the State, and endowed with a large revenue for the support of the schools. Children can live in sight of the school, the college, the church, and grow up with the prosperity of the leading State in the Great Western Empire.

STEVENS'S HISTORY of METHODISM.

The History of the Religious Movement of the Eighteenth Century, called Methodism, CONSIDERED IN ITS DIFFERENT DENOMINATIONAL FORMS, AND ITS RELATIONS TO BRITISH AND AMERICAN PROTESTANTISM.

BY ABEL STEVENS, LL.D.

Vol. I.—From the Origin of Methodism to the Death of Whitefield.

Vol. II.—From the Death of Whitefield to the Death of Wesley.

Vol. III.—From the Death of Wesley to the Centenary Jubilee of Methodism.

12mo. Muslin.....

Svo. Illustrated edition, morocco.

This history of Methodism is a work of such rare excellence that we wonder that any Methodist family able to procure a copy will consent to be without one. Some, we are aware, are waiting until the work shall be completed. In this they commit a capital mistake. The probability is, if they adhere to their purpose, that they will never read the work. The first three volumes are full of interest. They cannot be read by any Methodist without advantage. We owe it to ourselves and to the Church, as parties to the grand enterprise which they discuss, to read them and push them into circulation. No books published by our Book Concern are better calculated to give our denomination a commanding influence. Methodists who are able should keep a copy to loan to neighbors of other denominations.

PRONOUNCING BIBLE.

Large Svo.

We have lately issued the best Bible in print, a PRONOUNCING BIBLE, having these advantages: 1. The proper names are divided and accented, so that a child can pronounce them correctly. 2. Each book has a short introduction, showing just what every reader ought to know about it. 3. It has a much improved class of references. 4. It contains a map of Old Canaan and its surroundings, and one of Palestine, according to the latest discoveries.

WHEDON'S COMMENTARY.

A Commentary on the Gospels of Matthew and Mark.

INTENDED FOR POPULAR USE.

BY D. D. WHEDON, D.D.

12mo.

This is a 12mo. of 422 closely printed pages, embracing a fine map of Palestine, and other valuable illustrations. It is the cheapest book for the price that we have issued in many years. The two volumes which are to follow will be announced in due time. All the notices we have seen, as well as the remarks we have heard, go to the effect that this book is a timely, able, and valuable addition to our literature.

B. T. BABBITT'S NEW YORK CITY SOAP.

I am bringing out a new and useful article of Superior French Chemical Erasive Soap, or New York City Soap, put up in boxes of 60 Bars, one pound each. The genuine article of Erasive and Detersive Soap has, since its introduction to the American public, been most favorably known as the

BEST AND CHEAPEST WASHING SOAP IN MARKET.

Recent discoveries (known to no other manufacturer) enable me to produce an article possessing chemical "DETERSIVE AND ERASIVE" qualities far superior to any other Soap in market.

I Challenge the World to Produce its Equal.

This Soap is rapidly taking the place of all other soaps, wherever introduced. One pound will go as far as three pounds of ordinary family Soap. But one quarter the time and labor are required to do the same amount of washing as with the best of family soap. It will wash in either hard or salt water. Clothes need no boiling, and but little rubbing with the hands, thus avoiding their wear upon the washboard. It does not injure the fabric; on the contrary, it preserves it, and fixes the colors. It will remove paint, grease, or stains of all kinds. Directions sent in each box for making One Pound of the above Soap into Three Gallons of Handsome Soft Soap. Send for a box and give it a trial. If you do not want a whole box yourself, get your neighbors to join you, and divide it.

Please be particular, and give full directions for shipping the goods. Also, give the name of your Post-office, with the State and County in which you reside. Address,

MR. WILLIAM B. BRADBURY:

NEW LONDON, CONN., July 18, 1864.

DEAR SIR,—The long-looked for books are at last at hand, and let us, in behalf of our whole Sabbath-school, THANK YOU A THOUSAND TIMES for "THE GOLDEN CENSER." We anticipated much, but our anticipations are more than realized. A careful perusal of "THE CENSER" assures us that THE BOOK for our Sunday-school is now in our possession. Sincerely yours, etc.,

WILLIAM B. BRADBURY, Esq.:

KENDALLSVILLE, NOBLE CO., IND.

DEAR SIR,—I must say that I have enjoyed a rich treat in trying "THE GOLDEN CENSER." I have used the "Chain" and "Shower;" but I certainly think "THE CENSER" surpasses either. May your efforts be crowned still with success is my best wish for you. Yours truly,

Long may you live to bless the children with such precious works!

J. A. F.

EMERALD GROVE, ROCK CO., WIS.

These beautiful songs, sung with spirit, and with the love of Jesus in the soul, will call the children together, and the parents also, for the "small chips lay nearest the heart," as the old wood-choppers say. I like your music the best of any.

WILLIAM B. BRADBURY'S NEW SCALE GOLD MEDAL PIANO-FORTES.

TWO GOLD MEDALS, ONE SILVER MEDAL,
AND
FOUR FIRST PREMIUM DIPLOMAS,

Making in all SEVEN FIRST PREMIUMS bestowed upon Mr. WILLIAM B. BRADBURY within the brief space of FOUR WEEKS by the Officers of the State Fairs and by the American Institute, New York city, "FOR THE BEST PIANOS."

The Gold Medal of the American Institute was awarded me "for the best Piano-Forte," by the judges, Gottschalk, Berg, Beames, and F. H. Brown, after the most strenuous efforts had been made by competing manufacturers to obtain this, the highest American prize, and, as a proof of perfect fairness in this award, I will add that I had no knowledge of who were to be the judges until the decision was rendered. The Piano was not gotten up for the occasion, but was selected from the very small stock of instruments then in my warerooms, and with but one day's notice.

Never, in the history of the trade, were so many First Premiums known to be given within so short a space of time.

The most accomplished Pianists and critics of the country have paid it the highest compliments.

GOTTSCHALK,

The renowned Pianist and Composer, AFTER A CAREFUL AND THOROUGH EXAMINATION OF WM. B. BRADBURY'S NEW SCALE PIANO-FORTES, says:

I have examined, with GREAT CARE, Mr. WILLIAM B. BRADBURY'S New Scale Piano-Fortes, and it is my opinion that they are VERY SUPERIOR INSTRUMENTS.

I have especially remarked their THOROUGH WORKMANSHIP, and the power, purity, richness, and EQUALITY of their tone. I recommend, therefore, these Instruments to the public in general, and doubt not of their success.

L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

New York, July 12, 1863.

WILLIAM MASON.

DEAR SIR,—After repeated tests of your NEW SCALE Piano-Forte, in almost every variety of musical composition and expression, I find that they possess, in the highest degree, all the essentials of a PERFECT PIANO-FORTE.

WILLIAM MASON.

$600
Each.

One

Twelve
Stops.

FOR PARLORS, CHURCHES, AND SCHOOLS.

Recognized by Musicians as unquestionably superior to all other small Organs, and everything of the Melodeon or Harmonium kind.

Among those who have given explicit testimony to this superiority of the CABINET ORGANS are such eminent Musicians as

LOWELL MASON, THOMAS HASTINGS, WM. B. BRADBURY,
GEORGE F. ROOT, L. M. GOTTSCHALK, WILLIAM MASON,
MAURICE STRAKOSCH, GEORGE W. MORGAN, JOHN ZUNDEL,
AND MORE THAN TWO HUNDRED OF THE MOST DISTINGUISHED ORGANISTS OF
THE COUNTRY.

"It is the universal opinion of the musical profession," says Mr. Fry, the distinguished musical critic of the New York Tribune, "that Messrs. Mason & Hamlin have succeeded in making a better small instrument than any other of the organ kind; that no such mechanical work of the kind can be found in Europe."

"These instruments represent the highest accomplishments of industry in this department," says the Boston Advertiser, adding, "this is not only our opinion, but the unanimous verdict of the organists."

"It is," writes Dr. Prime of the New York Observer, "a glorious instrument for the temple service, so readily secured as to be available for any congregation, and so effective as to meet the services of the most refined and fastidious."

Mr. GOTTSCHALK, the celebrated Pianist, declares it "worthy the high praise it has received, and sure to find its way into every household of taste and refinement which can possibly afford its moderate expense."

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES with full particulars sent free to any address.

CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.—The wide demand for our CABINET ORGANS has induced dealers in some cases to advertise quite different instruments as CABINET ORGANS, and in others to represent to purchasers that harmoniums and other reed organs are the same thing. This is not true. The excellencies of the CABINET ORGANS which have given them their high reputation, arise not merely from the superiority of their workmanship, but also in large measure from essential differences in construction, which being patented by us, cannot be imitated by other makers. From these arise their better quality and volume of tone, and capacity for expression. Every CABINET ORGAN has upon its name board, in full, the words "MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGAN." When a dealer represents any other instrument as a Cabinet Organ, it is usually a mere attempt to sell an inferior instrument on which he can make a large profit.

BRONCHIAL
TROCHES

"A SLIGHT COLD, COUGH, Hoarseness, or Sore Throat, which might be checked with a simple remedy, if neglected, often terminates seriously. Few are aware of the importance of stopping a Cough or "SLIGHT COLD" in its first stage; that which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if not attended to, soon attacks the lungs.

The efficacy of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES is demonstrated by testimonials from Physicians, Surgeons in the Army, and eminent men wherever they have been used.

They were first introduced in 1850. It has been proved that they are the best article before the public for COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, CATARRH, the Hacking Cough in CONSUMPTION, and numerous affections of the THROAT, giving immediate relief.

PUBLIC SPEAKERS AND SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice.

Your TROCHES are too well and favorably known to need commendation.

Hon. CHAS. A. PHELPS, Pres. Mass. Senate.

My communication with the world has been very much enlarged by the Lozenge which I now carry always in my pocket; that trouble in my Throat, (for which the Troches are a specific) having made me often a mere whisperer. N. P. WILLIS.

I have never changed my mind respecting them from the first, excepting to think yet better of that which I began thinking well of. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

I have been afflicted with Bronchitis during the past winter, and found no relief until I found your TROCHES.

C. H. GARDNER,

Principal of the Rutgers Female Institute, New York.

The TROCHES are a staff of life to me.

Prof. EDWARD NORTH,

Pres. Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y.

A simple and elegant combination for Coughs, etc.—Dr. G. F. BIGELOW, Boston. I recommend their use to Public Speakers.

Rev. E. H. CHAPIN.

They have suited my case exactly, relieving my Throat and clearing the voice so that I could sing with ease.

T. DUCHARME,

Chorister French Parish Church, Montreal.

I have been much afflicted with BRONCHIAL AFFECTION, producing Hoarseness and Cough. The Troches are the only effectual remedy, giving power and clearness to the voice.

Rev. GEO. SLACK,

Minister Church of England, Milton Parsonage, Canada.

I have proved them excellent for whooping cough.

Rev. H. W. WARREN, Boston.

An old lady friend having tried many remedies for asthma with no benefit, found great relief from the Troches.

Rev. D. LETTS, Frankfort, Ill.

Rev. Daniel Wise, late Editor of Zion's Herald, speaks of BROWN'S TROCHES in the following terms: "We make it a rule never to recommend a medical nostrum in our columns; but having found 'Brown's Bronchial Troches' beneficial in a diseased state of the throat, we suspend our rule in their favor, believing that we do our clerical brethren a real favor in calling their attention to them. They are of great service in allaying Bronchial Irritation, and in subduing hoarseness produced by colds. When the vocal organs are out of tune, they are indispensable to the public speaker."

FORTUNATE COMBINATION.—We are opposed to proprietary medicines, and it is with some compunction that we see advertisements of them in our columns. Still we must confess that Brown's Troches are convenient and useful in certain conditions of the throat and larynx, before speaking.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

OBSERVE.

The market is full of imitations represented to be the same as "Brown's Bronchial Troches," which are in most cases productive of positive injury. Many dealers will recommend inferior preparations and lower priced articles, affording more profit to themselves. Ask for and OBTAIN only "Brown's Bronchial Troches," which by long experience have proved their value, having received the sanction of physicians generally, and testimonials from eminent men throughout the country.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES, when allowed to dissolve slowly in the mouth, have a direct influence to the affected parts; the sedative and soothing effect to the mucus lining of the windpipe into the Bronchii allays Pulmonary Irritation and gives relief in Coughs, Colds, and the various Throat Affections to which public speakers and singers are liable.

THE

FOR THE YEAR OF OUR LORD

1866.

BEING THE NINETIETH YEAR OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE,

AND THE

CENTENARY OF AMERICAN METHODISM.

New York:
PUBLISHED BY CARLTON & PORTER,
200 MULBERRY-STREET.

A Hundred Years Ago.

BY JAMES MONTGOMERY.

ONE song of praise, one voice of prayer,
Around, above, below,
Ye winds and waves the burden bear,
"A hundred years ago!"

"A hundred years ago!" what then?
There rose, the world to bless,
A little band of faithful men
A cloud of witnesses:

It looked but like a human hand;
Few welcomed it, none feared;
Yet as it opened o'er the land
The hand of God appeared.

The Lord made bare his holy arm
In sight of earth and hell;

Fiends fled before it with a'arm,
And alien armies fell.

God gave the word, and great hath been
The preachers' company;
What wonders have our fathers seen!
What signs their children see!

One song of praise for mercies past
Through all our courts resound;
One voice of prayer, that to the last
Grace may yet more abound.

All hail, "A hundred years ago!"
And when our lips are dumb,
Be millions heard rejoicing so
A hundred years to come.

Rise Up, O People! Rise and Sing.

BY REV. F. BOTTOME.

O HAPPY people, saved of God,
The Lord thy everlasting King!
Come, tell thy raptures all abroad!
Rise up, O people, rise and sing!

Sing of His love and matchless grace;
Sing of His wisdom and his power;
Let every tongue its anthem raise,
And every heart its fullness pour.

Lo! from the single grain the ear;
Lo! from the ear the teeming field;
Abundant harvests gathered where
The earth refused to yield

O happy sons and daughters thine,
Whose feet in heavenly pastures tread!
O happy sires, whose years recline
On Wisdom's bright and flowery mead!

Lo! rests on thee the holy light!
Lo! spreads o'er thee th' Almighty wing!
"The shining of a flame by night,
The glory for a covering!"

O rise and spread the holy flame;
Let all the world its brightness see;
The fullness of His love proclaim,
His great salvation full and free!

Thus let thy thanks in off'rings rise,
Thy praise in freedom's gifts be given;
A sweet accepted sacrifice,
A meet thanksgiving unto heaven.

O happy people, saved of God,
The Lord thy everlasting King!
Come, tell thy raptures all abroad!
Rise up, O people, rise and sing!

III. A Partial Eclipse of the Sun, April 15, invisible in America, but visible in the Indian Ocean and Australia, and as shown below:

IV. A Total Eclipse of the Moon, September 24, early in the morning, invisible in the United States, except along its western frontier. Size, 19.404 digits. At San Francisco it begins at 4h. 9m. A.M. It becomes total at 5h. 9m., and the middle of total phase occurs at 5h. 57m. The Moon sets totally eclipsed about this time.

The following engraving shows the points of ingress and egress. The first contact occurs 80° from the north point toward the east, and the last contact 116° toward the west.

NOTE. The north point is determined by drawing a line from the north pole to the Moon's center.

V. A Partial Eclipse of the Sun, October 8, in the morning at the time of New Moon, visible in British America, New England, and the eastern part of New York. This eclipse will be very small in that part of the United States traversed by it. In New England it will be only from $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{8}$ of a digit, and in New York state, at most places, only a contact of limbs. At Boston it begins at 11h. 19m. morning, and ends at 0h. 22m. evening. At Portland it begins at 11h. 17m. morning, and ends at 0h. 27m. evening. At Quebec it begins at 11h. 3m. morning, and ends at 0h. 23m. evening. (See the Map of this Eclipse, page 6.)

JUPITER will be morning star until April 21, then evening star the rest of the year. SATURN will be morning star until January 31, then evening star until November 7.

NOTE.—The superior planets are regarded as evening stars from their western quadrature to conjunction with the Sun.

A MAP SHOWING THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE SOLAR ECLIPSE of Oct. 8th, being visible in the darkened portion of the engraving.

This eclipse begins on the earth at 9h. 43.7m. A. M.; Washington mean time, in longitude $43^{\circ} 56' 3''$ west; in latitude $68^{\circ} 19' 9''$ north. It will be greatest at 11h. 35.7m. A. M. in longitude $285^{\circ} 47'$ west; in latitude $72^{\circ} 2' 8''$ north. It ends on the earth at 1h. 28.1m. P. NOTE.—In the two tables above it is to be understood that the word "near" and the character ☿ (conjunction) are synonyms, and mean that the two bodies are nearest each other at the time expressed, and that they are then on a line running from the North Pole through both bodies.

In the lunar conjunctions Saturn will be from 0° to 1° and 1½° south of the Moon, and Jupiter about 5° south of it. Mars will be from 6° south of it to 8° north, being north after May.

PHASES OF VENUS.

Venus will be most brilliant on the 5th of November, being a beautiful evening star; and after December 11th its horns turn to the west and it becomes a morning star.

MERCURY will be visible in the west, soon after sunset, about March 23d, July 20th, and November 15th; also in the east, before sunrise, about June 16th, May 14th, September 9th, and December 30th.

Twenty-three new volumes were added to the libraries during the year. The whole number of books in the Youth's Library is now 746.

The amount of printing for Sunday-school books and periodicals was equivalent to 498,296,000 pages 18mo., or over 2,400,000 volumes of 200 pages each.

The number of books bound or put up in paper packages or covers was 1,360,281.

The Sunday-School Journal for teachers and young people, after a suspension of several months, has been recommenced. It is beautifully printed, and is filled with just such matter as our teachers and young people ought to read. The highest point to which the circulation of the Sunday-School Advocate reached was 288,200, an increase of 45,200 over the previous year. The average semi-monthly circulation was 259,100. The whole number of copies of the paper printed during the year was 6,218,400. The total number of pages was 24,873,600.

The receipts for 1864 were $17,839 47, or $4,860 99 more than in 1863.

TRACT SOCIETY OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Office, 200 Mulberry-street, New York.

Rev. D. WISE, D.D., Cor. Secretary; Rev. J. PORTER, D.D., Treasurer, New York; J. M. PHILLIPS, Assistant Treasurer, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The following items are taken from the Annual Report for 1865:

The receipts for the year 1864 amounted to $12,601 91, or $3,892 66 in excess of the receipts of 1863. The disbursements were $12,017 41, of which $6,602 36 was expended on the army and navy.

With the close of the war the work of the Society among the soldiers nearly ceased. It is now giving itself to the work of supplying our Churches with tracts and Good News for local circulation. Tract Committees are supplied liberally, and at no time in her history has our Church been so active in this work as at present.

The circulation of the Good News has largely increased. Its average monthly issue during the past year was 90,500. The total number of copies printed was 1,086,000. Since the war closed, however, the discontinuance of 50,000 copies sent monthly to the army has very greatly reduced its circulation. It must now be more liberally supported by our Churches or given up.

Four new tracts were added to the list during the year. The whole number of pages of tracts printed was 14,464,000. Add to these the number of pages of tracts contained in the Good News, (counting each number of the paper as equivalent to thirty pages of an ordinary tract,) 32,580,000, and we have a total of 47,044,000 pages.

The Society is in a really prosperous condition. Its income is enlarging, it has a solvent treasury, and a wide field for usefulness. It is a power for good both at home and in foreign lands.

MONTHLY CONCERT.—The following resolution was passed at the last session of the General Conference:

Resolved, That we recommend the observance of the first evening of each month on which the regular evening prayer-meeting is held as a concert of prayer for missions, and that we recommend all our Churches to observe the "annual week of prayer for the conversion of the world."

Centenary of American Methodism.

THE month of October, 1866, is the centenary of American Methodism.

The celebration of these centennial and jubilee occasions furnish opportunities for enlarged liberality and plans of usefulness. This utilitarian view of observing these feasts of commemoration is eminently Methodistic, and purely characteristic of the genius and spirit of our institutions.

The celebration of English Methodism was the occasion of the enlargement and consolidation of her plans of missionary and other connectional and benevolent enterprises, which at once astonished the world, and roused the aggressive zeal of kindred Churches incalculably. In their centenary celebration in the month of October, 1839, the Wesleyans of England, in connection with their various branches throughout the world, subscribed the princely sum of one million and eighty thousand dollars!

The amount was appropriated by the Centenary Committee in the following order: "First, to the two Theological Institutions, for the erection of new buildings in the north and south; second, Wesleyan centenary buildings in London, and Missionary Society, particularly the new Mission Rooms and Mission ship; third, to the relief of distressed chapels; fourth, to the better support of worn-out preachers and their widows; fifth, for the building of a centenary chapel in Dublin; and sixth, to the Education Committee."

Meantime, the contributions of fact and incident, and the glowing spirit of holy joy which poured forth from the pulpit, the platform, and the press, incited the spirit of revival among the people, and added thousands of new-born souls to the Church, and prepared the way for historical collections, which make us more complete, if not more elaborate, than any other Church in that department of literature.

More recently, in the summer of 1863, the jubilee of the Wesleyan Missionary Society was celebrated by that body in England, at which the noble sum of £200,000 was raised as an expression of the people's gratitude to God for his wonderful works toward them, and of their confidence in the great work of Christian Missions.

Very opportunely for the celebration of our Centenary, Dr. Stevens has added to his princely volumes of Methodist History two volumes of the "History of American Methodism," in a style and manner equally fertile and reliable. Besides which we have the earlier history by Dr. Bangs; "Methodism in New England," by the same able pen which has written "American Methodism" and the equally interesting "Biography of Dr. Bangs," together with the numerous lives of our eminent fathers and bishops, deceased, whose biographies, indeed, are but the history of their times condensed in their personal experiences.

The engraving at the head of this article represents the home of Philip Embury, of which Rev. J. B. Wakeley says, in his "Lost Chapters:—"

"It is not the home of the poet, it is not the residence of a statesman; but the house of a carpenter, the home of a local preacher, the home of American Methodism. In this humble dwelling the first Methodist sermon was preached in the city of New York; in this house the first class met; in this house the first Methodist Society was formed. Hallowed place! Memorable era, never to be forgotten in the annals of American Methodism."

What a pity that this indefatigable collector of Methodist antiquities could not have given us in his excellent volume of "Lost Chapters" the faces of Philip Embury and Barbara Hick. But those were not days of photography, and the picture of Embury's humble abode sufficiently indicates his inability to patronize the more expensive artists of his day. The picture of the gallant Captain Webb has happily been preserved, and will doubtless go down the stream of time with the history of American Methodism.

The shelves of our Book Concern teem with material which, under the earnest minds of our ministry and laity, will doubtless make our great feast in October next one of the most interesting and important chapters of Church history.

What a sum, for our "ready reckoners," will be the multiplication of our numbers from the first gathering of six persons for preaching, in Barrack-street, whom the good Barbara Hick had gathered to the preacher's house, to the numbers that now swell our ranks!

What soul-stirring reminiscences of pioneer life will the names of Lee, and Asbury, and Dow, and Cooper, and Bangs, and hosts of compeers, awaken! What glorious and convincing illustrations of Divine Providence will the simple outlines of our great institutions furnish! Our Missionary Society, our Book Concern, our Sunday-School Union and Tract Society, our colleges and schools! What subjects here for devout acknowledgment! What inspiration for future aggressions! "The world is our parish."

The Committee appointed by the late General Conference "to determine the objects, and to attend to the distribution of the connectional funds," to be raised at this great thanksgiving, adopted the following as their

FINAL REPORT.

The sub-committee appointed to consider the various petitions and resolutions laid before your body on the subject of the distribution of the Centenary Connectional funds, beg leave to submit the following:

Resolved, 1. That if any of the contributors desire to specify the precise objects of their Centenary subscriptions, in whole or in part, it shall be open to them to name the following subjects, namely:

- (1.) Toward the erection of buildings for the Biblical Institute at Evanston, Ill., $50,000.
- (2.) Toward the erection of buildings for the Concord Biblical Institute, (to be removed to the vicinity of Boston,) $50,000.

Provided, That connectional contributions may also be made for one Biblical Institute or Theological School in the eastern-middle states, one in Cincinnati and one in San Francisco; the said amounts each not to exceed $50,000, and said contributions to be retained and managed by the Centenary Connectional Educational Board until assured that enough has been actually raised to make the aggregate amounts, including the Connectional Contributions to the respective objects, not less than $150,000 to each case.

- (3.) Toward the erection of a Centenary Mission building at New York, $50,000.
- (4.) To the Irish Connectional Fund, $50,000.
- (5.) To the Theological School at Bremen, Germany, $10,000.

Resolved, 2. That all the unspecified funds raised throughout the Church be placed in the hands of a board, (to be appropriated as provided in a subsequent resolution,) to be called the CENTENARY CONNECTIONAL EDUCATIONAL BOARD of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Resolved, 3. That the said board shall securely invest the entire principal, and shall appropriate the interest only, from time to time, at their discretion, to the following purposes, and none others, namely:

- (1.) To aid young men preparing for the foreign missionary work of the Methodist Episcopal Church; and,
- (2.) To aid young men preparing for the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church—these two objects to be reached through the Missionary Society, or the board of bishops, or such educational societies of the Church as may be approved by the board.
- (3.) To the aid of the biblical institutes now in existence, and of such others as may hereafter be established, with the approval of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
- (4.) To the aid of universities, colleges, or academies now existing under the patronage of the Church, or which may hereafter be established, provided, (a) That no appropriation shall be made by the board at any time for building purposes, either for biblical schools, or for universities, colleges, or academies; and (b) That no universities, colleges, or academies not now in existence shall be aided by the board unless the board shall first have been consulted and have consented to the establishment and organization of such institutions.

ADDRESS OF THE CENTRAL CENTENARY COMMITTEE.

The "Committee of Correspondence and Arrangements," appointed at Cleveland, Ohio, February, 1865, have issued an important address to the Church, which should be read with care by every minister and member. We have room here for the following passage only:

The General Conference of 1864, after setting the two great channels of contribution, connectional and local, for the gifts of the people, appealed to the Church in the following stirring words:

As the highest authority of the Methodist Episcopal Church, we commend this whole subject to the prayerful consideration of every minister, traveling and local, and every official and private member of the Church, calling for the most systematic and energetic efforts everywhere to carry out in their true spirit these noble plans; and after due consideration, we deem it right to ask for and to expect not less than two millions of dollars for achievements which will be worthy of our great and honored Church, and which shall show to our descendants to the latest generations the gratitude we feel for the wonderful Providence which originated and has so largely blessed and prospered our beloved Church.

The sum of two millions is there named as the lowest mark at which the Church should aim in its centenary offerings of gratitude. We trust that this minimum will be largely transcended. And without pretending to dictate to the ministry or the membership of the Church, we feel it our duty to make the following suggestions:

"1. One great object of the centenary movement should be to promote the connectional spirit of Methodism, and to bind anew, in cords of fraternal love and of devotion to the common cause, the East, the West, the North, and the South. So let us rebuke, by the grand unity of our vast societies, the spirit of secession, whether in Church or State. Unity in Christ is one of the needful marks of the true Church, and to promote the unity of the American people is one of the obvious functions of the Church in this country. We trust that this mark and function of the Church will be dwelt on in every pulpit of Methodism at some period of the centenary celebration.

"2. One of the most signal and obvious ways of showing our connectional spirit will be to contribute to the connectional objects named by the General Conference and its committees. As we have said, the whole Church, and at the same time every locality within its bounds, is interested in these objects.

"3. Perhaps the best and simplest way to arrange for the contributions of the Church will be to fix at once upon the principle that half the sums raised are to be devoted for the connectional objects named by the Centenary Committee, and half to the local objects named by the several conferences.

"The committee present these suggestions to the Church as the result of months of deliberation and prayer. They do not dictate to conferences, ministers, or members, but they hope that the plan which they propose will meet the cordial approval of the Church."

John Wesley.

IN one of his excursions to Bath he encountered the noted Beau Nash, the presiding genius of its gayeties. The fashionable pretender hoped to confound the preacher and amuse the town, but was confounded himself. Wesley says that there was great public expectation of what was to be done, and he was entreated not to preach, for serious consequences might happen. The concourse was very large. He addressed himself pointedly to high and low, rich and poor. Many of them seemed to be surprised, and were sinking fast into seriousness, when their champion appeared, and coming close to the preacher, asked by what authority he did these things? "By the authority of Jesus Christ, conveyed to me by the now Archbishop of Canterbury, when he laid hands upon me and said: 'Take thou authority to preach the Gospel,'" was the reply. "This is contrary to act of Parliament; this is a conventicle," rejoined Nash. "Sir," said Wesley, "the conventicles mentioned in that act, as the preamble shows, are seditious meetings; but this is not such; here is no shadow of sedition; therefore it is not contrary to that act." "I say it is," replied Nash; "and, besides, your preaching frightens people out of their wits." "Sir," asked Wesley, "did you ever hear me preach?" "No." "How then can you judge of what you never heard?" "Sir, by common report." "Common report is not enough. Give me leave, sir, to ask, is not your name Nash?" "My name is Nash." "Sir," continued Wesley, "I dare not judge of you by common report." The irony was too pertinent to fail of effect. Nash paused a while, but having recovered himself, said: "I desire to know what these people come here for?" One of "the people" replied: "Sir, leave him to me; let an old woman answer him: you, Mr. Nash, take care of your body; we take care of our souls, and for the good of our souls we come here." His courage quailed before the sense and wit of the common people, and without another word, he retreated in haste.

"I have one Boy and you have the Other."

A poor woman, plainly dressed, presented herself before the President, on one occasion. Her story was short, and soon told. Her husband and her three sons had been given to the army. One of the late battles had, with powder and ball and in blood, written her widow. She simply asked in her need, that her first-born might be returned to her. His discharge was quickly made out, and with it, and the President's blessing, she started for the front. There she found that he whom she sought had just fallen in battle, and she had only reached his side in time to see him die, and then to lay him in the cold, dark grave.

The surgeon wrote the fact on the back of his discharge and she returned with aching heart to Washington. Again she visits the White House, and is immediately recognized; and before she could say one word the President exclaimed, "I know what you want," and unrequested, sat immediately down to write out the order for the discharge of her second boy. Involuntarily the stricken woman brushed back with her hand again and again the hair from that noble brow, whispering audibly, amid her tears, "God bless Abraham Lincoln," "God bless Abraham Lincoln."

The paper was soon ready, and lifting his head, as he handed it to her, with tears coursing down his cheeks, he said, "There, I have one boy and you have the other, it is right that you should have him." In tears they parted, she exclaiming as she retired, "God bless Abraham Lincoln."

The Negro. ●

There will be some black men who can remember, that, with silent tongue and clenched teeth and steady eye and well-poised bayonet, they have helped mankind on to this great consummation; while, I fear, there will be some white ones unable to forget, that with malignant heart and deceitful speech, they have striven to hinder it.—PRES. LINCOLN.

Public Opinion Baths.

I call these receptions my public opinion baths, for I have but little time to read the papers and gather public opinion in that way: and though they may not be pleasant in all their particulars, the effect, as a whole, is renovating and invigorating to my perceptions of responsibility and duty. It would never do for a President to have guards with drawn sabers at his door, as if he fancied he were, or were trying to be, or were assuming to be, an Emperor.—PRES. LINCOLN.

Many Facts in Small Compass.

The number of languages spoken is 4,064. The number of men is about equal to the number of women. The average of human life is 33 years. One quarter die before the age of seven, one half before the age of seventeen. To every thousand persons one only reaches one hundred years, and not more than one in five hundred will reach eighty years. There are on the earth 1,000,000,000 inhabitants. Of these 333,333,333 die every year, 91,824 die every day, 7,759 every hour, and 60 every minute, or one every second. These losses are balanced by an equal number of births. The married are longer lived than the single, and above all, those who observe a sober and industrious conduct. Tall men live longer than short ones. Women have more chances of life previous to the age of 50 years than men, but fewer after. The number of marriages are in the proportion of 76 to 100. Marriages are more frequent after the equinoxes, that is, during the months of June and December. Those born in spring are more robust than others. Births and deaths are more frequent by night than by day.

An affectionate Irishman once enlisted in the Seventy-fifth Regiment in order to be near his brother, who was a corporal in the Seventy-sixth.

APRIL 14, 1865, will henceforth stand in heavy type in the chronology of our country. On that day ABRAHAM LINCOLN—the great, the good, the beloved Friend of his Country, and Emancipator of the Enslaved—fell by the hand of an assassin; the victim of the wicked Rebellion, which, under God, he had overthrown, and of fiendish malice, bred of slave power, whose last, foul, finished enormity was this!

“The Almighty has his own purposes. . . . Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet if God wills that it continue, until all the wealth piled by the bondman’s two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and till every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword; as was said three thousand years ago, so still must it be said, that the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.”—Last Inaugural.

Sayings of Little Ones.

A LITTLE BOY ran to his mother with, "O ma, Johnny took the last egg out of the nest, and now the old hen aint got no pattern to lay by."

KISSING A SUNBEAM.—A babe not old enough to speak or walk was creeping on the floor; by and by a bright ray of sun² shine fell upon the carpet. Baby saw it, and crept toward it and all around it with the greatest interest in her sweet face, and then putting down her little lips she kissed it. Now was not that beautiful? The bright little sunbeam lighted up joy in her baby heart, and she expressed that joy with a sweet kiss.—Fitch.

GOING TO SLEEP.—A mother trying to get her little daughter of three years old to sleep one night, said to her, "Anna, why don't you try to go to sleep?" "I am trying," she replied. "But you haven't shut your eyes." "Well, can't help it; 'um comes unbuttoned."

THE CHILD'S PRAYER.—A little boy kneeling at his mother's knee to say his evening prayer, asked leave to pray in his own words, and, with a childlike simplicity, said, "God bless little Willie, and don't let the house burn up! God bless papa and mamma! God bless me, and make my boots go on easier in the morning!"

SYMPATHY.—A little two-year-old girl fell the other day, and striking her head, cried at the top of her voice. In the midst of her tears she chanced to see from the window a poor old horse with drooping head. Instantly checking her sobs, she asked in the kindest tones, "What'ee matter, hossy? Bump 'oo head?"

LIGHT AT THE LAST.—A little boy, aged four years, blind from his birth, died, a short time ago, of scarlatina. About an hour before the little sufferer departed he exclaimed, "Papa, I see now; darkness is all gone; day is come." In a few minutes he was with the angels.

A CURIOUS THOUGHT.—A little boy, sitting near a window where the sun shone brightly, eating bread and milk, suddenly called out, "O, mother, I'm full of glory! for I've swallowed a whole spoonful of sunshine."

A NOBLE ANSWER.—At a slave market in one of the Southern States a smart, active colored boy was put up for sale. A kind master, who pitied his condition, not wishing him to have a cruel owner, went up to him and said: "If I buy you, will you be honest?" The boy, with a look that baffled description, replied, "I will be honest whether you buy me or not." Was not that a noble reply?

EMMA'S REQUEST.—"Pray for me before I go to bed," said Emma to her nurse one night. "What shall I pray for?" asked the nurse. "That Jesus will wash me in his blood quite clean," was the child's beautiful rejoinder.

Epitaphs for Little Children.

This little bud so young and fair,
Call'd hence by early doom,
Just come to show how sweet a flower
In Paradise could bloom.

A little casket, hid from view,
Among these ashes lies;
The gem is safe with Jesus Christ,
Resplendent in the skies.

Life Like a River.

BISHOP HEBER, upon departing for India, said in his farewell sermon: "Life bears us on like the stream of a mighty river. Our boat at first goes down the mighty channel through the playful murmuring of the little brook, and the willows upon its grassy borders. The trees shed their blossoms over our young heads, the flowers on the brinks seem to offer themselves to our young hands; we are happy in hope, and grasp eagerly at the beauties around us; the stream hurries on, and still our hands are empty. Our course in youth and in manhood is along a wider, deeper flood, and amid objects more striking and magnificent. We are animated by the moving picture of enjoyment and industry passing us; we are excited by our short-lived enjoyments. The stream bears us on, and joys and griefs are left behind us. We may be shipwrecked, but we cannot be delayed; for, rough or smooth, the river hastens to its home, till the roar of the ocean is in our ears, and the waves beneath our feet, and the floods are lifted up around us, and we take our leave of earth and its inhabitants, until of our further voyage there is no witness save the Infinite and Eternal."

A Short Love Story.

HERE is a story told by one Morgan, a sea captain, concerning the choice of a husband at sea, which may afford a profitable hint to young ladies en voyage. Single ladies often cross the water under the special care of the captain of the ship, and if a love affair occurs among the passengers, the captain is usually the confidant of one or both parties. A very fascinating young lady was placed under Morgan's care, and three young gentlemen fell desperately in love with her. They were all equally agreeable, and the young lady was puzzled which to encourage. She asked the captain's advice. "Come on deck," he said, "the first day it is perfectly calm—the gentlemen, of course, will all be near you. I will have a boat quietly lowered down, and do you jump overboard, and see which of the gentlemen will jump after you. I will take care of you." A calm day soon came, the captain's suggestions were followed, and two of the lovers jumped after the lady at the same instant. But between these two, the lady could not decide, so exactly equal had been their devotion. She again consulted the captain. "Take the man that didn't jump," said the captain, "he's the most sensible fellow, and will make the best husband."

Want of Decision.

A GREAT deal of talent is lost to the world for the want of a little courage. Every day sends to their graves a number of obscure men, who have only remained in obscurity because their timidity has prevented them from making a first effort, and who, if they had only been induced to begin, would, in all probability, have gone great lengths in the career of fame. The fact is, that in doing anything in the world worth doing, we must not stand shivering on the bank thinking of the cold and danger, but jump in and scramble through as well as we can. It will not do to be perpetually calculating risks and adjusting nice chances; it did all very well before the flood, when a man could consult his friends upon an intended publication for a hundred and fifty years, and live to see its success for six or seven centuries afterward; but at present a man waits and doubts, and consults his brothers, and his uncles, and his particular friends, till one day he finds that he is sixty-five years of age, that he has lost so much time in consulting first cousins and particular friends that he has no more time to follow their advice. There is so little time for over-squeamishness at present, that the opportunity slips away. The very period of life at which man chooses to venture, if ever, is so confined, that it is no bad rule to preach up the necessity, in such instances, of a little violence done to the feelings, and efforts made in defiance of strict and sober calculation.—Sidney Smith.

The Slaver and the Shark.

SOME years ago an English vessel on the look-out for slave ships gave chase to a suspicious looking craft. While the pursuit was going on, it was noticed that something was thrown overboard by the supposed slaver. She was soon captured, and taken into port for trial, but no certain evidence could be produced against her; the ship's papers, that is, the writings which every vessel is by law obliged to carry, showing her character and where she is bound, could not be found; they had evidently been thrown into the sea during the chase. The slaver's captain was in high glee, both at his unexpected escape, and also with the idea of recovering damages for the seizure and detention of his vessel; but before the trial ended, a vessel came into the same port, which had followed closely in the track of the chase. Her crew had caught a shark, and in its stomach found a tin box which contained the missing ship's papers, and on this evidence the slaver was condemned. The jaws of the shark with the tin box placed inside are preserved in the naval museum in England.

PHYSICAL TRAINING OF GIRLS.—Without this there can be no lasting progress. The Sandwich Island proverb says:

"If strong be the frame of the mother,
Her sons shall make laws for the people.

Something to Do for Thee.

O God, O kinsman loved, but not enough!
 O man, with eyes majestic after death,
 Whose feet have toiled along our pathway rough,
 Whose lips drawn human breath!

By that one likeness which is ours and thine,
 By that one nature which doth hold us kin,
 By that high heaven where, sinless, thou dost shine
 To draw us sinners in,

By thy last silence in the judgment-hall,
 By long foreknowledge of the deadly tree,
 By darkness, by the wormwood and the gall,
 I pray Thee visit me!

Are there no briers across thy pathway thrust?
 Are there no thorns which compass it about?
 Nor any stones that thou wilt deign to trust
 My hands to gather out?

What though unmarked the happy workman toi.
 And break unthanked of man the stubborn clod?
 It is enough, for sacred is the soil,
 Dear are the hills of God.

Far better in its place the lowliest bird
 Should sing aright to Him the lowliest song,
 Than that a seraph strayed should take the word
 And sing His glory wrong.

JEAN INGELOW.

A Guinea a Year.

A RICH old gentleman residing at Manchester, England, was lately called upon by some members of the Bible Society there to subscribe his mite. He replied that he had been thinking about it, but would first wish to become acquainted with their plans, etc., and wished them to call again. Some time after they did so and he told them he had made up his mind to subscribe a guinea a year, and immediately began to count out upon the table a quantity of guineas. When he had got to twenty-one, the gentlemen stopped him and said, as their time was rather precious, they should feel obliged if he would give them his subscription, that they might go. The old gentleman still continuing to count them out upon the table, they interrupted him a second time, when he simply hoped the gentlemen would suffer him to go on, and on he went, till he had counted down eighty guineas.

"There, gentlemen," cried the old man, "I promised you a subscription of a guinea a year; I am eighty years old, and there are the eighty guineas."

Wives in India.

A MISSIONARY lady, writing to friends in England, mentions many sad things about the state of women and wives in India. Among other things, she says: "A wife is not thought worthy even to take her husband's name into her lips. She may call him 'lord,' 'master,' or the 'father of her son,' but his name she must never mention. One day one of my mother's servants, an Ayah, was taken ill. She was a very pretty young woman, and as much loved by her husband as Bengalee wives usually are; yet he refused to get a doctor for her, saying to the poor dying girl, 'The money I should now waste on you will pay for my marriage-feast when I marry your successor.' Three months after that his new wife was brought home."

The Theater.

It was a terrible blow which fell on the heart of poor Mrs. — when the tidings reached her that her only son was a fugitive from justice, having perpetrated one of the worst crimes known in law. "He was led astray by worldly companions," said she. "The stage has been his ruin. Till he entered the ill-fated theater, which throws out its unhallowed attractions to beguile and captivate the thoughtless and the gay, he was one of the best of sons, and one of the kindest of brothers, fond of home, and devoted to his secular pursuits; but after he had acquired a taste for its scenes and performances he became undutiful to me, unkind to his sisters, indolent and extravagant, unwilling to submit to the control of authority or of reason, and determined to follow the devices and desires of his own heart, even though he should plunge us all in ruin. It was in the theater he fell into bad company; it was there he lost his strength to resist temptation; and being once overcome, he surrendered himself a willing captive to the service of iniquity. Ill-fated place! There many a virtuous youth has become the victim of sin; and there my William fell, and in his fall he has destroyed my happiness for life! What he has done to compel him to fly from the pursuit of justice I know not; where he has gone I know not, nor do I know what destiny awaits him; but this I know, from heartrending experience, that the theater will corrupt the most virtuous; and while it professes to afford only amusement and instruction, it often becomes the destroyer of personal honor and of social happiness."

Alas, this is but one of the common effects of this gilded sin.

Reader, if you are disposed to plead for the theater, remember that one of its most polished sons, one of its favorite actors, was the murderer of President Lincoln, and the scene of that foul tragedy was a theater. "His friends sent unto him desiring him that he would not adventure into the theater." Acts xix, 31.

Beware of Bad Books.

Why, what harm will these books do me? The same harm that personal intercourse would with the bad men who wrote them. That "a man is known by the company he keeps," is an old proverb; but it is no more true than that a man's character may be determined by knowing what books he reads. If a good book cannot be read without making one better, a bad book cannot be read without making one worse.

Mountain Tops.

ALL day the distant mountain tops have worn
 A glory caught from the frank August sun,
 Steadfast, serene, unfading: all, save one
 Tall peak, o'er which a storm-cloud seems to mourn,
 Or oftener still, to threaten, as its torn
 And darkened depths, rent by the lightning-bolt,
 Gleam with a terrible glare on heath andholt,
 Piercing the mountain caves and dells forlorn.
 Why wreaks the storm its fury on this height
 Lonely and rugged, of sweet verdure bared?
 'Tis that this haughty peak alone has dared
 To tower above its peers to grasp the sky!
 Clouds, and not garlands, gird the brow of Might,
 And barren is all bold supremacy.

A Parrot in Court.

AN English paper tells a story of a parrot which was claimed by two parties, each of whom endeavored to prove its ownership. Finally the bird was brought into court, and the real owner, from whom she had been stolen, made the bird whistle several tunes, and at the end of the performance placed his head near the cage and asked the parrot to kiss him, which she did very affectionately to the best of her ability. "That's no proof," exclaimed the other claimant, "she will do that for any body," and he immediately presented his own face to the bird for a like salutation. But instead of a kiss, Poll gave him a sharp snap, caught him by the lip, and held on, screaming with all her might, while the bystanders could not restrain their laughter at seeing the thief thus convicted and punished by the knowing bird. She was forthwith restored to her owner on her own testimony.

Scolding Clergymen.

THE effect of asperity in a clergyman is well illustrated in the following story, the scene of which was laid in the state of "steady habits," and the events of which transpired there, several years since. Two clergymen were settled in their youth in contiguous parishes. The congregation of the one had become very much broken and scattered, while that of the other remained large and strong. At a ministerial gathering, (both of these pastors being D.Ds.,) Dr. A. said to Dr. B., "Brother, how has it happened that while I have labored as diligently as you have, and preached better sermons, and more of them, my parish has been scattered to the winds, and yours remains strong and unbroken?"

Dr. B. facetiously replied, "O, I'll tell you, brother. When you go fishing you first get a great rough pole for a handle, to which you attach a large cod-line, and a great hook, and twice as much bait as the fish can swallow. With these accouterments you dash up to the brook, and throw in your hook, with, 'There, bite, you dogs.' Thus you scare away all the fish. When I go fishing I get a little switching pole, a small line, and just such a hook and bait as the fish can swallow. Then I creep up to the brook, and gently slip them in, and I twitch 'em out, twitch 'em out, till my basket is full."

President Lincoln's Entrance into Richmond.

"CARLETON," the correspondent of the Boston Journal, describes the advent of President Lincoln in Richmond, as follows:

I was standing upon the bank of the river, viewing the scene of desolation, when a boat, pulled by twelve sailors, came up stream. It contained President Lincoln and his son, Admiral Porter, Capt. Penrose of the army, Capt. A. H. Adams of the navy, Lieut. W. W. Clemens of the signal corps. Somehow the negroes of the river ascertained that the tall man wearing a black hat was President Lincoln. As he approached I said to a colored woman:

"There is the man who made you free."

"What, massa?"

"That is President Lincoln."

"Dat President Linkum?"

"Yes."

She gazed at him a moment, clapped her hands and jumped straight up and down, shouting "Glory, glory, glory!" till her voice was lost in the universal cheer.

There was no carriage near, so the President and his son walked three quarters of a mile up to Gen. Weitzel's headquarters, Jeff. Davis's mansion. What a spectacle it was! Such a hurly-burly, such wild, indescribable, ecstatic joy I never witnessed. A colored man acted as guide. Six sailors, wearing their round blue caps and short jackets and bagging pants, with navy carbines, was the advance guard. Then came the President and Admiral Porter, flanked by the officers accompanying, then six more sailors with carbines, twenty all told, amid a surging mass of men, women, and children, black, white, and yellow, running, shouting, dancing, swinging their caps, bonnets, and handkerchiefs. The soldiers saw him and swelled the crowd, cheering in wild enthusiasm. All could see him, he was so tall, so conspicuous.

One colored woman, standing in a doorway, as the President passed along the sidewalk, shouted "Thank you, dear Jesus, for this! thank you, Jesus!" Another standing by her side was clapping her hands and shouting, "Bless de Lord!"

A colored woman snatched her bonnet from her head, whirled it in the air, screaming with all her might, "God bless you, massa Linkum."

A few white women looking out from the houses waved their handkerchiefs. One lady in a large and elegant building looked a while, and then turned away her head, as if it were a disgusting sight.

President Lincoln walked in silence, acknowledging the salutes of officers and soldiers and of citizens, black and white. It was the man of the people among the people. It was the great deliverer meeting the delivered.

The Soul's Innate Knowledge of God.

THE soul possesses a superior memory, which comes to us already impressed with the wonders of a world which we do not see, and with the thought of a God who is unknown to us; and we foreknow this God as the earth foreknows the rising of the sun when the first glimmerings of day gild the mountain-tops; then the zephyr blows, the bird sings, and the human soul expands amid these joyful presentiments of nature.—AINE MARTIN.

Epitaph.

A BEAUTIFUL inscription copied from an Italian graveyard: "Here lies Estella, who transported a large fortune to heaven in acts of charity, and has gone thither to enjoy it."

FORGIVENESS to the injured does belong;
But they ne'er pardon who have done the wrong.—DRYDEN

CHRISTIAN parent! the child that God has given you is reckoned unto Christ. It is made a partaker "of the grace of God and the gift by grace, which hath abounded unto many." Of your child the blessed Jesus has said "for of such is the kingdom of God." Can you withhold from it the sacred seal and public ratification of the everlasting covenant? "What hindereth that it should be baptized?"

Beautiful Illustration.

"If a child had been born, and spent all of his life in the Mammoth Cave, how impossible would it be for him to comprehend the upper world! Parents might tell him of its life, and light, and beauty, and its sounds of joy: they might heap up the sand into mounds, and try to show him, by stalactites, how grass, and flowers, and trees grow out of the ground; till at length, with laborious thinking, the child would fancy he had gained a true idea of the unknown land. And yet, though he longed to behold it, when the day came that he was to go forth, it would be with regret for the familiar crystals and rock-hewn rooms, and the quiet that reigned therein. But when he came up, some May morning, with ten thousand birds singing in the trees, and the heavens, bright and blue, and full of sun-light, and the wind blowing softly through the young leaves, all a-glitter with dew, and the landscape stretching away green and beautiful to the horizon, with what rapture would he gaze about him, and see how poor were all the fancyings and the interpretations which were made within the cave, of the things which grew and lived without; and how he would wonder that he could ever have regretted to leave the silence and dreary darkness of his old abode! So, when we emerge from this cave of earth into that land where spring-growths are, and where is eternal summer, how shall we wonder that we could have clung so fondly to this dark and barren life!"

Sayings of the Wise.

EVERY man has his weak side; let us learn what that is, and take care of it, for the same thing does not work alike upon all men.

Of all unquiet humors this is the worst, that will never suffer any man to be happy, so long as he sees a happier man than himself. . . . I have known some men so weak as to think themselves contemned, if a horse did but play the jade with them, that is yet obedient to another rider.

It is death to some to have another sit above them, as if a body were ever the more or less honest for the cushion.—SENECA.

A BRAVE MAN.—He is the brave man, whose splendor and authority is the least part of his greatness, that can look death in the face without trouble or surprise; who, if his body were to be broken upon the wheel, or melted lead poured down his throat, would be less concerned for the pain itself than for the dignity of bearing it.—Ibid.

"I AM now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown, which the Lord, the righteous Judge will give to me at that day, and not unto me only, but unto all them that love his appearing."—PAUL.

LET no man think himself the safer in his wickedness for want of a witness; for God is omniscient, and to him nothing can be secret.—LACTANTIUS.

GRATITUDE.—There is no question, but gratitude for benefits received is the ready way to procure more, and in requiting one friend we encourage many; but these accessions fall in by the by; and if I were sure that the doing of good offices would be my ruin, I would yet pursue them.

HE that visits the sick in hope of a legacy, let him never be so friendly in other cases, I look upon him in this to be no better than a raven, that watches a weak sheep only to peck out its eyes.

BENEVOLENCE.—It is putting of a benefit to interest only to bestow where we may place it to advantage.

JUSTICE.—Justice cannot be anger; nor is there any need of an angry magistrate for the punishment of foolish and wicked men. The power of life and death must not be managed with passion.

CORRECTION NECESSARY.—Ill dispositions in the mind are to be dealt with as those in the body: the physician first tries purging and abstinence; if this will not do he proceeds to bleeding, nay, to dismembering, rather than fail; for there is no operation too severe that ends in health.

THE END OF CORRECTION.—The end of all correction is either the amendment of wicked men, or to prevent the influence of ill example; for men are punished with a respect to the future; not to expiate offenses committed, but for fear of worse to come.

What Causes Hair to Turn Gray.

AN English writer has recently asserted that an undue proportion of lime in the system is the cause of premature gray hair, and advises to avoid hard water, either for drinking pure or when converted into tea, coffee, or soup, because hard water is always strongly impregnated with lime. Hard water may be softened by boiling it; let it become cold, and then use it as a beverage. It is also stated that a liquid that will color the human hair black, and not stain the skin, may be made by taking one part of bay rum, three parts of olive oil, and one part of good brandy, by measure. The hair must be washed with the mixture every morning, and in a short time the use of it will make the hair a beautiful black, without injuring it in the least. The articles must be of the best quality, mixed in a bottle, and always shaken before being applied.

Awake, Thou That Sleepest.

What ! sleep on the fast running sands !

Sleep, in the blazing of day !

Sleep, 'mid the roar of contention and strife ;

Sleep, 'mid the glory and battle of life ;

Droning thy manhood away,

O Sleeper on life's golden sands !

This is no time to be sleeping,

When Wrong has a heel upon Right !

When Falsehood is proudly maintaining her ground,

And Truth like a captive lies bleeding and bound.

Up ! have a hand in the fight :

This is no time to be sleeping !

This is no time to be shirking !

Cowards are left on the field !

Nobody honors a shot in the back,

Victory follows a warrior's track.

Bear or be borne on your shield :

This is no time to be shrinking !

Up ! in the name of your Leader !

Bound at humanity's cry !

Freedom the watch-word, and mercy and love ;

Show what a helper a brave heart may prove,

And wait to be honored on high.

Up ! in the name of your Leader !—HELEN.

Agricultural items.

PLOW.—An English farmer, who had great success in growing roots, being asked how many times the land should be plowed for turnips, replied: Plow it as many times as it requires and then plow it once more.

FROST.—Pumps and hydrants may be kept from freezing in the severest weather by setting a headless barrel around them, and filling it around with horse-dung, mixed as usual with some straw litter. Fence posts, etc., will be less heaved by frost if a handful of salt be sprinkled around each, on the surface of the ground.

PLOWING.—It is worth while to plow whenever the ground is open enough, and it not unfrequently happens that it is so in January, especially below latitude 41° . Spring work is advanced by just so much.

SMALL SEEDS.—It requires a great deal of care to succeed with very small seeds. If covered too deeply they will not germinate; if planted very shallow there is danger that the surface of the soil will get dry and let the little plant perish for want of water.

MANURE AND MULCH ORCHARD TREES.—The manuring of trees may be done any time up to early spring. Give a good coat of coarse manure as far out as the branches extend. It has been suggested that peach trees may be kept back late enough to avoid spring frosts by giving a heavy mulch on the roots after the ground is well frozen.—American Agriculturist.

A HARDY HEDGE.—The Norway Spruce is perfectly hardy, quick-growing, and bears cutting well.

STRAWBERRIES.—Plant the rows eighteen inches apart, with alleys three feet wide between every four rows, and cultivate with the hoe. Hill culture is best whether the ground is weedy or not.

COLLECT A STORE OF LEAVES.—There are loads of excellent manure being blown about by the winds or hidden in the forest, which should be made available in the garden. If the snow has not covered them, the leaves may yet be secured. It is but little work to gather a large store of them from the woods, while those which disfigure the lawn and collect in the fence corners should be very carefully saved. They are best preserved under a shed, or they may be made into a heap upon which some boards are to be placed to keep them from blowing about. Leaves are an excellent mulch for strawberries and other plants, but require to have brush laid over them to keep them in place. One of their most important uses in the garden is the making of hot-beds in spring. Used in equal quantities with stable manure, a more manageable and lasting heat is obtained than with manure alone, and when the hot-bed is done with, there will be left a mass of most excellent compost. Leaves may be used to increase the stock of manure by putting them into the hog-pen, barnyard, or compost heaps.—American Agriculturist.

WORTH TRYING.—The Ohio Farmer says that coal oil has been found, by accident, to be a most effective means of protecting fruit trees against the ravages of the curculio, by placing sawdust, saturated with the oil, at the foot of the tree.

The New England Farmer states that Mr. John Day, of Boxford, Mass., who cuts large quantities of clover, feeds it out principally to his milch cows, and he finds that when the clover is gone, and he feeds timothy and red top, "twenty cows immediately shrink two cans of milk per day."

DEPTH TO WHICH ROOTS PENETRATE.—A correspondent of the N. E. Farmer sends to that paper a lot of roots of grass which were taken from three, four, and five feet below the surface, where they formed a complete mesh work, hanging in large masses. The soil for eighteen inches from the surface, was a strong loam; below that, mostly mineral matter, made up of a loose hard pan. The location was somewhat elevated. The entire section, of a hundred feet or more in extent, presented the same phenomenon of the roots.

Be Kind to your Animals.

ALL the animals of the farm should be glad to see their owner, and in fact every other person who has to do with them. Man should be recognized as their best friend. Colts and steers, particularly, should be petted and handled constantly. Treated thus they will never need "breaking."

The Cow's Attachment to Home.

THE attachment of a cow to a farm is wonderful. If a cow is sold from a farm and taken to a strange place she longs to get back, and rarely or never does as well as a milker as she did before. My farm is on an island in the Niagara River, and cows sold from that farm have swum the river to get home again. The extra product of cows raised on a farm, over those purchased and brought thither, is a strong argument in favor of the dairyman breeding his own herd.—L. F. Allen.

Anticipate the Cholera.

BE at peace with yourselves. Be at peace with your stomach. Be at peace with the world. Above all, be at peace with God.

CLEANLINESS.—Be clean in person, clean in appetite, clean in manners, clean in speech, clean in dealing; but above all, be clean in heart. "Cleanliness is next to godliness," and heart cleanliness is the highest type of godliness.

TEMPERANCE.—"Be temperate in all things;" temperate in eating, temperate in drinking, temperate in speaking, temperate in desire, sober in heart and life. Let your moderation be known unto all men.

DON'T BE IN A HURRY.—Take time to eat, time to work, time to rest, time to read, time to think, time to be good-natured, time to be honest; above all, take time to love and serve the Lord.

A Cheap Deodorizer.

ONE pound of white copperas, costing only a few cents, dissolved in a quart of water, effectually concentrates the foulest smells. For water closets aboard of ships and steamboats, about hotels, and other public places, there is nothing so nice to cleanse places as simple white copperas dissolved; and for sick rooms, it may be placed under the bed in anything that will hold water, and thus render a hospital or sick-room free from unpleasant smells. For butchers' stalls, fish markets, slaughter markets, slaughter houses, sinks, and wherever there are offensive putrid gases, dissolve copperas and sprinkle it about, and in a few days the smell will pass away. The offensive smell of dead rats or mice may be as easily removed by placing some dissolved copperas in an open vessel near the spot.

The London Medical Gazette also recommends coffee as an effectual deodorizer. The best mode of using coffee as a disinfectant is to dry the raw bean, pound it in a mortar, and then roast the powder on a moderately heated iron plate until it assumes a dark brown tint, when it is fit for use. Then sprinkle it in sinks or cesspools, or lay it on a plate in a room which you wish to have purified. Coffee oil or coffee acid acts more readily in minute quantities.

A Sensible Dog.

THE other day a little dog was sporting and frisking about on the track of the Central Ohio Railroad, not far from Barnesville, when a long train of burden cars came along. The dog being accustomed to see the train pass, was in no hurry to get out of the way, and didn't stir till the engine was so close upon him that he could not escape. He, therefore, squatted down between two cross ties, and there remained until the whole train passed slowly over his insignificant body. Any attempt to escape would have resulted in instant death. The dog seemed to know this, for when the danger was over he got up, wagging his tail, and apparently conscious that he had done something for which he ought to be congratulated.

Origin of Almanacs.

VERSTEGAN, alluding to our ancient Saxon ancestors, says: "They used to engrave upon certain squared sticks, about a foot in length, the courses of the moons of the whole year, whereby they could always certainly tell when the new moons, the full moons, and the change should happen, as also their festival days; and such a carved stick they called an almond aght, that is to say, almon heed; to wit, the regard or observation of all the moons; and hence is derived the name of 'almanac.'" After the invention of printing, almanacs became generally in use. The first recorded account in England of an almanac is in the "Year Book" of Henry the Seventh.

"Evil Communications Corrupt Good Manners."

Ah! my son, my son! I am very sorry to see you in such company. You may think it very manly to lounge on the corner of the street, and puff away at a cigar, with that swaggering young loafer, who has long since grown too manly to go to church and Sabbath-school. I am very sorry to see you prefer the verandah of that pest to the village, the drinking saloon, to the quiet pew in the village church. Alas, my boy, you are on the highway to ruin; all that fine talk of Fred's about "jolly times," means the theater, the gambling house, the race-course, the tavern and his master's till! Don't you see that policeman looking at you round the corner? ay, he is saying to himself, "Fast boys will need my services soon." "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not." "Evil communications corrupt good manners."

SUMMARY.—TWENTY-THREE Colleges, two Biblical Institutes, and SEVENTY-SEVEN Seminaries, Female Colleges, and Academies.

Circulars were sent to all the institutions named in last year's Almanac, asking for the items of information contained in this table. From many of these no response has been received. From some others we have received responses direct, and also from the conferences in which they are located, and have found the reports to differ materially. We have done our best to correct them.

Principals of Colleges and Schools would do well to send correct reports, as required in this table, to Carlton & Porter, marked Almanac, as early as July in each year.

Literary Institutions under the care of the British Conference.

THEOLOGICAL INSTITUTIONS: Southern Branch, Richmond, John Lomas, Theological Tutor; Northern Branch, Didsbury, John Hannah, D.D., Theological Tutor.

WESLEYAN COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, Taunton, S. Simmons, Governor and Chaplain.

WESLEY COLLEGE, Sheffield, John H. James, Governor and Chaplain.

NORMAL TRAINING INSTITUTION, Westminster, John Scott, Principal.

NEW KINGSWOOD SCHOOL, Francis A. West, Governor and Chaplain.

WOODHOUSE GROVE SCHOOL, John Farrar, Governor and Chaplain.

CANDOR.—Marivaux, a celebrated French writer, who flourished in the last century, having one day met a sturdy beggar, who asked charity of him, he replied, "My good friend, strong and stout as you are, it is a shame you do not go to work." "Ah, master," said the beggar, "if you did but know how lazy I am." "Well," replied Marivaux, "I see thou art an honest fellow, here's half a crown for you."

In making up this table we have followed as far as possible the General Minutes, supplying only such other cases as we could rely on from other sources. In some cases obituaries have not been received in time for press.

To secure a reliable table, conferences would do well to instruct Committees on Biographies to head each biography with name of deceased, place of death, date of death, age, and term of active service, in plain figures.

Will Secretaries of conferences please give the exact numbers of effective preachers, as well as of superannuates, in plain figures, in their reports for the General Minutes, and also furnish, in each case, carefully made up statistical tables, not forgetting a correct recapitulation table?

The Resurrection.

SHALL I say what is impossible with man is impossible with God? He has already created the world by his word, and he is able to restore it again by the same. Art has found out methods to make beautiful vessels of melted ashes; and shall not God's hand, into which all the skill of art and all the strength of nature are as naught, be able to gather up the ashes of the earth, and to make of it a body full of light and glory?—DRELCINCOURT.

O that each, in the day of his coming, may say,

I have fought my way through;

I have finished the work thou did'st give me to do.

O that each from his Lord may receive the glad word,

Well and faithfully done:

Enter into my joy, and sit down on my throne!

CHILDREN TEETHING

MRS. WINSLOW,

An experienced Nurse and Female Physician, presents to the attention of mothers her

SOOTHING SYRUP, FOR CHILDREN TEETHING, which greatly facilitates the process of teething, by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation--will allay all pain and spasmodic action, and is

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and

RELIEF AND HEALTH TO YOUR INFANTS.

We have put up and sold this article for over thirty years, and can say, in confidence and truth of it, what we have never been able to say of any other medicine--NEVER HAS IT FAILED, IN A SINGLE INSTANCE, TO EFFECT A CURE when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "what we do know," after thirty years' experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfillment of what we here declare. In almost every instance when the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

This valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the most EXPERIENCED and SKILLFUL NURSES in New England, and has been used with never-failing success in THOUSANDS OF CASES.

It not only relieves the child from pain, but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve and overcome convulsions, which, if not speedily remedied, end in death. We believe it the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of DYSENTERY AND DIARRHŒA IN CHILDREN, whether it arises from teething or from any other cause. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the foregoing complaints--do not let your prejudices, nor the prejudices of others, stand between your suffering child and the relief that will be SURE--yes, ABSOLUTELY SURE--to follow the use of this medicine, if timely used. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

GRIPING IN THE BOWELS, AND WIND COLIC,

Sold by Druggists throughout the world.

Principal Office, No. 48 Dey-street, New York.

Price, only 35 Cents per Bottle.

STANDARD METHODIST MUSIC BOOKS.

THE SACRED LUTE,

of which 30,000 COPIES, already published, and, with the NEW LUTE OF ZION and THE DAY SPRING, practically the acknowledged Standard Music Books of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The first named work is the newest, and perhaps the most popular of the three, but one or the other of them holds sway in almost every Methodist Choir in the country: hence the justness of calling them STANDARD METHODIST MUSIC BOOKS.

"We are indebted," says the N. Y. Evangelist, "to our Methodist brethren for many good things, but for none more than their soul-inspiring Church Music. The hymns of Charles Wesley are among the finest in the language; the style of singing which the Wesleys introduced was lively and animated, well fitted to stir the heart of the duller listener. The same spirit has remained among their followers to this day. No tedious and prosy hymns will they tolerate, no

'Linked sweetness long drawn out.'

All is sharp and clear as the sound of a morning clarion, calling the Christian soldier to awake from his slumbers and arouse to duty. When they sing, standing up together in their great congregations, they seem to have caught, and to echo back, that stirring strain:

'Tis God's all-animating voice
That calls thee from on high;
'Tis his own hand presents the prize
To thine aspiring eye.

It has often been our privilege to worship with Methodist congregations in different parts of the country, and never without special delight in this part of their services; never without feeling our hearts lifted up to God by those swelling voices that rise around us like the swelling of the sea. Many years since, when in the West and South, we attended occasionally their camp meetings; and, as the result of our experience, we take leave to say, if any one would listen to this style of singing in perfection, let him hear it, not in a church, but out of doors, in some stately grove, whose dim arches, lighted by lamps or the full moon, cover ten thousand voices, joining in the chorus, raising their united anthem to God."

"Allow me," writes an eminent Pastor, "to thank you for giving to the public that most valuable collection of Music, THE SACRED LUTE. For richness and variety of tunes, adapted to the hymn book of our Church, I have found nothing equal, or approximating to the Sacred Lute." A chorister writes: "Embracing, as it does, so many of the well known standard tunes of Dr. Lowell Mason, the Lute has also so many and so great a variety of new tunes by Mr. Bradbury, and Mr. Perkins, the author, that we like it quite as much for the new." Another: "Of its large number of new tunes, many single ones are worth the price of the book! Says one of my choir, 'when I take it up, I don't know when to lay it down.'" A striking peculiarity of the Lute is the fact, that those who commend it invariably set this seal to their sincerity—they buy and use it. "The associated choirs of this city and Brooklyn" were not, as the advertisement has it, "early to adopt it," but it is thought every one of them, or nearly so, now use it. Such are some of the evidences meeting us at every hand, in proof of the abounding excellence and effectiveness of METHODIST MUSIC, and of these volumes in particular. It is not therefore at all surprising that nearly of these Music Books are now in use throughout the length and breadth of the land—for they are known and appreciated, as well in the British Provinces as the United States.

Published by F. J. HUNTINGTON, New York; POE & HITCHCOCK, Cincinnati and Chicago; and for sale—and the last two also published—by CARLTON & PORTER, 200 Mulberry-street, New York. Price, $13 50 per dozen; $1 50 per copy, retail.

*. Single copies post free, for the retail price.

FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOLS there is no better manual than the popular and favorite Music Book,

NEW SHINING STAR,

by the author of the SACRED LUTE.

This new book increases in popularity continually. One of its admirers says: "It is the best work of the kind I have ever met with; while the music is simple, and comparatively easy of execution, it nevertheless has spirit and soul, which are indispensable in real music." Another says: "It is the best Music-Book for Sunday-schools that has yet appeared. We have thoroughly tested it in our school, and it shines more and more every Sabbath."

PRICE, in paper covers, retail, 30 cents; per hundred, $25. In boards, retail, 35 cents; per hundred, $30. Single copies by mail, postage paid, at retail price.

“In our opinion, it is the best Dictionary that either England or America can boast.”—National Quarterly Review, Oct., 1864.

“No English scholar can dispense with this work.”—Bibliotheca Sacra, Jan., 1865.

“Truly a Magnum Opus, a monument of industry, research, and erudition, worthy the most cordial recognition and the highest praise of all who write, speak, or study the English language.”—Evang. Quart. Review, Jan., 1865.

“THE NEW WEBSTER is glorious—it is perfect—it distances and defies competition—it leaves nothing to be desired. As a monument of literary labor, or as a business enterprise, magnificent in conception and almost faultless in execution, I think it equally admirable.”—J. H. Raymond, LL.D., Pres. Vassar College.

“The Dictionary as it now stands before the public is, in many respects, and tracing it from its origin, the greatest literary work which America has ever produced.”—Prof. C. E. Stowe, Nov., 1864.

“The work is really a credit to the time and to the country.”—R. Shelton Mackenzie, LL.D.

This journal is now in its sixth year. Its reputation is equal to the best of the religious periodicals of the day.

It is edited as heretofore by

Rev. GEORGE R. CROOKS, D.D.

EVERY POLICY IN THIS COMPANY IS NON-FORFEITING. No insurer CAN LOSE THE PAYMENTS made if at any time he becomes UNABLE TO CONTINUE them. HE IS ENTITLED TO ALL THE INSURANCE HIS PAID PREMIUMS CALL FOR.

After the payment of three Annual Premiums, if it becomes necessary to sell the Policy the Company will purchase it, giving an equitable value for it.

THE RATES OF INSURANCE, calculated on a basis of ABSOLUTE SAFETY, are LOWER THAN THOSE OF MOST COMPANIES.

PROFITS are divided ANNUALLY, and may be applied in payment of the premium of the succeeding year.

Insurance may be effected, payable at a certain age IF THE INSURED IS LIVING, or to his family should he die before reaching the age. A person may lose his property or become unable to labor, and NEED THE AMOUNT OF HIS POLICY NO LESS IF LIVING than HIS FAMILY WOULD IF HE WERE DEAD.

A certain sum paid secures a fixed ANNUITY FOR LIFE. Call at the office for prospectuses.

FURNACES FOR CHURCHES AND DWELLINGS.

MAGEE'S NEW PATENT Brick and Portable Furnaces,

ADAPTED TO BUILDINGS OF ALL CLASSES AND SIZES.

Certificates and References without number may be seen at the office, or by applying for a Circular. The success of this justly celebrated Furnace is probably without a parallel. No Furnaces in so short a time, and without newspaper puffing or advertising, have ever been so extensively introduced, and so favorably known. The REGULATOR, invented and patented by Mr. Magee, was the first ever applied to a Stove or Furnace for so controlling the draft as to give any desired degree of heat, and hold it for any reasonable length of time. The fire requires replenishing but seldom, and may be kept an entire season. After a trial of four years, the inventor having added such improvements as have suggested themselves, now offers to Builders, Housekeepers, and all interested, these Furnaces, as improved, in ten sizes: the No. 10 being the largest size Furnace made in the country. These Furnaces impart a very mild and summer-like heat, and it is impossible for Gas or Smoke to escape into the Hot-Air Chamber.

Address the Editor, S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York, U. S. A.

It is full of valuable information on almost every point that concerns the physical and social well-being of men, women, and children, set forth with profuse pictorial illustrations, and in a style of constant freshness and vivacity. One often finds relief from the husky meagerness of stately, learned pundits in its sparkling columns, which are always in panoramic motion, never in insipid, stationary stereotype. We regard this wide awake JOURNAL as a valuable means of family education, imparting to young readers a store of practical knowledge which will often be of more service than that which they obtain from the schoolmaster.—New York Tribune.

We have patronized the house ourselves, and received entire satisfaction, alike as to material, style, and price. FOUR FIRST PREMIUM DIPLOMAS,

Making in all SEVEN FIRST PREMIUMS bestowed upon Mr. WILLIAM B. BRADBURY within the brief space of FOUR WEEKS by the Officers of the State Fairs and by the American Institute, New York city, "FOR THE BEST PIANOS."

The Gold Medal of the American Institute was awarded "for the best Piano-Forte" by the judges, Gottschalk, Berge, Beames, and F. H. Brown, after the most strenuous efforts had been made by competing manufacturers to obtain this, the highest American prize.

Never, in the history of the trade, were so many First Premiums known to be given within so short a space of time.

The most accomplished Pianists and critics of the country have paid it the highest compliments.

STRONG INDORSEMENT.

I have examined with GREAT CARE Mr. WILLIAM B. BRADBURY'S New Scale Piano-Fortes, and it is my opinion that they are VERY SUPERIOR INSTRUMENTS.

I have especially remarked their THOROUGH WORKMANSHIP, and the power, purity, richness, and EQUALITY of their tone. I recommend, therefore, these instruments to the public in general, and doubt not of their success.

L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

New York, July 12, 1863.

We have examined with much care W. B. Bradbury's New Scale Piano-Fortes, and it is our opinion that for power, purity, richness, equality of tone and thorough workmanship, Mr. Bradbury's instruments excel. We find great brilliancy and beautiful singing quality of tone most happily blended. We have rarely seen a square piano combine so many of those qualities so essential to a PERFECT INSTRUMENT.

MASON & HAMLIN'S CABINET ORGANS,

$1,200
Each.

One

Twelve
Stops.

FOR PARLORS, CHURCHES, AND SCHOOLS.

Recognized by Musicians as unquestionably superior to all other small Organs, and everything of the Melodeon or Harmonium kind.

Among those who have given explicit testimony to this superiority of the CABINET ORGANS are such eminent Musicians as

LOWELL MASON, THOMAS HASTINGS, WM. B. BRADBURY,
GEORGE F. ROOT, L. M. GOTTSCHALK, WILLIAM MASON,
MAURICE STRAKOSCH, GEORGE W. MORGAN, JOHN ZUNDEL,
AND MORE THAN TWO HUNDRED OF THE MOST DISTINGUISHED ORGANISTS OF
THE COUNTRY.

"It is the universal opinion of the musical profession," says Mr. Fry, the distinguished musical critic of the New York Tribune, "that Messrs. Mason & Hamlin have succeeded in making a better small instrument than any other of the organ kind; that no such mechanical work of the kind can be found in Europe."

"These instruments represent the highest accomplishments of industry in this department," says the Boston Advertiser, adding, "this is not only our opinion, but the unanimous verdict of the organists."

"It is," writes Dr. Prime of the New York Observer, "a glorious instrument for the temple service, so readily secured as to be available for any congregation, and so effective as to meet the services of the most refined and fastidious."

We have been at some pains to ascertain what instrument of the many now soliciting public favor combines the greatest excellence. We have prosecuted this inquiry entirely independent of aid or direction from interested parties. The opinions of some of the best musical critics, composers, and performers have been obtained; reports of experiments made in the ordinary use of various instruments in churches, schools, and families have been compared. ALL OF WHICH with singular unanimity concur in assigning the first place to the Cabinet Organ of Mason and Hamlin—a decision that corresponds with our previously formed convictions, received from personal observations.—N. Y. Christian Advocate, 1864.

Nearly a year ago we uttered our then convictions of the value of these instruments as compared with any and all others of their class. Subsequent observations and the further testimony of competent witnesses have more than confirmed the opinions we then uttered, and the "singular unanimity" which we then noticed in favor of these instruments has since become an almost universal acclaim.—N. Y. Christian Advocate, 1865.

ENTER

SORE THROAT, COUGH, COLD,

and similar troubles, if suffered to progress, result in serious Lung, Bronchial, and Asthmatic affections, oftentimes incurable. Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough, or "common cold," in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the Lungs.

Coughs and Colds are often overlooked. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs, or some chronic Throat Disease.

reach directly the seat of the disease, and give almost instant relief.

The TROCHES are offered with the fullest confidence in their efficacy; they have been thoroughly tested, and maintain the good reputation they have justly acquired. For Public Speakers, Singers, and those who overtax the voice, they are useful in relieving an Irritated Throat, and will render articulation easy. To those exposed to sudden changes in the weather they will give prompt relief in Coughs and Colds, and can be carried in the pocket, to be taken as occasion requires.

Your Troches are too well and favorably known to need commendation.—Hon. CHAS. A. PHELPS, Pres. Mass. Senate.

I recommend their use to Public Speakers.—Rev. E. H. CHAPIN.

An elegant combination for Coughs.—Dr. G. F. BIGELOW, Boston.

I have never changed my mind respecting them from the first, excepting to think yet better of that which I began thinking well of.—Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

They have suited my case exactly, relieving my throat so that I could sing with ease.—T. DUCHARME, Chorister French Parish Church, Montreal.

OBSERVE!

There are many imitations, represented to be the same as Brown's Bronchial Troches, which are in most cases productive of injury. Many dealers will recommend inferior preparations and lower priced articles affording more profit to themselves. Be sure to obtain only Brown's Bronchial Troches, which, by long experience, have proved their value, having received the sanction of physicians generally, and testimonials from eminent men throughout the country. Sold at 35 Cents a Box by all Dealers in Medicines.

BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS,

Or Worm Lozenges.

MUCH SICKNESS, undoubtedly, with children and adults, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. The "Vermifuge Comfits," although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. This valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be safe and sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children.

CHILDREN HAVING WORMS require immediate attention, as neglect of the trouble often causes prolonged sickness.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS IN CHILDREN are often overlooked. Worms in the stomach and bowels cause irritation, which can be removed only by the use of a sure remedy. The combination of ingredients used in making "Brown's Vermifuge Comfits" is such as to give the best possible effect with safety.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS, CHEMISTS, AND DEALERS IN MEDICINES, AT

25 Cents a Box.

COUNTRY CLUBS, Hand and Wagon Peddlers, and small stores, (of which class we are supplying many thousands, all of which are doing well,) can have their orders promptly and faithfully filled; and, in case of clubs, can have each party's name marked on their packages as directed, by sending their orders to Nos. 31 and 33 Vessey-street.

Our friends are getting up clubs in most towns throughout the country, and for which we feel very grateful. Some of our clubs send orders weekly, some not so often, while others keep a standing order to be supplied with a given quantity each week or at stated periods. And in all cases (where a sufficient time has elapsed) Clubs have repeated their orders.

Parties sending Club or other orders for less than thirty dollars, had better send Post-office Drafts or money with their orders, to save the expense of collections by express; but larger orders we will forward by express, to collect on delivery.

We return thanks to parties who have taken an interest in getting up clubs. And when any of them come to New York, we shall be pleased to have them call upon us and make themselves known.

Hereafter we will send a complimentary package to the party getting up the club. Our profits are small, but we will be as liberal as we can afford. We send no complimentary package for Clubs of less than $30.

P. S. All villages and towns where a large number reside, by clubbing together, can reduce the cost of their Teas and Coffees about one-third by ending directly to the

GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY,

METHODIST ALMANAC

FOR THE YEAR OF OUR LORD

1867.

BEING THE 91st YEAR OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE,

AND THE

101st OF AMERICAN METHODISM.

New York:
PUBLISHED BY CARLTON & PORTER,
200 MULBERRY-STREET.

CENTENARY HYMN.

BY BISHOP JAMES.

O God! with praise we own thy power,
Which signaled the auspicious hour

A hundred years ago:

Thy truth was sown in faith, with prayer,
Watered with tears, and watched with care,

A hundred years ago.

Its ministers were made by thee,
As from their work 'twas plain to see,

A hundred years ago.

The witness in themselves they found,
That Jesus' stripes had healed their wound,

A hundred years ago.

They preached, impelled by love and fear,
With burdened heart and falling tear,

A hundred years ago;

However great the cross was made,
Necessity was on them laid,

A hundred years ago.

Without a note, without a gown,
They preached with power from heaven

A hundred years ago; [sent down,

God called the men, the unction gave,
And that was why the truth did save,

A hundred years ago.

God by his servants wonders wrought,
Souls dead in sin to life were brought,

A hundred years ago:

The fact they by the Spirit knew;
Their fruits to others proved it true,

A hundred years ago.

Each one a living flame became,
Revealing far the Saviour's name,

A hundred years along;

Each one for Christ a witness stood,
And testified of Jesus' blood,

A hundred years along.

The ground, the seed, the sowing good,
Rich has the waving harvest stood

A hundred years along;

Each year increased the gathered sheaves,
Each weeping prophet his receives,

A hundred years along.

Marshaled by Christ, a mighty host,
And full of faith and Holy Ghost,

A hundred years at end;

With armor on, and sword in hand,
Still panting for the fight they stand,

A hundred years begun

O God, to all thy blessing give,
That each may to "thy glory live"

The hundred years begun;

Our counsels guide, our labors bless,
Till earth is full of holiness,

The hundred years begun.

The Planets.

VENUS at the close of the year 1866 shows beautifully as a morning star, increasing in splendor until the 17th of January, when the area of its illuminated disc is greatest. It rises then about 4h. 23m. morning. On the 20th of February it reaches its greatest departure or elongation from the Sun west, from whence it moves off toward the Sun and superior conjunction, with daily decreasing light and size, and becomes lost in the Sun's light on the 25th of September, being then furthest from the Earth, and its disc, if visible, will be a perfect circle. After this date it will soon appear as evening star, low in the west soon after sunset, and daily appearing further east of the Sun. On the 1st of January it will be northeast of Antares; on the 5th of February it enters Sagittarius; and March 8 it will be 3° south of β Capricorn, and April 4 it will be 9° south of γ Aquarii, the brightest star in the Urn.

MARS will appear largest January 10, when in opposition, being then nearest the Earth, and its diameter about four times as large as when at its conjunction. January 1 it will be nearly in a line with Castor and Pollux, southeast of them. On the 7th of January it will be 2½° south of Pollux, and on the 14th 6° south of Castor, and on the 7th of April it will be back again due south of Pollux, but now 4½° south of it, and 18° north of Procyon. After June the planet will be rather inconspicuous.

JUPITER will be very interesting after the 1st of June, and on the 26th of August it will be largest, being at its opposition, and appearing three times as large as Mars did on the 10th of January. December 9 it will be 10° due south of the brightest star in the Urn.

SATURN will be in Libra nearly all of the year, northwest of Antares, and will be brightest at the opposition May 12th.

ASTRONOMICAL SIGNS EXPLAINED.

♂ Mercury, ♀ Venus, ♂ Mars, ♃ Jupiter, ♄ Saturn, ☿ Uranus, ♆ Neptune, ☾ Moon, ☿ opposition, or half a circle apart, ☐ quadrature, or quarter of a circle apart, ♂ conjunction, or together, having the Right Ascension; the word near, used above, means the same, and indicates that the two bodies are then on a line running from the North Pole through both. Gr. elong., greatest elongation, or furthest distance from the sun; Stationary, when the planet is without apparent motion, and is about to move in a direction contrary to that it had last. The above table enables us to find the planets throughout the year.

Astronomy and Ancient Dates.

ASTRONOMERS have been enabled to fix the dates of many events in ancient history by means of the natural phenomena recorded in connection with them by historians. Thus a battle between the Medes and the Lydians is proved to have been fought May 28, B. C. 585; for there was a total eclipse of the sun during its progress, and unerring calculations prove that the only eclipse total in Asia Minor at that era was on the day above named.

Directions for Finding the True Time.

THE SUN is on the meridian at 12 o'clock on four days only in the year. It is sometimes as much as 16½ minutes before or after twelve when its shadow strikes the noon-mark on the sun-dial. On each calendar page of this Almanac is shown the exact time when the Sun reaches the meridian, or the shadow the noon-mark; and in order to set a clock or watch correctly, it must, when it is noon by the sun-dial or noon-mark, be set at the time indicated in the Almanac. Thus, on the 25th of January, when the Sun is on the noon-mark, the watch must be set 12 minutes and 34 seconds past twelve, which will be the true time. The practice of setting time-pieces by the rising or setting of the Sun or Moon is not strictly correct; as the unevenness of the Earth's surface and intervening objects, such as hills and forests, near the points of rising and setting, occasion a deviation, in every place, from the time expressed in the Almanac, which time is adapted to a smooth, level horizon. The only means of keeping correct time is by the use of a noon-mark, or a meridian-line.

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night.

At any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the Sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

Official Weekly Papers.

EIGHT weekly papers are published in the interest of the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the authority and under the direction of the General Conference, their editors and publishers being appointed by that body, namely, the Christian Advocate at New York, the Western Christian Advocate at Cincinnati, Ohio, the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate at Pittsburgh, Pa., the Northern Christian Advocate at Auburn, N. Y., the Northwestern Christian Advocate at Chicago, Ill. the Central Christian Advocate at St. Louis, Mo., the California Christian Advocate at San Francisco, Cal., the Pacific Christian Advocate at Portland, Oregon, and the Christian Apologist at Cincinnati. Zion's Herald is at least semi-official, the General Conference having authorized the bishops to appoint a preacher to edit it.

Most of these papers were started or assumed by the General Conference at the earnest request of the preachers and people around their respective localities, when it was highly probable that they would have to be a tax upon the Book Concerns for a time, as they actually have been, but it was thought that our cause demanded the sacrifice. They were all started in good faith, relying upon the traveling preachers as agents, (every one of whom has accepted the office before his Conference,) and upon the people as friends and patrons. All the profits, if any were made, were to enure to the benefit of the denomination.

This, then, is the plan of the Church for publishing these papers. The preachers are her agents to circulate them. She has appointed no others. They are her only reliance. If they give their influence to opposition or competing papers, to the neglect of these, the whole scheme is defeated. How can they do it? If the plan is wrong, let it be amended. They are the men to do it through the General Conference. But while it is in force it seems to us that we should rigidly adhere to it.

It is said that our papers are higher than others. We answer, In no case is this true, except where they insert more advertisements, and charge for Church notices, which we publish gratis. If it were true, would that justify agents in withholding their services? Our people might in many cases get good preaching from other denominations for less than they now pay, but is that a good reason for their turning away from our ministry?

Agents have complained that we do not offer as large premiums as others. Do they not overlook our commission? But suppose we do not. Does this justify them in ignoring their responsibilities, and turning their people over to other publishers, to whom they are not committed? Some ministers have left our Church, and given their services to others, who offered larger salaries. What does the reader think of them? Should any one of our official papers offer higher premiums in the shape of sewing machines, etc., and thus draw heavily upon the others, what would the publishers of those papers think of the measure? If we were independent, we should care little of what they might think. But we are collaborators in the same cause, and under a special arrangement. Hence such an operation would breed contention among us at once. The best interests of the Church require that we all stand up firmly to the Church's plan, and do our duty as true Methodists. If we will all do this we can publish more, and better, and cheaper papers than any other people.

Shall we stand together on this platform? If we scatter our influence and labors, some of these papers will have to be suspended. If one class may infringe this part of our system, another may invade our Missionary, Sunday-school, and Tract arrangements, and give their influence to conflicting organizations. In union there is strength. Let us enter upon the second century of our career strong in God and in our denominational unity, and leave doubtful experiments to independents, who are not committed to these grand interests as we are.

CARLTON & PORTER, POE & HITCHCOCK, AGENTS.

Statistical Returns of the M. E. Church for 1866.

I. ANNUAL CONFERENCES.—Of these there are 64, an increase of four over the previous year. At their recent session the Bishops made provision for the organization of 8 new ones, making a total, for the year 1867, of 67; an increase, over 1865, of seven.

II. PREACHERS.—The number of traveling preachers is 7,876, an increase over the previous year of 401. Of these 6,287 are effective, (that is, taking full work to which they are assigned by the bishops,) 881 are supernumerary, and 408 are returned superannuated. During the year 77 traveling preachers located and 80 died, and 639 were admitted on trial. The number of local preachers is 8,602, an increase of 209. The total ministerial force, not including the bishops, is 16,178, being net increase of 610. Philadelphia Conference has the largest number of traveling ministers, viz. 271, and Colorado the smallest, namely 9. In local preachers Philadelphia also excels, having 351; Nevada reports only 6, which is the smallest number.

III. MEMBERSHIP.—The total membership reported is 1,032,184, an increase during the year of 102,925, over eleven per cent. The number of baptisms stands thus: adults 47,419; children 35,536; total 82,955, being an increase of 18,269 adults and 2,645 children, or a total increase of baptisms of 20,914. During the year 12,214 members died. Those are not included above. If we add this number to that showing the increase, we find that during the year at least 115,139 persons united with the Methodist Episcopal Church.

IV. CHURCH EDIFICES AND PARSONAGES.—The number of churches (houses of worship) is 10,462 being an increase of 420. The estimated total value is $29,594,004, an increase of $2,843,502. The number of parsonages is 3,314, valued at $4,420,958—an increase of 171 in number, and of $24,277 in value. The total value of Church edifices and parsonages is $34,014,962, being an increase of $2,867,729.

V. BENEVOLENT COLLECTIONS.—The following are the summaries of the contributions for the principal benevolent causes, omitting all receipt from legacies: for Conference claimants, (worn-out preachers, and widows and orphans of ministers who have died in the work,) $107,892—an increase of $14,743; for Missionary society, $671,090—an increase of 69,025; for Tract society $23,349—an increase of $1,026; for American Bible society, $107,238—an increase of $5,495; for Sunday-school Union $19,850—an increase of $782. The total contributions for these causes is $929,221. This is an increase over the returns of 1865 of $91,073.

VI. SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.—Total schools 14,045, an increase of 96; officers and teachers, 162,191, an increase of 8,492; scholars 980,622, an increase of 48,898; volumes in library 2,644,291, an increase of 169,195. The Sunday-school Advocate at the close of the volume in October issued a regular edition of over 300,000 copies, a large increase over the subscription list of the preceding year.

VII.—COMPARATIVE PROGRESS.—By examining the official returns of the Conferences for the whole Century, and comparing them by decades, from 1766, we have the following table:

Year.	Traveling Preachers.	Increase of Preachers.	Members.	Increase of Members.
1766
1776	24		4,921	4,921
1786	117	53	20,689	15,768
1796	293	176	56,664	35,975
1806	452	159	130,570	73,906
1816	695	243	214,235	83,665
1826	1,406	711	300,800	146,565
1836	2,923	1,522	650,103	289,303
1846	3,582	654	644,229*	Dec. 5,874
1856	5,877	2,295	800,327	156,098
1866	7,576	1,699	1,032,184	231,857

*By the withdrawal and separation of Southern Conferences in 1844, organizing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Episcopal Church lost 1,345 traveling preachers, and 495,288 members, and yet so rapid was her growth during the decade, that at its close (two years after the separation) there was a net gain of 654 preachers, and a lack of only 5,874 members of making up the number lost.

CENTENARY.—At the date of making up these pages, the returns of the Centenary collections are just coming in, and it is therefore too early to give results. The contributions thus far reach the sum of about three million dollars. The year 1866—the Centenary of American Methodism—has been one of extraordinary spiritual and financial prosperity to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Thirty-four new volumes were added to the libraries during the year. The whole number of books in the Youth's Library is now 750.

The amount of printing for Sunday-school books and periodicals was equivalent to 493,073,250 pages 18mo., or over 2,465,000 volumes of 200 pages each.

The number of books bound or put up in paper packages or covers was 1,329,300.

The Sunday-School Journal for teachers and young people is beautifully printed, and is filled with just such matter as our teachers and young people ought to read. It has had a prosperous year, reaching a circulation of 22,000. The highest point to which the circulation of the Sunday-School Advocate reached was 304,500, an increase of 16,300 over the previous year. The average semi-monthly circulation was 274,750. The whole number of copies of the paper printed during the year was 6,594,000. The total number of pages was 27,376,000.

From the General Minutes of 1866 we take the following returns: Schools, 14,054; officers and teachers, 162,191; scholars, 980,662; volumes in libraries, 2,644,291.

Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Office, 200 Mulberry-street, New York.

Rev. D. WISE, D.D., Cor. Secretary; Rev. J. PORTER, D.D., Treasurer, New York; J. M. PHILLIPS, Assistant Treasurer, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE following items are taken from the Annual Report for January 1, 1866:

The receipts for the year 1865 amounted to $15,050 28, or $2,448 37 in excess of the receipts of 1864. The disbursements were $13,636 25.

The Society is continuing the good work of supplying our Churches with tracts and Good News for local circulation. Tract Committees are supplied liberally, and at no time in her history has our Church been so active in this work as at present.

The average monthly issue of the Good News during the past year was 74,600. The total number of copies printed was 894,000.

Sixteen new tracts were added to the list during the year. The whole number of pages of tracts printed was 10,544,000. Add to these the number of pages of tracts contained in the Good News, (counting each number of the paper as equivalent to thirty pages of an ordinary tract,) 26,820,000, and we have a total of 37,364,000 pages.

The Society is in a really prosperous condition. Its income is enlarging, it has a solvent treasury, and a wide field for usefulness. It is a power for good both at home and in foreign lands.

Our Foreign work is also cultivated. A grant of $500 was made to Germany, and several smaller grants to South America and Scandinavia.

A Home Welcome.

Sweet is the smile of home; the mutual look
Where hearts are of each other sure:
Sweet all the joys that crowd the household nook,
The haunt of all affections pure.—KEBLE.

O happy home! O bright and cheerful hearth!
Look round with me, my lover, friend, and wife,
On these fair faces we have lit with life,
And in the perfect blessing of their birth,
Help me to live our thanks for so much heaven and earth.—TUPPER.

Domestic happiness, . . .
Thou art the nurse of virtue; in thine arms
She smiles, appearing, as in truth she is,
Heaven-born, and destined to the skies again.—COWPER.

Wives and children, with fair and thoughtful faces, waiting, watching for a well-known footstep in the passage.—LONGFELLOW.

A Child's Beautiful Saying.

LITTLE girl beholding a rose bush where, on the topmost stem, the oldest rose was falling, while below and around it three beautiful rosebuds were unfolding their charms, at once and artlessly exclaimed to her brother, "See, Willie, those little buds have just awakened in time to kiss their mother before she dies."

This was a most beautiful saying, indicating a discriminating mind of great power.

A LITTLE boy sat beside his mother repeating the hymn, "There is a fountain filled with blood," and when he came to the verse,

The dying thief rejoiced to see
That fountain in his day;
And there may I, though vile as he,
Wash all my sins away.

his mother asked, "Have you washed all your sins away, my dear A." The child looked up with a sweet smile, and said, "No, mamma, I have not, but the dear Lord Jesus has washed all my sins away." He saw his mother's lips move, and said, "Whom are you talking to, mamma?" She replied, "I was asking the Lord to bless the word papa is now preaching to the poor sinners who are hearing him." "I will ask him too," he said; and kneeling down, he prayed, "Dear Lord Jesus, bless the words papa is speaking about you to poor sinners."

Artless Christian Testimony.

"ARE you a sinner?" inquired a gentleman of a little girl of five years, to whom he was talking.

She promptly replied, "No, sir."

"But have you never done anything that was wrong?"

"O yes, sir, a great many times."

"How, then, can you say you are not a sinner?"

"It is taken away," she replied.

And when the gentleman further inquired who had taken it away, the simple reply was, "I have trusted in Christ," which is the sum and substance of the whole matter.

Tokens of Friendship—A Child's Estimate.

AFTER preaching in one of the beautiful villages in Western New York, we accompanied the pastor to the parsonage. On entering we were met by two little girls of about four and six years of age, who smilingly reached out their little hands and then made us both welcome with a loving kiss. We were scarcely seated when the younger one seemed to be lost in thinking about some strange thing. After a little she ran up to her mother, saying very earnestly,

"Ma, I don't love God!"

"Why, my dear?" said her mother hurriedly and with surprise.

"Because, ma, he never kisses me."

Welcoming the New Year.

WE once heard of a lively little girl, who asked her mother to let her stay up till twelve o'clock at night on the last day of the year. What do you think it was for? She wanted to open the window in order to let the old year out and the new year in!

A Little Philosopher.

"PAPA," said the son of Bishop Berkeley, "what is the meaning of the words cherubim and seraphim, which we meet in the Holy Scriptures?" "Cherubim," replied his father, "is a Hebrew word, signifying knowledge; seraphim is another word of the same language, and signifies flame. Whence it is supposed that the cherubim are angels who excel in knowledge, and that the seraphim are angels likewise who excel in loving God." "I hope, then," said the little boy, "when I die I shall be a seraph; for I would rather love God than know all things."

Innocence in Repose.

"TAKE care of the children; nor wasted
Is care on the weakest of these.
The culturer the product has tasted,
And found it the palate to please.
There are sheaves pushing higher and faster,
And age has more branches and roots;
But dearer are none to the Master
Than childhood in blossoms and fruits.—TAPPAN.

 Little Things and Little People.

LITTLE things and little people have often brought great things to pass. The large world in which we exist is made up of little particles as small as sands on the sea-shore. The vast sea is composed of small drops of water. The little busy bees, how much honey they gather! Do not be discouraged because you are little. A little star shines brightly in the sky on a dark night, and may be the means of saving many a poor sailor from shipwreck; and a little Christian may do a great deal of good if he or she will try.—Dr. Chalmers.

Beautiful Extract.

THE loved ones whose loss I lament are still in existence; they are living with me at this very time; they are, like myself, dwelling in the great parental mansion of God; they still belong to me, as I to them. As they are ever in my thoughts, so, perhaps, am I in theirs. As I mourn for their loss, perhaps they rejoice in anticipation of our reunion. What to me is still dark, they see clearly. Why do I grieve because I can no longer enjoy their pleasant society? During their lifetime I was not discontented because I could not always have them around me. If a journey took them from me, I was not therefore unhappy. And why is it different now? They have gone on a journey. Whether they are living on earth in a far distant city, or in some higher world in the infinite universe of God, what difference is there? Are we not still in the same house of the Father, like loving brothers who inhabit separate rooms?—Rowan.

Domestic Love.

Domestic love! not in proud palace halls
Is often seen thy beauty to abide.
Thy dwelling is in lowly cottage walls,
That in the thickets of the woodbine hide,
With hum of bees around; and from the side
Of woody hills some little bubbling spring,
Shining along through banks with harebells dyed;
And many a bird to warble on the wing,
When Morn her saffron robe o'er heaven and earth doth fling.

O love of loves! to thy white hand is given
Of earthly happiness the golden key;
Thine are the joyous hours of Winter's even,
When the babes cling around their father's knee;
And thine the voice that on the midnight sea
Melts the rude mariner with thoughts of home,
Peopling the gloom with all he longs to see.
Spirit! I've built a shrine, and thou hast come,
And on its altar closed—forever closed thy plume!

Closing Hours of Wesley.

On the 28th of June, 1790, John Wesley wrote: "This day I enter into my eighty-eighth year. For nearly eighty-six years I found none of the infirmities of o'd age; my eyes did not wax dim, neither was my natural strength abated. But last August I found almost a sudden change; my strength, likewise, quite forsook me, and probably will not return in this world. But I feel no pain from head to foot; only it seems nature is exhausted, and, humanly speaking, will sink more and more until 'the weary springs of life stand still at last.'" His last sermon was preached on Wednesday, February 23, 1791, from the words, "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near." He died on the following Wednesday morning, February 30, after a ministry of sixty-five years. For fifty-two years he preached generally twice each day, and often three or four times in a day. It is estimated that his sermons numbered over forty thousand five hundred. His closing hours were rich with holy joy and triumphant experience. Among his last expressions was this: "The best of all is God is with us." His last word was "Farewell."

Sunday at Home.

SABBATHS, like waymarks, cheer the pilgrim's path, indicate his progress, and keep his rest in view. They are the pleasant days in life's bleak winter, and the brief foretastes of the enduring spring to come. The Sabbath bells chime angels' music, and invite to precious communings in God's earthly temples. Heed the voice of love; go early; with holy sympathies commune with Christian hearts at holy altars. At home, forget not the Sabbath's purpose, nor the value of its spiritual rest. Open God's book, and read, and learn more fully the will, and gifts, and promises of heaven.

Our Sabbaths.

BRIGHT shadows of true rest! some shoots of bliss! heaven once a week;
The next world's gladness prepossessed in this; a day to seek Eternity in time; the steps by which
 We climb above all ages; lamps that light
 Man through his heap of dark days; and the rich
 And full redemption of the whole week's flight.

The pulleys unto headlong man; time's bower;
 The narrow way;
 Transplanted paradise; God's walking hour;
 The cool o' the day;
 The creature's jubilee; God's parle with dust;
 Heaven here; man on those hills of myrrh, of flowers;
 Angels descending; the returns of trust;
 A gleam of glory after six days' showers;
 The Church's love-feasts; time's prerogative
 And interest
 Deducted from the whole; the combs and hive;
 A home of rest;
 The milky-way chalked out with suns; a clue
 That guides through erring hours, and in full story;
 A taste of heaven on earth; the pledge and cue
 Of a full feast, and the out-courts of glory.—VAUGHAN, 1695.

Beautiful Religion.

BEAUTIFUL religion! which, kneeling before the cross and the altar, feels the outgushing inspiration of love for the souls of distant and unknown men, and clasps in the faith of brotherhood those upon whose faces we have never looked; which converts the price of selfish and useless luxuries into riches of wisdom for the poor in knowledge; which goes forth with a martyr's heroism to win victories of mercy over ransomed minds; which pursues its triumphal way to the heavenly gate, surrounded and followed, not by bloody trophies and chained captives, but by thankful penitents, widows smiling in their sackcloth, orphans rosy with joy, and heathen blessing the name of Jesus! What have arms, arts, letters, philosophy, like this?

Old Proverbs.

SPEECH is silver; silence is golden.
 The world is his who has patience.
 Laziness is the devil's cushion.
 Providence does not run on broken wheels.
 The borrower is servant to the lender.
 There is no royal road to geometry.
 Do the duty that lies nearest.
 One keep-clean is worth two make-cleans.
 The morning hour has gold in its mouth.
 Better bow your head than break your neck.
 One small candle may light a thousand.
 Don't cross a bridge till you come to it.
 The mind has more room in it than most people think.
 False confidences always fail in time of need.
 Bigotry murders religion, to frighten fools with her ghost.
 When we are masters of ourselves, we are masters of the world.
 Words are but poor fig-leaves to cover the nakedness of deeds.

Home Instruction.

Delightful task! to rear the tender thought,
To teach the young idea how to shoot,
To pour the fresh instruction o'er the mind,
To breath the enlightening spirit, and to fix
The generous purpose in the glowing breast!—COWPER.

Was not our Lord a little child,
Taught by degrees to pray,
By father dear and mother mild
Instructed day by day?
And loved He not of heaven to talk
With children in his sight,
To meet them in his daily walk,
And to his arms invite?—KEBLE.

How delightful the task, when faithfully and heartily undertaken, of pouring fresh instruction into the young mind, and awakening generous purposes in the glowing breast.

Thanks at Table—Parental Example.

MOTHER had two dear little boys, the younger not yet three years old. Great care had been taken by the parents to set a good example before them, and in all things to teach them to do right. It was the custom of the father to always ask a blessing before partaking of food. One day, as they were gathered round the family board, the little ones by their side, the father said to the mother, "You ask a blessing this time." She dropped her head and replied, "I do not feel as if I could."

Several days passed; the children in their play one day had set their little table with dishes, placed on it the food their mother had given them, and seating them-selves to partake of it, the older one said to the younger, who had not yet seen three full summers, "You ask the blessing to-day." The little one replied in the very language the mother had used, "I do not feel as if I could." The mother was near, and had heard her own refusal to thank God for his blessings repeated by her dear child, whom she did not think quite old enough to understand. She said, "I never felt so rebuked for my unfaithfulness in all my life."

A Wesleyan Relic.

It is said that in the parsonage where Wesley died, many things remain as they were left by him. Among other things shown to visitors is a tea-pot, holding about two quarts, made to Mr. Wesley's order, and bearing on opposite sides the inscriptions:

"Be present at our table, Lord;
Be here, as everywhere, adored.
Thy creatures bless; and grant that we May feast in paradise with thee."

"We thank the Lord for this our food,
But more because of Jesus' blood:
Let manna to our souls be given;
The bread of life sent down from heaven."

In many private families, and at numerous public tea-meetings in England, these stanzas are still used, being sung or repeated.

Our Great Example.

AND Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they would.—JOHN vi, 11.

Directions for Spending the Day.

1. BEGIN the day with God.
2. Be conscientious and diligent in the business of the day.
3. Be moderate and innocent in the recreations of the day.
4. Carefully remark, and wisely improve, all providential dispensations.
5. Guard against the temptations of the day.
6. Govern your thoughts when alone.
7. Guard your tongue well in company.
8. In everything depend on the assisting grace of God. Whatever be the work in hand, whether sacred or civil, whether temple work, domestic work, public work, or closet work, seek divine assistance.
9. Close the day with self-examination and prayer.

Family Devotion.

THEN, kneeling down, to heaven's Eternal King
The saint, the father, and the husband prays;
Hope "springs exultant on triumphant wing,"
That thus they all shall meet in future days.—BURNS.

THERE is no exercise more appropriate, or scene more beautiful, than that of family worship. The Scripture lesson is first read, for all would hear the words of the wise Teacher; then, with obedient wills and loving hearts, the humble posture of the Christian worshiper is assumed, and submissive adoration, grateful thanksgiving, and confident supplication bring all hearts into sympathy, and union with the great Father. The influence of such worship in subduing and elevating our social and moral being is of infinite value.

PRAYER is a ladder which the soul
Must mount to reach the heavenly goal,
Prayer is a bridge to travel o'er,
Fast linked to the celestial shore.
Prayer is a bark that wafts our fears,
Our sighs, our penitential tears,
Our hopes, our thanks, our praise, our love,
Insured to Mercy's port above.
Prayer is a shield, secure and strong,
Protecting us from sin and wrong.
Prayer is a key of might and power,
Opening for us, in Death's dark hour,
An entrance into light and joy,
To bliss supreme without alloy.
Where the Redeemer on his throne
Receives and welcomes all his own;
Where saints and holy angels sing
Increasing praises to their King.

How precious the privilege given to the pious, of sending, by the carrier dove of prayer, holy words to heaven!

A Heavenly Concert.

OW there is in preparation a grand concert of music, which will infinitely surpass those of earth. None but performers will be admitted there, and none shall unite in that concert who have not learned the song of Moses and the Lamb. Instead of an orchestra of sixty performers, unnumbered millions with golden harps will join the grand chorus, and the thundering notes of the cherubim and seraphim will break forth in a strain that shall awaken the universe. Miriam, the sweet songstress of Israel, will rise to sweeter, higher notes than when she sung that song of deliverance on the banks of the Red Sea. David will sweep his golden lyre in strains to mortal ears unknown. Thousands upon thousands of redeemed sinners will there sing loudly and joyously. Reader, thou art invited to this concert.

Ministers' Right to Vote.

REV. MR. FIELD, who lived in Vermont several years ago, went to deposit his vote. The officer who received it being a friend and parishioner, but of opposition politics, remarked,

"I am sorry, Mr. Field, to see you here."

"Why?" asked Mr. Field.

"Because," said the officer, "Christ and his kingdom were not of this world."

"Has no one a right to vote," said Mr. Field, "unless he belongs to the kingdom of Satan?"

Choice Sayings.

AN angel's harp requires an angel's touch.

Always try to judge others by their circumstances, and not by yours; try to look at their conduct from their point of view.

The soul in its highest devotion is content to repose in the thought of God, asking nothing, seeking nothing, the whole being concentrated in the one unuttered desire, "Thy will be done."

Love is the only sure remedy for slander. It is infallible.

We have no right to do as we please unless we please to do right.

Don't borrow trouble. It is better to suffer the worst that may happen once, than to live in perpetual fear of it.

In childhood always be modest, in youth temperate, in manhood just, in old age patient, in all estates of life pious.

If you wish to do good, do good; if you wish to assist people, assist people. The only way to learn to do a thing is to do it.

It is better to be the founder of a great name than its unworthy survivor. When a marshal of France was reminded by others of the obscurity of his birth, he proudly replied, "I am my own ancestor."

God does not require us to tremble and be afraid, as if we were living in a world without foundation; but to trust, as those who live in a world founded in his word, and having the support of his loving will.

That will break a proud man's heart which will scarcely break an humble man's sleep.

Two things there are indicative of a weak mind: to be silent when it is proper to speak, and to speak when it is proper to be silent.

Human life is a constant want, and ought to be a constant prayer.

Have you made many mistakes? Then organize victory out of them.

Doing Good.

'Tis a little thing
 To give a cup of water; yet its draught
 Of cool refreshment, drained by fevered lips,
 May give a shock of pleasure to the frame
 More exquisite than when nectarean juice
 Renews the life of joy in happiest hours.—TALFOURD.

THOUSANDS of men breathe, move, and live, pass off the stage of life and are heard of no more. Why? None were blessed by them; none could point to them as the means of their redemption; not a line they wrote, not a word they spoke, could be recalled, and so they perished; their light went out in darkness, and they were not remembered more than insects of yesterday! Will you thus live and die, O man immortal! Remember that the condemnation from the lips of the great Judge in that day will be, as he himself has told us, "YE DID IT NOT." Live for something. Do good, and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storms of time can never destroy. Write your name, by kindness, love, and mercy, on the hearts of thousands you come in contact with, year by year, and you will never be forgotten!

Reading Aloud in the Family.

BOOKS and periodicals should be angels in every household. They are urns to bring us the golden fruits of thought and experience from other minds and other lands. As the fruits of the trees of the earth's soil are most enjoyed around the family board, so should those that grow upon mental and moral boughs be gathered around by the entire household. No home exercise could be more appropriate and pleasing than for one member to read aloud for the benefit of all. If parents would introduce this exercise in their families, they would soon see the levity and giddiness that made up the conversation of too many circles giving way to refinement and dignity. Read to your children, and encourage them to read to you, instead of reading your papers and books in silence, and in silence laying them away. Encourage the asking of questions concerning the subject about which you read. Take time for this. Remember that no labor brings more important returns. The home circle will be rendered more attractive, and its enjoyments will be certainly sought for.

Half of the Widow's Mite.

A GENTLEMAN called upon a rich friend for some charity.

"Yes, I must give you my mite," said the rich man.

"Do you mean the widow's mite?" asked the solicitor.

"Certainly," was the answer.

"I shall be satisfied with half as much as she gave," said his friend. "How much are you worth?"

"Seventy thousand dollars."

"Give me, then, your check for thirty-five thousand, that will be half as much as the widow gave; for she, you know, gave her all."

The rich man was cornered. Convetous people often try to shelter themselves behind the widow's mite, and under the cover of her contribution give meanly to the Redeemer's cause. Her example, indeed, rightly interpreted, would pluck selfishness out of the soul, and fill to overflowing the channels of true benevolence.

The Four Seasons of Life.

I CAME at Morn—'twas Spring; I smiled;

The fields with green were clad:

I walked abroad at Noon, and, lo!

'Twas Summer; I was glad.

I sat me down; 'twas Autumn eve,

And I with sadness wept:

I laid me down at Night, and then

'Twas Winter, and I slept!

Home Temper—Instructive.

THE following is said to be a gentleman's "Diary" of his wife's temper. Perhaps some wives—if disposed to do so—might present a similar exhibit of their husband's social manifestations. The scene described is not enchanting, but the diary is suggestive:

"Monday—A thick fog; no seeing through it. Tuesday—Gloomy and very chilly; unseasonable weather. Wednesday—Frosty, at times sharp. Thursday—Bitter cold in the morning, red sunset, with flying clouds, portending hard weather. Friday—Storm in the morning, with peals of thunder; air clear afterward. Saturday—Gleams of sunshine, with a partial thaw; frost again at night. Sunday—A light south-wester in the morning; calm and pleasant at dinner-time; hurricane and earthquake at night."

Helping Mother.

BE good, sweet maids, and let who will be clever;
 Do noble things, not dream them, all day long;
 And so make life, death, and that vast forever,
 One grand, sweet song.

A Word for Little Children.

Who is lovely? It is the little child who drops sweet words, kind remarks, and pleasant smiles; who has a kind word of sympathy for every girl or boy in trouble, and a kind hand to help companions out of difficulty; who never scolds, never contends, never teases mother, nor seeks in any way to diminish, but always to increase, her happiness. Would it not please you to pick up a string of pearls, drops of gold, diamonds, or precious stones, as you pass along the street? But these are the precious stones which can never be lost. Help your parents. Take the hand of the friendless. Smile on the sad and dejected. Sympathize with those in trouble. Strive everywhere to diffuse around you sunshine and joy.

Scripture Enigmas.

WHOSE younger son was by his brother slain ?
 Who from a prisoner hoped a bride to gain ?
 What listening damsel heard a longed-for tone ?
 Whom did his mother leave to die alone ?
 Where with their Lord did two apostles go ?
 What churl no generous sympathy can know ?
 Who gave a great apostle bitter pain,
 Deserted him, and joined the world again ?

By these initials find a boon which we should highly prize;
 Which dearer and more blessed grows as clouds and tempests rise.

WHERE died a patriarch's long beloved wife ?
 Whence did King Solomon his gold obtain ?
 Where passed two years of an apostle's life
 In useful labor, though in captive's chain ?

By these initials find a mount on which a good man died,
 Who climbed the height to meet his end, his dear ones by his side.

WHO favor to a faithful slave did show ?
 For whom did good St. Paul right nobly plead ?
 Who, when her husband called her, would not go ?
 Who sold his birthright in a trifling need ?
 Who bravely watched beside her household slain ?
 What man was weak in faith but strong in love ?
 Who would desire to wisdom to attain,
 And prize her wealth all other wealth above ?

By these initials something find,
 In which full many a saint resigned,
 Contented lives and dies:
 But which is full of bitter things,
 When out of idleness it springs,
 Or doth from folly rise.

WHAT father, chastening not his sons, expired in anguish keen ?
 What early Christian fell away enslaved by lucre mean ?
 What prophet prophesied of Christ more than all seers beside ?
 What sister watched an infant fair, lest danger should betide ?
 What king was perfect toward his God, and won a stainless fame ?
 And whose blest teaching of her son earned her an honored name ?
 A prophet by what river's brink a wondrous vision saw ?
 And from what mountain's lofty height was thundered forth the Law ?
 Who, by a worldly choice, once dwelt 'midst men of God abhorred ?
 Who of her substance ministered unto her suffering lord ?
 And what starved helpless sufferer on earth was sore distressed,
 Till borne on angel wings to heaven to share its glorious rest ?

The final letters of these names

An ancient race recall ;
 Mighty and lawless, free and proud,
 At variance with all.

Their faith foretold, their blessing given,
 Before their sire had birth,
 They witness still to God's sure word
 Amid the tribes of earth.

Scripture Illustrations.

A Scripture Enigma.

Eight letters form my whole : take two, and say now where
 A king from priestly house once called a maiden fair
 To be the wife of noble lord of wisdom rare.
 My whole, heir to a throne—a king he ne'er became :
 Good son, good friend was he : his virtues were his fame ;
 Sacred to Israel's bard his memory and his name.

Health Suggestions and Simple Remedies.

HOW TO CATCH COLD.—Go to bed with cold feet; stand on the street and chat with a friend in a cool evening after a warming walk; stand without overclothing in an open hall door, and linger farewells with a friend who has visited you; or sit in the open window of a warm room. These prescriptions are infallible.

HOW TO CURE A COLD.—At night thoroughly soak the feet in as warm water as may be borne; then put bountiful drafts on the feet, by this means keeping them warm as possible.

COUGHING.—The paroxysm of coughing may often be prevented or cured by using a little dry salt as a gargle. Let those who doubt try it. It will relieve the tickling in the throat.

POULTICES.—Those use of poultices is to promote warmth and moisture; hence those which keep warm and moist the longest are the best. Cold light wheat bread, soaked in sweet milk, makes good ones. A beet fresh from the garden, and pounded fine, makes an excellent poultice.

NEURALGIA.—A New Hampshire gentleman says: "Take two large tablespoonfuls of cologne and two teaspoonfuls of fine salt; mix them together in a small bottle; every time you have any acute affection of the facial nerves, or neuralgia, simply breathe the fumes in your nose from the bottle, and you will be immediately relieved."

DIPHTHERIA.—It is said that this disease may be speedily arrested, and sometimes cured, by swallowing lumps of ice, continuously, until relief is afforded; let them as much as possible melt in the throat. Common sore throat is cured in the same way sometimes.

BURNS.—Immerse instantly in cold water. Remove the water and cover with flour. Put on as much flour as will stick; if the burns are severe, cover the parts an inch thick, and cover the whole with cotton batting. No other application should be made unless prescribed by a physician. Dry flour is probably the best remedy for burns ever used. Charcoal laid on the part burned has sometimes stopped the pain instantly.

SEA SICKNESS.—The surest remedy (somewhat inconvenient) is to lower the temperature of the spinal column by the use of ice. The mode of application is, to keep along the center of the back a bag of ice, from the top of the neck to the hollow of the back, which must be continued as long as sea-sickness continues. The bag should be made of very thin gutta percha, or oil silk, so as to fit close to the back.

FELONS.—The following is vouched for: take a pint of common soft soap and stir in air-slacked lime till it is the consistency of glazier's putty. Make a leather thimble, fill it with this composition, and insert the finger therein. A cure is certain.

ANOTHER.—As soon as the parts begin to swell get the tincture of lobelia, and wrap the part affected with a cloth saturated thoroughly with the tincture, and the felon is dead. An old physician says he has known it to cure in scores of cases, and it never fails if applied in season.

BLISTERED HANDS AND FEET.—The speediest remedy is to light a tallow candle and let the melted tallow drop in cold water, then mix the tallow with strong spirits and rub it thoroughly into the palms or soles; this is both a preventive and curative.

CHAPPED HANDS.—If afflicted with them, use as little soap as possible in washing; wash it off clean, and then finish with water containing a little vinegar. If the face become rough or chapped after shaving, treat it in the same way.

WARTS.—These may be removed if rubbed every day with some strong acid or alkali—say potash or hartshorn. Some warts may be removed by persevering friction with a cloth, or even with the finger.

CORNS.—They may be cured by anything which will soften the thickened cuticle. Sweet oil often applied will do this.

HICCUGHS.—A convenient mode of curing these unpleasant paroxysms is to hold the head back as far as possible, so as to strain, for the time, the muscles of the throat, and take three full and lengthy inspirations.

OVER-EATING.—Next to impure air over-eating is the most prolific cause of disease. The best panacea—or "CURE ALL"—is abstinence from food. The moment we feel any unpleasant sensation of body indicating the coming of disease we should stop eating.

POISONS.—The best antidote for all kinds of poison is sweet oil. It has cured snake bites, by applying it to the wound, and at the same time swallowing a spoonful. It will also cure bloat in cattle caused by eating fresh clover.

Golden Hints to Farmers.

BUILDINGS.—Never suffer them to be out of repair. Remember the adage, "A stitch in time saves nine." Keep them well painted. Watch carefully the roofs, and do not allow them to leak.

CELLARS.—There are three requisites—Convenience, warmth, and good air. They should be ventilated daily. No decayed vegetables or fruit should be suffered to remain.

GARDENS.—Have them neatly laid out, provided with rich soils, fully planted, carefully weeded, and the products safely garnered. Compete with all your neighbors in presenting the best garden.

YARDS AND LAWNS.—Keep every thing neat and tidy about them. Don't let bricks, stones, brush, or other miscellaneous trash lie exposed to view. Keep the grass growing evenly. Have the walks tastefully arranged, well paved or graded, and keep them swept clean.

FRUIT.—Fortunate is he who has a large and well-cared-for fruit orchard, for it will yield him bountiful returns. Select the best varieties, plant without delay, and cultivate with careful attention.

HORSES.—See that they are well shod, with strong shoes in summer as well as winter. Blanket them immediately after use, in cold weather. Do not blanket them in stables after they have rested after use, unless the weather be colder than usual. Give them warm, well-lighted, and well-aired stables. Let them roll often.

HARNESS.—Brush well, and rub with oil (castor oil is good) after being out in the rain. Hang up with care when not in use. Never throw the bridle or halter on the floor or in the carriage.

BUFFALO ROBES.—By means of strong loops hang them up in a dry place. In the summer let them hang where they get the free air, and occasionally hang them in the wind, and the insects will not trouble them.

TOOLS.—Have a place for them, and keep each in its place. Don't suffer them to rust. In damp weather oil them frequently. Keep them sharp. Substitute sound strong handles for broken ones.

CARRIAGES.—Keep them under cover, and thus preserve them. Don't let those who pass by your barns witness the forbidding spectacle of one or more wagons or sleighs beside the road, or in the yard.

CATTLE.—Give them clean, warm sheds in winter, and at all seasons of the year provide them shelter from the rains and winds. Feed them well; this will be economical and profitable.

BEETS.—Raise a good supply of beets, carrots, turnips, etc. Feed them daily in small quantities during the latter part of winter and the early spring.

SEEDS.—Always select from the most perfect plants. Use only the best qualities each year, and the fruits will gradually and certainly improve.

BEES.—Obtain lively swarms; care for them well, following the directions of some good treatise on the subject. Every farmer should raise his own honey. Pasture for bees costs little.

DRAINING.—All cultivated land should be thoroughly drained; round or pipe tiles are the best. The tiles should be well burned; never use soft ones. If you cannot this year afford the time or expense necessary to tile or cover-drain the fields or gardens, make roomy open ditches at once; don't wait a single month.

MANURE.—Gather in large quantities; see that none is wasted: transfer all garden weeds, large quantities of fallen leaves, ashes, bones, old mortar, and all refuse matter to the manure pile, and when thoroughly prepared mix with the soil. There will be a golden return.

POULTRY.—They should be selected with reference to the best varieties, and these should be changed as often as once in three years. In selecting for layers choose those of medium size. All poultry should be well housed in cold weather, and in warm weather should enjoy a cover from the storm. Feed them well. Let them have access to gravel; it is needed in grinding their food.

Government of the United States.

PRESIDENT.—ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee; Vice-President—LAFAYETTE S. FOSTER, of Connecticut. The term of office is four years, the present term closing March 4, 1869.

CABINET.—WILLIAM H. SEWARD, of New York, Secretary of State; HUGH M'CULLOCH, of Indiana, Secretary of the Treasury; EDWIN M. STANTON, of Pennsylvania, Secretary of War; GIDEON WELLS, of Connecticut, Secretary of the Navy; ORVILLE H. BROWNING, of Illinois, Secretary of the Interior; HENRY STANBERRY, of Kentucky, Attorney General; ALEXANDER W. RANDALL, of Wisconsin, Postmaster General. The Cabinet officers are selected by the President, (being confirmed by the Senate,) and hold office at his pleasure.

JUDICIARY.—SALMON P. CHASE, of Ohio, Chief Justice; SAMUEL NELSON, of New York, ROBERT C. GRIER, of Pennsylvania, JAMES M. WAYNE, of Georgia, NOAH H. SWAYNE, of Ohio, SAMUEL H. MILLER, of Iowa, DAVID DAVIS, of Illinois, NATHAN CLIFFORD, of Maine, and STEPHEN J. FIELD, of California, Associate Justices. The Supreme Court holds one session annually at Washington, commencing on the first Monday in December. The term of office is indefinite, holding for life.

CONGRESS.—The apportionment made by Congress March 4, 1862, under the census of 1860, increases the number of Representatives to 242. There are also 9 Delegates from the Territories, who deliberate, but have no vote. The Senators are 72 in number, two from each state, and holding office six years. They are elected by the respective state legislatures. In case there is a vacancy, it is filled, until the meeting of the legislature, by one appointed by the governor of the state represented. Each Senator and Representative is allowed $10,000 compensation for each Congress, (two years,) deducting for absence. This is an increase of $2,000 yearly over previous rates; the mileage, however, has been reduced. The Thirty-ninth Congress terminates March 3, 1867, and the Fortieth begins at the same date.

 United States Army and Navy.

PRESIDENT of the United States, Commander-in-Chief; ULYSSES S. GRANT, General; WILLIAM T. SHERMAN, Lieutenant-General. In March, 1865, we had 684 vessels of war, with 4,477 guns, many of them of large caliber; and the aggregate number of men raised for the Union armies was 2,688,000. If the Confederate forces be added, the grand total would be reached of 4,000,000 of men at arms—the largest force ever yet raised in any country or age of the world. In 1812, regulars 32,360, volunteers 6,000, militia 30,000; navy, 8 frigates and 170 gun-boats. In 1815, 276 vessels, with 1,636 guns.

NAVY IN 1866.—The Navy Register for 1866 gives the particulars of the reduction of our naval force: Since the close of the war 225 vessels have been sold, and 13 have been lost. The number of vessels retained in the service is 318, of which 73 are laid up in ordinary, 63 are building at the different navy-yards, 15 are fitting out for sea service, 35 are under repair, and 89 are employed at various naval stations as tugs and dispatch boats, or in the Ordnance Department. This leaves 94 vessels, of which 90 are attached to our squadrons, while four are employed as supply steamers.

LOSSES OF THE NORTHERN ARMIES.—The Provost Marshal-general has compiled a complete list of all the deaths in battle, and from wounds and disease, of every regiment from all the Northern states during the war. This record shows that 280,751 officers and men lost their lives in the service; of whom 5,221 commissioned officers and 90,886 enlisted men were killed in action or died of wounds, and 2,321 commissioned officers and 182,329 men died of disease.

CARE FOR THE SOLDIERS.—The following are believed to be reliable summaries of the charitable contributions made for the Union soldiers: The total contributions from states, counties, and towns, for the aid and relief of soldiers amounted to $187,209,608 62; the contributions of associations and individuals, for the care and comfort of soldiers, were $24,044,865 96; for sufferers abroad, $380,040 74; for sufferers by the riots of July, for freedmen and white refugees, $639,633 13; making a grand total, exclusive of expenditures of the government, of $212,274,248 45.

Items from the Census Reports, 1860.

In 1700 the entire population of the Anglo-American colonies was 262,000; in 1750 it was 1,000,000; in 1775, 2,389,300. In 1790 the population of the United States alone was 3,929,827; and in 1860, 31,443,321. Anticipated population in 1900, 107,000,000.

The unimproved lands of the United States, in 1860, amounted to 244,101,818 acres; improved lands, 163,110,720 acres; cash value of the whole estimated at $6,645,045,007.

The last English census develops the fact that there are in London more Scotchmen than in Edinburgh, more Irish than in Dublin, more Roman Catholics than in Rome, and more Jews than in Palestine. New York has nearly as many Irish as Dublin, and is probably the third German city in the world, ranking next to Berlin and Vienna.

Facts Concerning Human Life.

THE total number of human beings on the earth is computed at 1,000,000,000, (one thousand millions,) and they speak 3,064 known tongues.

The average duration of human life is 33½ years.

One fourth of those born die before they are 7 years old, and one half before the age of 17.

Out of 100 persons only six reach the age of 60 years.

Out of 500 persons, only one attains the age of 80 years.

Sixty persons die every minute.

Tall men live longer than short ones.

Membership of Methodist Churches.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.—The number of members, from the official returns for 1866, as mentioned on page 26, is 1,032,184; preachers, 7,576.

BRITISH WESLEYAN STATISTICS FOR 1866.—British Conference, 410,914; French Conference, 1,699; Australasian Conference, 47,695; Canada Conference, 53,954; Conference of Eastern British America, 15,275; total, 529,537. This is a net increase over the preceding year of 3,388. The probationers, not included above, number 37,217, or a grand total of 566,754.

OTHER METHODISTS IN THE UNITED STATES.—The following are taken from Goss's "Statistical History," and said to be the returns for 1865. Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 708,949; Methodist Protestant Church, 105,120; African Methodist Episcopal Church, 53,670; African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, 30,600; Evangelical Association, 51,185; Wesleyan Methodist Church, 25,620; Free Methodist Church, 3,655; Primitive Methodist Church, 1,805; total, 980,604.

OTHER CANADIAN METHODIST CHURCHES.—Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada, 19,746; New Connection Methodists, 8,028; Primitive Methodist Church, 5,854; total, 43,628.

OTHER METHODISTS IN ENGLAND.—Primitive Methodists, 159,794; United Free Methodists, 65,958; Bible Christians, 26,059; New Connection, 24,438; Reformed Union, 9,708; total, 286,047.

GRAND TOTAL.—The above figures give a total of 2,916,763. This number, which gives only those who are actual members, should be increased by the Methodists in other countries not embraced in the above returns, but we have no official data at hand for making the proper estimates.

Miscellaneous Items.

PATENTS.—The United States Patent Office had issued, up to November 1, 1866, 59,155 patents for new inventions. The yearly issues are constantly on the increase. The number of patents now issued weekly average 200. The total number of patents issued for the year will reach nearly 10,000, against 6,500 for last year, and an average of about 3,000 a year previous to the rebellion. The surplus fund amounts to $250,000, which has chiefly accrued during the last two years.

NEW SILK.—A French savant has lately discovered that certain fish contain eggs enveloped in veritable silk cocoons. Each egg measures 35 centimeters long by 13 broad, and weighs 240 grammes, and is covered with silky filaments, which may be employed in weaving.

TOBACCO.—The total amount of tobacco produced throughout the world is estimated as follows: Asia, 309,900,000 pounds; Europe, 281,844,500; America, 248,280,500; Africa, 24,300,000; Australia, 714,000; making in all 995,039,000 pounds.

ELECTRIC POWER.—The electrical power of the Atlantic cable is now furnished by a twenty-cell Daniells battery. The two cables have been joined, making a line of 3,700 miles, and signals have been passed through this entire distance in a little more than a second of time. The only power used was that given by a battery consisting of a lady's silver thimble filled with acid, into which were placed a bit of zinc and a bit of copper.

REVOLUTIONARY PENSIONERS.—Congress has passed a bill giving a gratuity of $300 a year to each of the five surviving revolutionary pensioners, in addition to the pension of $100 which they now receive. In January, 1864, there were only twelve remaining, seven of whom have since died.

THE CABLE AND THE CLOCKS.—The inauguration of submarine telegraphic communication by means of the Atlantic cable makes it interesting to inquire into the difference of time in various cities of the Old and New Worlds. When it is twelve o'clock high noon at New York, it is fifty-five minutes and forty-two seconds after 4 P.M. at London; fifty-seven minutes and twenty seconds after 6 P.M. at St. Petersburg; seventeen minutes and twenty-four seconds after 7 P.M. at Jerusalem; fifty-one minutes and forty-four seconds after 6 P.M. at Constantinople; forty minutes and thirty-two seconds after 4 P.M. at Madrid; thirty-one minutes and twenty seconds after 5 P.M. at Bremen; forty minutes and thirty-two seconds after 4 P.M. at Dublin; and forty-one minutes and twenty-four seconds after 6 P.M. at Florence. The difference of time between the extreme east and west points of the United States is three hours and fifty minutes. In the China Sea, between Singapore and China, it is midnight when it is noon at New York.

THE USE OF BORAX IN WASHING.—In Belgium and Holland linen is prepared beautifully, because the washerwomen use refined borax, instead of soda, as a washing powder. One large handful of borax is used to every ten gallons of boiling water, and the saving is said to be one half. For laces and cambries an extra quantity is used. Borax does not injure the linen, and it softens the hardest water. A teaspoonful of borax added to an ordinary-sized kettle of hard water, in which it is allowed to boil, will effectually soften the water.

LEAD PENCILS.—Great quantities of pencils are now made in England of a composition formed of sawdust and small pieces of lead, which are ground to an impalpable powder, mixed with some cohesive medium. In Keswick, 250,000 pencils are made in a week, or 18,000,000 a year, and 12,000 cubic feet of cedar are annually consumed.

POSTAL MONEY ORDERS.—On August 2, 1866, 300 new money-order offices were added, making 700 such post-offices. The largest amount that can be sent by any one order is now $50. The fees also have been changed; the charge now being 10 cents on any order from $1 up to $20, and 25 cents for any order over $20.

AMERICAN SHIPPING.—Before the war, the Stars and Stripes led the carrying trade of the world. Not only was there a larger tonnage afloat under our flag than under any other, but American ships had the preference for enterprise, speed, and care of cargo, which gave them the lead in every port and on every ocean. The entire tonnage of Great Britain in 1861 was 4,806,826 tons; and that of the United States, 5,539,813 tons.

GUTTA PERCHA.—Gutta percha is obtained from the trees when they are about thirty years old. The natives of the Malayan peninsula and Borneo obtain it by the destruction of the trees. Attempts have been made to induce them to procure the sap by tapping, but the congelation of the gum at the apertures, by exposure to the atmosphere, makes it difficult to obtain it in paying quantities. The natives boil the mass in winter, then soften it, cut it in strips, and then knead it with the feet while plastic, forming it into cakes.

WORLD'S EXHIBITION.—A "Universal Exposition of the Products of Industry and Art of all Nations" is to be held in Paris during the six months succeeding April 1, 1867. Its aim is to exhibit the progress of art and manufactures, and of all the sciences, in supplying the necessities of society among all the nations of the world. The government of France is to erect a palace for the Exhibition 1,600 feet long and 1,200 wide, covering an area of 35 acres, to cost $4,000,000, besides making provision for living products of agriculture and horticulture, animals, and models of villages. Compartments have been allotted to the Christian governments of Europe and America, and to the Mohammedan and Pagan nations of Turkey, Persia, Central and Southern Asia, China, Japan, Africa, and Oceanica. There will be a display of different races of savages at work in their rude industry.

ENGLISH BIBLE.—The first English Bible was translated by Wiclif in 1360, but never printed, except his translation of the New Testament, which was not printed until 1371. The first printed Bible in our language was issued in 1526; the translation was by Tindall, assisted by Coverdale. The first printed by authority in England, and publicly read in the churches, was in 1540, and was called "Cranmer's Bible" because it was examined and approved by Archbishop Cranmer. King James's Bible, the one now in use, was published in 1611. The translation was made by fifty-four learned men who were appointed to this office by the king, and who, after making a division of their work, and each having translated his part, met together and carefully examined each other's translations, not giving them to the public until all were satisfied of their correctness.

DOUAY BIBLE.—This is the Roman Catholic version. The Papists, finding that many of the people would read the Scriptures, published a translation of the New Testament at Rheims in 1584. About thirty years later they published a translation of the Old Testament at Douay. Hence the Roman Catholics have a translation of the whole Bible, but are forbidden to read it without a license from their superiors. It differs from King James's translation in several important particulars.

OUR INDIAN POPULATION.—According to the best data in the possession of the Indian Department at Washington, there are now between 320,000 and 350,000 Indians within the limits of the United States, comprised in about seventy-five tribes, and occupying about a hundred localities.

LEAD PIPE FATAL TO FISH.—Mr. L. M. Crane, of Ballston, N. Y., who breeds a good many fishes, states that it will not do to use lead pipe to conduct the water into the fish ponds. The fish soon die when lead is employed.

TUNNELS.—The longest tunnel in England is the Box Tunnel on the Great Western Railway, which is 9,680 feet long, 39 feet high, and 35 feet wide.

FREEDMEN'S SCHOOLS.—On Nov. 15, 1866 there were in operation 975 schools, employing 1,405 teachers, and attended by 90,778 pupils. There were also a large number of children in the night and Sunday-schools, making an aggregate of about 150,000 pupils. Among the foremost Churches contributing these teachers, and furnishing funds for their support, is the Methodist Episcopal Church.

KEEPING HAMS.—Make a bag sufficiently large to contain the ham, wet it thoroughly in pork or other strong brine; wring and dry it; repeat this twice or thrice; when last dry, drop in the ham with cord; tie the mouth of the bag closely round the cord, and hang in a dry place.

New Hymn and Tune Book

FOR THE USE OF THE

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, AN OFFERING OF PRAISE,

EDITED BY

AUTHOR OF

"SINGING PILGRIM," "MUSICAL LEAVES," etc.

PUBLISHED BY

CARLTON & PORTER,

200 MULBERRY-STREET, NEW YORK.

POE & HITCHCOCK,

CINCINNATI AND CHICAGO.

IN the preparation of this book it has been our desire to present to the public a book which should contain the greatest quantity and the best standard church music now in use, from all sources. It contains over two hundred more tunes than the Hymn and Tune Book of 1857.

GENERAL PLAN OF THE BOOK.

In the arrangement of this book there are generally three tunes on one page and six hymns opposite, thereby giving a variety of three tunes from which to select for each hymn; and each page contains one or more old familiar tunes that any congregation can sing. The hymns used are the standard Hymn Book of the M. E. Church complete. Send on your orders. Price, single copy, $2.

There is in connection with this book an Appendix or Choir edition, containing 64 pages of choice anthems and set pieces for all occasions of public worship. Price of Choir edition, single copy, $2 50.

From the "Singing Pilgrim."

THE RIVER OF LIFE.

"And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb."

PHILIP PHILLIPS.

O drink of this river; its full crystal flood
Refreshes and lightens of sin's weary load.
Its ripples ne'er mix with the billows of strife;
This is the "Pure River of Water of Life."

This beautiful river our boast well may be;
'Tis fresh, overflowing, and better, 'tis free.
The sin-sick rejoice in this "peace-speaking"
This river is Jesus the "once-crucified." [tide.

"I saw then that as they went on their way, and were weary by reason of the roughness of the way, and their feet were tender by reason of their travels, they arrived at a pleasant River, which David the King called the River of God, but John, the River of the Water of Life. Now their way lay just upon the bank of the River; here therefore Christian and his Companion walked with great delight; they drank also of the water of the River, which was pleasant and enlivening to their their weary spirits; besides, on the banks of this River on either side were green Trees, that bore all manner of fruit; and the Leaves of the Trees were good for Medicine; with the Fruit of these Trees they were also much delighted; and the Leaves they ate to prevent Surfeits, and other Diseases that are incident to those that heat their blood by travels. So they ate of the Fruits and drank of the Water and were filled with gladness."

METHODIST TUNE BOOKS.

Published and for sale by CARLTON & PORTER, and F. J. HUNTINGTON & CO., New York, POE & HITCHCOCK, Cincinnati and Chicago.

THE NEW LUTE OF ZION, THE DAY SPRING, THE SACRED LUTE.

Of these genuine Methodist Music Books upward of 314,000

copies have been published within the last few years.

So large an amount of religious music appropriated almost exclusively by one denomination of Christians, exceeds anything of the kind known in this country. And yet it is no more wonderful than the results of the Centenary Contributions of 1866, which so amaze the world at large, and gladden the hearts of all true Methodists. How far and to what extent we are indebted for these glorious results to the influence of sacred song we will not enquire; if at all, is it not in a good degree a debt due to the music of these very volumes, so widely identified as they are with Methodism in this country? But, come whence it may, music has its genial influence, and its appeals are too often answered by softened hearts and kindled Christian enterprise to need a labored eulogy.

To whoever has enjoyed the privilege of uniting in, or attendance upon, a centenary meeting, we appeal for the lively and awakening effects of a cheering tune, struck up just at the right moment.

The popularity of these books is due solely to their merit and their peculiar adaptation, not only to the Hymn Book, but to the wants and necessities of the Methodist Church everywhere; for the truth of which we appeal to their present and almost daily increasing sales among Methodists. Testimonials almost without number we could give, were it necessary, but they are books which give forth no uncertain sound; "all in them is sharp and clear and stirring as the sound of the morning clarion calling the Christian soldier to awaken from his slumbers and arise to duty." Pass them on, then, till every one has a copy.

INTERSETTING TO LADIES.

THE following extracts are from the testimony taken, under oath, in a recent case pending before the United States Patent Office, upon the actual merits of the GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE, and its relative merits as compared with other machines.

Mrs. Dr. M'Cready says: "I am acquainted with the work of all the principal machines, including Wheeler & Wilson's, Finkle & Lyon's, Wilcox & Gibbs's, Ladd & Webster's, the Florence Machines and Sloat's machines, besides a number of ten dollar ones; and I prefer the Grover & Baker to them all, because I consider the stitch more elastic. I have work now in the house which was done nine years ago, which is still good; and I have never found any of my friends who have used the other machines able to say the same thing."

Mrs Alice B. Whipple, wife of Rev. Mr. Whipple, Secretary of the American Missionary Association, testifies:

Ques. As the result of your observation and experience, what machine do you think best as a general family instrument?

Ans. The Grover & Baker, decidedly.

Q. State the reasons, such of them as occur to you, for this opinion.

A. I think the stitch is a stronger stitch than that of any other machine I have used, and it seems to me much more simple in its management than other machines. One great advantage is the ease with which the seam is ripped when necessary to do so; and I think that the work, by an experienced person, on a Grover & Baker Machine, is better than the work of such person on any other machine. It requires more skill to work other machines than the Grover & Baker.

Mrs. General Buel says she prefers the Grover & Baker Machine over all others, "on account of its durability of work, elasticity of stitch, and strength of stitch. It never rips. It is preferred over all others; it is very easy in its movements, and very easily adjusted, and very simple in its construction."

Mrs. Dr. Watts says: "I have had several years' experience with a Grover & Baker Machine, which has given me great satisfaction. Its chief merit is that it makes a strong elastic stitch. It is very easily kept in order, and worked without much fatigue, which I think is a very great recommendation. I am not very familiar with any other machine, except a Wheeler & Wilson, which I have had. I think the Grover & Baker Machine is more easily managed, and less liable to get out of order. I prefer the Grover & Baker, decidedly."

Mrs. Dr. Andrews testifies: "I prefer it to all other machines I have known anything about, for the ease and simplicity with which it operates and is managed; for the perfect elasticity of the stitch; the ease with which the work can be ripped, if desired, and still retain its strength when the thread is cut, or accidentally broken; its adaptation to different kinds of work from fine to coarse, without change of needle or tension."

Mrs. Jennie C. Croly ("Jenny June") says: "I prefer it to any machine. I like the Grover & Baker Machine, in the first place, because if I had any other I should still want a Grover & Baker; and, having a Grover & Baker, it answers the purpose of all the rest. It does a greater variety of work, and it is easier to learn than any other. I like the stitch because of its beauty and strength, and because, although it can be taken out, it don't rip, not even by cutting every other stitch."

The foregoing testimony establishes beyond question: 1. The great simplicity and ease of management of the Grover & Baker Machines. 2. That they are not liable to get out of repair. 3. That a greater variety of work can be done with them than with other machines. 4. That the elasticity of the stitch causes the work to last longer, look neater, and wear better than work done on other machines. 5. That the facility with which any part of the seam can be removed when desired is a great advantage. 6. That the seam will retain its strength even when cut or broken at intervals. 7. That, besides doing all varieties of work done by other sewing machines, these machines execute beautiful embroidery. Over one hundred other witnesses, in the case above referred to, testified to the superiority of the Grover & Baker Machines in the points named, in substantially the same language, and thousands of letters have been received from all parts of the world stating the same facts.

All the best class Grocers have, or can readily get, these articles. Some, however, endeavor to persuade customers that they can supply something as good or better, for the reason that they make a larger profit; but it is the housekeeper's right to have a preference, and the grocer's business to furnish goods bearing the best reputation. All articles bearing the name of JAMES PYLE can be relied upon for purity and just weight.

The Gold Medal of the American Institute was awarded "for the best Piano-Forte" by the judges, Gottschalk, Berge, Beames, and F. H. Brown, after the most strenuous efforts had been made by competing manufacturers to obtain this, the highest American prize.

Never, in the history of the trade, were so many First Premiums known to be given within so short a space of time.

The most accomplished Pianists and critics of the country have paid it the highest compliments.

STRONG INDORSEMENT.

I have examined with GREAT CARE Mr. WILLIAM B. BRADBURY'S New Scale Piano-Fortes, and it is my opinion that they are VERY SUPERIOR INSTRUMENTS.

I have especially remarked their THOROUGH WORKMANSHIP, and the power, purity, richness, and EQUALITY of their tone. I recommend, therefore, these instruments to the public in general, and doubt not of their success.

L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

New York, July 12, 1863.

We have examined with much care W. B. Bradbury's New Scale Piano-Fortes, and it is our opinion that for power, purity, richness, equality of tone and thorough workmanship, Mr. Bradbury's instruments excel. We find great brilliancy and beautiful singing quality of tone most happily blended. We have rarely seen a square piano combine so many of those qualities so essential to a PERFECT INSTRUMENT.

SEWING MACHINES.

Incomparably the best for Family Use. No. 543 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

Their Superiority Vindicated by the Highest Authorities.

GOLD MEDAL, FAIR, MARYLAND INSTITUTE, 1866.

All the Highest Premiums at the Maryland Institute, New York, and Pennsylvania State Fairs in 1866, given on Sewing Machines, except one given to a Manufacturing Machine at the New York Fair, were awarded, after a most severe and impartial test, to the ELLIPTIC LOCK-STITCH MACHINE, as follows:

At the MARYLAND INSTITUTE FAIR as the "BEST FAMILY SEWING MACHINE," and at the NEW YORK STATE FAIR as the "BEST FAMILY SEWING MACHINE," "BEST DOUBLE-THREAD SEWING-MACHINE," (these two completely covering all the ground,) and for the "BEST SAMPLE OF SEWING MACHINE WORK," as can be seen by the following comprehensive and conclusive report of the Committee of practical and experienced mechanical experts appointed by the State Board to investigate into the merits of the different sewing machines:

"We, the Committee on Sewing Machines, after a careful and thorough investigation into the respective merits of the various machines submitted for examination, find the ELLIPTIC LOCK-STITCH SEWING MACHINE to be superior to all others in the following points, namely: Simplicity and Thoroughness of Mechanical Construction. Ease of Operation and Management; Noiselessness and Rapidity of Movement; Beauty, Strength, and Elasticity of Stitch; Variety and Perfection of Attachments, and Range of Work; Compactness and Beauty of Model and Finish; Adaptation to material of any thickness by an Adjustable Feed-Bar, and in the Unequaled Precision with which it executes the Lock-Stitch, by means of the Elliptic Hook, and we therefore award it the FIRST PREMIUM, as the BEST FAMILY SEWING MACHINE, and also, for the above reasons, the FIRST PREMIUM, as the BEST DOUBLE THREAD SEWING MACHINE.

"C. E. PETERS, HECTOR MOFFATT, Committee."

"It is the only Machine we have seen that will gather without changing the tension."—From the Report of the Ladies' Committee of the Maryland Inst. Fair.

The above report fully accords with the almost unanimous opinion of the best impartial judges and sewing machine experts, as well as of all others who have used this unrivaled Machine, which is incomparably the most simple in construction, the most efficient in operation, the most easy, rapid, and noiseless of movement; the most economical and durable in use, and the most complete in the variety and perfection of its attachments for every kind of work, and therefore infinitely the most perfect Family Sewing Machine, for which purpose its superiority is pre-eminent and unquestionable.

Machines (which are warranted for two years) forwarded to any part of the world, with printed instructions (which will enable any one to operate them without the slightest difficulty) for use, on receipt of the price in current funds or by draft; or they may be sent, payment to be collected on delivery, on receipt of satisfactory assurance that it will then be made; and all orders from a distance will be as faithfully filled as if a personal visit and selection had been made.

Liberal arrangements made with parties of energy, good standing, and capital, who may wish to engage in the sale of these machines, as agents, in such territory as yet remains unoccupied; for further information in regard to which, and for private circular, address

COMBINING TO A CONSIDERABLE EXTENT THE CAPACITY OF THE PIPE ORGAN AND PIANO FORTE.

Recognized by Musicians as unquestionably superior to all other small Organs, and everything of the Melodeon or Harmonium kind.

Among those who have given explicit testimony to this superiority of the CABINET ORGANS are such eminent Musicians as

LOWELL MASON, THOMAS HASTINGS, WM. B. BRADBURY,
GEORGE F. ROOT, L. M. GOTTSCHALK, WILLIAM MASON,
MAURICE STRAKOSCH, GEORGE W. MORGAN, JOHN ZUNDEL,
AND MORE THAN TWO HUNDRED OF THE MOST DISTINGUISHED ORGANISTS OF
THE COUNTRY.

FIFTY-TWO GOLD OR SILVER MEDALS, or other Highest Premiums, have been awarded to Mason & Hamlin within a few years, for valuable improvements, and superiority to all competing instruments.

"It is," writes Dr. Prime of the New York Observer, "a glorious instrument for the temple service, so readily secured as to be available for any congregation, and so effective as to meet the services of the most refined and fastidious."

We have been at some pains to ascertain what instrument of the many now soliciting public favor combines the greatest excellence. We have prosecuted this inquiry entirely independent of aid or direction from interested parties. The opinions of some of the best musical critics, composers, and performers have been obtained; reports of experiments made in the ordinary use of various instruments in churches, schools, and families have been compared, ALL OF WHICH with singular unanimity concur in assigning the first place to the Cabinet Organ of Mason and Hamlin—a decision that corresponds with our previously formed convictions, received from personal observations.—N. Y. Christian Advocate, 1864.

Nearly a year ago we uttered our then convictions of the value of these instruments as compared with any and all others of their class. Subsequent observations and the further testimony of competent witnesses have more than confirmed the opinions we then uttered, and the "singular unanimity" which we then noticed in favor of these instruments has since become an almost universal acclaim.—N. Y. Christian Advocate, 1865.

THE MASON & HAMLIN PORTABLE ORGANS are a new series of instruments, of which they have recently commenced the manufacture, with the design of furnishing really good instruments in the most economical form, at the lowest possible prices. The cases, which are all of walnut, are neatly and tastefully, but very plainly finished; and, in various details, such as ivory keys, pedal coverings, music desks, hinges, etc., etc., not affecting the practical usefulness of the instruments, less expensive materials and workmanship are employed than in the Cabinet Organs. The MASON & HAMLIN PORTABLE ORGANS are NOT fully equal to their Cabinet Organs in several respects, but are confidently believed to approach nearer to them than any other instruments of the class.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE of styles and prices free to any address. Every Cabinet Organ has upon its name-board the words "MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGAN."

GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY.

(Established 1861.)

THE IMMENSE PROFITS OF THE TEA TRADE GREATLY REDUCED.

THE PROPRIETORS OF THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY became fully convinced, several years ago, that consumers of Tea and Coffee were paying too many and too large profits on these articles of every-day consumption, and therefore organized THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY, to do away, as far as possible, with these enormous drains upon the consumers, and to supply them with these necessities at the smallest possible price.

To give our readers an idea of the profits which have been made in the Tea Trade, we will start with the American houses, leaving out of the account entirely the profits of the Chinese factors. First, the American House in China or Japan makes large profits on their sales or shipments, and some of the richest retired merchants in this country have made their immense fortunes through their Houses in China. Second, the Banker makes large profits upon the foreign exchange used in the purchase of tea. Third, the Importer makes a profit of 30 to 50 per cent. in many cases. Fourth, on its arrival here it is sold by the cargo, and the Purchaser sells it to the Speculator in invoices of 1,000 to 2,000 packages, at an average profit of about 10 per cent. Fifth, the Speculator sells it to the Wholesale Tea Dealer in lines, at a profit of 10 to 15 per cent. Sixth, the Wholesale Tea Dealer sells it to the Wholesale Grocer, in lots to suit his trade, at a profit of about 10 per cent. Seventh, the Wholesale Grocer sells it to the Retail Dealer, at a profit of 15 to 25 per cent. Eighth, the Retailer sells it to the consumer for ALL THE PROFIT HE CAN GET. When you have added to these EIGHT profits as many brokerages, cartages, storages, cooperages, and waste, and add the original cost of the tea, it will be perceived what the consumer has to pay. And now we propose to show why we can sell so very much lower than other dealers. We propose to do away with all these various profits and brokerages, cartages, storages, cooperages, and waste, with the exception of a small commission paid for purchasing, to our correspondents in China and Japan, one cartage, and a small profit to ourselves, which, on our large sales, will amply pay us. Through our system of supplying Clubs throughout the country, consumers in all parts of the United States can receive their teas at the same price (with the small additional expense of transportation) as though they bought them at our warehouses in this city. Parties getting their Teas from us may confidently rely upon getting them pure and fresh, as they come direct from the Custom House stores to our warehouses. We warrant all the goods we sell to give entire satisfaction. If they are not satisfactory they can be returned at our expense within 30 days, and have the money refunded.

P.S. All villages and towns where a large number reside, by clubbing together, can reduce the cost of their Teas and Coffees about one third by sending directly to the

GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY,

31 and 33 Vesey-street. Post-office box 5643 New York City.

The Company has selected the following kinds from their stock, which they recommend to meet the wants of Clubs. They are sold at Cargo Prices, the same as the Company sell them in New York, as the list of prices will show.

OUR YEARS OF LIFE.

BY REV. GEORGE LANSING TAYLOR.

Our years of life, our years of life, ah me, how swift they fly;
Nor toil, nor care, nor grief, nor joy can stay them, hurrying by;
As clouds before the summer wind, as waves along the sea,
So life's short years of smiles and tears sweep to eternity.

Last year I looked along the past with heartache and with shame,
For all the years of emptiness when life was but the name;
I saw its vanity in spring, its summer's fruitless show,
And 'round my way already heard sad winds of autumn blow.

I saw my strong and high resolves, my hopes that burned like flame,
Dragged down to weakness that I scorned, so paltry, poor, and tame;
That nameless dream that fired my soul and lit me like a star,
Alas! how dim through mists it shone, how rayless and how far.

That life I vowed, unheard by man, should soar so fair and grand
That, like the sun, its beams should bless and brighten every land.
O God, I wept, and weep again, I dreamed it might be mine,
And held my dew-drop forth to flash white seas of day divine!

O fool! O child! in pain I cry; all lights but hide the sun,
And streak with shade those prismatic tides that through creation run.
Drink! drink the sun! and then, though frail and trembling like the dew,
Thy trembling shall but more reveal the God-light leaping through!

"It might have been!" What might have been? And is it yet too late
To work for good? to work for God? or ask his will, and wait?
Then working most, perchance, when least in my own strength is done;
For what avails the tempest's toil, to match the silent sun?

O years of life, O years of life, your flight can ne'er return,
And vain are all the tears that fall above youth's ashy urn;
But love like thine, O Heart divine, thy pureness, meekness, truth,
Thy teeming calm, these breathe the balm of heaven's eternal youth.

For what is youth but guileless truth and glowing hope and love?
These grace and warm each seraph form that floats in light above.
If these be mine, O Thou divine, through all earth's warring life,
My heart, like gold, shall ne'er grow old, nor scarred with sin and strife.

O years of life, O years of life, roll on your squadrons dark!
My heart like rock shall stand your shock; your surge shall lift my ark.
O'er waves beneath or clouds above my soul shall sail or soar,
On eagle's wing exulting sing, and steer for heaven's bright shore.

O years of life, I hail your strife! I shout amid your storm,
For o'er life's sea walks forth toward me a bright supernal form!
And lo! where lifts through golden rifts a headland far and white,
That looms alone through calms unknown, and props a sphere of light!

The Planets.

VENUS will be evening star until July 16, then morning star the rest of the year. MARS will be morning star from January 2 to November 13, then evening star. JUPITER will be evening star until March 10, then morning star until July 4, then evening star the rest of the year. SATURN will be evening star from February 24 to November 29, and morning star the rest of the year.

MERCURY will be at the most favorable stations for visibility February 17, June 13, and October 9, being then evening star, and appearing in the west just after sunset. Also April 7, August 5, and November 24, being then in the east just before sunrise.

VENUS will be farthest east of the sun ($45^{\circ} 31'$) May 7, and on the 9th of June will be brightest. It then approaches the sun, and decreases in brilliancy, being at the inferior conjunction July 16. Now it moves off from the sun westward, and increases in brightness, being brightest again August 21; and on September 25 it reaches its greatest elongation west of $46^{\circ} 9'$.

Places of the Planets.

VENUS will be in Capricornus until January 20, then in Aquarius until February 15, being directly south of the Urn, January 23. It passes the equinoctial February 15, rising directly in the east and setting squarely in the west.

It will then be in Pisces until March 12, then in Aries until April 6. On the 4th of April it will be 2° south of the brightest star in the Pleiades. April 14 it will be 8° north of Aldebaran, and April 25 $2^{\circ} 22'$ south of β Tauri. It passes the solstitial column May 4, and on the 26th will be 7° south of Castor, and on the 30th 4° south of Pollux. June 23 it will be stationary, and a little southwest of the nebula in Cancer. It now retrogrades, passing Pollux again July 18, $12^{\circ} 28'$ to the south, and about half way between Pollux and Procyon. August 7 stationary again, beginning to move eastward. October 6, 1° south of Regulus. November 7, crosses the equator. November 21, 4° north of Spica. December 10, enters Libra's Square, and on the 15th near the middle of it. December 29, $6^{\circ} 12'$ north of Antares.

MARS will cross the meridian during daylight for the first nine months of the year. It has no opposition this year, and will not be an object of much interest until near the close of the year. November 27 it will be 2° north of Regulus, in the Handle of Sickel, and will be near that place during November and December.

JUPITER has been traveling northward since May 8, 1865, and May 1 it crosses the equinoctial ring, exactly in the east, at 3h. 32m. morning, and is due east of the Urn. October 1, it rises as the Sun sets, and sets as it rises, and is then brightest.

SATURN will be in opposition May 23, rising at sunset, and being then brightest. It will be in the region 10° or 12° north of Antares all of the year.

Eclipses for 1868.

There will be only two Eclipses this year, both being of the Sun, and neither of them visible in the United States.

I. An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, February 23, visible in South America, Africa, and southern Europe.

II. A Total Eclipse of the Sun, August 18, visible in eastern Africa, southern Asia, and in Australia.

ASTRONOMICAL SIGNS EXPLAINED.

♂ Mercury, ♀ Venus, ♂ Mars, ♀ Jupiter, ♀ Saturn, ♀ Uranus, ♀ Neptune, ☉ Moon ☉ opposition, or half a circle apart, ☐ quadrature, or quarter of a circle apart, ♂ conjunction, or together, having the Right Ascension; the word near, used above, means the same, and indicates that the two bodies are then on a line running from the North Pole through both. Gr. elong., greatest elongation, or furthest distance from the sun; Stationary, when the planet is without apparent motion, and is about to move in a direction contrary to that it had last. The above table enables us to find the planets throughout the year.

OCCULTATIONS.

The moon will occult the bright star α Tauri, or Aldebaran, January 7. It disappears at 1h. 17m. morning, and reappears at 2h. 20m. at Washington. The same star will be occulted again November 29, disappearing at 5h. 54m. evening, and reappearing at 6h. 51m. evening, at Washington.

Synchronisms.

THE year 1868 is bissextile, or leap-year, and after July 4 the 93d of American Independence; the 5628-29th of the Jewish Era, the year 5629 beginning September 17; the 2621st of Rome; the 2644th of the Olympiads; and the 1285th of Mohammed, which begins April 24.

Directions for Finding the True Time.

THE SUN is on the meridian at 12 o'clock on four days only in the year. It is sometimes as much as 16½ minutes before or after twelve when its shadow strikes the noon-mark on the sun-dial. On each calendar page of this Almanac is shown the exact time when the Sun reaches the meridian, or the shadow the noon-mark; and in order to set a clock or watch correctly, it must, when it is noon by the sun-dial or noon-mark, be set at the time indicated in the Almanac. Thus, on the 25th of January, when the Sun is on the noon-mark, the watch must be set 12 minutes and 34 seconds past twelve, which will be the true time. The practice of setting time-pieces by the rising or setting of the Sun or Moon is not strictly correct; as the unevenness of the Earth's surface and intervening objects, such as hills and forests, near the points of rising and setting, occasion a deviation, in every place, from the time expressed in the Almanac, which time is adapted to a smooth, level horizon. The only means of keeping correct time is by the use of a noon-mark, or a meridian-line.

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night.

At any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the Sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

Astronomy and Ancient Dates.

ASTRONOMERS have been enabled to fix the dates of many events in ancient history by means of the natural phenomena recorded in connection with them by historians. Thus a battle between the Medes and the Lydians is proved to have been fought May 28, B. C. 585, for there was a total eclipse of the sun during its progress, and unerring calculations prove that the only eclipse total in Asia Minor at that era was on the day above named.

Organization of the M. E. Church.

THE first society (of five members) was formed by Philip Embury in his private house in New York city, in the autumn of 1766. The first church edifice was erected in John-street, on site of the present church, and dedicated October 30, 1763. The first annual conference was held in Philadelphia in 1773, and consisted of ten preachers, reporting a membership of 1,160. The first General Conference was held in Baltimore in 1784.

Comparative Progress.

By examining the official returns of the conferences for the whole century, and comparing them by decades, from 1766, we have the following table:

Year.	Traveling Preachers.	Increase of Preachers.	Members.	Increase of Members.
1766
1776	24	24	4,921	4,921
1786	117	93	20,689	15,768
1796	293	176	56,664	35,975
1806	452	159	130,570	73,906
1816	695	243	214,235	83,665
1826	1,406	711	360,500	146,565
1836	2,923	1,522	650,103	289,303
1846	3,582	654	644,229*	Dec. 5,874
1856	5,577	2,295	800,327	156,098
1866	7,576	1,699	1,032,184	231,857

* By the withdrawal and separation of southern conferences in 1844, organizing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Episcopal Church lost 1,345 traveling preachers, and 495,288 members; and yet so rapid was her growth during the decade, that at its close (two years after the separation) there was a net gain of 654 preachers, and a lack of only 5,874 members of making up the number lost.

Book Concern of the M. E. Church.

REV. THOMAS CARLTON, D. D., Book Agent at New York; Rev. JAMES PORTER, I. D., Assistant Book Agent at New York; Rev. ADAM POE, D. D., Book Agent at Cincinnati; Rev. LUKE HITCHCOCK, Assistant Book Agent at Cincinnati.

The Book Concern is the property of the General Conference, and subject entirely to its control. By direction of the General Conference the Book Agents "have authority to regulate the publications and all other parts of the business of the Concern, except what belongs to the editorial departments, as the state of the finances and the demands may require."

The first "Book Concern" (John Dickens, Agent) was established in Philadelphia in 1789, with a borrowed capital of $600. In 1797 the first "Book Committee" was appointed. In 1804 the Concern was removed to New York. In 1836 it was destroyed by fire, (loss $250,000.) and soon rebuilt. The Western Book Concern was established in Cincinnati in 1820. Branch book depositories, under the direction of the Book Agents at New York and Cincinnati, have been established in Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, and San Francisco.

The capital in 1836 (date of fire) was $251,650 74. Its total present capital (as per official exhibits made November 30, 1866,) is $958,293 72, an increase of $676,650 98. Fifty-four new volumes were added to the libraries during the year. The whole number of books in the Youth's Library is now 759.

The amount of printing for Sunday-school books and periodicals was equivalent to 589,471,624 pages 18mo., or over 2,947,368 volumes of 200 pages each.

The number of books bound or put up in paper packages or covers was 1,370,000.

The Sunday-School Journal for teachers and young people is beautifully printed, and is filled with just such matter as our teachers and young people ought to read. It has had a prosperous year, reaching a circulation of 22,000. The highest point to which the circulation of the Sunday-School Advocate reached was 326,600, an increase of 22,100 over the previous year. The average semi-monthly circulation was 293,800. The whole number of copies of the paper printed during the year was 7,051,200. The total number of pages was 28,204,800.

The Treasury of the Sunday-School Union is so much in debt that it is not able to meet the calls made upon it as they should be met.

Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Office, 200 Mulberry-street, New York. D. WISE, D.D., Corresponding Secretary; J. PORTER, D.D., Treasurer, New York; J. M. PHILLIPS, Assistant Treasurer, Cincinnati, Ohio. The following items are taken from the Annual Report for January 1, 1867:

The receipts for the year 1866 amounted to $14,574 24, or $1,007 63 in excess of the receipts of 1865. The disbursements were $12,316 63.

The Society is continuing the good work of supplying our Churches with tracts and Good News for local circulation. Tract Committees are supplied liberally, and at no time in her history has our Church been so active in this work as at present.

The average monthly issue of the Good News during the past year was 50,500. The total number of copies printed was 606,000.

Three new tracts were added to the list during the year. The whole number of pages of tracts printed was 3,838,000. Add to these the number of pages of tracts contained in the Good News, (counting each number of the paper as equivalent to thirty pages of an ordinary tract,) 18,180,000, and we have a total of 22,018,000 pages.

The Society is in a really prosperous condition. Its income is enlarging, it has a solvent treasury, and a wide field for usefulness. It is a power for good both at home and in foreign lands.

Our Foreign work is also cultivated. A grant of $1,000 was made to Germany, and several smaller grants to India and other foreign fields.

Homeward Bound.

HOME, the spot of earth supremely blest;
A dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest.—MONTGOMERY.

One small spot
Where my tired mind may rest and call it home.
There is a magic in that little word!
It is a mystic cycle that surrounds
Comforts and virtues never known beyond
The hallowed limit.—SOUTHEY.

Home of our childhood! how affection clings
And hovers round thee with her seraph wings!
Dearer thy hills, though clad in autumn brown,
Than fairest summits which the cedars crown!
Sweeter the fragrance of thy summer breeze
Than all Arabia breathes along the seas!
The stranger's gale wafts home the exile's sigh,
For the heart's temple in its own blue sky!—HOLMES.

Young Lincoln at his Mother's Grave.

THE mother of Abraham Lincoln, late President of the United States, died at the parental home in Indiana while he was yet a mere lad. The Lincoln family had never been favored with regular public religious service. When they were in Kentucky they received the occasional visits to their neighborhood of the faithful itinerants. They preached in the open forests, or in the friendly cabin, to which the people gathered for many miles around. Their words strengthened the faith of the few believers among the settlers, and aroused the slumbering feelings of the careless. They had been much-loved seasons to the now sainted mother, and Abraham remembered them for her sake, and felt anew their power. There was one among these itinerants whom he called to mind with special love. His name was Elkins. A few months after Mrs. Lincoln's death, the broken circle of the cabin, sitting about the fireside, talked of Parson Elkins, and the mother's grave unhonored by any religious service. It was decided that Abraham should write, inviting him to come and preach her funeral sermon. It was Abraham's first letter, and in a holy service written. With deep interest the family waited a reply. In due season it came, the good man willingly promising to come at an appointed time. Faithful to his promise, he made the difficult journey of nearly one hundred miles to perform the labor of love. Abraham had diligently extended the notice to the settlers in every direction for twenty miles. Parson Elkins entered the Linco'n cabin, and there learned how well his Christian friend had died; he had observed in earlier days how well she had lived. At the appointed time he went forth to meet the people around her grave. It was a beautiful Sabbath morning. Notice had spread beyond the limits of Abraham's most distant rides to carry it, and at an early hour the congregation began to assemble. Those who have not seen such gatherings cannot understand the depth of interest which is manifested in the pains taken to reach the place. In ox-teams, on the backs of mules and horses, in carriages of rude construction, and on foot; over difficult roads, and through paths scarcely discernible, they press to the sacred spot. The old come bending upon the tops of their staves, the strong laborers from their toil, and children in their mothers' arms. No member of these scattered communities is uninterested in these solemn gatherings.

The minister took his stand at the head of the grave. Before him, sitting upon the ground, or in vehicles drawn up on the outskirts of the multitude, or standing leaning against the trees, was a congregation as solemn and as eager for the bread of life as could be found in more cultivated society. After the service, as the people slowly dispersed, Abraham stood silent and alone at the grave. His great loss came home to his heart with fresh power, and he inwardly resolved to follow his mother's example in loving God and his word.—The Forest Boy. Published by Carlton & Porter, New York.

A Word to Mothers.

ACH mother is a historian. She writes not the history of empires or of nations on paper, but she writes her own history on the imperishable mind of her child. That tablet and that history will remain indelible when time shall be no more. That history each mother shall meet again, and read with eternal joy or unutterable grief in the coming ages of eternity. The thought should weigh on the mind of every mother, and render her deeply circumspect, and prayerful, and faithful in her solemn work of training up her children for heaven and immortality.

The minds of children are very susceptible and easily impressed. A word, a look, a frown may engrave an impression on the mind of a child which no lapse of time can efface or wash out. You walk along the seashore when the tide is out, and you form characters, or write words or names in the smooth white sand which is spread out so clear and beautiful at your feet, according as your fancy may dictate; but the returning tide shall in a few hours wash out and efface all that you have written. Not so the lines and characters of truth or error which your conduct imprints on the mind of your child. There you write impressions for the everlasting good or ill of your child, which neither the floods nor the storms of earth can wash out, nor death's cold fingers erase, nor the slow-moving ages of eternity obliterate. How careful, then, should each mother be in her treatment of her child! How prayerful, and how serious, and how earnest to write the eternal truths of God on his mind—those truths which shall be his guide and teacher when her voice shall be silent in death, and her lips no longer move in prayer in his behalf, in commending her dear child to her covenant God.

Pride in the Pulpit.

JOHN BUNYAN had a great dread of spiritual pride; and once, after he had preached a very fine sermon, and his friends crowded round to shake him by the hand, while they expressed the utmost admiration of his eloquence, he interrupted them, saying: "Ay! you need not remind me of that, for the devil told me of it before I was out of the pulpit!"

Visiting the Sick-room.

THEN shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was ahungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee ahungered, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee? And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. Matt. xxv, 34-40.

Chamber of sickness! 'mid thy silence oft
 A voice is heard,
 Which, though it fall like dew on flowers, so soft,
 Yet speaks each word
 Into the aching heart's unseen recess,
 With power no earthly accents could possess.

Sunday under the Shawl.—Hearing Sermons.

WOMAN forgot to send home some work on Saturday. Sunday morning she told a little girl who lived with her to put on her things and take the bundle under her shawl to the lady's house. "Nobody will see it," she said.

"But is it not Sunday under my shawl, aunty?" asked the child.

Yes, it is Sunday in the back yard as well as the front yard; Sunday down stairs as well as up stairs; in the kitchen and baby-house as well as in the parlor; and so the dear children must try and let all their behavior be in tune, and not out of tune, with the sweet quiet of the Lord's day.

A gentleman once said to Rowland Hill: "It is sixty-five years since I first heard you preach, and the sermon was well worth remembering. You remarked that some people are very squeamish about the manner of a clergyman in preaching, but you then added: 'Suppose one were attending to hear a will read, expecting to receive a legacy, would you employ the time in criticizing the lawyer's manner while reading it? No; you would give all your interest to ascertain if anything were left to yourself, and how much. Let that, then, be the way in which you listen to the Gospel.'"

Lost for Want of a Word.

Lost for want of a word,
A word that I might have spoken!
Who knows what eyes are dim,
What hearts are aching and broken?
Go, scatter beside all waters,
Nor sicken at hope deferred;
Let never a soul by thy dumbness
Be lost for want of a word.

A Wise Answer.

A MISSIONARY in Jamaica once questioned a little black boy on Matthew v, and asked:

"Who are the meek?"

"Those who give soft answers to rough questions," answered the boy.

Little Things and Little People.

It is of small things that a great life is made up; and he who will acknowledge no life as great save that which is built up of great things, will find little in Bible characters to admire or copy.

Little things and little people have often brought great things to pass. The large world in which we exist is made up of little particles as small as the sand on the seashore. The vast sea is composed of small drops of water. The little busy bees, how much honey they gather! Do not be discouraged because you are little. A little star shines brightly in the sky on a dark night, and may be the means of saving many a poor sailor from shipwreck; and a little Christian may do a great deal of good if he or she will try. There is nothing like trying.—
DR. CHALMERS.

Old Age and Childhood.

How pure
 The grace, the gentleness of virtuous age!
 Though solemn, not austere; though wisely dead
 To passion, and the 'wilderings of hope,
 Not unalive to tenderness and truth;
 The good old man is honored and revered,
 And breathes upon the young-limbed race around
 A gray and venerable charm of years.

Zeal in Death.

On the day of his death, in his eightieth year, Eliot, "the apostle of the Indians," was found teaching the alphabet to an Indian child at his bedside. "Why not rest from your labors now?" said a friend. "Because," said the venerable man, "I have prayed to God to render me useful in my sphere, and he heard my prayers; for now that I can no longer preach, he leaves me strength enough to teach this poor child his alphabet."

Feasting on God's Word.

HERE have you been reading this morning, uncle?"

"Weel, Sandy," said the old man, "I hae been gettin' a wonderfu' feast yesterday and the day out o' the last twa' verses o' the aucht o' Romans."

"And have you not read any more than these two verses in two days?" asked Smith, with a little surprise.

"O, surely, surely, sir," said my uncle, "I hae been delving owre a middlin' breadth o' surface elsewhere, but I hae been tryin' to sink a mine doon here. And I'm no doon at the big nuggets yet. You see, sir, that I do wi' these verses as I do wi' thir sugar plums—will ye hae twa or three o' them, if ye please? I'm fashed wi' a dryness in the throat that sets me hoastin', and Mary whiles makes me a lot o' ploods. She noo and then puts ane o' them in her mouth but she gies it just a chew or two and ower wi' it; while I lay mine in my cheek and let it be and melt, and do me gude for half a day. And mony a nee does the same wi' the Bible. They ga'lop owre a chapter and it's dune; but nae sic waistris for me I like to tak' a sweet and sappie bit—a verse or a word, may be—and to let it lie in my cheek and melt, and fill my soul wi' its sweetness, for a day, or a week, or a month at a time. Did you ever try this way o' feastin' on God's word, sir?"

Get more of it.

THERE is one thing with which we ought never to be content. That thing is a little religion, a little faith, a little hope, a little grace. Let us never sit down satisfied with little of these things. On the contrary, let us seek them more and more. When Alexander the Great visited the Greek philosopher Diogenes, he asked him if there was anything that he could give him. He got this short answer: "I want nothing but that you should not stand between me and the sun." Let the spirit of that answer run through our religion. One thing there is which should never satisfy and content us, and that is, anything that stands between our soul's and Christ.

Kind Words heard with Confidence.

HAVE you never seen the child who, conscious of the teacher's kindness and worth, looked up into his face with a sweet and loving smile, a docile disposition, and an eager desire for the instruction he conveyed? There was the open eye, and ear, and heart; there was unreserved and full affection; there was unquestioning confidence and a thirst for knowledge. Looking on that child you had no doubt of its growth in knowledge and mental power.

I am the Door.

THE ancient city of Troy had but one gate. Go round and round the city, you would find no other. If you wanted to get in, there was but one way. So to the golden city of heaven there is but one gate. Christ says, "I am the door."

The Apostle Paul's Salary.

HUNGER, thirst, fasting, nakedness, peril, persecution, stripes, death. Very much like the salaries of some preachers nowadays, only Paul received more. Paul never was a settled minister, however, except in Rome.

Giving the Bible—Sage Advice.

RETIRE and read thy Bible, to be gay;
 There truths abound of sovereign aid to peace.
 Ah! do not prize them less because inspired,
 As thou and thine are apt to do.
 If not inspired, that fragrant page has stood,
 Time's treasure, and the wonder of the wise.—YOUNG.

Beginning with the Bible.

DURING the time that Dr. Kennicott was employed in preparing his Polyglot Bible, he was accustomed to hear his wife read to him, in their daily airings, those different portions to which his immediate attention was called. When preparing for their ride, the day after this great work was completed, upon her asking him what book she should now take,

"O," exclaimed he, "let us again begin the Bible!"

A Clergyman and his Parishioner.

T

HE last incident illustrative of the meanness which characterizes some men's gifts for the support of the g spel is narrated by a clergyman, recently in attendance at the Diocesan Convention of Massachusetts. He was quietly burning a weed and chatting with a brother minister in the study of a city rector. The brother had been settled for more than a third of a century in a rural parish, which he had left a short time before, and the brother with whom he was talking was his successor. The conversation turned upon clerical experience in the parish:

"Mr. R. is still living?"

"Yes; one of the best men in the parish; not very liberal, but a good man, and very rich."

"What does he do for your support?"

"Not much; but he pays his pew rent."

"Does he sell vinegar now?"

"O yes; he has one of the largest orchards in the parish, and is so conscientious that his cider is all made into vinegar."

"Does he give you any vinegar?"

"Not he."

"So it was in my day. His vinegar was made to sell. When his daughter sickened I went there almost every day, about five miles off. When she died she had a great funeral, and I sat up most of the night to write a funeral sermon.

I called the next day. Then a few days after I went, and thought I would carry my vinegar jug, which just then happened to be empty. The jug was filled. I did not like to take it away without offering to pay, and so I said, as meekly as possible, 'What shall I pay you?' 'Well,' said my good parishioner, 'I generally charge twenty-five cents a gallon; but seeing as how you've been so kind to me in trouble, I wont charge you but twenty cents!' At this time I had eleven children, and was living on a salary of $600 per annum."

Sprinkling "Sent from Above."

A BAPTIST and a Presbyterian happened one day to be walking together when a slight shower began to fall. The Baptist brother proposed to take refuge in a neighboring store, when the Presbyterian observed:

"Surely you don't mean to leave me? You are of a denomination that professes especially not to be afraid of water."

"Certainly," replied the Baptist: "but we object to it by sprinkling."

"I suppose so," retorted the Calvinist, "even though the sprinkling be sent from above!"

This seemed to throw a damper on further discussion, and the parties separated.

A Tender Reproof.

A LITTLE boy had one day done wrong, and was sent, after maternal correction, to ask in secret the forgiveness of his heavenly Father. His offense had been passion. Anxious to hear what he would say, his mother followed to the door of his room. In lisping accents, she heard him ask to be made better, and never to be angry again, and then, with childish simplicity, he added, "Lord, make ma's temper better too!"

Sin Confessed.

THAT boy has done wrong, and feels it. He does right to come at once and confess it. He will confess it also to his heavenly Father, and will watch against its repetition in future. Having done this the burden of guilt which presses upon his heart will be removed and he will be happy again.

Dr. Chalmers and the Impostor.

JUST now, while the number of itinerant impostors is largely increasing, it may increase our caution to read an incident of Dr. Chalmers. This eminent Scotch divine was everywhere distinguished for his anxiety for the salvation of souls, and equally for his charities and love of the poor. While he was one day very busily engaged in his study, a man entered, who at once propitiated him, under the perplexity of an unexpected interruption, by telling him that he called under great distress of mind.

"Sit down, sir; be good enough to be seated," said Dr. Chalmers, turning eagerly and full of interest from his writing-table.

The visitor explained to him that he was troubled with doubts about the divine origin of the Christian religion; and being kindly questioned as to the nature of his doubts, he gave among other difficulties what is said in the Bible about Melchizedek, being without father, without mother, etc. Patiently and anxiously Dr. Chalmers sought to clear away every successive difficulty as it was stated. Expressing himself greatly relieved in mind, and imagining that he had gained his end,

"Doctor," said the visitor, "I am in great need of a little money at present, and perhaps you could help me in that way."

At once the object of the visit was seen, and a tornado of indignation burst upon the deceiver, driving him in very quick retreat from the study to the street-door, these words escaping among others: "Not a penny, sir; not a penny. It is too bad; and to haul in your hypocrisy upon the shoulders of Melchizedek."

Watching for Pa.

THREE little forms in the twilight gray,
Scanning the shadows across the way;
Six little eyes—four black, two blue—
Brimful of love and happiness, too,
Watching for pa.

May, with her placid and thoughtful brow,
Gentle face beaming with love just now,
Willie, the rogue, so loving and gay,
Stealing a kiss from his sister May—
Watching for pa.

Nellie, with ringlets of sunny hue,
Cosily nestled between the two,
Pressing her cheek 'gainst the window pane,
Wishing the absent one home again,
Watching for pa.

O how they gaze at the passers-by!
"He's coming at last," they gayly cry.
"Try again, my pets," exclaims mamma,
And Nellie adds, "There's the twilight star,
Watching for pa."

Jack nods and smiles, as with busy feet
He lights the lamps in their quiet street;
That sweet little group he knows full well,
May and Willie, with golden-haired Nell,
Watching for pa.

Soon joyous shouts from the window seat,
And eager patter of childish feet;
Gay, musical chimes ring through the hall;
A manly voice responds to the call,
"Welcome papa!"

"Do thy Little."

A CERTAIN king would build a cathedral, and that the credit of it might be all his own, he forbade any from contributing to its erection in the least degree. A tablet was placed in the side of the building, and on it his name was carved as the builder. But that night he saw in a dream an angel, who came down and erased his name, and the name of a poor widow appeared in its stead. This was three times repeated, when the enraged king summoned the woman before him, and demanded, "What have you been doing? and why have you broken my commandment?" The trembling woman replied, "I loved the Lord, and longed to do something for his name, and for the building up of his church. I was forbidden to touch it in any way; so, in my poverty, I bought a wisp of hay for the horses that drew the stones." And the king saw that he had labored for his own glory, but the widow for the glory of God, and he commanded that her name should be inscribed on the tablet.—RALPH WELLS.

Tyranny of Fashion.

FASHION rules the world; and a most tyrannical mistress she is, compelling people to submit to the most inconvenient things imaginable for her sake.

She pinches our feet with tight shoes, or chokes us with a tight neckerchief, or squeezes the breath out of our body by tight lacing.

She makes people sit up by night when they ought to be in bed; and keeps them in bed in the morning, when they ought to be up and doing.

She makes it vulgar to wait upon one's self, and genteel to live idle and useless.

She makes people visit when they had rather stay at home, eat when they are not hungry, and drink when they are not thirsty.

She invades our pleasures, and interrupts our business.

She compels people to dress gayly, whether upon their own property or that of others, whether agreeable to the word of God or the dictates of pride.

She ruins health, and produces sickness; destroys life, and occasions premature death.

She makes fools of parents, invalids of children, and servants of all.

She is a tormentor of conscience, a despoiler of morality, and an enemy of religion; and no one can be her companion and enjoy either.

She is a despot of the highest grade, full of intrigue and cunning, and yet husbands, wives, fathers, mothers, sons, daughters, and servants, black and white, have voluntarily become her obedient subjects and slaves, and vie with one another to see who shall be most obsequious.

A Golden Thought.

NATURE will be reported. All things are engaged in writing their own history. The plant and the pebble go attended by their own shadows. The rock leaves its scratches on the mountain side, the river its bed in the soil, the animal leaves its bones in the stratum, the fern and the leaf their modest epitaph in the coal. The falling drop makes its sepulcher in the sand of stone; not a footstep in the snow or along the ground, but prints in characters more or less lasting, a map of its march; every act of man inscribes itself on the memories of his fellows, and on his own face. The air is full of sounds, the sky of tokens; the ground is all memoranda signatures, and every object is covered over with hints which speak to the intelligent.

A Cheerful View of Things.

"How dismal you look!" said a bucket to his companion as they were going to the well. "Ah!" replied the other, "I was reflecting on the uselessness of our being filled: for let us go away ever so full, we always come back empty." "Dear me, how strange to look at it in that way!" said the bucket. "Now, I enjoy the thought that however empty we come, we always go away full. Only look at it in that light, and you will be as cheerful as I am."

Blessing the Young Cripple.

"So they set out together, Miss Mansfield between the two children. The poor little cripple was a very light weight, and they pushed him gently along. When they reached the blackberry hedge, Miss Mansfield pulled down a branch to the chair, and the poor little cripple, for the first time in his life, gathered blackberries himself: his pleasure was extreme, and his hunger seemed great. They stayed as long as possible, the poor little cripple being very unwilling to leave the blackberry hedge; but at length they were obliged to push him back again to his mother's cottage door." [From "Charley and Edith," a beautiful book for children in the "Blind Basket-Maker Library," just issued at the Methodist Book Concern.]

Christian Affection—Comparison.

CHRISTIAN affections are like Mary's precious ointment poured on Christ's head, that filled the whole house with a sweet odor. That was poured out of an alabaster box; so gracious affections flow to Christ out of a pure heart. That was poured out of a broken box, (until the box was broken the ointment could not flow nor diffuse its odor,) so gracious affections flow out of a broken heart.

The Blind Basket-Maker.

IN one of the beautiful rural towns of Western New York dwelt a poor yet respectable family, the husband and father of which was entirely blind. In his earlier years, and until after his marriage, his vision was perfect; but as the result of a very painful accident, the world with all its beautiful forms was shut out from his natural sight for ever. But there was no repining by himself or companion, no complaining of the dispensations of Providence. Both were Christians, and both loved to cast their care upon Him who cared for them. One day, after the paroxysms of pain connected with the loss of the husband's eyesight were over, and while both were in prayer, these words were impressed upon the hearts of each with all the distinctness of audible language: "Make earth a paradise." From that hour they tried to do so; and the blessing of God rested upon their efforts. Their home was one of industry, prayer, and cheerful confidence. As a vocation most conducive to his health, and most remunerative for a home work to one in his circumstances, he learned to make baskets, and soon became skilled in their manufacture. Friends were multiplied on every hand; for the people loved to visit a home where only loving words were spoken, and only kind deeds performed. As the children grew up, having caught the spirit of the parents, they also loved to make those happy around them; and all, parents and children, "did make earth a paradise." The parents are now in heaven; but the baskets of the blind man, still used in many a Western New York home, recall the precious memories of their kind deeds and loving words.

Gift of a Poor Blind Girl.

POOR blind girl, in England, brought to a clergyman thirty shillings for the missionary cause. He objected: "You are a poor blind girl, and cannot afford to give so much."

"I am indeed blind," said she, "but can afford to give these thirty shillings better, perhaps, than you suppose."

"How so?"

"I am, sir, by trade a basket-maker, and can work as well in the dark as in the light. Now, I am sure in the last winter it must have cost those girls who have eyes more than thirty shillings for candles to work by, which I have saved, and therefore hope you will take it for the missionaries."

Without Jesus, the child who is heir to a kingdom is poor. Having Jesus, the child who is clothed in rags is unspeakably rich. A child may get to heaven without a penny in his pocket, but not without love to Jesus in his heart.

The Bright Side.

At the close of a dull, rainy day, a little girl pointed to the west and cried, "Look! O look, papa; the sun's brightening all it can." "So it is," replied her father: "and you can be like the sun if you please, looking happy, smiling, and never letting the tearful rain come into those blue eyes." The next day the music of the child's voice rang through the house from sunrise till dark, and she seemed as happy as she could be. "What makes you so happy?" asked her father. "Why, don't you see I'm the sun, papa! I'm brightening all I can!"

Touching.

A POOR little girl in the Fourth Ward, New York, as she was dying, said, "I am glad I am going to die, because now my brothers and sisters will have enough to eat!"

"Our Little Four-year-old."

"PAPA, God up in heaven wouldn't never have given you a little four-year-old if he'd have known you'd put him in the corner," said Little Punky. Then he clasped his hands, and offered this prayer.

"Dear God up in heaven, I aint any better boy in the corner than I am in the middle of the room, or anywhere else; and wont you please to make my father let me come out?"

His prayer ended, he turned and looked earnestly at his father, as if expecting the summons to "come out;" but no notice being taken of him, he said,

"Papa, you didn't hear my prayer, did you?"

"Yes," was the reply, "I heard my little boy's prayer; but he has been so very spunky this morning that he must stand in the corner ten minutes longer."

"Mr. Punky, Mr. Punky," he said to himself, in a low tone, "you needn't pray to God up in heaven to let you out of this corner, 'cause he wont—you have been so punky."

"Papa," he added, after being imprisoned two or three minutes longer in the corner, "how long is ten minutes?"

"I'll tell you when you have been there ten minutes," replied "our four-year-old's" father, looking at his watch.

"I wish I wasn't ever punky, or that there wasn't any corners to this room," said the little boy in a plaintive tone. "The ten minutes are most over, aint they, papa?"

"Five minutes more, my son; I hope you'll try to be a good boy."

"I'm pretty good now. I guess I'd better come out. Mayn't I, papa?"

"Not yet, my son. You must stay there four minutes longer."

"Maybe, some time your little four-year-old will get sick and die, and then you'll wish you hadn't never, never, never put him in the corner. I keep getting good, papa. Mayn't I come out?"

The long-awaited for "Yes" at last greeted the little boy's ears, for the ten minutes were up, and he bounded out into the middle of the room, as if he wanted to be as far as possible from the corners. The discipline over, his sweetest smiles and brightest sunshine all came back, and he poured the richest and most delightful music into the ears of the man of forty-five years: his father.

"Papa," he said, "I know something you don't. Want to guess?"

"I'd guess," was the answer, "but I'm sure I couldn't guess what it is."

"Well, I'll tell you just a little ways, and then you may guess the rest of it. Do you know what the finger next my thumb and my mouth are for?"

"You mean your little fat fore-finger and your mouth. Well, I'm sure I don't know what they are for."

Our "little four-year-old" was delighted that his father couldn't guess, and at last revealed the secret.

"The finger next my thumb is to point at the picshures in 'Merica, and my mouth it is to kiss 'em."

"God bless our 'little four-year-old,' and all the little ones who fill the world with music and their fathers' hearts with joy!"

A Beautiful Extract.

THE loved ones whose loss I lament are still in existence, they are living with me at this time; they are like myself, dwelling in the great parental mansion of God: they still belong to me as I do to them. As they are ever in my thoughts, so, perhaps, am I in theirs. As I mourn for their loss, perhaps they rejoice in anticipation of our reunion. What to me is still dark, they see clearly. Why do I grieve because I can no longer enjoy their pleasant society? During their lifetime I was not discontented because I could not always have them around me. If a journey took them from me, I was not therefore unhappy. And why is it different now? They have gone on a journey. Whether they are living on earth in a far distant city, or in some higher world in the infinite universe of God, what difference is there? Are we not still in the same house of the Father, like loving brothers who inhabit separate rooms? Have we therefore ceased to be brothers?—ROWAN.

How to Cure Calumny.

"If any one speaks ill of thee," said Epictetus, "consider whether he hath truth on his side; and if so, reform thyself, that his censures may not affect thee." When Anaximander was told that the very boys laughed at his singing, "Ah," said he, "then I must learn to sing better." Plato being told that he had many enemies who spoke ill of him, said, "It is no matter; I shall live so that none will believe them." Hearing at another time that an intimate friend of his had spoken detractingly of him, he said, "I am sure he would not do it if he had not some reason for it." This is the surest as well as the noblest way of drawing the sting out of a reproach, and the true method of preparing a man for that great and only relief against the pains of calumny.

Sugar Making.

THIS scene is rural indeed. It is laid in a grove of large and thrifty maples. A brother and his two sisters are engaged in drawing the sap from the several trees to the sugar house, where the work of boiling it into sugar takes place. Two cousins from the city have come to witness the work, and enjoy the "sugaring off" festival. They were not expected, but their presence is most welcome. The large fires are made to burn rapidly, and soon the rich tempting sirup appears; then follows the cleansing; then the renewal of the boiling until the cheerful announcement is heard, and repeated by each, "It is sugar now;" and then comes the eating, with wooden spoons and wooden knives, while the merry, joyous conversation is gratefully prolonged. Who would not journey a long way into the country, if need be, to enjoy an old-fashioned sugar festival in the maple woods?

Good Manners.

A civil, respectful way of treating everybody is one of the surest ways of getting along comfortably in the world. It costs nothing but a little thought, and is worth a great deal.

Health Suggestions—Simple Remedies.

SECRETS OF HEALTH.—1. Keep warm. 2. Eat regularly and slow. 3. Maintain regular daily bodily habits. 4. Take early and very light suppers. 5. Keep a clean skin. 6. Get plenty of sleep at night.

TO KEEP WARM.—Have abundance of fresh air in your room—not a current through it, but a constant renewal of the air. Don't tie up the face or throat with a muffler. Cover the lungs and body below, and the arms, legs, and feet, and the rest will take care of themselves. Walk an hour at night. Wear loose shoes.

HICCUGHS.—A friend who had tried other specifics in vain, applied the poles of a galvanic battery, one pole on the back, the other opposite, in the region of the diaphragm. The cure was instantaneous.

STAUNCHING OR DRESSING WOUNDS.—An excellent substitute for lint is "tissue paper." Use the white. It makes a better dressing than lint.

RELIEF FOR ASTHMA.—The clothing should be warm; avoid sudden changes of temperature; if necessary to go into cold air cover the nostrils with woolen; use no intoxicating beverages; ride and not walk for exercise; sleep in a room open to fresh air; do not sleep on feathers; eat little or nothing at supper. Those asthmatics accustomed to tobacco will often find temporary relief by inhaling the smoke from cigars, (cigarettes) composed of tobacco and stramonium.

CROUP.—Wring a linen cloth—cotton will do, but linen is preferable—out of cold water, fold it so as to make several thicknesses, and place it upon the child's throat and chest, then fold a dry flannel and wrap carefully over it. Warm the child's feet, with hot stones, if necessary, and cover with plenty of bed-clothes and let it go to sleep. You cannot perceive when it wakes up that it has even a cold. It acts like a charm.

HOW TO GET UP EARLY.—Place a basin of cold water by the side of your bed. When you first awake in the morning dip your hands in the basin and wet your brow, and sleep will not again seal you in its treacherous embrace. This is the advice given by an aged man, who had been in the habit of rising early during a long life. By attending to this advice you may learn to rise every morning at five o'clock. The editor has found it to be a better plan to go to bed at one regular hour. Leave your bed the moment you awake of yourself, after daylight; nature will thus regulate the sleep to the exact amount required by the system.

TREATMENT OF THE TEETH.—A permanent tooth ought never to be extracted to make room for others; nature knows what she is about; every tooth is needed to develop the jaw, and that is of more importance than regularity. Soft brushes only should be used for the teeth, and no wash except soap-suds twice a week, and every night and morning the following: Dissolve two ounces of borax in three pints of boiling water; then add a teaspoonful of spirits of camphor; keep it well bottled. A tablespoonful in as much warm water at a time. Or dip a brush in water and rub it on the teeth until the accumulation of saliva is sufficient. This makes the softest, safest, and most cleansing tooth-wash known.

ANTIDOTE FOR POISON.—For poisons which cause an instantaneous sensation of burning in the throat, etc., drink a teacupfull of sweet oil, or lard, or grease of any sort. The most that can happen from an over amount is, that it will be vomited up, and this brings more or less of the poison out of the stomach; then you can more leisurely drink magnesia-water, or strong soap-suds, or a table-spoon of wood-ashes, put in half a pint of lukewarm water, stir, let it settle two minutes, pour it off, and drink. If a powder has caused the urgent sensations, the most generally applicable antidote is to swallow one or two raw eggs: the white is the efficient part, but there may not be time to separate the yolk. This is best in poisons from arsenic, corrosive sublimate, verdigris, creosote, etc. If the effect is not instantaneous, and time may be taken, the first best thing to be done in all cases is to get the poison out of the stomach instantly, by swallowing every five minutes a teacup of warm water into which has been stirred a full teaspoon each of common salt and ground kitchen mustard. There is vomiting almost as soon as it reaches the stomach. Then drink a cup or two of very strong coffee, which is the best remedy for all anodyne poisons, as opium, morphine, laudanum, etc. In short, if the sufferings are instantaneous and urgent, drink sweet oil or soap-suds; if gradual, or causing drowsiness, mustard emetic, strong coffee, or white of eggs.—DR. HALL.

Pioneer Life—Going to Market.

Few families are happier than those participating in the early settlements of rural life. The perplexities and downright wretchedness of what is termed style or fashion are unknown. With industrial pursuits in the woods, and fields, and cabin homes, there are health, economy, and certain, though slow and gradual, increase of material prosperity. Religion and science are quite as likely to find a welcome in a frontier cabin home as in the palatial mansion of town and city. Not a few of the noblest, most distinguished, and useful of American citizens were cradled in the rude and simple cabins of frontier life.

An Important Question.

THE late Rev. Dr. Newton was once speaking of a lady who had recently died. A young lady immediately asked, "O, sir, how did she die?" The venerable man replied, "There is a more important question than that, my dear, which you should have asked first." "Sir," said she, "what question can be more important than 'How did she die?'" "How did she live?" he replied.

Useful Miscellaneous Hints.

NITRATE OF SILVER STAINS may be removed from the hands or clothing by the combination of tincture of iodine and a solution of hyposulphite of soda.

To REMOVE the disagreeable taste from new kegs, churns, or other wooden vessels, first scald them with boiling water, then dissolve some pearlash or soda in lukewarm water, adding a little lime to it, and wash the inside of the vessel well with the solution; afterward scald it well with plain hot water before using.

DIP the tips of nails in grease, and they can then easily be driven into any hard wood, where otherwise they would double and break.

COAL TAR is recommended in the Chemical News as an excellent coating of cisterns and reservoirs, to protect water from the lime and other salts contained in the cement. The tarry taste, if we may believe the writer, disappears in a few days.

PICKLING VEGETABLES, as well as salting meats and tanning leather, is effected without loss of time by the pneumatic process: exhausting the air and letting in the liquid under atmospheric pressure so as to force it instantly through the opened pores and cells.

PUTTY FOR STOVE JOINTS may be made by wetting together fine salt with double its bulk of fresh hard wood ashes. If a harder cement is wanted, use iron filings with white lead and linseed oil. It should have a day or two for hardening.

To CUT GLASS to any shape without a diamond, hold it quite level under water, and with a pair of strong scissors clip it away by small bits from the edges.

A PUTTY of starch and chloride of zinc hardens quickly and lasts for months as a stopper of holes in metals.

A WHITE PASTE, adhesive to all surfaces, is said to be made as follows: A solution of two and a half ounces of gum arabic in two quarts of warm water is thickened to a paste with wheat flour; to this is added a solution of alum and sugar of lead, 720 grains each in water. The mixture is heated and stirred about to boil, and is then cooled. It may be thinned, if necessary, with the gum solution.

The Chemical News states that a strong solution of sulphate of magnesia will give a beautiful quality to whitewash, and a little of it used with starch will add considerably to its stiffness, and render cotton or linen garments to a certain degree incombustible.

IN BLEACHING GLUE, soak in moderately strong acetic acid for two days, drain, place on a sieve, and wash well with cold water. Dry on a warm plate. This method is given in Dingler's Journal.

THE UNPLEASANT SQUEAK OF BOOT AND SHOE SOLES can be stopped by simply confining the layers of the sole by one or more rows of pegs, driven from the toe toward the heel, as the noise is caused wholly by the friction of one sole on the other. The only objection is that the rows of pegs unpleasantly stiffen the soles.

A SOLUTION OF RUBBER is the best elastic and water-proof cement for cloth. The lightest colored varnishes are solutions of gum dammar or bleached lac. They are, however, not elastic.

THE GALVANIZING OF IRON diminishes its tensile strength. The zinc penetrates the iron, and to some extent destroys its fibrous character. The effect is most noticeable on fine wire.

THE BEST VARNISH OR PAINT FOR CLOTH contains as much pure linseed oil as can be got into it. The dried or oxydized film of linseed oil is nearly as elastic and tough as india rubber.

To MAKE SHIRT BOSOMS SHINE, take two ounces of gum arabic powder, put it into a pitcher, and pour on it a pint or more of boiling water, (according to the strength you desire,) and then, having covered it, let it stand all night. In the morning pour it carefully from the dregs into a bottle, and cork it for use. A tablespoonful of this stirred in the pot of starch that has been made in the usual manner will give the linen a beautiful luster.

WHILE SLEEPING with the head raised or bolstered up, the vessels through which the blood passes from the heart to the head are lessened in their cavities; therefore, in all diseases attended with fever, the head should be nearly level with the body.

STAKES used for the support of trees, or for the protection of fences, will, by dipping the part which enters the soil in coal tar, last four times as long as if not so prepared.

FOR RAZOR PASTE use jeweler's rouge or tin putty and oil.

IN POLISHING OR WASHING DOOR KNOBS, or other articles projecting from a painted surface, protect the paint by slipping over the articles a piece of stout pasteboard or cloth, having a hole or slit in the center large enough to slip it on.

PRUNE NEGLECTED GRAPEVINES early in winter, and prune closely.

IN BOILING MEATS never put them in cold water, but plump them into that which is boiling briskly. This will coagulate the albumen on the outside, close the pores, and prevent the water from soaking out the rich juices. If salted meats need freshening, let it be previously done with cold water, taking all needed time, with frequent changing of the water, if it is very salt.

TO KEEP EGGS, exclude the air by coating the eggs with lard, or tallow and lard. Dip the eggs, one at a time, in the melted lard, cool quickly, and pack away in a cool place.

TO CRYSTALLIZE FLOWERS, put one pound of alum in a deep dish, place the flowers on the alum then pour one quart of boiling water in the dish; keep the flowers under water until it is cold, then take them out and dry them. The alum may be used in greater or less quantities.

WHEN GROVES are not in use oil them, to prevent rust, with sweet olive oil; (all grocers keep it;) when again used it will burn off with scarcely any smell.

COAL-SCUTTLES should be cleaned and oiled inside and out with "boiled linseed oil," obtained at any paint-shop.

THE SIMPLEST WAY to determine the hardness of water is to observe its effect on soap. The soap test is in fact generally used by chemists. The solid contents of hard water are left on complete evaporation of the water.

CURRENT-WORM.—Thorough experience proves that the best method of preventing the ravages of the currant-worm is to sprinkle the bushes with powdered white hellebore, which may be obtained from most druggists.

HENS' EGGS should be removed from the nests daily. By remaining they soon become unfit for use. Use an artificial egg for the nest.

THE MOST INTELLIGENT HERDSMEN supply their cattle frequently with salt. Salt is both a stimulant and tonic.

TO KEEP BREAD well where there is no cellar, wrap it in a clean towel as soon as cooled, and put it in a tin box, or in a large covered tin pan; or, better still, in the top of a refrigerator, if you have one.

TO CARE FOR BROOMS, have a screw with an eye or ring on its end; this can be screwed into the end of the handle of each successive new broom. It is handier to hang up by than a string, though the latter answers if always used. It is bad for a broom to leave it standing upon the brush. If not hung up, always set it away with the stick end down.

TO HULL CORN, boil in weak lye until the hulls begin to come off, next rinse well two or three times in plenty of water, then add clear water, and boil until done through.

THE EFFECTS OF HARD AND SOFT WATER on different vegetables vary materially. Peas and beans cooked in hard water will not boil tender, because the lime or gypsum in the water hardens the vegetable casein. Many vegetables (as is the case with onions) boil nearly tasteless in soft water; it is better therefore to boil them in hard water. Salt sometimes hardens water to a degree. For extracting the juices from meat soft water, and cold at first, is best. For boiling meat so as to retain the juices hard and salt water is best.

IN RENOVATING ROOMS, FURNITURE, etc., make your whitewash in the ordinary way, and put into it twenty cents' worth of chloride of lime. This will purify the walls. For the furniture, make suds, and put in ten cents' worth of the lime, as above, and wash with it. When the furniture is perfectly dry, put on a coat of varnish. To cleanse clothing, make suds as above with chloride according to the quantity of articles to be cleansed, boil them, and drop in twenty drops of spirits of turpentine. This process will prove ample for cleansing and rendering the rooms and clothing sweet.

OUR NEW FAMILY SEWING MACHINE.

THE superior merits of the "Singer" Machines over all others for either Family use or Manufacturing purposes are so well established, and so generally admitted, that an enumeration of their relative excellences is no longer considered necessary.

The Letter "A" Family Machine, hitherto manufactured by this Company, has gained and maintained, the world over, and for years past, an unparalleled reputation and sale. But notwithstanding the excellence of this Machine, we have now to announce that it has been superseded by our which has been over two years in preparation, and which has been brought to perfection regardless of time, labor, or expense, and is now confidently presented to the public as incomparably the Best Sewing Machine in existence.

NEW FAMILY MACHINE,

The machine in question is Simple, Compact, Durable, and Beautiful.

It is quiet, light running, and

CAPABLE OF PERFORMING A RANGE AND VARIETY OF WORK

never before attempted upon a single Machine—using either SILK, TWIST, LINEN OR COTTON THREAD, and sewing with equal facility the very finest and coarsest materials, and anything between the two extremes, in the most beautiful and substantial manner. Its attachments for HEMMING, BRAIDING, CORDING, TUCKING, QUILTING, FELLING, TRIMMING, BINDING, ETC., are NOVEL and PRACTICAL, and have been invented and adjusted especially for this Machine.

New designs of the UNIQUE, USEFUL, AND POPULAR FOLDING TOPS AND CABINET CASES, peculiar to the Machines manufactured by this Company, have been prepared for inclosing the new Machine.

A faint idea, however, can at best be conveyed through the medium of a (necessarily) limited advertisement, and we therefore urge every person in quest of a Sewing Machine by all means to examine and test, if they can possibly do so, all the leading rival Machines before making a purchase. A selection can then be made understandingly. Branches or agencies for supplying the "Singer" Machines will be found in nearly every city and town throughout the civilized world, where machines will be cheerfully exhibited and any information promptly furnished. Or communications may be addressed to

THE SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY,

READING FOR THE LADIES!

EVERYBODY welcomes the new Almanac, and, with intuitive instinct, look through its pages with pleasant recollections, as well as expectations. Our New England ancestry esteemed it the most important periodical, and reposed as much confidence in its prognostications as the Navigator does in his Barometer; and their posterity, who already overlap a continent, continue to welcome the time-honored visitor. THE METHODIST ALMANAC, designed for the domestic as well as the religious circle, contains much information in its advertising department that is applicable to the wants of housekeepers. But special reference is made to the advertiser on the lower part of this page, whose articles have acquired a reputation as reliable as the astronomical calculations of Daboll, and which are of much more practical interest to our lady readers than were the atmospheric prophecies in the old Farmers' Almanac to our Revolutionary matrons. In New York and the New England states the name of James Pyle, in connection with Saleratus, Cream Tartar, and Soap, has become a household word, and from experience, we judge, justly too. He is not one who looks for an immediate fortune from the pockets of the credulous, by intrigue and misrepresentation, but relies upon equitable dealing and a proper regard for the wants of the consumer, to secure confidence, patronage, compensation, and a legacy for his progeny more valuable than gold. The economical will find their interests well served in the patronage of his Saleratus and Soap.

GOOD MERCHANTS BUY THE BEST GOODS!

Pyle's Saleratus, Cream Tartar, and Baking Soda,

Are put up pure, in 1 lb., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb., and $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. packages, full weight, for best family trade.

PYLE'S O. K. SOAP,

Made from pure stock, on the English plan, becomes extremely hard, and not liable to improper waste; is equally good for laundry, bath, and toilet; and each pound is sufficiently rich to make THREE GALLONS OF GOOD SOFT SOAP, by simply dissolving it in water. Willing that consumers shall be the judge of our articles, we simply invoke a fair trial.

 SOLD BY FIRST-CLASS GROCERS GENERALLY.

HOWE SEWING MACHINE,

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY

Receive their Teas by the Cargo from the best Districts of China and Japan, and sell them in lots to suit at CARGO PRICES.

THE PROPRIETORS OF THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY became fully convinced, several years ago, that consumers of Tea and Coffee were paying too many and too large profits on these articles of every-day consumption, and therefore organized THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY, to do away, as far as possible, with these enormous drains upon the consumers, and to supply them with these necessities at the smallest possible price.

To give our readers an idea of the profits which have been made in the Tea Trade, we will start with the American houses, leaving out of the account entirely the profits of the Chinese factors. First, the American House in China or Japan makes large profits on their sales or shipments, and some of the richest retired merchants in this country have made their immense fortunes through their Houses in China. Second, the Banker makes large profits upon the foreign exchange used in the purchase of tea. Third, the Importer makes a profit of 30 to 50 per cent. in many cases. Fourth, on its arrival here it is sold by the cargo, and the Purchaser sells it to the Speculator in invoices of 1,000 to 2,000 packages, at an average profit of about 10 per cent. Fifth, the Speculator sells it to the Wholesale Tea Dealer in lines, at a profit of 10 to 15 per cent. Sixth, the Wholesale Tea Dealer sells it to the Wholesale Grocer, in lots to suit his trade, at a profit of about 10 per cent. Seventh, the Wholesale Grocer sells it to the Retail Dealer, at a profit of 15 to 25 per cent. Eighth, the Retailer sells it to the consumer for ALL THE PROFIT HE CAN GET. When you have added to these EIGHT profits as many brokerages, cartages, storages, cooperages, and waste, and add the original cost of the tea, it will be perceived what the consumer has to pay. And now we propose to show why we can sell so very much lower than other dealers. We propose to do away with all these various profits and brokerages, cartages, storages, cooperages, and waste, with the exception of a small commission paid for purchasing, to our correspondents in China and Japan, one cartage, and a small profit to ourselves, which, on our large sales, will amply pay us. Through our system of supplying Clubs throughout the country, consumers in all parts of the United States can receive their teas at the same price (with the small additional expense of transportation) as though they bought them at our warehouses in this city. Parties getting their Teas from us may confidently rely upon getting them pure and fresh, as they come direct from the Custom House stores to our warehouses. We warrant all the goods we sell to give entire satisfaction. If they are not satisfactory they can be returned at our expense within 30 days, and have the money refunded.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE.

For promoting the growth and beautifying the hair, and rendering it dark and glossy. The COCAINE holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoa-Nut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose.

NO OTHER COMPOUND

possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

It softens the hair when harsh and dry.

It soothes the irritated scalp.

It affords the richest lustre.

It remains longest in effect.

It prevents the hair from falling off.

It promotes its healthy, vigorous growth.

It is not greasy or sticky.

It leaves no disagreeable odor.

It is the BEST and CHEAPEST hair-dressing in the world. It promotes the GROWTH OF THE HAIR, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & Co.:

I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect, in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—COCAINE.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely. The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use. The first application allayed the itching and irritation; in three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared; the hair ceased to fall; and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Yours, very truly,

SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO', MASS., June 9, 1864.

MESSRS. BURNETT & Co.:—

I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested.

She had used, during her sickness, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly, that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend, she was induced to try your COCAINE, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair.

We also procured a bottle of your KALLISTON, applying it with a soft muslin cloth, still persevering with the COCAINE, applying that with the hand, and they had the desired effect. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft, and fine, and of a darker color than formerly.

With respect,

WM. S. EDDY, East Middleboro', Mass.

BANGOR, March 3, 1868.

JOSEPH BURNETT & Co.:—

Gentlemen: Your "COCAINE" is the only dressing for the hair used in my family for the last eight years. It not only stopped my wife's hair from coming out, but actually increased its growth.

I am also under obligations to this same "COCAINE" for saving my own hair, which was very fast coming out previous to using this valuable preparation.

Very truly yours,

J. C. MITCHELL, (Grocer,) Bangor, Me.

THE

FOR THE YEAR OF OUR LORD

1869.

BEING THE 93d YEAR OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE,

AND THE

103d OF AMERICAN METHODISM.

New York:
PUBLISHED BY CARLTON & LANAHAN,
200 MULBERRY-STREET.

WHAT THEN ?

AN old man, crowned with honors nobly earned,
Once asked a youth what end in life he sought.
The hopeful boy said, "I would first be learned ;
I would know all that all the schools e'er taught."
The old man gravely shook his head,
"And when you've learned all this, what then?" he said.

"Then," said the boy, with all the warmth of youth,
"I'd be a lawyer, learned and eloquent ;
Appearing always on the side of truth,
My mind would grow as thus 'twas early bent."
The old man sadly shook his head,
"And when you've done all this, what then?" he said.

"I will be famous," said the hopeful boy ;
"Clients will pour upon me fees and briefs.
'Twill be my pleasing task to bring back joy
To homes and hearts near crushed by darkest griefs."
But still the old man shook his reverent head,
"And when all this is gained, what then?" he said.

"And then I will be rich, and in old age
I will withdraw from all this legal strife ;
Known in retirement as an honored sage,
I'll pass the evening of an honored life."
Gravely again the old man shook his head,
"And when you've done all this, what then?" he said.

"And then !—why then I know that I must die.
My body then must die, but not my fame ;
Surrounded by the fallen great I'll lie,
And far posterity will know my name."
Sadly the old man shook again his head,
"And after all of this, what then?" he said.

"And then, and then—" but ceased the boy to speak ;
His eye, abashed, fell downward to the sod :
A silent tear dropped on each blooming cheek.
The old man pointed silently to God,
Then laid his hand upon the drooping head,
"Remember there's a place beyond," he said.

Directions for Finding the True Time.

THE SUN is on the meridian at 12 o'clock on four days only in the year. It is sometimes as much as 16½ minutes before or after twelve when its shadow strikes the noon-mark on the sun-dial. On each calendar page of this Almanac is shown the exact time when the Sun reaches the meridian, or the shadow the noon-mark; and in order to set a clock or watch correctly, it must, when it is noon by the sun-dial or noon-mark, be set at the time indicated in the Almanac. Thus, on the 25th of January, when the Sun is on the noon-mark, the watch must be set 12 minutes and 34 seconds past twelve, which will be the true time. The practice of setting time-pieces by the rising or setting of the Sun or Moon is not strictly correct; as the unevenness of the Earth's surface and intervening objects, such as hills and forests, near the points of rising and setting, occasion a deviation, in every place, from the time expressed in the Almanac, which time is adapted to a smooth, level horizon. The only means of keeping correct time is by the use of a noon-mark, or a meridian-line.

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night.

AT any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the Sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

Astronomy and Ancient Dates.

ASTRONOMERS have been enabled to fix the dates of many events in ancient history by means of the natural phenomena recorded in connection with them by historians. Thus a battle between the Medes and the Lydians is proved to have been fought May 28, B. C. 585, for there was a total eclipse of the sun during its progress, and unerring calculations prove that the only eclipse total in Asia Minor at that era was on the day above named.

Organization of the M. E. Church.

THE first society (of five members) was formed by Philip Embury in his private house in New York city, in the autumn of 1766. The first church edifice was erected in John-street, on site of the present church, and dedicated October 30, 1768. The first annual conference was held in Philadelphia in 1773, and consisted of ten preachers, reporting a membership of 1,160. The first General Conference was held in Baltimore in 1784.

Comparative Progress.

By examining the official returns of the conferences for the whole century, and comparing them by decades, from 1766, we have the following table:

Year.	Traveling Preachers.	Increase of Preachers.	Members.	Increase of Members.
1766
1776	24	24	4,921	4,921
1786	117	93	20,689	15,768
1796	293	176	56,664	35,975
1806	452	159	130,570	73,906
1816	695	243	214,235	83,665
1826	1,406	711	360,800	146,565
1836	2,928	1,522	650,103	289,303
1846	3,582	654	644,229*	Dec. 5,874
1856	5,877	2,295	804,327	156,098
1866	7,576	1,699	1,032,184	231,857

* By the withdrawal and separation of southern conferences in 1844, organizing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Episcopal Church lost 1,345 traveling preachers, and 495,288 members; and yet so rapid was her growth during the decade, that at its close (two years after the separation) there was a net gain of 654 preachers, and a lack of only 5,874 members of making up the number lost.

Book Concern of the M. E. Church.

REV. THOMAS CARLTON, D.D., Book Agent at New York; REV. JOHN LANAHAN D.D., Assistant Book Agent at New York; REV. LUKE HITCHCOCK, D.D., Book Agent at Cincinnati; REV. J. M. WALDEN, D.D., Assistant Book Agent at Cincinnati. REV. ELEAZER THOMAS, D.D., is also Assistant Book Agent in connection with the Book Concern at New York, but resides in San Francisco, and is the Book Agent for the Pacific Coast.

The Book Concern is the property of the General Conference, and subject entirely to its control. By direction of the General Conference the Book Agents "have authority to regulate the publications and all other parts of the business of the Concern, except what belongs to the editorial departments, as the state of the finances and the demands may require."

The first "Book Concern" (John Dickins, Agent) was established in Philadelphia in 1789, with a borrowed capital of $600. In 1797 the first "Book Committee" was appointed. In 1804 the Concern was removed to New York. In 1836 it was destroyed by fire, (loss $250,000,) but soon rebuilt. The Western Book Concern was established in Cincinnati in 1820. Branch book depositories, under the direction of the Book Agents at New York and Cincinnati, have been established in Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, and San Francisco.

The capital in 1836 (date of fire) was $281,650 74. The total present net capital (as per official exhibits made November 30, 1867) is $1,050,946 17, an increase of $769,295 43. Since 1836 the Concerns at New York and Cincinnati have paid out in dividends to the Annual Conferences, and to meet Church expenses outside of their own business, a total of $1,297,661 74. This sum, added to the increase of capital, gives a total profit in thirty-one years of $2,066,957 17, or an annual average profit of $64,592. All the profits of the Book Concerns are applied to Church purposes, and are appropriated in such manner as the General Conference prescribes.

The Book Agents publish over nineteen hundred different bound volumes, and the unbound and tract list embraces about one thousand, the tracts varying from two to sixty-four pages each. The books and tracts are in English, German, Welsh, Swedish, Danish, and French.

The Book Committee consists of fifteen chosen by the General Conference, namely: James Pike, of New Hampshire Conference; George W. Woodruff, of New York East Conference; C. S. Vancleve, of Newark Conference; Henry Slicer, of Baltimore Conference; Isaac S. Bingham, of Black River Conference; James Erwin, of Central New York Conference; G. W. Maltby, of Erie Conference; J. F. Kennedy, of North Ohio Conference; B. F. Rawlings, of Indiana Conference; F. A. Blades, of Detroit Conference; H. Bannister, of Wisconsin Conference; Cyrus Brooks, of Minnesota Conference; L. M. Vernon, of St. Louis Conference; J. H. Moore, of Illinois Conference; J. Rothweiler, of Central German Conference. For duties of the Book Committee see Discipline, Part V, sec. 7.

THE General Conference of the M. E. Church held at Chicago, 1868, adopted the following resolutions:

Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Office, 200 Mulberry-street, New York. BISHOP MORRIS, President; the remaining Bishops and J. O. FOWLER, Esq., and W. H. DIKEMAN, Esq., Vice-Presidents; DANIEL WISE, D.D., Corresponding Secretary, and Editor of Good News and Tract Publications; DANIEL DENHAM, JUD., Recording Secretary; JOHN LANAHAN, D.D., Treasurer.

OBJECTS.—The object of this Society is the diffusion of religious knowledge by circulating the publications of the Methodist Episcopal Church at home and abroad.

ITS AGENCIES.—Its Agencies are: 1. Our traveling Preachers and Missionaries. 2. Tract Committees, appointed by the Quarterly Meeting Conferences throughout the Connection. The former are its collecting agents in our self-supporting Churches. The latter, guided by the former, are its distributing agents. Faithfulness on the part of all the Pastors in taking collections would give the Society ample funds without expense for collection; energetic work on the part of the Tract Committees would put into circulation one hundred million pages of tracts and a quarter of a million copies of the Good News annually.

ITS PLAN OF OPERATIONS.—1. To our foreign missions it makes such appropriations from time to time as the work requires and its means permit. 2. To every domestic mission it freely offers five dollars' worth of Good News or tracts. 3. To every self-supporting Church it offers all the Good News and tracts it will circulate on the pledge of a collection more than sufficient to cover the cost of the grant applied for. There is no plan of operations in any other Church so generous as this. It removes the last impediment to tract circulation by the Churches. To facilitate its work it has Committees on Applications for Aid at Cincinnati, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, San Francisco, Portland, Oregon, and Philadelphia.

ITS WORK IN 1867.—Its receipts were $13,102 13; its expenditures, $11,280 12. It made grants of Good News and tracts to 1,232 appointments in 59 Conferences, including the Mission Conferences in foreign lands.

During the current year it has granted nearly $5,000 to the foreign work, besides millions of pages of tracts and hundreds of thousands of the Good News to applicants at home. The circulation of the Good News is now over seventy thousand. Its tract publications are numerous, good, and constantly increasing.

Church Extension Society of the M. E. Church.

Office, 1018 Arch-street, Philadelphia. BISHOP SIMPSON, D.D., President; ALPHA J. KYNETT, D.D., Corresponding Secretary; THOMAS T. MASON, Esq., Treasurer; REV. CHARLES C. McCABE, Agent. For list of GENERAL COMMITTEE see Methodist Discipline, 1868, page 839.

ORGANIZATION.—The Church Extension Society was organized by direction of the General Conference of 1864, and was incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, March 13, 1865. On recommendation of the Board of Managers, the Constitution was revised and more closely identified with the economy of the Church by the General Conference of 1868, which also inserted an important section in the Discipline of the Church. (See edition of 1868, page 247.)

RECEIPTS.—The total receipts and disbursements from the organization of the Society up to November 1, 1868, were about $125,000. This, though apparently large for an infant Society, was only about one fourth of the amount which the authorized management had declared to be necessary. The magnitude and importance of the work of this Society gives it a strong claim for a much more liberal support.

INCOME.—It derives its revenue from two sources: 1. From the annual collections, creating the General Fund. The General Committee at the annual meeting in November of each year, together with the Bishops and Board of Managers, estimate the amount needed for Church extension purposes, and distribute the amount for collection among the several Annual Conferences. This is in turn in each Conference distributed among the several districts and pastoral charges. It is by the Discipline made the duty of each pastor to "preach a sermon on this subject in each congregation once in every year, and solicit contributions from each in aid of the Church Extension Society." It is expected that each congregation will contribute the amount that has been indicated, and that the Parent Society will thereby receive the aggregate amount asked for by the General Committee, Bishops, and Managers. The Parent Board keeps an accurate account with each Conference, and each Conference Board with every pastoral charge. 2. Special donations and bequests, creating a

"PERPETUAL LOAN FUND."—The resolutions of the Board providing for this fund earnestly invite special contributions from all our people, and state that "said fund may be loaned to any Church or Society without interest, in small sums, in no case exceeding $5,000, or with interest, as occasion may require, and the Board shall, from time to time, determine in aid of the objects of the Church Extension Society; that sums of $5,000 and upward, contributed by any one person, Church, or Conference, shall be named by the contributor, and shall constitute a separate Loan Fund, and the Corresponding Secretary shall report annually the investment thereof, and the work accomplished thereby." The Board also especially invite contributions to create a fund to be called the "MONROE LOAN FUND," to be a most appropriate monument to the memory of our first Corresponding Secretary, and to be invested and reported annually under the restrictions and conditions named in the first resolution."

Path of Life.

LIVE to some purpose ; make thy life
A gift of use to thee,—
A joy, a good, a golden hope,
A heavenly argosy.

READER, the picture above is for your study. Whom do those young pilgrims personate? What does the forked lightning symbolize? What the rainbow? What the cross? After a careful study of the picture, read the beautiful and useful little book written by Dr. Wise, and published at the Methodist Book Rooms, entitled "The Path of Life."

Home of my Childhood.

HOME of my childhood! How affection clings to its memories! There it stood: not in the crowded, noisy city, but in the quiet rural vale, with open field and shadowy woodland; with its flocks, and herds, and fruits, and joyous pastimes, and healthful toil. It was the resort of love, of joy, of peace, and plenty. Childhood, and youth, and strength of manhood, and hoary age were there, all beautifully blending, and making earth a paradise. Long years have passed, and childhood has merged in manhood's busy estate, and other cares and other friends—friends loved and cherished beyond all price—have gathered round, with other home, and loves, and paradise, and yet, Home of my childhood, thou abidest in my recollections. Precious were the devotions offered at thine altars—precious the lessons learned from thine instructions.

How to Look at Things.

VERY much depends upon our way of looking at things. Here is a fable in illustration:

"How dismal you look!" said a bucket to his companion as they were going to the well.

"Ah!" replied the other, "I was reflecting on the uselessness of our being filled; for let us go away ever so full, we always come back empty."

"Dear me! how strange to look at it in that way!" said the bucket. "Now I enjoy the thought that, however empty we come, we always go away full. Only look at it in that light, and you'll be as cheerful as I am."

Going to Jesus.

CHRISTIAN mother was once showing her little girl, about five years old, a picture representing Jesus holding an infant in his arms, while the mothers were pushing their children toward him.

"There, Carrie," said her mother, "this is what I would have done with you if I had been there."

"I wouldn't be pushed to Jesus," said little Carrie, with beautiful and touching earnestness; "I'd go to him without pushing."

A Roman Catholic in New Hampton, Minn., disowned an adopted boy because he would not confess his sins to the priest. The boy said he had read the Bible through, and that he "could not find a passage which directs any one to go to the priest for forgiveness of sin."

He asked them, "Where did the priest get his authority?"

"From the Bishop."

"Where did the Bishop get his authority?"

"From the Pope."

"Where did the Pope get his?"

"From Jesus Christ."

"Then," said the boy, "I guess I'll go to headquarters."

A Riddle—Guess it.

Two birds within one nest;
Two hearts within one breast;
Two souls within one fair,
Firm league of love and prayer,
Together bound for aye, together blest.
An ear that waits to catch
A hand upon the latch;
A step that hastens its sweet rest to win.
A world of cares without;
A world of strife shut out;
A world of love shut in.

A Skeptic Answered.

A SKEPTICAL young collegian confronted an old Quaker with the statement that he did not believe in the Bible. Said the Quaker:

"Does thee believe in France?"

"Yes; for, though I have not seen it, I have seen others that have. Besides, there is plenty of corroborative proof that such a place does exist."

"Then thee will not believe any thing thee or others has not seen?"

"No; to be sure I wont."

"Did thee ever see thy own brains?"

"No."

"Ever see anybody that did?"

"No."

"Does thee believe thee has any?"

Family Worship.

THEY chant their artless notes in simple guise;
 They tune their hearts, by far the noblest aim :
 Perhaps Dundee's wild warbling measures rise,
 Or plaintive Martyrs, worthy of the name ;
 Or noble Elgin beats the heavenward flame,
 The sweetest far of Scotia's holy lays :
 Compared with these Italian raptures are tame ;
 The tickled ears no heartfelt raptures raise ;
 Nae unison hae they with our Creator's praise.

The priest-like father reads the sacred page,—
 How Abram was the friend of God on high ;
 Or, Moses bade eternal warfare wage
 With Amalek's ungracious progeny ;
 Or how the royal bard did groaning lie

Beneath the stroke of Heaven's avenging ire;
 Or, Job's pathetic plaint, and wailing cry;
 Or, rapt Isaiah's wild, seraphic fire;
 Or other holy seers that tune the sacred lyre.

Perhaps the Christian volume is the theme,—
 How guiltless blood for guilty man was shed;
 How He, who bore in heaven the second name,
 Had not on earth whereon to lay his head;
 How his first followers and servants sped;
 The precepts sage they wrote to many a land;
 How he, who lone in Patmos banished,
 Saw in the sun a mighty angel stand;
 And heard great Bab'lon's doom pronounced by Heaven's command.

Then kneeling down to heaven's eternal King,
 The saint, the father, and the husband prays:
 Hope "springs exulting on triumphant wing,"
 That thus they all shall meet in future days;
 There ever bask in uncreated rays,
 No more to sigh, or shed the bitter tear.
 Together hymning their Creator's praise,
 In such society, yet still more dear;
 While circling time moves round in an eternal sphere.

Compared with this, how poor religion's pride,
 In all the pomp of method and of art,
 When men display to congregations wide,
 Devotion's every grace except the heart!
 The Power, incensed, the pageant will desert,
 The pompous strain, the sacerdotal stole;
 But haply, in some cottage far apart,
 May hear, well pleased, the language of the soul;
 And in his book of life the inmates poor enroll.

Good Advice.

STOP grumbling. Get up two hours earlier in the morning, and begin to do something out of your regular profession. Mind your business, and with all your might let other people's alone. Live within your means. Sell your horses. Give away or sell your dog. Smoke your cigar through an air-tight stove. Eat with moderation, and go to bed early. Talk less of your own peculiar gifts and virtues, and more of those of your friends and neighbors. Be cheerful. Fulfill your promises. Pay your debts. Be yourself all you would see in others. Be a good man, and stop grumbling.

Children's Music.

LET all the children learn to sing, and enjoy music which means something, and which is chaste and pleasant, not dull, frivolous, or boisterous. What next? Why, when juvenility ripens into youthfulness, the voice suddenly breaks up. And what then? Some of the juveniles will ruin their voices by trifling with them; and others remaining silent for a few years will outgrow all taste and combination. Such has been the history of things, and it will continue to be so, unless young people are thoroughly trained in music.

Precious Lessons.

THE tasks of the morning are over. Cheerfully the children gather around their mother's chair. They are drawn there by her love. It is no burden for her to impart to them such information as is suited to their years. It is no burden for them to hear and learn it. While the father is absent, engaged in the sterner toils of business life, the equally important work at home goes forward. These early lessons mold the whole life. There are no school seasons or training so useful as those of the family circle. Above all price are the lessons at home.

Lost Hours.

ONE person rises in the morning at half past nine, another at six. If each live to be fifty-nine years old, the one will have enjoyed 68,875 hours, or 2,661 days more than the other. Let us suppose that there are throughout Great Britain 1,500,000 persons who rise at a quarter past nine, or later; of these, perhaps 950,000 would, if they rose at six, be usefully employed. At this rate, 56,346,875,000 hours, or 6,532,291 years of individual improvement are lost to society every half century. This is supposing that these 95,000 get up at a quarter past nine, whereas thousands do not leave their beds till eleven or twelve. All this time is uninterrupted day, and composed of hours in which the intellect is far clearer and more fit for study than the rest of the day. It must be remembered, too, that nothing conduces more to health, and, consequently, to longevity, than early rising. Suppose, out of the above number of persons, 500,000 should live four years longer than they otherwise would have done, namely, fifty-four years instead of fifty, according to the ratio above, here are 2,000,000 more years of actual existence utterly wasted.

Pulpit Promises.

OTHER," said a little girl just returned from public worship, "why does not our minister tell the truth?"

"Why, child, what do you mean?"

"Why, mother, after he had preached three quarters of an hour this morning he said, 'Only a single remark further, and I shall be done;' but he went on talking fifteen minutes longer. Did he tell the truth?"

In that child's mind, wearied with the length of the service, expectations were raised and then disappointed. Who can tell the effect upon her moral nature?

The Proof of Love.

A VERY little girl said to her mother one day, "Mamma, I love you!"

The mother was busy, and did not reply, and so she repeated her words, "Mamma, I love you!"

Still the mother made but slight answer, and little Ella said again, very earnestly, "Mamma, I do love you!"

"But why do you think so, my child?" said the mother.

"Because," said Ella, "I love to do all I can to please you."

Coming Late to Church.

SUPPOSE some earthly prince should condescend
To bid you to his banquet as a friend;
Would you not try all means within your power
To be in court at the appointed hour?

Shall such attention to a worm be given,
And not be yielded to the God of heaven?
Who can expect to be by Jesus blest,
If absent when he comes to meet his guest?

My brethren, this would never be the case
If we were lively in the Christian race;
Then every hind'rance would be laid aside,
To see and hear of Jesus crucified.

If you complain you have so far to come,
Set out a little sooner from your home;
But those who dwell hard by have no excuse,
Except in idleness, or sleep, or use.

A little less indulgence in the bed—
A little more contrivance in the head—
A little more devotion in the mind—
Would quite prevent you being so behind.

I grant—lest I should seem to be severe—
There are domestic cases here and there:
Age, illness, service, things quite unforeseen,
To censure which I surely do not mean.

But such will not (unless I greatly err)
Among the prudent very oft occur;
And when they do, you surely should endeavor
To come at last; ''tis better late than never.'

Beautiful Home Work.

HERE is a beautiful home scene. While their mother is engaged elsewhere in her domestic duties the children are usefully employed; even the youngest is all attention. These children are acquiring habits of loving industry, which will render them happy and useful in mature life. Parents and children may study the picture.

Choice Sayings.

THE cloth of humility should always be worn on the back of Christianity.

The Hindoos extend their hospitality to their enemies, saying: "The tree does not withdraw its shade even from the wood-cutter."

Beautiful was the reply of a venerable man to the question whether he was still in the land of the living: "No, but I am almost there."

Benefit your friends; that they may love you still more dearly; benefit your enemies, that they may become your friends.

Useful children are worth a great deal, though they may be very little.

Be slow in choosing a friend, and slower to change him; courteous to all; intimate with few; slight no man for his poverty, nor esteem any one for his wealth.

We should not measure men by Sundays, without looking to what they do all the week after.

Flowers are the alphabet of angels, wherewith they write on hill and plains mysterious truths.

Fight hard against a hasty temper. Anger will come, but resist it stoutly. A spark may set a house on fire. A fit of passion may give you cause to mourn all the days of your life.

He that revenges knows no rest;
The meek possess a peaceful breast.

The Best Riches.

NOT long since a gentleman took an acquaintance upon the top of his house to show him the extent of his possessions.

Waving his hands about, he said,

"There, that is my estate."

Then, pointing to a great distance on one side,

"Do you see that farm?"

"Yes."

"Well, that is mine."

Pointing again to the other side,

"Do you see that house?"

"Yes."

"That also belongs to me."

Then said his friend,

"Do you see that little village out yonder?"

"Yes."

"Well, there lives a poor woman in that village who can say more than all this."

"Ay! what can she say?"

"Why, she can say, 'Christ is mine.'"

He looked confounded and said no more.

Kind Words.

Speak gently! 'tis a little thing,

Dropped in the heart's deep well;

The good, the joy that it may bring,

Eternity shall tell.

Revenge.

A BROTHER being injured by another, came to Abbot Sidonius, told his story, and said, "I wish to avenge myself, father."

The Abbot begged him to leave vengeance to God; but when he refused, said, "Then let us pray."

Whereon the old man rose, and said,

"God, thou art not necessary to us any longer, that thou shouldest be careful of us: for we, as this brother says, both will and can avenge ourselves."

At this that brother fell at his feet and begged pardon, promising never to strive with his enemy.

A Thorn in the Pillow.

How pleasant it is, when night comes, and we are weary, to lay our heads on a soft pillow, and go sweetly to sleep.

But it often happens that our pillow contains a thorn! I have just read a paper about a child who found a thorn in her pillow, and it hurt her very much. Shall I tell you about it? Well, here is the story:

A little girl went to visit her grandmother, who lived at some distance from her mother and father's home. She seemed happy all day, for she had every thing to make her happy; but when her grandmother went to look at her after she was asleep she saw tear-drops on her eyelashes.

"Ah," said the old lady the next morning, "you were a little home-sick last night, my dear."

"O no, grandmother," Mabel replied, "I could never be home-sick here."

It was just so the next night, and the next. At length grandmother thought, as the child seemed troubled, that she would sit in the next room and try to find out the matter. Presently, although Mabel was tucked up, she began to rustle the quilt, and shake her pillow, and her grandmother heard a little sob, so she went to her, and said :

"Mabel, my child, you have a thorn in your pillow ; what is it?"

Then the little girl hid her face, and began to cry aloud. Her grandmother was very much troubled. At length Mabel answered :

"O, grandmother, when I am alone here I cannot forget how I said, 'I wont, mother,' and I cannot unsay it; and mother is good, and loves me so much, and—I was so naughty!"

And the tears streamed afresh down the child's cheeks. Here, then, was the thorn in her pillow, and she could not withdraw it. And so it will be, by and by, with the little boy who is selfish and unkind at home. When he is away among strangers he will think of the home of his childhood, and the recollection of some unkind word or action will be a thorn in his pillow when he retires at night. And the little girl who does not care to help her mother now, will find a thorn in her pillow when that mother sleeps in the grave.

Grandmother Imparting Wisdom.

MATERNAL love in the home circle, whether in earlier or later years, holds the key of the soul. It stamps the coin of character; it makes the youth a man, a Christian; who, but for her gentle care and teaching, would be a rude and useless being.

Submission.

Shall I dare murmur, gracious God,
At the chastisements of thy rod?
Shall I, a sinful worm, complain
When called to suffer grief or pain?
No! on thy word I'll build my hope,
That word will bear my spirits up;
I'll kiss the hand that smites to heal,
And meekly suffer all thy will.

A Severe and Useful Hint.

A TIME-SERVING clergyman observing a poor man by the road breaking stones, and kneeling to get at his work better, made the remark,

"Ah, John, I wish I could break the stony hearts of my hearers as easily as you are breaking those stones."

"Perhaps, master, you do not work on your knees," was the reply.

A Remedy for the Blues.

WHEN Whitelock was about to embark as Cromwell's envoy to Sweden, in 1655, he was much disturbed in mind as he rested in Harwich on the preceding night, which was very stormy, while he reflected on the distracted state of the nation. A confidential servant slept in an adjacent bed, who, finding that his master could not sleep, said :

"Pray, sir, will you give me leave to ask you a question?"

"Certainly."

"Pray, sir, don't you think God governed the world very well before you came into it?"

"Undoubtedly."

"And pray, sir, don't you think that he will govern it quite as well when you are gone out of it?"

"Certainly."

"Then, sir, pray excuse me, but don't you think you may as well trust him to govern it as long as you are in it?"

To this question Whitelock had nothing to reply, and, turning about, soon fell asleep.

Then and Now.

DR. FRANKLIN described the farmer's condition in 1776 as follows:

Farmer at the plow,
Wife milking cow;
Daughters spinning yarn,
Sons threshing in the barn—
All happy to a charm.

Another writer gives the account of 1868 as follows, applicable, at least, to some latitudes:

The farmer gone to see a show,
His daughters at the piano;
Madame gayly dressed in satin—
All the boys are learning Latin—
With a mortgage on the farm!

Power of Conscience in a Pagan.

A FOLLOWER of Pythagoras once bought a pair of shoes of a cobbler, for which he promised to pay him on a future day. On that day he took the money, but, finding the cobbler had died during the interim, returned, secretly rejoicing that he could retain the money and get a pair of shoes for nothing. "His conscience, however," says Seneca, "would not allow him to rest till, taking up the money, he went back to the cobbler's shop, and casting in the money, said, Go thy way, for though he is dead to all the world besides, yet he is alive to me."

Three Important Things.

THREE things to love: Courage, gentleness, and affection.
Three to hate: Cruelty, arrogance, and ingratitude.
Three to delight in: Beauty, frankness, and freedom.
Three to wish for: Health, friends, and a cheerful spirit.
Three to pray for: Faith, peace, and purity of heart.
Three to avoid: Idleness, loquacity, and flippant jesting.
Three to contend for: Honor, country, and friends.
Three to govern: Temper, tongue, and conduct.
Three to think about: Life, death, and eternity.

Metropolitan Memorial M. E. Church.

WASHINGTON, the political metropolis of our nation, the center of so much influence, intelligence, and power, has long felt the need of a large, attractive church, in keeping with her magnificent public buildings, where our representatives in Congress, and the thousands of strangers annually visiting the capital, may enjoy all religious privileges.

Before the Rebellion the General Conference of our Church, perceiving this want, provided for the erection of a monumental church at the seat of government, but owing to the unsettled condition of our country the work was suspended, and during the war nothing was done to advance the enterprise.

Three years ago Rev. F. S. De Hass was appointed to take charge of this interest, and through his agency the edifice is now (November 1, 1868) nearly ready for occupancy. The building is of brown stone, in the Gothic order, capable of seating two thousand persons, and will cost over $200,000. Pews are set apart for the President and his cabinet, the judges of the courts, generals of the army, and other distinguished persons. Seats also are provided for the different states and principal cities, so that strangers from every section may feel that they have a place for worship when visiting the metropolis. All the windows are MEMORIAL or HISTORICAL, commemorating the great men and events of the age. The spire will rise to the height of two hundred and twenty feet, and contain a full chime of bells. The altar and pulpit furniture are made of cedar and olive wood, brought from Mount Lebanon and Gethsemane expressly for this purpose. The vestibules are paved with marble, portions of which came from Solomon's Temple. There is a fire-proof vault for the preservation of valuable records; church parlors and supper room for social gatherings, with many other modern improvements, rendering it one of the finest churches in our land.

Being national in character, persons of every denomination have taken an interest in its erection. General Grant, President elect, and Chief Justice Chase, are members of the Board of Trustees, and the first men of the nation are among the contributors to the memorial edifice. A gentleman of Boston gave the grand organ; another, of Pittsburgh, the chime of bells; and a lady of New York, a silver communion service, the richest and costliest in America.

EDITORIAL NOTE.—The foregoing tables have been compiled mainly from recent statistical reports furnished by the officers of the Institutions. After unusual effort to make them complete, they are still very imperfect. As the late General Conference directed that the Presiding Elders should report to their Annual Conferences severally the statistics of the Literary and Theological Institutions on their districts, it is hoped that our educational reports hereafter will be full and exact. For forms of such reports see Appendix of Discipline, edition of 1868. For summaries of Educational Statistics see page 28.

The Discipline of the M. E. Church (see Part V, sec. 1, 1868) makes it the duty of each Preacher in charge to preach on the subject of education once a year, and to diffuse information, calling the attention of members who have means to make liberal appropriations for the support of educational institutions. The Discipline recommends that each Conference, wherever practicable, should have at least one academy or seminary under its charge. It also recommends that, as a general thing, not less than four Conferences unite in support of a college or university, and advises that schools of high grade be not multiplied beyond the ability of the people to sustain them.

*In a note to the Editor of the Almanac, dated Nov. 7, 1868, Dr. Summers, Editor of the Nashville Advocate, says:

We have not yet recovered from the chaos into which we were thrown by the war. We have stereotyped the imperfect Minutes of 1866 and 1867. The latter report 30 Annual Conferences, 2,389 Traveling Preachers, besides 192 superannuated, 3,952 Local Preachers, 472,484 white and 54,172 colored members, 1,851 Indians—total, 535,040. The 9 bishops are not counted; their addition would make the number of Traveling Preachers, including those on the superannuated list, 2,540. There are some members in China who are not counted, not being officially reported. The returns from many of the Conferences are very imperfect. The Preachers and Members of the several colored Connections, which the Bishops are organizing agreeably to the provisions of the last General Conference, are not counted, as they have separate Minutes.

Common Accidents—Useful Remedies.

"CUT FINGER."—Tie it up quickly in its own blood, which is more healing than any thing else. Do not first wash off the blood. If there be either glass or dirt in the cut, wash it out with warm water. If it bleed immediately, sponge it with cold water before tying.

A "BRUISE."—Smear with a small lump of fresh butter immediately. If fresh butter is not at hand, use olive oil. In either case renew the application every few minutes for two or three hours.

A "BLACK EYE."—To prevent it, immediately after the blow rub fresh butter or olive oil for two or three inches round the eye, renewing perseveringly as above. A capital remedy for the "black eye" is the arnica lotion, made thus: Take of tincture of arnica one ounce. water seven ounces; make a lotion, and with a soft linen rag bathe frequently. Between the times of bathing fasten against the eye, by a bandage, a soft linen rag wetted in the lotion.

"STUNNED."—When stunned by a fall on the head, immediately loosen collar, neckerchief, etc., lay the patient flat on back, sprinkle cold water in the face, give fresh air, keep the crowd away. Do not try by loud voice to make the patient speak. If the case be severe, and sickness supervenes, send instantly for a wise physician.

"CLOTHES ON FIRE."—Instantly roll the patient in rug, carpet, or blanket, thus smothering the fire. Be cautious. It is said that in England one thousand children are annually burned to death by accident.

"FAINTING."—Lay patient flat on back, with head as low and lower than the body; unloose dress; apply smelling salts to nostrils, or, if they are not at hand, burn a piece of rag under nose; dash cold water in the face; give fresh air.

"SCALDS OR BURNS."—Instantly and liberally apply dry flour, and keep it in its place by a bandage. Another excellent application is "prepared lard," that is, lard without salt. Druggists keep it. If only salt lard is at hand, wash out the salt in cold water. Do not apply cold water, salt, spirits, or vinegar. If the burn be in the leg or foot, slit the stocking, so as to avoid breaking the skin.

"DRESSING SCALDS OR BURNS."—Do not wash the wound, and do not dress it oftener than on alternate days. Do not rub or roughly handle the affected parts. If there be much discharge, do not wipe, but gently sop with soft cloth. "No ulcer should be often dressed, as by removing the excrement we are likely to rub off also the new flesh."

"CHOKING."—Instantly with finger push the food down, and thus relieve the breathing; or if the food be hard, try to hook it out. If it cannot be reached, give two or three smart blows on the back with the hand. The London Lancet says: "Seize the little patient, and place him sideways between the knees, so as to compress the abdomen, and give two or three smart blows with flat hand on the chest." If this does not give relief, tickle the throat with finger so as to secure vomiting.

"MAD-DOG BITE."—Mr. Youatt, the celebrated veterinary surgeon, after thorough experiment, advised to "instantly rub for the space of five or ten seconds a pointed stick of lunar caustic into the wound. If promptly done, he pronounced it an infallible antidote.

"BEE OR WASP STING."—With forceps, or by the pressure of the hollow of a small key over the part, extract the sting; then immediately rub with a little moistened blue, (for washing,) or with a few drops of a solution of potash or saleratus, or apply snuff or tobacco.

"NOSE BLEEDING."—Unless violent, don't interfere; it may be the effort of nature for relief. To restrain it, press the nose firmly for a few minutes between the thumb and finger. If the bleeding continues, bathe the nose, forehead, and nape of neck with cold water. If no relief yet, snuff up powdered alum or matieo. If no relief, plunge hands and arms in cold water, and then stretch above the head. If the bleeding still continues, send for physician.

"POISON FROM LAUDANUM OR PAREGORIC."—Give immediately strong mustard emetic, (mixture of two tea-spoonfuls of flour of mustard in half a cupful of water,) and force down the throat. Fill the stomach with warm water, and send for physician. Forcibly keep the patient awake.

"EARWIG, OR OTHER LIVING THING IN THE EAR."—Lay the child on his side with affected ear uppermost; fill ear with water or sweet oil. The fluid will carry out the animal and give relief.

"SWALLOWED PIN OR PIECE OF GLASS."—Give solid farinaceous food; avoid purgatives or aperients.

"SWALLOWED COIN."—There is little danger. A dose of castor oil will suffice.

"CHILBLAINS."—If unbroken, rub them every night and morning with a mixture of turpentine and camphorated oil. (spirits of turpentine three drachms, and camphorated oil nine drachms.) Another good remedy is a well-shaken mixture of turpentine, white vinegar, and contents of an egg in equal proportions. If broken, spread on them each morning lint spread with spermaceti cerate, and every night use white bread and milk poultice.

"STY IN THE EYE."—Bathe the eye frequently with warm milk and water, and every night apply warm white bread poultice.

"CORNS."—Hard corns on the sole or side of foot are best treated by the file; file every day until pain is experienced; in a short time a cure is effected. To hard corns on the toes apply sharp scissors; work gradually around and toward the center; when the edge is well loosened the corn may be plucked out with little pain and without the loss of blood. Soft corns between the toes are quickly removed by strong acetic acid thoroughly applied every night. Do not wear ill-fitting shoes.

"WARTS."—A little pure nitric acid carefully applied every other day will soon destroy them. Touch the wart only with the acid. Should any of the acid get on the skin apply sweet oil.

"CONVENIENT DEODORIZER."—Coffee roasted, ground, and exposed in an open vessel, is a more powerful deodorizer than chloride of lime, without its disagreeable smell.

"LUCIFER MATCHES."—They are poisonous and dangerous; therefore never leave them where children can play with them.

"BOILS."—Cover with a Burgundy-pitch plaster, renewing it daily. So soon as the boil breaks squeeze out contents, including core, and renew the plaster as before. The old-fashioned thorough application of a mixture of common soap and brown sugar is also good.

"EAR-ACHE."—Apply a small flannel bag with hot salt; or, foment the ear with flannel wrung out of hot chamomile and poppy-head decoction; or, apply a hot roasted onion in muslin.

"SUN-STROKE."—Send for the physician. In the mean time the patient should be placed in a recumbent position in the coolest possible place, with a free current of air. The clothes should be removed, and cold water applied to the whole surface; or, if the symptoms be urgent, the clothes should immediately be saturated with cold water without waiting to remove them. If the respiratory movements be failing and feeble, the cold douche is a powerful exciter; but if the breathing be rapid and laborious, it is better to envelope the body in a wet sheet, and to quicken evaporation and cooling by a fan or a pair of bellows. If the patient can swallow, let him drink iced water freely. Whether he can drink or not, iced water may from time to time be injected. It is said that in Egypt sunstroke is relieved by pouring water in which salt is dissolved into the ears of the sufferer.

"MOTE FROM THE EYE."—Take a horsehair and double it, leaving a loop. If the mote can be seen, lay the loop over it, close the eye, and the mote will come out as the hair is withdrawn. If the irritating object cannot be seen, raise the lid of the eye as far as possible, and place the loop in it as far as you can, close the eye and roll the ball around a few times, then draw out the hair; the substance which caused so much pain will be sure to come with it. This method is practiced by ax-makers and other workers in steel.

"HICCUGHS."—If severe, give the child-patient four or five grains of calcined magnesia with a little syrup and anise-seed water. In adults hiccoughs may frequently be cured by straining the head back and taking three or four full and lengthy inspirations.

"CONSUMPTION."—In the incipient stages use the "Inhaling Tube," by Dr. J. M. Howe, 227 Grand-street, New York. Hundreds of ministers and laymen recommend it.

Miscellaneous Health Hints.

THE five best doctors are Temperance, Exercise, Good Air, Good Hours, and a Good Heart. Late eating, irregular eating, and over-eating have slain more people than war. "Verbum sat."

Never go to bed with cold feet; use artificial means (severe, if necessary) to warm them; always keep the feet well covered.

Breathe free, fresh air. In order to do this, keep every occupied room thoroughly ventilated.

Upper sleeping rooms (other things being equal) are healthier than lower ones.

Parched corn and meal, boiled in skimmed milk, and fed frequently, will generally cure diarrhea and dysentery. Roast the corn brown and grind in coffee mill, and make into mush, gruel, or thin cakes.

Hints for the Farmer.

NEVER suffer buildings, fences, or utensils to be out of repair.

Have a neat door-yard, and keep it in order. Make home surroundings attractive.

Make your farm the neatest, and, if possible, the most productive, in the community.

Keep your horses, cows, sheep, etc., well fed. Feed well if you would be most economical. Give your flocks and herds warm houses.

In planting in the fall, be careful not to go too deep; dig so that the even surface will just cover the roots; then earth up for the winter. In this way prevent the water from settling around the roots.

It is doubtful whether it is beneficial to mulch trees during the summer, because roots will be formed on the surface. It is safest to cultivate like corn.

Plant fruit and shade trees as soon as possible after getting possession of the farm, and carefully cultivate them. Their harvest will be golden.

Hints for the Garden.

WEED out the weeds. If need be, rise early and sit up late to do it.

Small gardens orderly and neatly arranged are much better than large ones partially cared for.

Select seeds from the most perfect plants. Continue to do this, and the stock will gradually improve.

Seed squashes, pumpkins, watermelons, muskmelons, and cucumbers should be kept as long as possible before taking out the seeds. In this way only is the best seed obtained.

Plant every thing in season; plant in sufficient variety to supply fully the home table; be not dependent on other gardens.

Have the best garden in the whole community. The labor expended in securing this will pay.

Hints for the Kitchen.

FOUR golden rules for the kitchen: Promptness as to time; order as to arrangement; cleanliness as to condition; tidiness as to appearance.

Freshen salt fish by laying the flesh down. With the skin down, the salt escapes only in part.

In hot days, if milk is not set to cool immediately, a part of the cream melts, and never can rise.

To the cook when she has a beefsteak: "If it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly."

Acids should never be employed to clean tinware, because they attack the metal and remove it from the iron of which it forms a thin coat.

Keep planished tinware in a dry atmosphere, in order to prevent it from becoming tarnished.

To clean tinware, rub the article first with rotten-stone and sweet oil, then finish with whiting and a piece of soft leather.

To preserve oil-cloths, wash them with Castile soap only, and occasionally give them a coat of good copal varnish.

To remove the taste of new wood, first scald the vessel with boiling water, letting the water remain in it until cold; then dissolve some pearlash or soda in lukewarm water, adding lime to it, and wash the inside of the vessel well with this solution. Afterward, scald it well with plain hot water, and rinse it with cold water before you use it.

Lamp cylinders can be prevented from cracking, when exposed to the burning flame, by first placing them in a vessel of cold water and bringing this to a boil over the fire, then removing the vessel and allowing it to cool before taking out the cylinder.

THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Organ of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and published weekly, in Imperial Quarto form, at the Methodist Book Concern, New York.

Rev. DANIEL CURRY, D.D., Editor.

Rev. W. H. DE PUY, A.M., Assist. Editor.

THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is the oldest, most widely circulated, and most largely patronized Methodist Weekly Journal in the world. In addition to its immense circulation among the laity, (many of whom have been its readers from its first issue,) it numbers among its patrons and agents most of the Itinerant Ministers and a large share of the Local Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Its circulation, constantly increasing, extends into every Christian country.

While it makes no partial or invidious array of lists of contributors, no religious journal in the country exceeds it in the ability of its Editorials, the ability and number of its Correspondents, the variety and freshness of its news, or the number or utility of its various Departments. It is sought for by the children as well as by adults, and abounds in information fresh, attractive, and useful to persons in every vocation in life.

It purchases no uncertain or mercenary patronage by the offer of "Sewing Machines," "Gold Watches," or other tempting premiums of that class, nor does it seek to secure or enlarge its subscription list by professing to be the special advocate of any class of notions of Church polity; but it relies for continued and increasing patronage upon its own real and recognized merit, and upon the faithful agency of its many and tried friends, and is published in the interest of the whole Church of which it is a representative and official organ. It is not in any sense a private enterprise, nor will its receipts inure to the emolument of any person or corporation. Every dollar of receipts, after meeting the expenses incident to its publication, is applied to the benevolent objects of the Church.

The Publishers spare no expense necessary to make it in all respects a First-class Religious Journal. In consequence of the growing patronage, they are enabled to publish it at the low price of $2 50 per year, in advance. All the Bishops and Pastors of the Methodist Episcopal Church are its authorized agents. Local Preachers and the Laity every-where are invited to aid in its circulation.

The Christian Advocate, in view of the great breadth of its circulation, which extends not only into every State in the Union, but also into other countries, near and remote, furnishes an important advertising medium for all industrial pursuits, or articles of interest and utility to the general public.

TESTIMONIALS.

The Waters Pianos are known as among the very best.—New York Evangelist.

We can speak of the merits of the Waters Pianos from personal knowledge as being of the very best quality.—Christian Intelligencer.

The Waters Pianos are built of the best and most thoroughly seasoned material.—Advocate and Journal.

Horace Waters, 481 Broadway, is famed for the excellence of his Pianos and Organs.—Evening Post.

The Waters Piano ranks with the best manufactured in America.—The Independent, N. Y.

MUSICAL DOINGS.—Since Mr. Horace Waters gave up publishing sheet music, he has devoted his whole capital and attention to the manufacture and sale of Pianos, Melodeons, and Organs. He has just issued a catalogue of his new instruments, giving a new scale of prices, which shows a marked reduction from former rates, and his pianos have recently been awarded the First Premium at several Fairs. Many people of the present day, who are attracted, if not confused, with the flaming advertisements of rival piano houses, probably overlook a modest manufacturer like Mr. Waters; but we happen to know that his instruments earned him a good reputation long before Expositions and the "honors" connected therewith were ever thought of; indeed, we have one of Mr. Waters' piano-fortes now in our residence (where it has stood for years) of which any manufacturer in the world might well be proud. We have always been delighted with it as a sweet-toned and powerful instrument, and there is no doubt of its durability: more than this, some of the best amateur players in the city, as well as several celebrated pianists, have performed on the said piano, and all pronounce it a superior and first-class instrument. Stronger indorsement we could not give.—Home Journal.

PRANG'S AMERICAN CHROMOS.

PRANG'S AMERICAN CHROMOS

Are fac-simile reproductions of oil and water color paintings, so faithfully and skillfully done that it requires the experience of an expert to detect the difference between them and the originals. For every purpose of decoration—for parlors, sitting-rooms, drawing-rooms, nurseries, or chambers—nothing so exquisitely beautiful as these Chromos can be obtained for the same amount of money. No other ornaments of the same cost are so admirably calculated to adorn a home; to cultivate a love of Art among the people at large; to brighten up the dwellings of every class of our citizens; and to teach the rising generation, by their silent yet refining influence, to love the beautiful in Art and in Nature. Hitherto Art has been aristocratic in its associations; none but the wealthy classes could afford to buy fine works of art; but Chromo-Lithography has changed all that, and brought exquisite paintings within the reach of every family. It is doing for Art what the printing-press did for Literature. Let no family, henceforth, be without a few classical books and one or two masterly paintings. Both should be regarded as indispensable to complete a home.

SORE THROAT, COUGH, COLD,

and similar troubles, if suffered to progress, result in serious Lung, Bronchial, and Asthmatic affections, oftentimes incurable. Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough, or "common cold," in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the Lungs.

COUGHS AND COLDS ARE OFTEN OVERLOOKED. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs, or some chronic Throat Disease.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

reach directly the seat of the disease, and give almost instant relief.

The TROCHES are offered with the fullest confidence in their efficacy; they have been thoroughly tested, and maintain the good reputation they have justly acquired. For Public Speakers, Singers, and those who overtax the voice, they are useful in relieving an Irritated Throat, and will render articulation easy. To those exposed to sudden changes in the weather they will give prompt relief in Coughs and Colds, and can be carried in the pocket, to be taken as occasion requires.

Your Troches are too well and favorably known to need commendation.—Hon. CHARLES A. PHELPS, President Mass. Senate.

I recommend their use to Public Speakers.—Rev. E. H. CHAPIN.

An elegant combination for Coughs.—Dr. G. F. BIGELOW, Boston.

I have never changed my mind respecting them from the first, excepting to think yet better of that which I began thinking well of.—Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

They have suited my case exactly, relieving my throat so that I could sing with ease.—T. DUCHARME, Chorister French Parish Church, Montreal.

OBSERVE.—There are many imitations, represented to be the same as Brown's Bronchial Troches, which are in most cases productive of injury. Many dealers will recommend inferior preparations and lower priced articles affording more profit to themselves. Be sure to obtain only Brown's Bronchial Troches, which, by long experience, have proved their value, having received the sanction of physicians generally, and testimonials from eminent men throughout the country. Sold at 35 Cents a Box by all Dealers in Medicines.

BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS, OR WORM LOZENGES.

MUCH SICKNESS, undoubtedly, with children and adults, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. The "Vermifuge Comfits," although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child. This valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be safe and sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children.

CHILDREN HAVING WORMS require immediate attention, as neglect of the trouble often causes prolonged sickness.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS IN CHILDREN are often overlooked. Worms in the stomach and bowels cause irritation, which can be removed only by the use of a sure remedy. The combination of ingredients used in making "Brown's Vermifuge Comfits" is such as to give the best possible effect with safety.

ESTABLISHED 1861.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY

Receive their Teas by the Cargo from the best Districts of China and Japan, and sell them in lots to suit at CARGO PRICES.

THE PROPRIETORS OF THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY became fully convinced, several years ago, that consumers of Tea and Coffee were paying too many and too large profits on these articles of every-day consumption, and therefore organized THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY, to do away, as far as possible, with these enormous drains upon the consumers, and to supply them with these necessaries at the smallest possible price.

To give our readers an idea of the profits which have been made in the Tea Trade, we will start with the American houses, leaving out of the account entirely the profits of the Chinese factors. First, the American House in China or Japan makes large profits on their sales or shipments, and some of the richest retired merchants in this country have made their immense fortunes through their Houses in China. Second, the Banker makes large profits upon the foreign exchange used in the purchase of tea. Third, the Importer makes a profit of 30 to 50 per cent. in many cases. Fourth, on its arrival here it is sold by the cargo, and the Purchaser sells it to the Speculator in invoices of 1,000 to 2,000 packages, at an average profit of about 10 per cent. Fifth, the Speculator sells it to the Wholesale Tea Dealer in lines, at a profit of 10 to 15 per cent. Sixth, the Wholesale Tea Dealer sells it to the Wholesale Grocer, in lots to suit his trade, at a profit of about 10 per cent. Seventh, the Wholesale Grocer sells it to the Retail Dealer, at a profit of 15 to 25 per cent. Eighth, the Retailer sells it to the consumer for ALL THE PROFIT HE CAN GET. When you have added to these EIGHT profits as many brokerages, cartages, storages, cooperages, and waste, and add the original cost of the tea, it will be perceived what the consumer has to pay. And now we propose to show why we can sell so very much lower than other dealers. We propose to do away with all these various profits and brokerages, cartages, storages, cooperages, and waste, with the exception of a small commission paid for purchasing, to our correspondents in China and Japan, one cartage, and a small profit to ourselves, which, on our large sales, will amply pay us. Through our system of supplying Clubs throughout the country, consumers in all parts of the United States can receive their teas at the same price (with the small additional expense of transportation) as though they bought them at our warehouses in this city. Parties getting their Teas from us may confidently rely upon getting them pure and fresh, as they come direct from the Custom House stores to our warehouses. We warrant all the goods we sell to give entire satisfaction. If they are not satisfactory they can be returned at our expense within 30 days, and have the money refunded.

P.S. All villages and towns where a large number reside, by clubbing together, can reduce the cost of their Teas and Coffees about one third by sending directly to the

GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY,

81 and 33 Vesey-street. Post-office box 5643 New York City.

The Company has selected the following kinds from their stock, which they recommend to meet the wants of Clubs. They are sold at Cargo Prices, the same as the Company sell them in New York, as the list of prices will show.

Caution.—As some concerns, in this city and other places, imitate our name and style of advertising and doing business, it is important that our friends should be very careful to write our address in full, and also to put on the number of our Post-Office Box, as appears in this advertisement. This will prevent their orders from getting into the hands of these bogus imitators.

ASTHMA.

JONAS WHITCOMB'S REMEDY

For Asthma, Rose Cold, Hay Fever, Etc.

Prepared from a German recipe obtained by the late Jonas Whitcomb in Europe. It alleviated this disorder in his case, when all other appliances of medical skill had been abandoned by him in despair. In no case of a purely asthmatic character has it failed to give immediate relief, and it has effected many permanent cures. It contains no poisonous or injurious properties whatever; an infant may take it with perfect safety.

The Proprietors are constantly in receipt of letters bearing the strongest testimony in favor of this Specific, from which they present the following extracts:

"My mother had suffered eight years from the harvest asthma. The recurrence of this three-months' agony every year must soon wear her out. 'Jonas Whitcomb's Asthma Remedy' arrested the terrible disease, and has kept it off for the whole season, to the great joy of the family."—Rev. JOS. E. ROY, Chicago Agent of the American Home Missionary Society, to the N. Y. Independent.

"The Doctor prescribed as an experiment—what had been suggested by Dr. (O. W.) Holmes on his late visit—'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma.' A good night was the result."—Extract from the "Life of Washington Irving," by his nephew, PIERRE M. IRVING, Vol IV, page 272.

"I have not yet heard of the first case in which it failed." SAMUEL A. SMITH, Apothecary, Newburyport.

Ex-President MARTIN VAN BUREN's sufferings in his last illness were greatly alleviated by the use of "Jonas Whitcomb's Asthma Remedy."—Letters in our possession from his physician, and from Mr. Van Buren himself.

"'Whitcomb's Remedy' acted like a charm. It enabled my wife to sleep quietly in a few minutes." KIMBALL HADLEY, Wardsborough, Vt.

"No one who has suffered what I have heretofore, and enjoyed the health that I have enjoyed since last fall, can hesitate to believe that there is a wonderful power in 'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for the Asthma.'"—H. R. VOSE, (a distinguished lawyer in Maine.)

"I have had the spasmodic asthma fifteen years. I commenced taking 'Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for the Asthma' eighteen months ago, and have not had a severe paroxysm since."—SARAH SEELY, Eddytown, Yates Co., N. Y., to Editors Rural New Yorker.

"From the time I took the first dose of your 'Remedy' to the present hour I have not had a bad attack. I can safely claim a general release from the tormentor."

J. H. BRAGDON, Newburyport, Mass.

"I cannot express in too strong terms my appreciation of the merits of this 'Remedy,' and I earnestly recommend its use."—JACOB D. STONE, formerly P. M. at Homer, N. Y.

"Have sold 'Whitcomb's Remedy' for nearly twenty years. I know of nothing so uniformly successful." THEODORE METCALF, Druggist, Tremont-street, Boston.

"No one could ever have been a greater sufferer than I have been. But after taking the 'Asthma Remedy' I call myself a well man." W. O. BROWN, Toledo, O.

"I am confident it will effect a permanent cure. I can rest well nights. I have induced many to buy, and it has had the desired effect." S. P. FROST, Rochester, N. Y.

"The first bottle cured me, after I tried almost every thing else." NANCY PAGE, Rosebank P. O., Canada West.

"Have had the Asthma forty-seven years, and now at the age of seventy-eight am fat and hearty, thanks to the remedy."—JOHN NOBLE, 68 Gay-street, Columbus, O.

"The cure was positive and immediate. A second attack, after two years, yielded readily, and to-day my wife considers herself rid of the disease."—L. C. PAINE, Wilkesbarre, Pa.

"I was cured within one month, and have not had a return of the disease nor any symptoms of it since."—IRA A. BEAN, Urbana, O.

 The above-named preparation is manufactured solely by the Proprietors. The name and title thereof is adopted as a Trade-Mark, to secure the public and Proprietors against imposition by the introduction of spurious articles. All unauthorized use of this Trade-Mark will be promptly prosecuted.

Peals the Old Year's parting knell.
All its flush of vernal beauty,
Wealth of summer's golden prime,
Harvest joy, and winter sadness,
Ended with that farewell chime.

Sinks the heart in painful musing,
As the slow vibrations fall;
And the Old Year swift departeth
Evermore beyond recall.
Memory's busy pencil painteth
Scenes we do not care to view;
Voices that we fain would silence
Thrill the darkened chamber through.

O the golden days departed!
Could we live their hours again,
Never should their memory waken
Such a mournful spectral train.
All the blessings coldly slighted,
All the counsel set at naught,
Burdened hearts we might have lightened,
Loving deeds we might have wrought:

Passing now in dim procession,
Sad, reproachful looks they cast,
Till they cross the shadowy threshold,
Entering on the silent Past.
But regret and shame and sorrow
Not alone to us remain;
There is One who waits to pardon,
One whose blood can cleanse each stain.

He hath marked each upward effort,
Knowing all the pains it cost;
Told contrition's falling tear drops,
And our labor is not lost.
Thus with judgment mingles mercy,
Blends with grief the song of peace,
As the voice that stilled the ocean
Bids the spirit's tumult cease.

Hark! the bells' sweet clangor changeth,
And a hundred towers repeat,
"Welcome to the New Year's dawning,"
And the Past and Future meet.
And the chimes resounding o'er us
Wake a glad responsive tone,
While upon the path before us
Beams of heavenly light are thrown.

Now with calm courageous spirit
Press we onward to the prize;
Where the crown of fadeless glory
Waits for us beyond the skies.
Soon o'er Time's dark waters swelling
Sweeter notes than these shall ring—
Echoes of celestial anthems—
Songs which only victors sing.

Yet awhile the work and waiting,
Still with sin the mortal strife,
But Eternity to rest in,
Glorious with immortal life.
Time flows on; the rapid river
Soon will mingle with the sea;
Let us through the fleeting Present
Labor for Eternity!

The Asteroids.

About one hundred little planets, called Asteroids, have been discovered between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter. Many of them are so small that it might seem inappropriate to call them planets, planetoids, or worlds. But any solid body having an orbit, though no larger than a cannon-ball, is entitled to rank as a world. A vast number of these may exist between all the inter-orbital spaces in the solar system, which will never be discovered because of their littleness. Asteroidal bodies appear to be revolving around the Sun in orbits not far from that of the Earth, while others revolve around the Earth like the Moon does, being invisible satellites. The Aerolites, or falling masses of stars, are really Asteroids whose orbits cross the earth's track, or else wind spirally inward. When the Earth and one of these bodies approach each other at the intersection of their orbits, the latter must rapidly and obliquely fall to the earth, representing a miniature collision of worlds.

ASTRONOMICAL SIGNS EXPLAINED.

♄ Mercury, ♀ Venus, ♂ Mars, ♃ Jupiter, ♄ Saturn, ♃ Uranus, ♃ Neptune, ☉ Moon, ♂ opposition, or half a circle apart, ☐ quadrature, or quarter of a circle apart, ♂ conjunction, or together, having the Right Ascension; the word near, used above, means the same, and indicates that the two bodies are then on a line running from the North Pole through both. Gr. elong., greatest elongation, or furthest distance from the sun; Stationary, when the planet is without apparent motion, and is about to move in a direction contrary to that it had last. The above table enables us to find the planets throughout the year.

Directions for Finding the True Time.

THE Sun is on the meridian at 12 o'clock on four days only in the year. It is sometimes as much as 16½ minutes before or after twelve when its shadow strikes the noon-mark on the sun-dial. On each calendar page of this Almanac is shown the exact time when the Sun reaches the meridian, or the shadow the noon-mark; and in order to set a clock or watch correctly, it must, when it is noon by the sun-dial or noon-mark, be set at the time indicated in the Almanac. Thus, on the 25th of January, when the Sun is on the noon-mark, the watch must be set 12 min-utes and 34 seconds past twelve, which will be the true time. The practice of setting time-pieces by the rising or setting of the Sun or Moon is not strictly correct, as the unevenness of the Earth's surface and intervening objects, such as hills and forests, near the points of rising and setting, occasion a deviation, in every place, from the time expressed in the Almanac, which time is adapted to a smooth, level horizon. The only means of keeping correct time is by the use of a noon-mark, or a meridian-line.

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night.

At any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the Sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

Astronomy of Ancient Dates.

ASTRONOMERS have been enabled to fix the dates of many events in ancient history by means of the natural phenomena recorded in connection with them by historians. Thus a battle between the Medes and the Lydians is proved to have been fought May 28, B. C. 585, for there was a total eclipse of the sun during its progress, and unerring calculations prove that the only eclipse total in Asia Minor at that era was on the day above named.

THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE,

ORGAN OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH,

And published weekly, in Imperial Quarto form, at the Methodist Book Concern, New York.

Rev. DANIEL CURRY, D.D., Editor.

Rev. W. H. DE PUY, A.M., Assist. Editor

THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is the Oldest, most widely circulated, and most largely patronized Methodist Weekly Journal in the world.

In addition to its immense circulation among the laity, (many of whom have been its readers from its first issue,) it numbers among its patrons and agents most of the Itinerant Ministers and a large share of the Local Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Its circulation, constantly increasing, extends into every Christian country.

While it makes no partial or invidious array of lists of contributors, no religious journal in the country exceeds it in

The Ability of its Editorials,

The Ability and Number of its Correspondents,

The Variety and Freshness of its News, or

The Number or Utility of its Various Departments.

It is sought for by the children as well as by adults, and abounds in information fresh, attractive, and useful to persons in every vocation in life.

It does not seek to secure or enlarge its subscription list by professing to be the special advocate of any class of notions of Church polity; but it relies for continued and increasing patronage upon its own real and recognized merit, and upon the faithful agency of its many and tried friends, and is published in the interest of the whole Church, of which it is a representative and official organ. It is not in any sense a private enterprise, nor will its receipts inure to the emolument of any person or corporation. Every dollar of receipts, after meeting the expenses incident to its publication, is applied to the benevolent objects of the Church.

The Publishers spare no expense necessary to make it in all respects a First-class Religious Journal. In consequence of the growing patronage, they are enabled to publish it at the low price of $2 50 per year, in advance. All the Bishops and Pastors of the Methodist Episcopal Church are its authorized Agents. Local Preachers and the Laity every-where are invited to aid in its circulation.

The Christian Advocate, in view of the great breadth of its circulation, which extends not only into every State in the Union, but also into other countries, near and remote, furnishes an important advertising medium for all industrial pursuits, or articles of interest and utility to the general public.

THE

METHODIST QUARTERLY REVIEW.

D. D. WHEDON, D. D., Editor.

TERMS: $2 50 PER ANNUM.

OUR REVIEW is, with one exception, the oldest Quarterly in our country ; with one or two exceptions it is the most low priced. Taking into consideration its size, the cost of its articles, its extensive Foreign Department, and its material and execution, it is by far the cheapest Quarterly extant. From the importance of its moral and intellectual value, the publishers have followed the policy of putting it at so low a price to its subscribers as to realize no profit from it.

While it is denominational in its character it is not exclusive. It has numbered among its contributors from without its own Church Dr. SCHAFF, Dr. POND, Professor TAYLER LEWIS, Professor BAIRD, Professor WELSH, and others. Yet, specially appealing to the talent and ambition of the Church, and giving the names of the authors with the articles, it has called into action and notice within the last twelve years a corps of able writers. Within that time, and primarily through our Quarterly, the names of GILBERT HAVEN, Drs. HURST, NEWHALL, COMFORT, HILLMAN, HYDE, BARNES, LACROIX, H. W. WARREN, W. F. WARREN, B. F. COCKER, and others, have become honorably conspicuous.

As a denominational Review, it maintains with faithfulness, yet candor, the Arminian evangelical theology. It stands opposed to theological Fatalism on one side, and to Pelagianism in all its rationalistic forms, so rife at the present hour, on the other. It takes firm issue with the pantheistic and rationalistic influences that claim to rule predominant in a large share of our quarterly, monthly, and daily periodical literature. Ministers and thoughtful laymen, especially of the denomination to which it belongs, will nowhere find so adequate a survey of the field of high contemporaneous thought on the most momentous topics from their own stand-point as in its pages.

OUR CHILDREN'S PAPER.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL ADVOCATE,

369,000 CIRCULATION.

The Sunday-School Advocate is acknowledged by many good judges to be the most pleasing and instructive children's paper in the country. There is no duty binding on children which it does not teach in strong but simple words. Without being babyish in its language, it is adapted to the standard of thought among intelligent children. It abounds in facts, piquant remarks, and lively portraitures of child-life. Its illustrations are numerous and beautiful. It is well printed on superior paper, and is not surpassed in general excellence by any other paper of its class. It is edited by DANIEL WISE, who has been charming the children ever since 1838, when he began writing for them in the "Sabbath-School Messenger." He is now aided by Miss SUSAN WARNER, Rev. Dr. ALDEN, Mrs. H. C. GARDNER, UNA LOCKE, Rev. L. C. MATLACK, Miss A. J. TOY, Miss LOWE, and others. Its circulation is greater than any other Sunday-school paper in the world. It has 369,000 subscribers, and ought to have

A MILLION.

The Sunday-School Journal.

VOL. I, (NEW SERIES), commenced with October 1, 1868. A few bound volumes on hand.

VOL. II, (NEW SERIES), COMMENCES with OCTOBER, 1869. Enlarged and greatly improved. The JOURNAL has met with unprecedented success. It has a circulation of 37,000. For the next year the Publishers propose to give the Editor more space by the addition of several pages. The price of the JOURNAL will be raised to 60 cents for single subscribers, and 50 cents each for clubs of six or over. If the names are to be written on each copy they will be charged at same rate as for single copy. Remember that the year begins with October. No expense will be spared to make the SUNDAY-SCHOOL JOURNAL the most practical, concise, and thorough Sunday-school magazine in the country. It already goes into schools of all denominations.

II.

The Berean Lesson System.

Mr. Vincent's Lesson System has already become widely known. Introduced originally through the SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHER, it continues to receive the approval of Sunday-school workers every-where.

First Series: The First Year with Jesus.

" The Second Year with Jesus.

In volumes and leaflets, adapted to four grades of scholars. (For Circular address Carlton & Lanahan, 805 Broadway, New York.)

Second Series: A Year with Moses.

With Notes in the SUNDAY-SCHOOL JOURNAL, by Dr. James Strong and Dr. Charles H. Fowler; LESSON LEAVES, (published monthly,) and PICTURE AND BOLD-TEXT LESSONS for primary and infant scholars, (published every two months,) by Rev. J. H. Vincent. The whole adapted to four grades of scholars.

Third Series: The Berean Lessons.

[“These (at Berea) were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so. Acts xvii, 11.”]

In its rich variety of subjects, its careful adaptation to different grades—Home Readings, Golden Texts, Lesson Hymns, Notes, Illustrations, Maps, Pictures, Diagrams, Blackboard Outlines, etc., etc.—we have no doubt it will be abundantly satisfactory to all who desire a thorough system of lessons. The year's course will in reality comprise four distinct series, taken from both the Old and the New Testaments. Each series will comprise lessons for twelve Sabbaths, and will be followed by a “GENERAL REVIEW CONCERT EXERCISE” for the thirteenth Sabbath of each quarter. The year's lessons, with Hymns, Golden Text, etc., will be published in advance in the “LESSON MANUAL.” The “TEACH-ER'S LEAF” will be published quarterly. It will contain Notes on the Lessons by Bishop Simpson, Rev. E. G. Andrews, D.D., Rev. C. H. Fowler, D.D., and Rev. J. M. Freeman, A.M. The “SCHOLAR'S LEAF” will also be published quarterly. The “LEAF CLUSTER,” for the infant class, will greatly delight the little ones. Other features of this system will be announced in due time. Before selecting Sunday-school Lessons for 1870 examine the BEREAN SERIES. A descriptive Catalogue will be ready October 1, 1869. Catalogue sent by mail, FREE.

Bibles and Testaments,

Published by CARLTON & LANAHAN, 805 Broadway, N.Y.

Imperial Pronouncing Bible.

THIS new and desirable edition of the Bible is now ready for the supply of orders. It is printed in large and beautiful type, and brought out in the best mechanical styles. The following are its principal features:

1. Every proper name is syllabically divided and accented, according to the present lexicographical standard, wherever it occurs throughout the entire volume.

2. The various marginal references of the common version have been thoroughly and carefully revised, and a large number of new, apposite, and convenient references have been added.

3. Each book of the Old Testament and of the New is prefaced with a short introduction, embracing all the necessary items of historical interest, such as its author, date, authenticity, and genuineness, and a synopsis of the subjects treated in the book.

4. Several instructive and important Historical, Archæological, and Chronological Chapters have been inserted, preliminary to the Sacred Text. These chapters embrace the following subjects: (1.) Manuscripts and Early Printed Editions of the Sacred Writings. (2.) The Early English Versions. (3.) Preparation for the Publication of the present Authorized Version of the English Bible. (4.) The Contents of the Old and New Testaments, arranged so as to show a connected History. (5.) Measures and Weights. (6.) Time. (7.) Alphabetical List of Orders of Men and Sects mentioned in the Holy Scripture. (8.) On the Arts of the Jews.

5. Several accurate and beautiful Maps in colors, representing the various countries mentioned in the Bible, have been introduced, constituting separate pages.

This Imperial Edition of our Pronouncing Bible is specially adapted to the use of the PULPIT, and we earnestly advise that a copy should be secured by every congregation. Let every minister have before him for use in his public readings such a copy of the Holy Scriptures as will enable him to give the correct pronunciation of every proper name. This edition, as well as the Octavo, is also suitable for families.

Organization of the M. E. Church.

THE first society (of five members) was formed by Philip Embury in his private house in New York city, in the autumn of 1766. The first church edifice was erected in John-street, on site of the present church, and dedicated October 30, 1768. The first annual conference was held in Philadelphia in 1773, and consisted of ten preachers, reporting a membership of 1,160. The first General Conference was held in Baltimore in 1784.

Comparative Progress.

By examining the official returns of the conferences for the whole century, and comparing them by decades, from 1766, we have the following table:

Year.	Traveling Preachers.	Increase of Preachers.	Members.	Increase of Members.
1766
1776	24	24	4,921	4,921
1786	117	98	20,689	15,768
1796	293	176	56,664	35,975
1806	452	159	130,570	73,906
1816	695	243	214,235	83,665
1826	1,406	711	360,800	146,565
1836	2,928	1,522	650,103	289,303
1846	3,582	654	644,229*	Dec. 5,874
1856	5,877	2,295	800,327	156,098
1866	7,576	1,699	1,032,184	231,857

* By the withdrawal and separation of southern conferences in 1844, organizing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Episcopal Church lost 1,345 traveling preachers, and 495,288 members; and yet so rapid was her growth during the decade, that at its close (two years after the separation) there was a net gain of 654 preachers, and a lack of only 5,874 members of making up the number lost.

Statistical Returns of the M. E. Church to Jan. 1, 1870.

THE present number of Annual Conferences is seventy-two, an increase of one over last year. For the full list, with the boundaries of each, see Discipline, 1868.

Book Concern of the M. E. Church.

REV. THOMAS CARLTON, D.D., Book Agent at New York; Rev. JOHN LANAHAN D.D., Assistant Book Agent at New York; Rev. LUKE HITCHCOCK, D.D., Book Agent at Cincinnati; Rev. J. M. WALDEN, D.D., Assistant Book Agent at Cincinnati. Rev. ELEAZER THOMAS, D.D., is also Assistant Book Agent in connection with the Book Concern at New York, but resides in San Francisco, and is the Book Agent for the Pacific Coast.

The Book Concern is the property of the General Conference, and subject entirely to its control. By direction of the General Conference the Book Agents "have authority to regulate the publications and all other parts of the business of the Concern, except what belongs to the editorial departments, as the state of the finances and the demands may require."

The first "Book Concern" (John Dickins, Agent) was established in Philadelphia in 1789, with a borrowed capital of $600. In 1797 the first "Book Committee" was appointed. In 1804 the Concern was removed to New York. In 1836 it was destroyed by fire, (loss $250,000,) but soon rebuilt. The Western Book Concern was established in Cincinnati in 1820. Branch book depositories, under the direction of the Book Agents at New York and Cincinnati, have been established in Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, and San Francisco.

The capital in 1886 (date of fire) was $281,650 74. The total present net capital (as per official exhibits made November 30, 1863) is $1,165,624 55, an increase of $883,973 81. Since 1836 the Concerns at New York and Cincinnati have paid out in dividends to the Annual Conferences, and to meet Church expenses outside of their own business, a total of $1,335,866 25. This sum, added to the increase of capital, gives a total profit in thirty-two years of $2,219,840 06, or an annual average profit of $64,592. All the profits of the Book Concerns are applied to Church purposes, and are appropriated in such manner as the General Conference prescribes.

The Book Agents publish over nineteen hundred different bound volumes, and the unbound and tract list embraces about one thousand, the tracts varying from two to sixty-four pages each. The books and tracts are in English, German, Welsh, Swedish, Danish, and French.

The Book Committee consists of fifteen chosen by the General Conference, namely: James Pike, of New Hampshire Conference; George W. Woodruff, of New York East Conference; C. S. Vancleve, of Newark Conference; Henry Slicer, of Baltimore Conference; Isaac S. Bingham, of Black River Conference; James Erwin, of Central New York Conference; G. W. Maltby, of Erie Conference; J. F. Kennedy, of North Ohio Conference; B. F. Rawlings, of Indiana Conference; F. A. Blades, of Detroit Conference; H. Bannister, of Wisconsin Conference; Cyrus Brooks, of Minnesota Conference; L. M. Vernon, of St. Louis Conference; J. H. Moore, of Illinois Conference; J. Rothweiler, of Central German Conference. For duties of the Book Committee see Discipline, Part V, sec. 7.

New Methodist Publishing and Mission Buildings, New York.

THESE new and elegant buildings (an engraving of which appears on the cover) are located on the corner of Broadway and Eleventh-street, New York. They were purchased in April, 1869, by a Commission appointed for the purpose by the General Conference of 1868. The location is one of the most desirable in the city. The lot has a front on Broadway of 76 feet 7 inches; on Eleventh-street of 221 feet 9 inches; the rear, or west side, is 103 feet 3 inches. A massive edifice, five stories above the basement, with iron fronts, and of superior architectural design, covers the entire lot. The ceilings are lofty, so much so that the edifice is nearly an entire story higher than the surrounding five story buildings. The extensive area of each floor is without interior walls, the ceilings being supported by numerous iron columns. This renders it convenient to erect partitions at pleasure. The basement room extends 19 feet under Broadway, and 14 feet and 11 inches under Eleventh-street. This contains an area of 20,114 square feet; the first two floors above 15,665 square feet each, and remaining three floors 10,959 square feet each, making a total area of 84,421 square feet, a space nearly equal to two acres. The basement floor covers nearly one half acre. The building is entirely new, and constructed in the most substantial manner. The various business and editorial offices in connection with the Book and Mission Rooms at the Book Concern in New York city were transferred to the new building in August, 1869.

Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Office, 805 Broadway, New York. BISHOP MORRIS, President; the remaining Bishops and I. PEREGO, Jun., and S. A. PURDY, M.D., Vice-Presidents; DANIEL WISE, D.D., Corresponding Secretary, and Editor of Good News and Tract Publications DANIEL DENHAM, Jun., Recording Secretary; JOHN LANAHAN, D.D., Treasurer.

OBJECTS.—The object of this Society is the diffusion of religious knowledge by circulating the publications of the Methodist Episcopal Church at home and abroad.

ITS AGENCIES.—Its Agencies are: 1. Our traveling Preachers and Missionaries. 2. Tract Committees, appointed by the Quarterly Meeting Conferences throughout the Connection. The former are its collecting agents in our self-supporting Churches. The latter, guided by the former, are its distributing agents. Faithfulness on the part of all the Pastors in taking collections would give the Society ample funds without expense for collection; energetic work on the part of the Tract Committees would put into circulation one hundred million pages of tracts and a quarter of a million copies of the Good News annually.

ITS PLAN OF OPERATIONS.—1. To our foreign missions it makes such appropriations from time to time as the work requires and its means permit. 2. To every domestic mission it freely offers five dollars' worth of Good News or tracts. 3. To every self-supporting Church it offers all the Good News and tracts it will circulate on the pledge of a collection more than sufficient to cover the cost of the grant applied for. There is no plan of operations in any other Church so generous as this. It removes the last impediment to tract circulation by the Churches. To facilitate its work it has Committees on Applications for Aid at Cincinnati, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, San Francisco, Portland, Oregon, and Philadelphia.

ITS WORK IN 1868. Its receipts were $15,012 77; its expenditures, $19,407 19. It made grants of Good News and tracts to 1,610 appointments in 69 Conferences, including the Mission Conferences in foreign lands.

During the current year it has granted nearly $5,000 to the foreign work, besides millions of pages of tracts and hundreds of thousands of the Good News to applicants at home. The circulation of the Good News is now about seventy-nine thousand. Its tract publications are numerous, good, and constantly increasing.

Church Extension Society of the M. E. Church.

Office, 1018 Arch-street, Philadelphia. BISHOP SIMPSON, D.D., President; ALPHA J. KYNETT, D.D., Corresponding Secretary; A. H. DE HAVEN, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. CHARLES C. McCABE, Agent. For list of GENERAL COMMITTEE see Methodist Discipline, 1868, page 339.

ORGANIZATION.—The Church Extension Society was organized by direction of the General Conference of 1864, and was incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, March 13, 1865. On recommendation of the Board of Managers, the Constitution was revised and more closely identified with the economy of the Church by the General Conference of 1868, which also inserted an important section in the Discipline of the Church. (See edition of 1868, page 247.)

RECEIPTS.—The total receipts and disbursements from the organization of the Society up to November 1, 1868, were about $125,000. This, though apparently large for an infant Society, was only about one fourth of the amount which the authorized management had declared to be necessary. The magnitude and importance of the work of this Society gives it a strong claim for a much more liberal support.

INCOME.—It derives its revenue from two sources: 1. From the annual collections, creating the General Fund. The General Committee at the annual meeting in November of each year, together with the Bishops and Board of Managers, estimate the amount needed for Church extension purposes, and distribute the amount for collection among the several Annual Conferences. This is in turn in each Conference distributed among the several districts and pastoral charges. It is by the Discipline made the duty of each pastor to "preach a sermon on this subject in each congregation once in every year, and solicit contributions from each in aid of the Church Extension Society." It is expected that each congregation will contribute the amount that has been indicated, and that the Parent Society will thereby receive the aggregate amount asked for by the General Committee, Bishops, and Managers. The Parent Board keeps an accurate account with each Conference, and each Conference Board with every pastoral charge. 2. Special donations and bequests, creating a

"PERPETUAL LOAN FUND."—The resolutions of the Board providing for this fund earnestly invite special contributions from all our people, and state that "said fund may be loaned to any Church or Society without interest, in small sums, in no case exceeding $5,000, or with interest, as occasion may require, and the Board shall, from time to time, determine in aid of the objects of the Church Extension Society; that sums of $5,000 and upward, contributed by any one person, Church, or Conference, shall be named by the contributor, and shall constitute a separate Loan Fund, and the Corresponding Secretary shall report annually the investment thereof, and the work accomplished thereby." The Board also especially invite contributions to create a fund to be called the "MONROE LOAN FUND," to be a most appropriate monument to the memory of our first Corresponding Secretary, and to be invested and reported annually under the restrictions and conditions named in the first resolution."

IN 1700 the entire population of the Anglo-American Colonies was 262,000; in 1750 it was 1,000,000; in 1775, 2,389,300. In 1790 the population of the United States alone was 3,929,827; and in 1860, 31,443,321. Anticipated population in 1900, 170,000,000.

The unimproved lands of the United States, in 1860, amounted to 244,101,818 acres; improved lands, 163,110,720 acres; cash value of the whole estimated at $6,645,045,007.

The next census is to be taken this year, 1870. A comparison of the summaries of its reports with the figures given above will be of interest.

Facts Concerning Human Life.

THE total number of human beings on the earth is computed at 1,000,000,000, (one thousand millions,) and they speak 3,064 known tongues.

The average duration of human life is 33½ years.

One fourth of those born die before they are 7 years old, and one half before the age of 17.

Out of 100 persons only six reach the age of 60 years.

Out of 500 persons only one attains the age of 80 years.

Sixty persons die every minute.

Tall men live longer than short ones.

Married men are longer lived than the single.

Rich men live, on the average, 42 years, but the poor only 30 years.

There is a drunkard to every 74 persons.

Carefully calculated statistics, reaching through a period of the last twenty-five years, show that in the United States the average age of active mechanics in shops is 47.9 years; of inactive mechanics in shops, 43 years; of laborers, 46.8 years; of factors laboring abroad, 34.2 years; of persons employed on the ocean, 45.5 years; of females, 38.7 years; of farmers, 64.2 years; and of active mechanics working in the open air, 51.2 years.

The average age of the whole number of persons who died in the twenty-five years, whose occupations were specified, was 50.5 years.

Immigration—The Liquor Traffic.

DURING the year 1868 the emigrants to the United States from Ireland numbered 47,571, and from Germany 101,989. During the thirteen years from 1856 to 1868 inclusive, 2,565,644 persons of foreign birth have arrived in this country. Of these there were 194,166 English, 25,829 Scotch, 5,756 Welsh, 560,831 Irish; 108,531 British North Americans, 845,479 Germans, 65,943 Chinese, 64,355 Prussians, 58,289 Swedes and Norwegians, and 49,389 French, etc., etc.

During the year ending June 30, 1867, there were in the United States 118,667 persons engaged in the retail liquor traffic, and about 12,000 in disposing of the intoxicating poison by wholesale. Here is a total of over 130,000 men, or (reckoning five persons to a family) 650,000 persons supported by the sale of liquors. The total sales reached over $600,000,000! This amount would pay off the national debt, principal and interest, in five years.

Rural Home Life.

THE old home cottage and its surroundings possess a real charm. The gambrel roof, the dormer windows, the side and end doors, with their porticoes and climbing vines, the rear piazza, the flower and fruit garden near by, the old-fashioned farm gate overhung by the towering forest trees, and the hills near by covered with luxuriant groves—all combine to give interest to such a presence. A carriage, plain and strong and useful, having gone from such a home, is now returning. The salutations are apparent; they are mutual, unsophisticated, and delightful.

"Home of our childhood! How affection clings
And hovers round thee with her seraph wings!
Dearest thy hills, though clad in autumn brown,
Than fairest summits which the cedars crown!
Sweeter the fragrance of thy summer breeze
Than all Arabia breathes along the seas!
The stranger's gale wafts home the exile's sigh,
For the heart's temple is its own blue sky."

The Fishing Party.

ARRIVED at the fishing-ground, some of the parties seated themselves in a boat, which they found tied to a tree by the shore, others took seats on the rocks beside the stream. Lucy startled the others, who had not as yet seen any sign of a fish, by exclaiming, "See what a fine perch I have!" Every one looked toward the spot, and some started to go to her, when she rose, and showing her seat, which was a large flat stone in a remarkably eligible position, said, "Why, don't you see my seat where I am perched?"

This was Lucy's fine perch, and they all laughed heartily at the joke. They all met with pretty good success, and, on going home, Herbert whispered to Lewis, "Let's give our fish to Jessie's folks." "O yes," replied Lewis; "so we will." The little secret was overheard or guessed by Robbie, who told Bertha, and the result was a unanimous decision to leave all the fish with Mrs. Burke, except a few, which were reserved for Grandfather Upton.

Bertha said, "It is a good thought, and I will first stop at home and get a piece of pork. It is a long time since I have sent them any thing, and if none of the neighbors have been more thoughtful they must have fared poorly, I fear. For with all her thrift, poor Mrs. Burke can ill afford any luxuries for her family." So Bertha added to the stock of fish a nice piece of pork, and a fine large loaf of newly-baked bread. What a treasure did it seem to the eyes of good Mrs. Burke as she peeped into the baskets which Herbert brought in. She ran out to the wagon, saying, "Blessins on ye, kind leddies!"—[From "Summer at Walnut Ridge." Published by CARLTON & LANAHAN, 805 Broadway, New York.]

God's Care.

IN the days of the Reformation there lived a learned divine in Germany named Brentius, of Wurtemberg. His godly zeal had at last aroused his enemies, who one day sent a band of soldiers to seize him when they thought he would be off his guard. The soldiers entered the town, but Brentius got time to flee; not, however, without their perceiving him, and they chased him through several streets. He was enabled to outstrip them a little; and then, turning quickly into a lane, he found his way up a flight of stairs, at the top of which was a rickety ladder leading up to a hay-loft. He was soon among the hay, concealed and still. The soldiers ran hither and thither, and, on coming to the stair, sought for him, even poking up the points of their bayonets through the boards of the hayloft to see if anyone moved. Brentius kept still, only shrinking back to escape the touch of the bayonets, till the soldiers turned away, concluding that no one was there.

So far, this was a good hiding-place; but how was he to live if he continued here. The same Lord who had guided his servant to this retreat sent him food; for every morning, during fourteen days, a hen came to the hay-loft and laid an egg in the hay, which furnished Brentius with sustenance sufficient to keep him alive.

After the fourteenth day the supply failed, and he was compelled to leave this shelter, and accordingly he cautiously descended into the street. He found that the soldiers had just left the town, so that his friends had now full time and opportunity to get him conveyed away safely to another place.

How many ways has God of protecting his own people who trust in him!

What Makes a Man?

A truthful soul, a loving mind,
Full of affection for its kind;
A spirit firm, erect, and free,
That never basely bends a knee;
That will not bend a feather's weight
Of slavery's chance for small or great;
That truly speaks from God within;
That never makes a league with sin;
That snaps the fetters despots make,
And loves the truth for its own sake;
That worships God, and him alone,
And bows no more than at his throne;
And trembles at no tyrant's nod;
A soul that fears no one but God,
And thus can smile at curse or ban—
This is the soul that makes a man.

What Makes a Woman?

Not costly dress nor queenly air;
Not jeweled hand, complexion fair;
Not graceful form nor lofty tread;
Not paint, nor curls, nor splendid head;
Not pearly teeth, nor sparkling eyes
Not voice that nightingale outvies,
Not breath as sweet as eglantine;
Not gaudy gems, nor fabrics fine;
Not all the stores of fashion's mart,
Nor yet the blandishments of art;
Not one nor all of these combined
Can make one woman true, refined.
'Tis not the casket that we prize,
But that which in the casket lies!
These outward charms that please the sight
Are naught, unless the heart be right.

Golden Words.

MINISTERS, by sending out a sweet perfume in their doctrine and life, make the Church a garden of spices.

The soul in its highest devotion is content to repose in the thought of God, asking nothing, seeking nothing, the whole being concentrated in the one unuttered desire, "Thy will be done."

Summer Recreations—Beautiful World-Life.

THE leaf-tongues of the forest, and the flower-lip of the sod,
The happy birds that hymn their raptures in the ear of God,
The summer wind that bringeth music over land and sea,
Have each a voice that singeth this sweet song of songs to me:
"This world is full of beauty, as other worlds above;
And if we do our duty it will be full of love."

Jesus Only.

THE Light of Heaven is the Face of Jesus.
The Joy of Heaven is the Presence of Jesus.
The Melody of Heaven is the Name of Jesus.
The Harmony of Heaven is the Praise of Jesus.
The Theme of Heaven is the Work of Jesus.
The Employment of Heaven is the Service of Jesus.
The Fullness of Heaven is Jesus Himself.

Useful Health Hints.

Two things are indispensable to the healthfulness of a bed-chamber: comfortable warmth and a supply of pure air. Undressing, dressing, or sleeping in a cold or hot room should be avoided. Suffer neither a hot or cold current of air to fall upon the bed while it is occupied.

Refined sugar is much healthier than raw sugar. The latter generally contains large numbers of the insect Acari, or scab mite. It is this insect which causes the itch.

Persons going out in the cold air should keep their mouths closed as much as possible, in order to avoid the inspiration of the chilly atmosphere. The inspiration of either very cold or very hot air is injurious.

To avoid chapped hands cleanse thoroughly after using soap. A little oil applied after washing off the soap will be of use.

After shaving, and washing off the soap, apply a little oil, in order to neutralize any soap which may remain. This will keep the face smooth.

To stop the nose-bleed, press the finger on the artery or "pulse" which supplies the nose with blood. This can be found by passing the finger along the outer edge of the jaw till its beating is felt. The artery is about two thirds of the distance back from the mouth. Continue the pressure for from three to five minutes, and the bleeding part will probably contract so as not to bleed again.

An eminent Dublin surgeon advises that beds should stand so that the body of the sleeper may lie north and south. There exist great electrical currents, caused by the motion of the earth; these affect the nervous system.

As an important word to consumptives we give the following, written by Dr. Henry Mac Cormac, of Belfast, Ireland, after many years of careful study, experience, and observation: "The result has been an intimate conviction that I have determined the real and only possible source of tubercle, and to enhance and intensify the belief that the profession, if they will only energetically and uniformly enforce the habitual respiration of air not pre-breathed, may, within a very brief period, bring the ravages of tubercle to an absolute and permanent close." All consumptives should faithfully use the "Inhaling Tube," by Dr. J. M. Howe, 227 Grand-street, New York.

An eminent physician, after thoroughly testing the prescription, commends the following as the best specific in case of a bite by a venomous snake: Give a full dose of ipecacuanha combined with a little extract of capsicum, (cayenne pepper.) After waiting fifteen or twenty minutes, administer warm water to promote the operation of the emetic. After that give light food with brandy.

Professor Agassiz recommends fish as one of the most healthful of meats. Fish contains phosphorus to a large extent, a chemical element which the brain requires for health and growth.

In walking, sitting, riding, or working, in whatever occupation, keep the shoulders back so as to expand the chest. The right habit can be easily acquired.

After-dinner naps are harmful. Do not sleep while the food is digesting.

Those troubled with constipation should eat ripe fruit, oatmeal, and cracked wheat.

Regularity of sleep is of immense importance. Always retire early, if possible, and regularly.

Woolen flannel ought to be worn next the skin the whole year; but in hot weather the flannel may be lighter than when the weather is cool.

To preserve good teeth wash with tepid water and brush thoroughly after each meal, and on retiring to bed and rising. For a toothpick use wood or quill, never use metal.

To cure corns, put the feet for half an hour, two or three successive nights, in a strong solution of soda. The alkali dissolves the indurated cuticle, and the corns fall out spontaneously, leaving a small cavity which soon fills.

IMPORTANT RULES FOR BATHING.

1. Don't bathe in garments used by others.
2. Don't bathe in any garments if your object is cleanliness.
3. Sick or well, don't remain in the bath over ten minutes, and be in active motion all the time.
4. Never bathe oftener than once a day.
5. Never bathe on a full stomach. Before breakfast is the safest and most agreeable time for taking a bath.
6. Persons affected with heart disease should never take a long or severe bath. They cannot safely use the "Turkish bath."

 For other and numerous Health Hints see Methodist Almanac for 1867, 1868, and 1869.

Useful Recipes in the Sick-Room.

HOW TO TOAST BREAD.—Keep the bread a proper distance from the fire, so as to make it of a straw color. It is spoiled if it is black, or even brown.

TOAST WATER.—Take a slice of bread about three inches across and four long, a day or two old. When it is browned, not blackened, pour on it a quart of water which has been boiled and afterward cooled. Cover the vessel, and after two hours pour off the water from the bread gently. An agreeable flavor may be imparted by putting a piece of orange or lemon peel on the bread at the time the water is first poured on the bread.

BEEF TEA.—Cut into thin slices a pound of lean meat, pour on a full quart of cold water, let it gradually warm over a gentle fire; let it simmer half an hour, taking off the scum; strain it through a napkin. Let it stand ten minutes, then pour off the clear tea.

CRACKED WHEAT.—Dry some common wheat, then grind it in a coffee mill; boil it three using hominy. It should be always washed clean, and then boiled long enough to become of or four hours; add a little salt; a little milk, butter, cream, or molasses may be added, as in the consistence of boiled rice or hominy. A pint of wheat dried and ground is enough for a day; not to be used for supper.

BOILED FLOUR AND MILK.—Take a pint of flour; make it into a dough ball with water; tie it tightly in a linen bag; put it into a pan of water, covering the ball, and let it boil two hours; place it before the fire to dry, cloth and all; take it out of the cloth, remove the skin, dry the ball itself. Grate a table-spoon of this, and stir it into a pint of boiling milk, until a kind of mush is formed.

BOILED TURNIPS.—Small turnips boiled make one of the best articles of food which invalids and convalescents can use. Carrots may be added, half and half. Boil them once; repeat the boiling in fresh water until they are quite soft; press the water out through a coarse cloth; then mix enough new milk to form a kind of pulp; season with salt, and then place them before the fire until it is a little dry or crusted.

DANDELION DIET DRINK.—Take three ounces of the bruised root of the common dandelion, which should be gathered in July, August, and September; pour on a quart of water, boil it to a pint, and strain it.

FLAXSEED TEA.—Take an ounce or full table-spoon of flaxseed, but not bruised, to which may be added two drachms of bruised liquorice root; pour on a pint of boiling water, place it, covered, near the fire for four hours, strain through a cotton or linen rag. Make it fresh daily.

MEASURES.—60 Drops	make one Tea-spoon.
4 Tea-spoons	“ one Table-spoon.
2 Table-spoons	“ one Ounce.
2 Ounces	“ one Wine-glass.
2 Wine-glasses	“ one Gill or Tea-cup.
4 Gills	“ one Pint.

POULTICE.—The best poultice is one which keeps warm and moist the longest. Cold light wheat bread soaked in sweet milk makes a good one. A fresh beet from the garden pounded fine also makes a good one. A “potato poultice” is better than either. Peel, boil, and mash the potatoes and inclose in a muslin bag.

BARLEY WATER.—Take two table-spoons of pearl barley, wash it well in cold water, then pour on it half a pint of water and boil it fifteen minutes; throw this water away, then pour on two quarts of boiling water and boil down to a pint; then strain it for use. An ounce of gum arabic dissolved in a pint of barley water is a good demulcent drink.

WINE WHEY.—Take a pint of milk, put it on the fire; as soon as it begins to boil, pour on eight or ten table-spoons of Madeira wine, in which has been stirred two tea-spoons of brown sugar; stir the whole until it has been boiling for fifteen minutes; then strain through a cloth.

TAMARIND WHEY.—Two table-spoons of tamarind, stirred in a pint of boiling milk; then boil for fifteen minutes and strain.

HOMINY.—To make it plain, healthful, and savory, boil one hour and then envelope with a blanket until cool.

Useful Hints for Farm and Kitchen.

PULL or cut all weeds while green, and remove them to the manure heap. Allow no one to waste.

Liquid manure tanks are of immense value to the garden. They are easily and cheaply made, and their contents applied to the ground without difficulty.

Toads are useful in gardens. Do not kill them. They devour multitudes of injurious insects. Save dead leaves and mix with the soil in the garden, or about shrubs or vines.

Red clover is one of the cheapest and most useful fertilizers. Plow under when green.

To fatten poultry give them Indian, oat, or barley meal scalded in milk or water. Feed early in the morning, and at noon and night. Give plenty of pure water.

In selecting paints for out-of-door work the lighter colors should be preferred as the most durable and useful. The dark colors absorb the sun's rays, and occasion earlier decay of the material painted.

To clean silver plate, fill a large saucepan with water; put into it one ounce of carbonate of potash and a quarter of a pound of whiting. Now put in all the spoons, forks, and small plate, and boil them for twenty minutes; after which take the saucepan off the fire and allow the liquor to become cold; then take each piece out and polish with soft leather. A soft brush must be used to clean the embossed and engraved parts.—S. PRESSE.

To clear cellars of rats, pour a drop of "oil of rhodium" (obtained of a druggist) upon some bait in a common or wire spring trap, and set in an infested locality. Only a short time will elapse ere the cage will be found occupied by vermin. Rats and mice possess a great liking for the oil, and, when scented, will risk any thing to obtain it. The oil of rhodium costs about one cent per drop, but a drop will last several days.

Paper can be made to stick on white-washed walls by dissolving glue in good, strong vinegar, and washing them with the solution. Heat till the glue is dissolved, and then apply with a brush.

The "Chemical News" states that a strong solution of sulphate of magnesia will give a beautiful quality to whitewash, and a little of it used with starch will add considerably to its stiffness, and render cotton or linen garments to a certain degree incombustible.

To remove the disagreeable taste from new kegs, churns, or other wooden vessels, first scald them with boiling water, then dissolve some pearlsh or soda in lukewarm water, adding a little lime to it, and wash the inside of the vessel well with the solution; afterward scald it well with plain hot water before using.

Dip the tips of nails in grease, and they can then easily be driven into any hard wood, where otherwise they would double and break.

Lamp cylinders can be prevented from cracking, when exposed to the burning flame, by first placing them in a vessel of cold water and bringing this to a boil over the fire, then removing the vessel and allowing it to cool before taking out the cylinder.

For preparing pickles, cold vinegar should be used; a small piece of alum in each jar makes them firm and crisp.

Every hour's exposure to the light, after an Irish potato has been dug from where it grew, deteriorates its quality.

Eggs, when put in water, will, if good, invariably swim with the large end upward; if not, they are bad.

To keep meat fresh in the absence of ice, simply immerse it in buttermilk. This will keep it for several days, when the milk should be changed, and fresh milk substituted. In this way beef, veal, etc., can be kept for several weeks, and it will be as sweet and fresh at the end of that time as when it was first put in. It is equally efficacious in the hottest weather.

To make six loaves of best bread, set two quarts of sponge over night—one cup of good yeast mixed with water. In the morning boil six or eight large potatoes, and mash them; put in two quarts of milk; run through colander; stir with sponge in flour and set to rise. When light, put in two table-spoons sugar; mold in loaves; set to rise; bake.

THE "NOVELTY"

is the only WRINGER that has the PATENT FLANGE COG-WHEELS on both ends of the Rolls.

The cogs on one end of a roll are set relatively between those on the other end of the same roll, virtually forming a DOUBLE GEAR, and thereby nearly doubling the purchase.

(The importance of setting gears in this position is not generally understood.)

Notwithstanding the rolls can separate freely at either end, the Cog-wheels cannot be thrown out of gear on both ends of the Wringer at the same time, unless the pressure is taken off.

The "NOVELTY" is fastened to a tub or box by a Patent Curved Clamp, which has an equal bearing on a tub the whole length of the Wringer. Other Wringers are merely fastened to a stave at each end, and are thus liable to wrench the staves from their proper position and ruin the tub. The Cog-wheels, Thumb-screws, etc., are nicely galvanized.

Buy the "NOVELTY," or at least take it on trial with any or all others and keep the BEST.

PIANOS! MELODEONS! AND ORGANS!

IMMENSE REDUCTION IN PRICES!

The great increase in the sale of our instruments has enabled us to reduce our prices for

FIRST-CLASS PIANOS, ORGANS, AND MELODEONS

from ten to twenty-five per cent. less than any other house (offering the same class of instruments) in the United States. While we act upon the maxim of "quick sales and small profits," we make it at the same time a special object to furnish our customers with instruments in no way inferior to the best in the market.

Every Instrument fully guaranteed for six years.

Many families have had a desire to obtain a Piano, but could not afford to pay the dealers a profit of from $100 to $300; neither do they wish to purchase a cheap-made instrument that would cost more to keep in repair than it is worth, hence a large class of our music-loving people have been obliged to do without it. We can furnish New Seven-Octave Piano-Fortes for from $275 to $700. Second-hand Pianos from $40 to $250. New Cabinet Organs at $45 and upward.

TESTIMONIALS IN REGARD TO OUR ORGANS.

The instrument furnished by you for use in our Concerts is a gem. It is the very best Melodeon we ever had. Its qualities are good, and in every way perfect and complete.

GEORGE GALLOWAY,
Director of Alleghanian Concert Troupe.

STAPLETON, S. I.

The Organ gives the greatest satisfaction. We can see no reason why every Society should not avail themselves of your most liberal terms. With a hearty indorsement, and wishing you every success, we are yours, very truly,

Dr. JOHN L. FEENY, W. P.,
Edgewater Division, Sons of Temperance.

UTICA, N. Y.

It is with the greatest pleasure that I recommend to my friends and the public the Cabinet Organs now being offered to the Musical World by Messrs. C. M. Tremaine & Bro., of New York. I have tried the several styles of their instruments, and in my opinion they are equal, and in several improvements that have been made superior, to any now being manufactured. As a vocal accompaniment I have found them better than any I have ever used, combining as they do sweetness and power of tone, together with an easy and quick action.

JAMES G. CLARK, Vocalist.

THE

RIVERSIDE MAGAZINE FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

An Illustrated Monthly, published by Hurd & Houghton, New York.—Riverside Press, Cambridge, Mass.

THE "Riverside" has made its mark by the attractiveness of its general appearance; by the artistic merit of its illustrations; by the great diversity, fullness, and healthiness of its literary contents. Each number thus far has shown the personal care of the Editor, who does not intend that the Magazine shall get into ruts and jog along at a drowsy pace.

It is often asked for what class of children the "Riverside" is intended. We answer that the chief characteristic of the "Riverside" is its adaptation to all young people. Its articles are not written down to children, but are of that frank, simple character which is not too old for the young, nor too young for the old.

The numbers already issued display the greatest variety of subjects. It has been the aim of the Publishers and Editor to secure the assistance of the best writers, and numerous contributions have been sent in by distinguished men and women who appreciate the character of the Magazine.

The famous story-teller of Denmark, Hans Christian Andersen, contributes his stories to the "Riverside" in advance of publication at home.

In running through the bound volumes one is struck with the exceedingly wide range taken by the artists. Accurate views of famous buildings; portraits of historical characters; natural history studies; manners and customs of different countries; dramatic scenes; illustrations of stories; fairy pictures, and a procession of lively and amusing groups of children, animals, birds, and insects, all pass before the eye and arrest the attention.

The best judges agree in pronouncing it the foremost Illustrated Magazine in the country.

The Magazine is a large, double-columned 8vo., with a cover in colors bearing the design of Morning-Glories. Each number has 48 pages.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $2 50 a year, in advance; 3 copies, $6 50; 5 copies, $10; 10 copies, $20, and an extra copy gratis. Price to Clergymen and Teachers, $2 00 per year. Single copies, 25 cents.

HOUSEHOLD ARTICLES!!

Pyle's O. K. Soap, Saleratus,

Cream Tartar, and Soda

Are steadily growing in favor with consumers. Every year swells the number of householders that adopt them on economical principles. We could parade the names of hundreds of distinguished personages from the ministerial, public, and mercantile world that patronize us; but knowing that our goods are honestly prepared, with a view to the best interests of consumers, we are content to trust the result of a fair trial. We believe the proprietors of this publication would, from their experience, cheerfully recommend our articles if applied to. All who would like to try them should insist upon the aid of their Grocer, his prejudice in favor of goods which afford him larger profits to the contrary notwithstanding.

WHEELER & WILSON, No. 625 BROADWAY, N. Y.,

Awarded, over Eighty-two Competitors, the Highest Premium, for perfection of Sewing and Button-Hole Machines.

• The only GOLD MEDAL for this branch of Manufacture.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, May 9, 1868.

TO WHEELER & WILSON, OF NEW YORK:

SIRS: The Department has received a Gold Medal, awarded to your firm on Sewing and Button-Hole Machines, at the Paris Universal Exposition of 1867.

Your obedient servant,

WILLIAM H. SEWARD.

This GOLD MEDAL is now on view in the show window of Wheeler & Wilson.

The only Gold Medal for the manufacture and perfection of Sewing Machines and Button-Hole Machines was awarded to Messrs. WHEELER & WILSON, of New York.

Henry F. Q. D'Aligny,

Member and Reporter of the International Jury.

Messrs. WHEELER & WILSON, 625 Broadway, N. Y., received the Gold Medal, and the only one awarded for the most perfect Sewing Machine and Button-Hole Machine exhibited at the Paris Universal Exposition.

J. C. DERBY,

United States General
Agent for the Exposition.

SEE WHEELER & WILSON'S BUTTON-HOLE ATTACHMENT, making one hundred button holes an hour—the desideratum for Families, Dressmakers and Manufacturers.

In reference to the Highest Premium—the GOLD MEDAL recently awarded to WHEELER & WILSON at the Paris Exposition—the Independent well says: "That modern wonder, the Atlantic Cable, seldom flashes messages between the two hemispheres fraught with more pleasing as well as more important intelligence than was the announcement that a magnificent tribute of merit had been awarded to one of the most enterprising firms, the WHEELER & WILSON Manufacturing Company. This is the only Gold Medal awarded for Sewing Machines and Button-Hole Machines. There were eighty-two competitors. That which has long been claimed by the WHEELER & WILSON Company, and which those who are acquainted with the superior quality of the Sewing Machines, have never hesitated to acknowledge as a rightful claim, must now be universally conceded, namely, that the WHEELER & WILSON Machines are par excellence the most desirable. To the perfecter of these machines the award is in truth well deserved."—Express.

WHY THE WHEELER & WILSON MACHINE IS PREFERRED.

It makes the "Lock Stitch;" its seams will not ravel; it is alike on both sides; it saves thread and silk; it is easily threaded; the tension of threads gives no trouble; its work is not soiled by oil; its parts are easily reached; it runs very light; its attachments are readily applied; it stitches all kinds of material; it hems any width; it fells; it puts on Bindings; it lays in Cord; it embroiders; it makes tucks; it gathers; it stitches button-holes; it is exceedingly simple; it works upon the rotary principle; it economizes power; it wears but slightly; it will last for years; it is warranted; 450,000 of them have been made; No. 1 works well after fifteen years' constant use; 90,000 of them are sold annually; its sale increases daily.

ORGANS

For Parlors, Churches, Schools, etc.

BEST QUALITY AND LOWEST PRICES.

WE are confident that we are manufacturing the best instruments of this class in the world, and that at recently reduced prices they are the cheapest as well as the best Organs obtainable. We are enabled to unite in our Organs these two important advantages to purchasers, best quality and lowest prices,

1. BY UNEQUALED FACILITIES FOR MANUFACTURE.—With a steadily growing reputation has come widely-extended business and largely-increased sales. The demand for the MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS is now so large that it enables us (1) to manufacture every part of the Organ ourselves, saving the profit usually paid to third parties; (2) to employ ingenious and necessarily expensive machinery which could not be used to advantage in a smaller business; and (3) to realize the full advantage of a complete system of division of labor. By these means are obtained more perfect workmanship in every detail, making better and more durable instruments, and this at diminished cost. Just as a great factory can produce better cloth than would be possible from a hand-loom, and this at much less cost; so, by our extraordinary facilities we can make better Organs at less cost than would be possible without them.

2. BY THE MOST ECONOMICAL SYSTEM OF SELLING.—It is simple. We sell for cash only, having fixed and invariable prices, which are alike to all, and are therefore printed in our circulars. Thus are saved expenses of collection and losses from bad debts, and other common expenses of selling, and it is not necessary for us to collect an additional profit from those who pay to make up for those who do not pay.

Doing so large a business, our necessary expenses, such as advertising, store rent, etc., are a less per centage of our amount of sales than in smaller businesses.

Producing, then, the best Organs at smallest cost, and selling them with least expense, we can afford to sell at lowest prices, and this we undertake to do.

The reputation of our work is fully established. It has been uniformly awarded highest premiums at Industrial Exhibitions, including the Medal at the Paris Exposition, and enjoys the preference of the musical profession generally. Ambitious as we are for a yet increased and permanent business, the public may rest assured that this reputation will be fully maintained; that we will manufacture only thoroughly first-class Organs, and that no inferior instrument will be knowingly suffered to bear our name.

The variety of Organs made by us is now quite large, including those suitable for all uses—from $50 to $1,000 each. Circulars, with full descriptions, free.

CASH DIVIDENDS.

This Company is STRICTLY MUTUAL, and divides ALL THE PROFITS AMONG THE POLICY-HOLDERS, on the CONTRIBUTION PLAN.

Only two full Payments are required on any Policy,

As the CASH DIVIDENDS may be used ANNUALLY thereafter to reduce future Payments.

As your CASH DIVIDENDS INCREASE, the future payments which you make will gradually DECREASE.

DIVIDENDS may be added to the Policy, and are never forfeited by the non-payment of Premiums, but may at any time be converted into Cash.

Mutual Protection is secured to the Policy-holders of this Company by a Special Law of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

For example: Suppose you are thirty-five years of age, and take an ordinary Life Policy. If you make ONE payment, and should fail to make the SECOND payment when due, you will still remain insured during the second year and three days of the third year. If you die during the two years and three days, your family will receive the full amount of the Policy, less only the overdue premium and interest.

One Annual Payment will keep you Insured 2 Years and 3 Days.

The Advantage of such Protection.

NEW YORK, March 11, 1870.

W. H. H. GREENE, late of New York, insured a few years since in the BERKSHIRE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY for $3,500, but, owing to misfortune in business, was unable to make any payment to the Company DURING ONE YEAR and TEN MONTHS prior to his decease, which occurred January 12, 1870. I have this day received (at the New York Office of the Company, 271 Broadway, corner Chambers-street) THREE THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED and NINETY-NINE DOLLARS, this being the full amount due to his widow after deducting the overdue payments and interest.

WEATHER WISDOM.

A ROSY sky at sunset, whether clear or cloudy, indicates fine weather; an Indian-red tint at sunset foreshadows rain; a red sky in the morning, bad weather, or much wind—perhaps rain; a gray sky in the morning, fine weather; a high dawn, wind; a low dawn, fair weather.

Soft-looking or delicate clouds foretell fine weather, with moderate or light breezes; hard-edged, oily-looking clouds, wind. A dark, gloomy, blue sky is windy; but a light bright blue sky indicates fine weather. Generally, the softer clouds look, the less wind (but perhaps more rain) may be expected; and the harder, more “greasy,” rolled, tufted, or rugged, the stronger the coming wind will prove. Also, a bright yellow sky at sunset presages wind; a pale yellow, wet; and a greenish, sickly-looking color, wind and rain. Thus by the prevalence of red, yellow, or other tints, the coming weather may be foretold very nearly; indeed, if aided by instruments, almost exactly. Small, inky-looking clouds foretell rain; light scud-clouds, driving across heavy masses, show wind and rain; but if alone, may indicate wind only.

High upper clouds crossing the sun, moon, or stars in a direction different from that of the lower clouds, or the wind then felt below, portend a change of wind toward their direction. After fine clear weather, the first signs in the sky of a coming change are usually light streaks, curls, wisps, or mottled patches of white distant clouds, which increase, and are followed by an over-casting of murky vapor that grows into cloudiness. This appearance, more or less oily or watery, as wind or rain will prevail, is an infallible sign. Usually, the higher or more distant such clouds seem to be, the more gradual but general the coming change of weather will prove.

Light, delicate, quiet tints of colors, with soft undefined forms of clouds, indicate and accompany fine weather; but gaudy or unusual hues, with hard, definitely outlined clouds, foretell rain, and probably strong wind.

Misty clouds forming or hanging on heights show wind and rain coming, if they remain, increase, or descend; if they rise or disperse, the weather will improve, or become fine.

When sea-birds fly out early, or far to seaward, moderate wind and fair weather may be expected; when they hang about the land, or over it, sometimes flying inland, expect a strong wind with stormy weather. As many creatures besides birds are affected by the approach of rain or wind, such indication should not be slighted by any observer who wishes to foresee weather, or compare its variations. There are other signs of a coming change in the weather known less generally than may be desirable, and therefore worth notice; such as when birds of long flight—rooks, swallows, or others—hang about home, and fly up and down, or low, rain or wind may be expected. Also when animals seek sheltered places instead of spreading over their usual range; when pigs carry straws to their styes; when smoke from chimneys does not ascend readily, (or straight upward during calm,) an unfavorable change is probable.

Dew is an indication of fine weather; so is fog. Neither of these two formations occur under an overcast sky, or when there is much wind. Occasionally one sees fog rolled away as it were by wind, but seldom or never actually formed while it is blowing.

Remarkable clearness of atmosphere near the horizon; distant objects, such as hills, unusually visible, or raised (by refraction;) and what is termed “a good hearing day,” may be mentioned among signs of wet, if not wind, to be expected. More than usual twinkling of the stars, indistinctness, or apparent multiplication of the moon’s horns, halos, “wind dogs,” and the rainbow, are more or less significant of increasing wind, if not approaching rain with or without wind.—[Abridged from Admiral Fitzroy’s “Observations on Weather,” in the Barometer Manual, published by the London Board of Trade.]

The Asteroids.

About one hundred little planets, called Asteroids, have been discovered between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter. Many of them are so small that it might seem inappropriate to call them planets, planetoids, or worlds. But any solid body having an orbit, though no larger than a cannon-ball, is entitled to rank as a world. A vast number of these may exist between all the inter-orbital spaces in the solar system, which will never be discovered because of their littleness. Asteroidal bodies appear to be revolving around the Sun in orbits not far from that of the Earth, while others revolve around the Earth like the Moon does, being invisible satellites. The Aerolites, or falling masses of stars, are really Asteroids whose orbits cross the earth's track, or else wind spirally inward. When the Earth and one of these bodies approach each other at the intersection of their orbits the latter must rapidly and obliquely fall to the earth, representing a miniature collision of worlds.

* The Astronomical Calculations were made by Dr. S. H. Wright, of Penn Yan, N. Y.

Eclipses for 1871.

There will be four eclipses this year, as follows :

I. A partial eclipse of the Moon, January 6, in the evening, in the southern limb, being 8.316 digits at the maximum. This eclipse will be visible east of Alabama and Minnesota, and the greatest phase visible in the northeastern part of the United States. The Moon will rise eclipsed, more or less. See the annexed table :

II. An Annual Eclipse of the Sun, June 17, invisible in America.

III. A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, July 2, in the morning, visible in California and Oregon. The eclipse begins at San Francisco, and Portland, Oregon, at 4h. 16m., and the Moon sets soon after, more or less eclipsed.

IV. A Total Eclipse of the Sun, December 11, invisible in America.

Planets Brightest.

Mercury, February 13, June 13, and October 6, rising before the Sun ; also April 20, August 17, and December 12, setting soon after the Sun. Venus, August 20 and November 1, being at the latter date an early morning star. Mars, March 19, rising at about sunset. Jupiter not this year, the apposition not being reached. Saturn, June 28, rising about sunset.

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night.

At any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the Sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

ASTRONOMICAL SIGNS EXPLAINED.

♄ Mercury, ♀ Venus, ♄ Mars, ♃ Jupiter, ♄ Saturn, ♅ Uranus, ♆ Neptune, ☾ Moon, ☐ opposition, or half a circle apart, ☐ quadrature, or quarter of a circle apart, ☌ conjunction, or together, having the Right Ascension. The word near, used above, means the same, and indicates that the two bodies are then on a line running from the North Pole through both. Gr. elong., greatest elongation, or furthest distance from the sun; Stationary, when the planet is without apparent motion, and is about to move in a direction contrary to that it had last. The above table enables us to find the planets throughout the year.

Leap-Years.

It will assist the memory by observing that when a year ending with 00 is divisible by 400 without a remainder it is leap-year; and when there is a remainder the year consists of 365 days only. All other years in the century divisible by 4 are likewise LEAP-YEARS, and consequently have two letters in the Dominical Tables, the first being for January and February, and the second for the other months of the year. All years which are not leap-years begin and end with the same day of the week, and consequently each successive year commences one day later in the week, except in leap-years, when the difference is two days.

Directions for Finding the True Time.

THE Sun is on the meridian at 12 o'clock on four days only in the year. It is sometimes as much as 16½ minutes before or after twelve when its shadow strikes the noon-mark on the sun-dial. On each calendar page of this Almanac is shown the exact time when the Sun reaches the meridian, or the shadow the noon-mark; and in order to set a clock or watch correctly, it must, when it is noon by the sun-dial or noon-mark, be set at the time indicated in the Almanac. Thus, on the 25th of January, when the Sun is on the noon-mark, the watch must be set 12 minutes and 34 seconds past twelve, which will be the true time. The practice of setting time-pieces by the rising or setting of the Sun or Moon is not strictly correct, as the unevenness of the Earth's surface and intervening objects, such as hills and forests, near the points of rising and setting, occasion a deviation, in every place, from the time expressed in the Almanac, which time is adapted to a smooth, level horizon. The only means of keeping correct time is by the use of a noon-mark, or a meridian-line.

Astronomy of Ancient Dates.

ASTRONOMERS have been enabled to fix the dates of many events in ancient history by means of the natural phenomena recorded in connection with them by historians. Thus a battle between the Medes and the Lydians is proved to have been fought May 28, B. C. 585, for there was a total eclipse of the sun during its progress, and unerring calculations prove that the only eclipse total in Asia Minor at that era was on the day above named.

Organization of the M. E. Church.

THE first society (of five members) was formed by Philip Embury in his private house in New York city, in the autumn of 1766. The first church edifice was erected in John-street, on site of the present church, and dedicated October 30, 1768. The first annual conference was held in Philadelphia in 1773, and consisted of ten preachers, reporting a membership of 1,160. The first General Conference was held in Baltimore in 1784.

Comparative Progress.

By examining the official returns of the conferences for the whole century, and comparing them by decades, from 1766, we have the following table:

Year.	Traveling Preachers.	Increase of Preachers.	Members.	Increase of Members.
1766
1776	24	24	4,921	4,921
1786	117	98	20,689	15,768
1796	298	176	56,664	35,975
1806	452	159	130,570	73,906
1816	695	243	214,235	83,665
1826	1,406	711	360,500	146,565
1836	2,928	1,522	650,103	289,303
1846	3,582	654	644,229*	Dec. 5,874
1856	5,877	2,295	810,327	156,098
1866	7,576	1,699	1,032,184	231,857

* By the withdrawal and separation of southern conferences in 1844, organizing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Episcopal Church lost 1,345 traveling preachers, and 495,288 members; and yet so rapid was her growth during the decade, that at its close (two years after the separation) there was a net gain of 654 preachers, and a lack of only 5,874 members of making up the number lost.

Statistical Returns of the M. E. Church to Jan. 1, 1871.

THE present number of Annual Conferences is seventy-two. For the full list, with the boundaries of each, see Discipline.

Book Concern of the M. E. Church.

REV. THOMAS CARLTON, D.D., Book Agent at New York; REV. JOHN LANAHAN, D.D., Assistant Book Agent at New York; REV. LUKE HITCHCOCK, D.D., Book Agent at Cincinnati; REV. J. M. WALDEN, D.D., Assistant Book Agent at Cincinnati. REV. ELEAZER THOMAS, D.D., is also Assistant Book Agent in connection with the Book Concern at New York, but resides in San Francisco, and is the Book Agent for the Pacific Coast.

The Book Concern is the property of the General Conference, and subject entirely to its control. By direction of the General Conference the Book Agents "have authority to regulate the publications and all other parts of the business of the Concern, except what belongs to the editorial departments, as the state of the finances and the demands may require."

The first "Book Concern" (John Dickins, Agent) was established in Philadelphia in 1789, with a borrowed capital of $600. In 1797 the first "Book Committee" was appointed. In 1804 the Concern was removed to New York. In 1836 it was destroyed by fire (loss $250,000) but soon rebuilt. The Western Book Concern was established in Cincinnati in 1820. Branch book depositories, under the direction of the Book Agents at New York and Cincinnati, have been established at Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, and San Francisco.

The capital in 1886 (date of fire) was $281,650 74. The total present net capital (as per official exhibits made November 30, 1869) is $1,458,575, an increase of $1,176,924 26. Since 1836 the Concerns at New York and Cincinnati have paid out in dividends to the Annual Conferences, and to meet Church expenses outside of their own business, a total of $1,381,382 06. This sum, added to the increase of capital, gives a total profit in thirty-three years of $2,558,306 32, or an annual average profit of $77,524 37. All the profits of the Book Concerns are applied to Church purposes, and are appropriated in such manner as the General Conference prescribes.

The Book Agents publish over nineteen hundred different bound volumes, and the unbound and tract list embraces about one thousand, the tracts varying from two to sixty-four pages each. The books and tracts are in English, German, Welsh, Swedish, Danish, and French.

The Book Committee consists of fifteen chosen by the General Conference, namely: James Pike, of New Hampshire Conference; George W. Woodruff, of New York East Conference; C. S. Vancleve, of Newark Conference; Henry Slicer, of Baltimore Conference; Isaac S. Bingham, of Black River Conference; James Erwin, of Central New York Conference; G. W. Maltby, of Erie Conference; J. F. Kennedy, of North Ohio Conference; B. F. Rawlins, of Indiana Conference; F. A. Blades, of Detroit Conference; H. Bannister, of Wisconsin Conference; Cyrus Brooks, of Minnesota Conference; L. M. Vernon, of St. Louis Conference; J. H. Moore, of Illinois Conference; J. Rothweiler, of Central German Conference. For duties of the Book Committee, see Discipline, Part V, sec. 7.

New Methodist Publishing and Mission Buildings, New York.

THESE new and elegant buildings (an engraving of which appears on the cover) are located on the corner of Broadway and Eleventh-street, New York. They were purchased in April, 1869, by a Commission appointed for the purpose by the General Conference of 1868. The location is one of the most desirable in the city. The lot has a front on Broadway of 76 feet 7 inches; on Eleventh-street of 221 feet 9 inches; the rear, or west side, is 103 feet 3 inches. A massive edifice, five stories above the basement, with iron fronts, and of superior architectural design, covers the entire lot. The ceilings are lofty, so much so that the edifice is nearly an entire story higher than the surrounding five story buildings. The extensive area of each floor is without interior walls, the ceilings being supported by numerous iron columns. This renders it convenient to erect partitions at pleasure. The basement room extends 19 feet under Broadway, and 14 feet and 11 inches under Eleventh-street. This contains an area of 20,114 square feet; the first two floors above 15,665 square feet each, and remaining three floors 10,959 square feet each, making a total area of 84,421 square feet, a space nearly equal to two acres. The basement floor covers nearly one half acre. The building is entirely new, and constructed in the most substantial manner. The various business and editorial offices in connection with the Book and Mission Rooms at the Book Concern in New York city were transferred to the new building in August, 1869.

Besides these there are nine Vice-Presidents, twenty-seven Conference Vice-Presidents, and a Board of fifty managers. There are sixteen Standing Committees.

AIM.—The aim of the Union is to promote the cause of Sabbath-schools in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in such other spheres of Christian labor as, in the judgment of the Board of Managers, may have claims upon its charity; and thus, by a careful training of those who may be under its influence, seek to promote the glory of God and happiness of mankind.

DEPARTMENTS.—1. The Department of Benevolence, through which the Union collects and appropriates moneys for the aid of new and needy schools. 2. The Department of Publication. 3. The Department of Statistics and other Sunday-school information. 4. The Normal Department.

THE STATISTICS FOR 1869.—Schools, 16,193; officers and teachers, 182,859; scholars, 1,170,219; collected for the Sunday-School Union, $20,670 82. This popular children's paper has a circulation of about 350,000 in the summer season. It averages over 300,000, or 6,300,000 copies per annum. This is believed to be a larger circulation than that of any other child's paper in the world. Fourteen years ago it had a list of only 115,000, or nineteen per cent. of our Sunday-scholars; now its patrons number thirty-two and one half per cent. of our Sunday scholars.

Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Office, 805 Broadway, New York. BISHOP MORRIS, President; the remaining Bishops and S. A. PURDY, M.D., and HIRAM MERRITT, Vice-Presidents; DANIEL WISE, D.D., Corresponding Secretary, and Editor of Good News and Tract Publications; DANIEL DENHAM, Jun., Recording Secretary; JOHN LANAHAN, D.D., Treasurer.

OBJECTS.—The object of this Society is the diffusion of religious knowledge by circulating the publications of the Methodist Episcopal Church at home and abroad.

ITS AGENCIES.—Its Agencies are: 1. Our traveling Preachers and Missionaries. 2. Tract Committees, appointed by the Quarterly Meeting Conferences throughout the Connection. The former are its collecting agents in our self-supporting Churches; the latter, guided by the former, are its distributing agents. Faithfulness on the part of all the Pastors in taking collections would give the Society ample funds without expense for collection; energetic work on the part of the Tract Committees would put into circulation one hundred million pages of tracts and a quarter of a million copies of the Good News annually.

ITS PLAN OF OPERATIONS.—1. To our foreign missions it makes such appropriations from time to time as the work requires and its means permit. 2. To every domestic mission it freely offers five dollars' worth of Good News or tracts. 3. To every self-supporting Church it offers all the Good News and tracts it will circulate on the pledge of a collection more than sufficient to cover the cost of the grant applied for. There is no plan of operations in any other Church so generous as this. It removes the last impediment to tract circulation by the Churches. To facilitate its work it has Committees on Applications for Aid at Cincinnati, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, San Francisco, Portland, Oregon, and Philadelphia.

ITS WORK IN 1869.—Its receipts were $15,417 76; its expenditures, $20,281 33. It made grants of Good News and tracts to 1,525 appointments in 69 Conferences, exclusive of Mission Conferences in foreign lands.

During the current year it has granted nearly $4,000 to the foreign work, besides millions of pages of tracts and hundreds of thousands of the Good News to applicants at home. The circulation of the Good News is now about sixty thousand. Its tract publications are numerous, good, and constantly increasing.

Church Extension Society of the M. E. Church.

Office, 1018 Arch-street, Philadelphia. BISHOP SIMPSON, D.D., President; ALPHA J. KYNETT, D.D., Corresponding Secretary; A. H. DE HAVEN, Esq., Treasurer; REV. CHARLES C. McCABE, Agent. For list of GENERAL COMMITTEE see Methodist Discipline, 1863, page 339.

ORGANIZATION.—The Church Extension Society was organized by direction of the General Conference of 1864, and was incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, March 18, 1865. On recommendation of the Board of Managers, the Constitution was revised and more closely identified with the economy of the Church by the General Conference of 1868, which also inserted an important section in the Discipline of the Church. (See edition of 1868, page 247.)

RECEIPTS.—The total receipts and disbursements from the organization of the Society up to November 1, 1870 were about $300,000. With this amount nearly 500 Churches in various parts of the country, from Maine to California, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, have been aided by donations and loans. The income of the Society is regularly increasing, and great good results from its work.

INCOME.—It derives its revenue from two sources: 1. From the annual collections, creating the General Fund. The General Committee at the annual meeting in November of each year, together with the Bishops and Board of Managers, estimate the amount needed for Church Extension purposes, and distribute the amount for collection among the several Annual Conferences. This is in turn, in each Conference, distributed among the several districts and pastoral charges.* It is by the Discipline made the duty of each Pastor to "preach a sermon on the subject in each congregation once in every year, and solicit contributions from each in aid of the Church Extension Society." It is expected that each congregation will contribute the amount that has been indicated, and that the Parent Society will thereby receive the aggregate amount asked for by the General Committee, Bishops, and Managers. The Parent Board keeps an accurate account with each Conference, and each Conference Board with every pastoral charge. 2. Special donations and bequests, creating a

"PERPETUAL LOAN FUND."—The resolutions of the Board providing for this fund earnestly invite special contributions from all our people, and state that "said fund may be loaned to any Church or Society without interest, in small sums, in no case exceeding $5,000, or with interest, as occasion may require, and the Board shall from time to time determine, in aid of the objects of the Church Extension Society; that sums of $5,000 and upward, contributed by any one person, Church, or Conference, shall be named by the contributor, and shall constitute a separate Loan Fund, and the Corresponding Secretary shall report annually the investment thereof, and the work accomplished thereby."

In this connection, provisions are made that the donors who may need or desire the income from their gifts during their life-time shall receive an annuity equal to a reasonable interest on the amount they may contribute to the "Loan Fund."

Church Accommodations in the United States.

At the date of this writing the United States Census for 1870 has not been completed, and the tabular summaries of the religious statistics will not be ready for several months. For the convenience of comparison with them when issued, as well as for the interesting facts which they furnish for the date in which they were compiled, the following summaries of the Census for 1860 are given:

In 1860, with a population of 31,443,321, there were in this country 54,009 churches, distributed as follows, [The churches called "Union" were, as a rule, attended by united congregations of Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians]:

Methodist.....	19,883	Universalist.....	664
Baptist.....	12,150	Dutch Reformed.....	440
Presbyterian.....	6,406	Unitarian.....	264
Roman Catholic.....	2,550	Jewish.....	77
Congregational.....	2,234	Adventist.....	70
Episcopal.....	2,145	Swedenborgian.....	58
Lutheran.....	2,128	Moravian.....	49
Christian.....	2,068	Spiritualist.....	17
Union.....	1,866	Shaker.....	12
Friends.....	726	Minor Sects.....	26
German Reformed.....	676	Total.....	54,009

These churches cost $171,398,532, and could give seats to 19,126,751 persons. The population in the United States over fifteen years old was 18,709,305. The average cost of each church was $8,173.

There was on an average one church for every 582 persons of all ages, or for about every 320 persons over fifteen years of age.

The average capacity of these churches was 354 persons.

The evangelical denominations—that is, all in the above table except the Roman Catholic, Christian, Universalist, Unitarian, Jewish, Adventist, Spiritualist, Shaker, and minor sects—had 48,251 churches, or one evangelical church for every 387 persons in the country over fifteen years of age.

The average capacity of these evangelical churches is 343 persons.

A comparison between the census of 1850 and 1860 shows that while the Methodist, Episcopal, Romanist, Union, Lutheran, Christian, German Reformed, Jewish, and Swedenborgian churches increased during the decade beyond the ratio of increase in the population, the churches of the Baptists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Dutch Reformed, Unitarians, Friends, Universalists, Moravians, and the minor sects, fall below that ratio.

In Great Britain, to a population of 24,363,000 persons there are 36,200 ministers of all denominations, with 34,700 churches and chapels. This gives an average of one minister to every 673 of the population.

Circulars asking for information were sent to all our schools and colleges, but several of them have failed to reply. The tables are correct, however, for the years 1869-70. In addition to the institutions here enumerated, there are others more or less under the control of our Church.

We call attention to a standing resolution of the General Conference:

Resolved, That we recommend our people to observe the fourth Thursday of February of each year as a day of prayer for our colleges and other institutions of learning, and, where practicable in a public manner.

Supervision of the Foreign Mission Work.

THE Bishops have made the following apportionment of the Missions under their charge. Bishop Janes is to have supervision of the Missions in India and China, Bishop Scott those of Liberia, Bishop Simpson those of Bulgaria, Bishop Ames those of Utah and Arizona, and Bishop Clark those of South America and Montana. The Home Missions connected with the Annual Conferences have the same Episcopal supervision as the other Conference charges, and hence will be severally under the supervision of the Bishop presiding in those Conferences.

Membership of the M. E. Church by Conferences.

THE total lay-membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, (see page 21,) as officially reported, in 1870, is 1,367,134.* The deaths reported for the year were 14,244. Notwithstanding these losses, and the many others arising from removals, etc., there is a net increase over the membership reported in 1869 of 68,196. The following table will show the totals by Conferences, and net increase returned in each:

THE total number of baptisms during the year was 116,934. Of these there were of adults 66,481, an increase of 5,334; and of children 50,453, an increase of 2,944. The following table shows the number of infant baptisms in the Methodist Episcopal Church since 1865, and including those of that year:

In 1865 there were infant baptisms.....	32,891

“ 1869 “ “	47,509
“ 1870 “ “	50,453

The total for six years is 255,254, much the largest number ever reported in that number of years.

* These figures are exclusive of those for the missions in China, Bulgaria, and South America, the official returns from which (for 1870) have not yet been received.

Churches and Parsonages of the M. E. Church.

THE net increase in the number of churches (houses of worship) for 1870 is 1,325, the largest ever reported in a single year. It gives an average of over four new churches for every working day in the year, a rate of progress unparalleled in the history of the Churches. The annual growth of the Church in the items of church edifices for the last five years is shown in the following table of summaries, compiled from the General Minutes of those years :

	Churches.	Increase.	Value.	Increase.
In 1866.....	10,462	420	$29,595,004	$2,543,502

Sunday-Schools of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

THE whole number of schools reported for 1870 is 16,912, being an increase over 1869 of 513. There are 189,412 officers and teachers, being an increase of 4,816. The scholars number 1,221,393, an increase of 41,409. The number of volumes reported in the Sunday-school libraries is 2,759,122. The total number of scholars, teachers, and officers is 1,410,805. Estimating the number of officers not engaged in teaching at 53,702, we have left 135,710 as the number of actual teachers. Using this number as a divisor, with the number of pupils as the dividend, we have a quotient of 9, the average number of pupils for each class. This shows a good average working force throughout the Sunday-schools of the Church.

The First Church Edifice in New England.

THE first "Meeting-House" erected by the Pilgrim Fathers was in 1648, at the public expense. It stood on the northern side of the "Town Square," Plymouth, Mass., at the foot of Fort Hill. The first sermon of the Plymouth colony was preached by Robert Cushman, not an ordained minister. This was in the summer of 1621. As seen in our engraving, the church answered the purposes of a fort. In those days the men came to church each with his gun for fear of the savages. Armed sentinels were stationed outside during the service. There were two public services on the Sabbath, morning and afternoon, each sermon being one hour long, measured by an hour-glass. [See Views of Plymouth Rock, published at Methodist Book Rooms, New York.]

The Sunny Side.

SOME persons take special pains to fish up something bad. Suspicion is their faith. They seem to regard others with a distrustful feeling, and hence, on every possible occasion, charge themselves with the office of a detective. They look after spots on the sun instead of enjoying its light. They look on the dark instead of the sunny side. Such persons are generally very unhappy themselves, and make others unhappy also. If they are in a position of influence, whether in Church or State, they do a world of harm by their suspicious pursuits.

One autumn evening, a lad and his mother were watching the glorious sunset behind a distant hill. The sun itself sank slowly down, till it was quite hidden behind the hill; but a flood of radiance poured out on either side, till the hill looked as if it were on fire. "I wish we could get to the sunny side of that hill, mamma," said James, "how dark and gloomy it seems now, where we stand." The sunny side! Don't forget the sunny side.

Love in the Family.

LITTLE boys and girls, have you any brothers or sisters? If you have, love them a great deal, for you do not know how long you may be together. And even if you should live to be old men and women, do you not think it would make you happy to remember that when you were children you never quarreled? And if you have lost a darling little brother, or a gentle, loving sister, there is nothing that makes you feel so sad as that sometimes you were unkind and angry.

We heard of a brother and sister who loved one another very much. He was the older, and was taken ill and died. They laid him out on his own little bed, and his mother took his little sister to look at him. I cannot tell what she felt and thought as she stood and looked at his sweet face, as white and cold as marble, but she wept very much. At last she said, "Mother, may I take hold of his hand?"

After a little time she placed it in hers, when the dear child, lifting it up and stroking it gently, said, "This little hand never struck me!"

O how pleased she was to think of that! "Little children, love one another."

Sweet Intimacy with Jesus.

It is recorded of Bengel that he was much given to intercessory prayer, and that he had power with God and prevailed. One who was anxious to find out his secret watched him, unobserved, in his hours of retirement. "Now," said he, "I shall hear Bengel pray." The aged saint sat long before his open Bible, and while perusing its sacred pages and comparing Scripture with Scripture the hour of midnight sounded. Nature seemed at length exhausted. He folded his arms over the open Word, and, looking up, gave utterance to these words: "Lord Jesus, thou knowest me; we are on the same old terms." A few moments more, and Bengel's weary frame was resting in a sweet slumber.

The New Year.

Silent and white,
Thro' the dim night,
Fell the soft snow,
Now fast, now slow,
Making the posts
Like sheeted ghosts;
Robbing the woods
In finer goods
Than ever were spun by mortal skill,
And bleached on the sunny side of the hill,
Where fringes are woven by weavers; where
The warp is mist, and the woof is air.
The world is dressed, like a bride, in white,
Although the poor old year died last night.

Drop not a tear
On the cold bier
Of the brave year
Whose corse is here.
His work is done,
His battles won,
And he will be Named with the free
Through future time
For deeds sublime.
We welcome here
The new-born year.
The snow that falls
From the gray walls
Of the thick clouds
Is not for shrouds
For the days fled,
Or the year's dead.
'Tis the white fleece,
Emblem of peace,
Sent down to cheer
The soft young year.
May no red vein
Make a red stain
On the robe white
Woven last night.
So ring the soft
Sweet bells aloft!
Ring the true chime
Of the good time!
Ring loud and clear
For this New Year!

Heaven in the Heart.

LITTLE boy was walking in the fields with his mother one day. He looked up to the sky and said: "O, mother, heaven is so far off I'm afraid I shall never get there."

"My dear," said his mother, "heaven must come to us before we can go to it."

Wise mother! Jesus in the heart is heaven below. To die and go to Jesus is heaven above.

How the Bible Was Made.

LONG time was required to make the Bible. When men make books it does not generally take them very long, though sometimes it does. Dr. Allibone has been engaged for sixteen years on his great work, in two large volumes, called the "Dictionary of Authors." An English writer named Gibbon was twenty years in writing a history of "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." Adam Clarke spent twenty-six years in writing his commentary; Bancroft thirty-five years on his history, and Noah Webster thirty-six on his dictionary.

But what are these to the time that was occupied in making the Bible! We read that God was engaged six days in making the world. But in making the Bible he was engaged fifteen hundred years! Yes, from the time when Moses wrote Genesis, the first book in the Bible, till St. John wrote the Revelation, the last book in the Bible, all those long years had passed away. That was wonderful.

And then it is wonderful how many men were employed to write the Bible! There were Moses, and Samuel, and David, and Solomon, and Ezra, and Isaiah, and all the prophets in the Old Testament. And in the New Testament, Matthew, and Mark, and Luke, and John, and Paul, and Peter, and others. There were more than thirty persons altogether employed in this work. And it is not only the number of writers, but the great difference between them, that makes it wonderful. Some of them were learned men, as Moses and Paul; and some were unlearned, as Andrew and Peter. Some of them were kings, as David and Solomon. Some were princes, as Daniel. Some were shepherds, some farmers, some fishermen, and some tent-makers. And yet they all agree in what they write. How wonderful this is! How can we explain it? There is one thing about the Bible that explains it. It is this: God did all the thinking in the Bible. The thoughts in the Bible are all God's thoughts. Those thirty men only did the writing. They wrote down just what God told them. This is the reason why they agree.

The time it took to make the Bible is wonderful. So the many men who helped to make it is wonderful. And it is wonderful, too, how many different parts or pieces it is made of. In the Old Testament there are thirty-nine different books. In the New Testament there are twenty-seven. Thirty-nine and twenty-seven make how many? Sixty-six. The Bible is a book of sixty-six different tracts, all bound up together. And yet they are not thrown together helter-skelter, without any order. No; but they fit into each other exactly. They have a beginning, a middle, and an end. The Bible is like a beautiful piece of mosaic work. Did you ever see a piece of this kind of work? It doesn't mean work done by Moses. This word mosaic comes from a Greek word which means elegant, or polished work. A mosaic work is a figure, or picture, of something made, not by using paints of different colors, but by putting together a great many little pieces of stone, or glass, of different colors. These works are very curious, and look very beautiful. The different colored pieces of stone or glass all unite together and make the picture. And just in the same way the different books, or pieces, out of which the Bible is made, all unite together to make one beautiful picture of Jesus and his salvation.

The Family Altar.

I WANT to say a word to Christian wives and mothers. If there is to be a family altar under your roof tree; if there is to be family worship around that altar, you, wives and mothers, are the only ones who can ordain the practice. There can be no worship in the household unless it be the will of the wife to secure a little space for quiet, unless it be the will of the wife that children and domestics shall be quiet a little while. The father cannot do that thing; it is the mother who is to secure family worship. O! if you wives and mothers knew how vital to the happiness of your households and your own happiness, and, perhaps, to the salvation of yourselves and children, this matter of daily family worship is, you would not forget it.—BISHOP E. R. AMES.

Out of Doors in Winter.

LET Winter come! Let polar spirits sweep
The dark'ning world and tempest-troubled deep!
Yet shall the smile of social love repay
With mental light the melancholy day.

The Test of Love.

It was the sweet twilight hour, and Emma sought her teacher's room, as was her wont, to talk over the events of the day, and get words of counsel and cheer. It was a beautiful story she had to tell that evening.

"I've been with Jesus all day to-day."

"Then you love him still?" inquired her teacher.

"Yes, indeed; I do love him." And none could doubt her words, for the new-born love in her heart was shining in every feature of her face.

"But have you not always loved him?"

"I didn't know much about him till I came here; but when I heard you tell how much he loved us, and how he died for us, I couldn't help loving him."

"Then you have loved him ever since you have been here?"

"Yes; ever since you told me about him."

"Have you been a Christian ever since you have been here?"

With a look of mingled grief and pain she replied, "O no; I couldn't help loving him, because he had loved me so much, but then I didn't want to mind him."

"Do you want to mind him now, dear Emma?"

"Yes; I love to mind him now, and do every thing just as he says."

There was no need of further question. Child as she was, she had learned the difference between the love of the natural heart and the love of the new heart—a difference which many older Christians seem not to have learned. And yet the Master has said to all his disciples, "If ye love me, keep my commandments."

Sea-Shells.

Down in the deep sea these beautiful shells were born. Each one has been the home of some living thing. The animal itself has gone. Its house remains. Put a shell to your ear. The moan of the sea seems to sound from its innermost chamber. "Isn't it the shell crying to go back to the sea again?" asked little Jennie. "No," said Willie, "it's the old echo of the ocean that the shell cannot forget." "No," said Mary, "it's the rushing of your own blood through your veins." "O no," said the oldest boy in the group, "it's not the moan of the sea, nor the echo, nor the homesick cry of the shell, nor the blood in your own veins." "Well, what is it?" asked all the rest. Little reader, find out what it is that causes the murmuring of the sea-shells. [Picture Paper for October, 1870. These papers are issued monthly at the Methodist Book Concern, 805 Broadway, New York, and are designed for the supply of infant classes.]

True Words.

WITH smoking axle hot with speed, with steeds of fire and steam,
 Wide-waked To-day leaves Yesterday behind him like a dream.
 Still from the hurrying train of Life fly backward, far and fast,
 The milestones of the fathers, the landmarks of the past.
 But human hearts remain unchanged; the sorrow and the sin,
 The loves and hopes and fears of old, are to our own akin:
 And if, in tales our fathers told, in songs our mothers sung,
 Tradition wears a snowy beard, Romance is always young.

 Something You Can Do.

IF you cannot speak like angels,
 If you cannot preach like Paul,
 You can tell the love of Jesus,
 You can say he died for all.
 If you cannot rouse the wicked
 With the Judgment's dread alarms,
 You can lead the little children
 To the Saviour's waiting arms.
 Let none hear you idly saying
 There is nothing I can do,
 While the sons of men are dying,
 And the Master calls for you.
 Take the task he gives you gladly,
 Let his work your pleasure be;
 Answer quickly when he calleth,
 Here am I, send me, send me.

 The Preacher.

HE took a shaft both strong and straight,
 A shaft he had polished with labor great.
 He winged it with sweet eloquence,
 With learning and with subtle sense.
 Boldly he drew, and he aimed with care,
 But it wounded only the idle air.
 A second he took, both straight and strong,
 Winged with a passionate sense of wrong.
 He drew it stoutly, and aimed it true;
 The mark he aimed at was plain to view.
 Swift it fled, yet it lighted wide,
 For it touched on a rock, and it swerved aside.
 He reached his hand, and took from above
 A slender arrow barbed with love.
 He aimed it with but little art,
 Yet it touched and wounded a human heart.
 His last, his lightest, was winged with prayer,
 And he shot it forth through the yielding air.
 No careful aim the preacher took,
 For he turned to heaven his upward look;
 Yet it pierced a heart both hard and proud,
 The hardest heart in all the crowd.

Life on the Ocean—Sublime Faith.

NEARLY three years ago a noble steamship was sinking with hundreds of people on board. Only one boat-load was saved. As a man was leaping into the tossing boat, a girl who could not be taken into the boat, and who knew that she would soon be swallowed up in the deep, deep sea, handed him a note, saying :

“Give this to my mother.”

The man was saved. The girl, with hundreds of other persons, was drowned. The mother received the note. What do you think the little girl had written in it? Here are her words :

“Dear mother, you must not grieve for me. I am going to Jesus.”

What faith and courage she must have had to write that note!

She was going to Jesus through the stormy waves of the angry sea, yet she was not afraid. That's the kind of faith you need, my reader. And Jesus will give it you if you ask him.

First Things.

THE first printing was done April 14, 1414.

Gunpowder was first used December 23, 1313.

The first trial by jury took place May 14, A. D. 970.

Christmas was first celebrated December 25, A. D. 93.

Printing was first brought into England March 25, 1417.

The first mariner's compass was made November 21, 1302.

Steam navigation was first successfully applied February 11, 1809.

The first Total Abstinence Society was organized February 11, 1809.

The first daily newspaper printed in Virginia was in 1780, and the subscription price was fifty dollars per annum.

The first religious newspaper issued was the Herald of Gospel Liberty, which was published by Elias Smith, in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1808.

The earliest reference to music we have is in Genesis iv, 21, where Jubal, who lived before the deluge, is mentioned as the "father of all such as handle the harp and organ."

The first debate in the United States House of Representatives was on the subject of a tariff. In debate, one of the members from South Carolina favored a protective duty on hemp.

Watches were made in Nuremberg, Bavaria, in the beginning of the sixteenth century, by Peter Hele. The first record of watch-making is found in the works of Johannes Coccianes, who, in 1511, wrote the following: "Ingenious things are just now being invented: for Peter Hele, as yet but a young man, hath made works which even the most learned mathematicians admire; for he fabricates small horologes of iron filled with many wheels, which whithersoever they are turned, and without any weights, both show and strike forty hours, whether they be carried in the bosom or pocket." It took a year to make one, and a plain one would cost about $1,500.

Population of the Globe.

THERE are on the globe 1,288,000,000 souls, of which 360,000,000 are of the Caucasian race, 552,000,000 are of the Mongol race, 190,000,000 are of the Ethiopian race, 176,000,000 are of the Malay race, and 1,000,000 are of the Indo-American race.

There are 3,642 languages spoken, and 1,000 different religions.

The yearly mortality of the globe is 33,333,333 persons. This is at the rate of 91,554 per day, 3,730 per hour, 62 per minute. So each pulsation of the heart marks the decease of some human creature.

The average of human life is 33 years.

One fourth of the population dies at or before the age of seven years.

One half at or before seventeen years.

Among 10,000 persons one arrives at the age of 100 years; one in 500 attains the age of 90; and one in 100 lives to the age of 60.

Married men live longer than single ones.

In 1,000 persons 95 marry, and more marriages occur in June and December than in any other month in the year.

One eighth of the whole population is military.

Professions exercise a great influence on longevity. In 1,000 individuals who arrive at the age of 70 years, 43 are priests, orators, or public speakers; 30 are agriculturists, 33 are workmen, 32 are soldiers or military employees, 29 advocates or engineers, 27 professors, and 24 doctors. Those who devote their lives to the prolongation of others die the soonest.

There are 336,000,000 Christians, 5,000,000 Israelites, 60,000,000 Asiatic religionists, 190,000,000 Mohammedans, and 300,000,000 Pagans.

In the Christian Churches, 170,000,000 profess the Roman Catholic faith, 75,000,000 profess the Greek, and 80,000,000 profess the Protestant.

The population of the Indian tribes in the United States is 293,034. Of these the whole number reached by Protestant missionaries is 61,138, leaving 231,097 not thus reached. The population of the tribes where the Roman Catholics are laboring is about 17,000.

Jeddo, the capital of Japan, is without exception the largest and most populous city in the world. It contains the vast number of 1,000,000 dwellings, and 5,000,000 human souls. Peking, China, contains a population of about 2,000,000.

COLORED POPULATION.—In 1860, the total colored population in the United States (not including Indians) was 4,441,730. Of these there were Free Colored, 487,970; Slaves, 3,953,760. A comparison of the census of 1860 and 1870 in regard to the colored race shows the following results. Returns from other States have not been made at date:

	1860.	1870.		1860.	1870.
Georgia, 95 counties.....	330,829	393,165	Virginia, 52 counties.....	272,086	258,052

SOUTHERN STATES.—The census returns show that notwithstanding the recent war, all the seceding and Border States have an actual increase of population since 1860. In some cases the increase is small, being about 2,000 in Louisiana, and 32,000 in South Carolina; but in others it is very considerable, as in Texas, where the population is 244,000 greater than in 1860, and in Tennessee, where it is 179,000 greater.

INDIAN POPULATION IN THE UNITED STATES FOR 1870.—The total Indian population (including that of Alaska) was 380,629. Total number of suitable age to receive instruction in schools, 95,000. Schools in operation 153, with 194 teachers and 6,904 scholars. Congress, in 1870, appropriated for their support $246,418 90. To the above amount add the expenditures by religious bodies, $16,585 56, and by tribes and individual Indians, $26,022 92, making a total for the current year of $289,027 38. Under treaty stipulations the liabilities for educational purposes are estimated at $135,951 56. The total liabilities for this purpose are $663,400 02, while the School and Orphans' Funds, held in trust by the United States, amount to $1,441,420 69, making the total liabilities $2,104,820 71. The Indian Bureau states that since 1806 above eight million dollars have been appropriated for Indian education. The amount now expended is as one dollar in ten of all appropriations for the civilization and relief of Indians.

United States House of Representatives.

THE Forty-second Congress will open March 4, 1871, and will be composed of 243 Representatives. At this writing (December 1, 1870) all the States except six—California, Georgia, Mississippi, Connecticut, New Hampshire, and Texas—have held their Congressional elections, electing 135 republicans and 82 democrats—a total of 217. The number of Congressional representatives from each State is given on page 51. The pay of the members and of Senators is $5,000 per year, and mileage, or traveling expenses. The names are omitted here because the list is incomplete. Of the number already elected, five are colored men. Each Congress elects its own speaker (chairman) and other officers.

United States Copyright Law.

UNDER the new copyright law, which went into effect on July 8, 1870, a printed copy of the title of the book, map, chart, or whatever the work to be copyrighted may be, or a description of any design for a work of the fine arts, must be sent by mail to the Librarian of Congress. It must be done previous to the publication, and one dollar must be inclosed for fees, fifty cents of which is for recording the title of the book or other article, and fifty cents for the certificate of copyright which is returned. Within ten days after the publication of the article copyrighted, two complete copies of the best edition must be mailed to the Librarian of Congress. Authors can reserve the right to translate or dramatize their works by giving notice below the imprint or copyright entry. Each copyright secures exclusive ownership in a publication for twenty-eight years, and at the end of that time a renewal may be obtained for fourteen additional years, making forty-two years in all that an author, his heirs, and assignees may reap the fruits of his labor. The title and book pass free of postage. The time when a copyrighted article shall be published is unlimited, except by the discretion of the publisher.

Public School Expenditure in the United States.

THE total income and expenditure for public school purposes for thirty States (not including Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia) is nearly $61,000,000. Twenty-two States have 5,695,916 children enrolled in the schools, but the average attendance is only 3,377,069. At the same time there is a total average absence in these twenty-two States from the public schools of the enormous number of 4,843,565 children of school age.

United States Postage Rates.

RATES IN THE UNITED STATES.

LETTERS.—The standard single-rate weight is half an ounce avoirdupois. For each half-ounce or fraction, 3 cents; drop-letters for local delivery, single rate, 2 cents; where there is no local delivery, 1 cent. Advertised letters are charged 1 cent extra. These postages must be prepaid by stamps. Letters are to be forwarded without additional charge if the person to whom they are addressed has changed his residence, and has left proper directions to such effect. Letters uncalled for will be returned to the sender if a request to that effect be written upon the envelope. Properly certified letters of soldiers and sailors will be forwarded without prepayment. No extra charge is made for the service of carriers taking letters to or from post-offices.

NEWSPAPERS.—The standard single rate is four ounces avoirdupois. Daily (seven times a week) 35 cents per quarter; daily (six times a week) 30 cents; tri-weekly, 15 cents; semi-weekly, 10 cents; weekly, 5 cents. These rates must be prepaid quarterly or yearly; for full security they must be paid at the office where the paper is received. One copy of a weekly newspaper may be sent free by the publisher to each subscriber who resides in the county where the paper is published.

PERIODICALS.—The standard single rate is four ounces avoirdupois. Semi-monthly, 6 cents per quarter; monthly, 3 cents; quarterly, 1 cent.

TRANSIENT PRINTED MATTER.—Books, for each single rate of 4 oz. avoirdupois, 4 cents; circulars, not exceeding three in one envelope constituting a single rate, 2 cents. Miscellaneous mailable matter (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet-music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, photographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, and scions) in one package to one address, for each single rate of 4 oz. avoirdupois, 2 cents. [By a decision of the Post-Office Department, manuscripts and proofs passing between authors and editors of magazines and newspapers are not regarded as passing "between authors and publishers," and must pay letter postage.] Prepayment by stamps is required for all postage on transient printed matter. The maximum weight of any package of printed or miscellaneous matter is 4 lbs. avoirdupois.

REGISTRATION.—Letters may be registered on payment of a fee of twenty cents, but the government takes no responsibility for safe carriage or compensation in case of loss.

MONEY ORDERS.—All principal Post-Offices now receive small sums of money and issue drafts for the same upon other Post-Offices, subject to the following charges and regulations: On orders not exceeding $20, 10 cents; not exceeding $30, 15 cents; not exceeding $40, 20 cents; not exceeding $50, 25 cents. No fractions of cents to be introduced in an order. United States Treasury-notes or National Bank-notes only received or paid. The Order is only payable at the office upon which it is drawn. The Order should be collected within one year from its date. After once paying an Order, by whomsoever presented, the Department will be liable to no further claim.

All printed matter to pass through the mails at less than letter rates should be so wrapped that it can be examined without destroying the wrapper.

A Postmaster is obliged to receive for delivery, free, the weekly local papers, or papers published in the same town with his office. The penalty for any person opening a letter not addressed to himself varies from a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars to imprisonment for ten years. (Sec. 309, Laws 1866.) One half the pecuniary penalty shall be for the use of the informer. (Sec. 318, Laws 1866.) The complaint should be made before a United States Judge, or Commissioner, if possible; if not possible, then before a Justice of the Peace. (Sec. 485, Reg. 1866.)

BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND BRITISH NORTH AMERICAN PROVINCES.

LETTERS.—The standard single rate is $\frac{1}{4}$ oz. avoirdupois. To or from the Dominion of Canada, irrespective of distance, if prepaid, 6 cents; otherwise, 10 cents. To and from other British North American Provinces, for a distance of not over 3,000 miles, 10 cents; for any distance over 3,000 miles, 15 cents. Prepayment is optional except to Newfoundland, to which prepayment is compulsory.

PRINTED MATTER.—The regular United States rate must be prepaid, but these only pay for transportation to the boundary line; a second fee is charged on delivery by the Provincial Post-Office.

RATES BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND OTHER FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The standard single rate to Great Britain is $\frac{1}{4}$ oz. avoirdupois; to France and the Continent (by French mails) it is 15 grammes, or $\frac{1}{4}$ oz. avoirdupois.

The asterisk (*) indicates that prepayment of the rate to which it is affixed is optional; in all other cases prepayment is required.

These men are stationed in forty-two States and Territories at 203 organized military posts. By provisions of Congress the Army is to be reduced by July 1, 1871, to 30,000 men.

Navy of the United States.

DECEMBER 1, 1870, the Navy consisted of 181 vessels, calculated to carry 1,309 guns. Of these 52 are of the iron-clad or monitor class; of the remainder 30 are sailing vessels without any steam-power, and the balance steamers or sailing vessels with auxiliary steam-power. Of these, 45 vessels, including store and hospital ships, mounting 465 guns, were attached to the several fleets, and four others, mounting seven guns, were in commission for special service. These, with six receiving ships at the various stations, and the tugs and small vessels on duty at the navy-yards and stations, made up the naval force then in commission. Ten others, mounting 148 guns, were ready for sea.

The pension roll, November 1, 1870, was as follows: 1,368 invalids, annually receiving $123,014; 1,642 widows and children, annually receiving $266,032; total 3,010, receiving a total of $389,046.

R. Taylor, Sands, Steadman, Alden, A. Taylor, Bissell, Goldsborough, Greene, Green, Case, Pennock, Worden, Emmons, Middleton, Scott, M'Dougall, and Almy. Besides these, there are Twenty six Retired Commodores.

NEW POSTAGE-STAMP DESIGNS.—One cent, Franklin, after Rubricht; two cents, Jackson, after Powers; three cents, Washington, after Houdon; six cents, Lincoln, after Volk; seven cents, Edwin M. Stantor; ten cents, Jefferson, after Powers's statue; twelve cents, Clay, after Hart; fifteen cents, Webster, after Clevenger; twenty-four cents, Scott, after Coffee; thirty cents, Hamilton, after Cerrachi; ninety cents, Commodore O. H. Perry, profile bust, after Wolcutt's statue.

THE NEWSPAPER PRESS.—A good idea of the general spread of intelligence among a people may be gathered from the circulation of the newspaper press, unquestionably one of the great agents of modern civilization. There are nearly 6,000 newspapers in the United States, or one to every 7,000 of the inhabitants; 1,260 in Great Britain and 1,640 in France, or 1 to every 23,000; 700 in Prussia, or 1 to every 26,000; 506 in Italy, or 1 to every 44,000; 365 in Austria, or one to every 105,000; 300 in Switzerland, or 1 to every 8,000; 275 in Belgium, or 1 to every 15,000; 225 in Holland, or 1 to every 16,000; 200 in Russia, or only 1 to every 330,000; 200 in Spain, or 1 to every 75,000; 150 in Norway and Sweden, or 1 to every 36,000; 100 in Denmark, or 1 to every 20,000; and 100 in Turkey, or 1 to every 300,000.

THE PEOPLE'S TAXES.—The revenue of Great Britain is the largest in the known world, yet, with all her wealth, a smaller proportion of it is spent upon the Government itself than in other European States, as the following comparison of revenue appropriations will clearly prove:

In Prussia, they spend 26 per ct. on War forces, 17 per ct. on Debt, 57 per ct. on the State.
" Russia, " 34 " 12 " 54 "
" Spain, " 25 " 18 " 57 "
" Portugal, " 26 " 23 " 51 "
" Austria, " 29 " 27 " 44 "
" France, " 26 " 31 " 43 "
" G't Britain, " 43 " 42 " 15 "

EUROPEAN POPULATIONS.—A statement of the number of inhabitants in the European States, not including their colonies, is interesting at this time. The leading figures are as follows: Great Britain, 29,321,288; France, 38,192,094; Prussia, 29,043,296; North German Confederation, including Prussia, 29,910,377; South Germany, 8,611,523; Austria, 55,553,000; Italy, 24,368,787; Russia, 77,008,448; Spain, 16,302,625; Sweden, 4,160,677; Netherlands, 3,552,665; Turkey, 13,544,000; Switzerland, 2,510,494; Portugal, 3,987,861; Belgium, 4,984,451.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, 254 BROADWAY, N. Y.

Assets - - - - - $2,700,000. Assured Members, - - - 11,500.

ADVANTAGES OF THE HOME.

Its Organization is strictly first class, inferior to no other Company.

It is a Mutual Company; all the net profits go to the assured.

Its Assets are kept most securely invested, and are as large in proportion to its liabilities as any other Company.

It declares and pays dividends to its policy holders annually on all policies that at the dividend period (May 1) have run one year. Each assured member gets his full share of the surplus earnings of the Company, based exactly on his contribution thereto.

It has declared and paid a dividend every year since its organization.

Its members have the choice of both the cash and loan systems—they may keep one third the premium in their hands as long as the Policy exists, or they may pay all cash at rates very little above those of the non-participating Companies and receive all the surplus which their Policies earn.

Its Members who pay their premiums wholly in cash may receive their dividends in cash, or it may apply to increase the amount of Assurance on the life, provided the party at the time is in good health.

Its Policies are all non-forfeiting: that is, its members will, under any circumstances, get all the insurance that they pay for.

ITS POLICY-HOLDERS ARE FREE TO RESIDE OR TRAVEL IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD WITHOUT SPECIAL PERMIT OR EXTRA CHARGE.

It affords every facility in making proofs in case of death, and is prompt in the payment of its losses.

It makes a very liberal discount from its table-rates to all ministers of the Gospel and proposes to them a plan of Paid-up Insurance at its actual cost.

The plan provides for issuing.

1st. A paid-up Policy on the life of a minister for the whole term of life, the amount insured to be paid to his family at his death.

2d. Paid-up Endowment Policies, the amount payable to the minister on his attaining 60, 65, 70, or 75 years; or, should he die earlier, the amount payable to his family at his death.

3d. Policies by which the amount will be paid to the minister, when he reaches 60, 65, 70, or 75 years; or, at his option, he may then receive an annuity during his life, the amount of which will be stated in the Policy; or, should he die before attaining the specified age, the amount insured will be paid to his family.

The advantages of this plan are obviously these: 1st. It secures all the benefits of a MINISTER'S LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, and saves the hazards and a great part of the expense of conducting such an institution.

2d. Such Policies give Life Insurance at its net cost. Nothing is paid to Agents, and every element of the contract is arranged so that all the income accrues to the direct benefit of the assured.

Pratt's Astral Oil,

The Safest and Best Illuminating Oil,
WILL NOT EXPLODE.

If a Lamp filled with it be upset and broken, the contents will not explode nor take fire.

BURNS IN THE ORDINARY KEROSENE LAMPS.

The above is designed to meet the great public want for a PERFECTLY SAFE OIL FOR FAMILY USE. Aside from this essential quality, it is unequaled for its illuminating properties, giving a clear, brilliant, and uniform light, and free from offensive odor. It is a strictly pure oil, and may be relied upon in every respect to be as represented.

From among the hundreds of testimonials we have received, we submit the following from a well-known firm:

MR. CHARLES PRATT.

TROY, N. Y., August 22, 1870.

Sir: We have a short story to tell you about "Astral Oil." In the rear of our store, about three years since, we had a warehouse built, with gravel roof, for storing paints, oils, glass, acids, kerosene oil, etc., etc. Unfortunately for us, it was set on fire early Saturday morning and entirely consumed. The one hundred cases of Astral Oil bought from you a few days since were in the warehouse, and strange to say, came out of the fire almost unharmed; they were piled up two and three tiers high; the wood cases, of course, were burned off, and several of the top cans unsoldered on top; but there was no explosion, and the Oil in the open cans did not burn. The rear of our store was very badly damaged. The "Astral Oil" was within six or eight feet from the store, and, of course, in a hot place. Had the explosion taken place nothing could have saved the store. We had several barrels of kerosene in the warehouse, which burned lively. To say the least, the Oil has stood a very severe test, and we think it is all you claim it to be. This morning, before any thing was disturbed, we had a picture taken of the ruins, showing the Oil as it remained after the fire was put out.

Yours respectfully,

STODDARD & BURTON.

 The picture above mentioned and the original letter may be seen at our office; also several of the damaged cans as they came out of the fire.

In view of the fact that more accidents occur from the use of unsafe oil than from steam-boats and railroads combined, none can afford to take risk of using cheap and inferior oil. Kerosene is not safe. Accidents will sometimes occur to the most careful. Be warned in time, and use only PRATT'S ASTRAL OIL.

PHŒNIX BRAND

PURE WHITE LEAD.

WE offer the above brand of WHITE LEAD to the public with the POSITIVE ASSURANCE that it is perfectly PURE, and hereby agree to promptly pay for every ounce of ADULTERATION that it may be found to contain.

ONE OUNCE OF GOLD

Having been engaged in the manufacture of WHITE LEAD for upward of Thirty Years, during which time we have not sold one pound represented as pure which was not strictly so, should entitle our brand of "PHŒNIX" to the entire confidence of the dealer and consumer as to its purity.

The experience afforded by an apprenticeship of so many years, together with the adoption of every useful improvement in machinery that has been devised, warrant us in saying that we are producing an article of WHITE LEAD that can not fail to give the utmost satisfaction, not only as regards purity, but in uniformity of quality, whiteness, fineness, body, and covering capacity. We adhere to the old German method of corrodng, which, while it requires much longer time and is more expensive, is unquestionably the only true mode. Lead produced by other, including late Patent processes, (to lessen the cost,) even if pure, lacks body, opacity, and other requisites necessary to make a good and durable Paint.

The award of a LARGE SILVER MEDAL, the largest premium given for WHITE LEAD, at the Industrial Exposition, was made to us for superiority of our "PHŒNIX" brand over all competitors, the award being made on Lead which was purchased by the judges in the open market, at the request of one of the other exhibitors of White Lead, and proved to have the same desirable requisites as that exhibited.

To insure purchasers against imposition, we have for many years attached a guarantee of purity to each package of our "PHŒNIX" brand, offering a reward for any adulteration it may be found to contain.

Where painting is required, it is always best to employ a good practical painter. Bad work is sure to result from inexperience, even when the best materials are used. Painting and the art of mixing paints is a trade that requires much care and attention to acquire.

Consumers will consult their INTEREST by bearing in mind that a large proportion of the article sold as PURE WHITE LEAD is adulterated to the extent of from 50 to 90 per cent., and much of it does not contain a particle of Lead; and that they can always guard against imposition by purchasing the "PHŒNIX" BRAND PURE WHITE LEAD, manufactured by Being the Ninety-Sixth Year of American Independence.

Hitchcock & Walden:
CINCINNATI, CHICAGO, AND ST. LOUIS.

THE FLIGHT OF TIME.

WITH mournful tone I hear thee say,
 "Alas! another year hath sped,"
As if within that circlet lay
 Life's garland dead.

Vain thought! Thy measure is not Time's;
 Nor thus yields life each glowing hue;
Fair fruit may yield—the tendril climbs,
 And clasps anew.

Time hath mute landmarks of his own;
 They are not such as man may raise;
Not his the rudely numbered stone
 On Life's broad ways.

The record measuring his speed
 Is but a shadow softer spread—
A browner leaf—a broken reed,
 Or mildew shed.

And if his footfall crush the flower,
 How sweet the spicy perfume springs!
His mildew stain upon the tower
 A glory brings.

Then let the murmuring voice be still,
 The heart hold fast its treasure bright;
The hearth glows warm when sunbeams chill;
 Life hath no night.

Ceres, Pallas, Juno, Vesta, and other Asteroids, now numbering one hundred and fourteen, are generally designated by a circle $\bigcirc$, inclosing the number indicating the order of their discovery. It has been supposed, from the irregular motions of Mercury, that there is an interior planet, to which the name of Vulcan is assigned. As yet the existence of this planet is not generally conceded. By means of the Spectrum Analysis, the constitution of the planets and fixed stars has, in many cases, been determined. The presence of nearly all the metals and metallic bases has been shown, and in some cases there has been proved to be an atmosphere, or at least a gaseous fluid, enveloping the heavenly bodies.

ASPECTS OF THE PLANETS.

VENUS is the morning star on the first of January, rising about three hours before the Sun, and having so recently passed its greatest elongation, is a very brilliant star. It will arrive at its superior conjunction with the Sun on the 15th of July, after which it will be the evening star for the remainder of the year.

Mars is seen as an evening star, setting in the first part of January about two hours later than the Sun; is in conjunction with the Sun on the 16th of May, after which it will be seen in the morning.

Jupiter rises in the early evening during the month of January, and being at its greatest northern declination, is visible the whole night, and in the most favorable position for observation. On the 2d of August it will be in conjunction with the Sun, after which it will be a morning star. On the 20th of September it will be in conjunction with Mars, and at rising these two planets will be within one degree of each other.

Saturn will be in conjunction with the Sun on January 2d, after which it will appear in the morning, moving toward its opposition, at which it will arrive July 9th. It will be almost directly south of the bright star Altair, and thirty degrees from it.

ECLIPSES.

In the year 1872 there will be four eclipses—two of the Sun and two of the Moon:

- I. A partial Eclipse of the Moon, May 22d. Invisible.
- II. An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, June 5th. Invisible.
- III. A partial Eclipse of the Moon, November 14th. Visible.
 Moon enters shadow, 14d. 11h. 21m. evening. Cincinnati mean time.
 Middle of Eclipse, 14d. 11h. 41m. evening. Cincinnati mean time.
 Moon leaves shadow, 15d. 0h. 01m. morning. Cincinnati mean time.
- IV. An Annular eclipse of the Sun, November 30th. Invisible.

Christian Era, 1872.

Amer. Independence, (to July 4th,) 96.

The year 5632 of the Jewish era began September 16, 1871, and ends September 5, 1872.

The year 1288 of the Mohammedan era begins March 10th.

The Solar Cycle consists of 28 years, after the lapse of which the same days of the week return to the same days of the month throughout the year.

The Lunar Cycle consists of 19 years or 235 lunations, which differ from 19 Julian years of $365\frac{1}{4}$ days by only about an hour and a half; so that, supposing the new Moon to happen on the 1st of January in the first year of the cycle, it will again happen on that day after the lapse of 19 years.

The Cycle of the Indictions is a period of 15 years, used in the Roman Empire under Constantine and his successors.

The Julian period is a multiple of the three numbers, 28, 19, and 15, making a cycle of 7980 years; which period will bring round the years of the three cycles again in the same order. The beginning of this period is January 1, 4713, B. C.

The Julian Year is 365 days long, and the Gregorian Year 365.2425. Where the former is used, the computation of time is called Old Style; where the latter is used, it is New Style. Every fourth year in both styles is Bissex-tile or Leap Year. Russia alone adheres to the Old Style.

THE AMERICAN BROILER!

PATENTED JULY 21, 1868, AND OCTOBER 19, 1869.

The Crowning Achievement of Culinary Invention!

Embodying, in a Plain and Unpretending Utensil—as simple as a Pot or Skillet, and Weighing Less Than Three Pounds—all the principles involved in the Perfect Broiling of Meats.

It will BROIL A STEAK in from FIVE to EIGHT MINUTES! other meats in proportion, and RETAINS all the JUICES and FLAVOR!

WHICH NO OTHER BROILER DOES.

It is set on top of the Stove or Range, over one of the openings, where the largest amount of heat is obtained from the smallest quantity of fuel; it concentrates and retains all the heat within its inclosure; prevents evaporation and loss of juices, and renders tough meats tender, by its action; does away with all smoke and smell of grease; requires no preparation of fire, either a bed of coals or blazing fire serving the purpose; no pounding of steak; broils equally well over coal or wood, and gives, from either, the flavor of a steak broiled over wood coals, with all the juices of a roast; answers for all sized Stove or Range openings, and is equally good for BEEFSTEAK, CHICKEN, HAM, CHOPS, FISH, AND OYSTERS, forming the most complete and admirable combination of simplicity, convenience, cheapness, and usefulness, ever attained in a cooking utensil.

It renders Broiling, hitherto so vexatious, the Quickest and Easiest of all Modes of Cooking, and meats broiled by it more palatable, nutritious, and digestible, than by any other mode of cooking them.

CONSUMPTION CONQUERED!

Victory! Victory!

AWARDED TO

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM.

CONSUMPTION.—For the cure of this distressing disease there has been no medicine yet discovered that can show more evidence of real merit than ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. This unequaled expectorant for curing Consumption and all diseases leading to it, such as affections of the Pulmonary Organs, is introduced to the suffering public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases have been fully tested. The formula from which it is prepared is referred to by the leading medical journals as being equal to any prescription that can be made for such diseases by the medical faculty. The BALSAM is, consequently, recommended by Physicians who have become acquainted with its great success.

As an Expectorant it has no Equal.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM IS PERFECTLY HARMLESS TO THE MOST DELICATE.

THOSE AFFLICTED WITH CONSUMPTION

Please read the following Letter from a reliable Druggist:

"MOUNT VERNON, ILL., April 20, 1871.

"MESSRS. J. N. HARRIS & Co., Cincinnati, O.—Gentlemen: I heard one of my customers speak in such high terms of ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM to-day, that I thought I would write you the substance of his statement. He says his mother, who is now sixty years of age, has suffered with Consumption for several years, and has been under the care of all our best physicians, but never received any permanent benefit; then she resorted to most every kind of Cough and Lung Balsam that could be procured for her, but all to no avail. She still grew worse, until she was confined to her bed; and when she was seized with a paroxysm of coughing, she would lose power of respiration, and they were compelled to resort to various means to restore breathing; and while she coughed so hard she could not expectorate any thing, and the family and friends had given up all hopes of her recovery, her son noticed the advertisement of ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM in the Christian Advocate, and they thought they would procure and try it. They commenced giving her the Balsam at 5 o'clock, P. M., as directed—a dose every hour until midnight: then she took another spell of coughing, and expectorated a mouthful of dark-yellow matter, which was something she had not been able to do for some time. They continued to give her the Balsam until morning, and then she began to expectorate freely, and within two hours she had expectorated three pints of mucous matter, which gave her immediate relief, and since that time she has continued to improve. She now sits up all day, and can walk about the house and take considerable outdoor exercise. Her son bought more of the Balsam to-day, and he is recommending it very highly to every one. Yours, respectfully,

"A. C. JOHNSON, Druggist."

Was there ever greater proof of merit than the case this letter refers to?

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is, without doubt, the best expectorant remedy ever offered to the afflicted public. It contains no opium in any form, and its use is harmless to the most delicate. Directions accompany each bottle.

AGENTS WANTED—FOR PROF. PARSONS'

Laws of Business.

With full directions and forms for all transactions in every State of the Union. By THEOPHILUS PARSONS, LL. D.

A correct, economical, and safe Counselor and Adviser.

So plain, full, accurate, and complete that no person can afford to be without it. Embodying the results of the labor and study of the most popular and successful writer of law books in the country.

Judge R. R. HEATH, LL. D., one of the ablest jurors of the country, says:

"Prof. Parsons is the learned author of many law books that have become classics in the profession. From such a man we would hardly expect a bad book, and this book is eminently a good one. Some idea may be formed of the comprehensiveness of the book when it is known that it is written in forty chapters, and embraces nearly as many legal subjects—all of them fully and ably discussed in separate and distinct chapters, and the different subjects are exceedingly well treated, and are nearly or quite exhausted in the author's usual lucid style. This work has more than two hundred forms of the very best character, such as have stood the test of judicial criticism, have been approved, and are, therefore, to be trusted. The book is generally, if not universally, accurate, and the writer commends it as such to the Bar and to Business Men—to Business Men especially."

MANSFIELD, OHIO.

THE OLD AND ONLY RELIABLE CANE MACHINERY.

19,000
COOK'S EVAPORATORS.

11,000
VICTOR CANE MILLS.

ALL IN USE, ALL WARRANTED, AND NONE RETURNED.

The First Premium has been given to COOK'S EVAPORATOR at 65 State Fairs; to the VICTOR CANE MILL, (since 1863,) at 45 State Fairs, to both at the Louisiana and Georgia State Fairs two years, for working Southern Cane. All rivals fail to equal these machines on trial.

Planters can't afford to risk crops of cane on mills that break or choke, or Evaporators that do Second-class work, and only half enough at that.

While scores of new-fangled inventions have come up, had their day, and subsided, the "Cook" goes right along, constantly increasing in reputation.—Prairie Farmer.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

BISHOP THOMAS A. MORRIS, D. D., PRESIDENT.

REV. JOHN P. DURBIN, D. D., CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

REV. W. L. HARRIS, D. D. ASSISTANT COR. SECRETARY, New York.

REV. T. CARLTON, D. D., TREASURER.

REV. LUKE HITCHCOCK, D. D., ASSISTANT TREASURER, Cincinnati, O.

REV. DAVID TERRY, RECORDING SECRETARY.

Office, 805 Broadway, New York.

THIS Society was organized in the year 1819. Its officers are a President, who is always the senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and twelve Vice-Presidents, six of whom are the remaining Bishops, two other ministers, and four laymen. Its Board of Managers consists of thirty-two lay members and an equal number of ministers, elected at the annual meeting of the Society. The acting officers of the Board are a Corresponding Secretary, an Assistant Corresponding Secretary, a Treasurer, and Assistant Treasurer.

In addition to the Board of Managers, there is the General Missionary Committee, consisting of one representative from each mission district appointed by the Bishops. The number of mission districts is determined by the number of effective Bishops, each member of the Committee representing several Annual Conferences. This Committee meets annually in the city of New York, between the first and fifteenth of November, and acts jointly with the Board of Managers, the Corresponding Secretaries, and the Treasurer in fixing the amount which may be appropriated and drawn for during the ensuing year; it is also their duty to divide the amount between the foreign, domestic, and other missions. It is their province, also, with the concurrence of the Board of Managers, and at least two of the Bishops, to determine what fields shall be occupied or continued as foreign missions, the number of persons to be employed in said missions, and the sums necessary for the support of each mission. With the concurrence of the Board and Bishops, they also distribute among the Annual Conferences the amount for which the Bishop presiding over each Conference may draw for the domestic missions of those Conferences, and appropriate to missions in the United States and Territories not included in the Annual Conferences such sums as in their judgment the interests of the work require.

The annual meeting of the Missionary Committee, the Board of Managers, and the Bishops is an interesting and important occasion. The whole foreign and home work is reviewed, and the wants of all parts of the field are carefully canvassed. Information is there laid before the Joint Committee in letters and estimates from every foreign mission, in representations by each member of the Missionary Committee from his district, and in statements from the Bishops who have been traveling through the whole work. The necessities of each foreign mission, the demands of each Annual Conference, the wants of remote territories or sections of our own country not included in Conferences, the circumstances of our Indians, the needs of foreign populations in our country, and the openings for new operations are all studied, weighed, and acted upon, and the work for the ensuing year determined.

It will be seen that this estimating committee have the best possible facilities for overlooking the wants of the whole work, and for comprehending the relative necessities of each missionary field. The amount needed being thus determined, it is distributed judiciously for collection among the various Annual Conferences. The amount called for from each Conference is placed in the hands of the presiding elders, who distribute it as equitably as possible to each charge, so that each society learns how far it is individually related to this vast work of the Church. Each preacher in charge is a collecting agent for the Missionary Society, and in each Church a Sabbath is appropriated to this collection. The whole amount is thus collected and reaches the treasury without any cost. The only paid officers are the Corresponding Secretaries and a Recording Secretary.

In 1869 the office of the Missionary Society was removed to its new rooms, in the Methodist Publishing and Mission Buildings, at 805 Broadway, New York. For the purchase of these premises special donations were made during our Centenary Jubilee and subsequently, but not one cent has been taken from the regular missionary contributions. The whole amount of the purchase money is about $232,000; of this some $150,000 have been paid, and the balance can easily be arranged for after the payment of the interest due, out of the rents of the premises not occupied by the Society. It is thought that this can be done within seven or eight years, without having recourse to other sources of revenue. As soon as these payments are made, all the running expenses of the Society will be defrayed out of the rents, and additions will be made to the general treasury.

During the first year of the Society its collections amounted to $823.04. In 1870 its receipts were $641,482.22, and its disbursements up to November 1st of that year, the last for which we have reports, were $515,896.32. Its receipts and disbursements during fifty years of its history have been over $9,000,000.

The appropriations of the Mission Board for the last year amount to $721,000, and were distributed as follows: Foreign Missions, $224,198.54; Domestic Missions among the foreign population, $57,150; among the Indians, $4,090; among the English-speaking people, $342,740; Missions in territories, to be administered as foreign missions, $13,300; for miscellaneous items, $80,000. The number of missionaries employed in the various mission fields, together with the number of members, is shown in the annexed table. But this report does not include the home missionaries among our own population in frontier settlements, and in destitute neighborhoods of both city and country throughout the land, wherever missionary labor promises to raise up self-supporting Churches. These are distributed among the several Conferences, and are supported, in a large degree, from the funds of the Missionary Society.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION.

REV. J. H. VINCENT, D. D.,

Corresponding Secretary and Superintendent of Department of Sunday-School Instruction.

REV. DANIEL WISE, D. D.,

Editor of Sunday-School Advocate, Library Books, and Children's Tracts.

Office, 805 Broadway, New York.

THE Methodist Episcopal Sunday-School Union was organized April 2, 1827. After 1836 it rapidly declined, and shortly ceased altogether. In 1840 it was re-organized and recognized by the General Conference, which, in 1844, provided for the appointment of an editor, and ordered "periodical collections to be taken up in all our Sunday-schools, wherever practicable to aid the funds of our Sunday-School Union." By the General Conference of 1868 a division was made, by which one editor assumes charge of Sunday-school library books and of the Sunday-School Advocate, and another of the Sunday-School Journal, requisites, and books of instruction. The latter is also Superintendent of the Department of Instruction and Corresponding Secretary of the Sunday-School Union.

The design of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday-School Union is,

1. To organize Methodist Episcopal Sunday-schools in localities where no such schools exist.
2. To supply needy schools with books and requisites.
3. To provide a pure, high-toned, evangelical Sunday-school literature.
4. To improve schools already organized.
5. To train Sunday-school officers and teachers for their work.
6. To collect and diffuse Sunday-school intelligence throughout the Methodist Episcopal Church.

To promote these ends the Union is divided into the following departments :

1. THE DEPARTMENT OF BENEVOLENCE. This is supplied by annual collections in the Churches. Grants of books, etc., are made to new and needy schools upon proper application made by the pastor or presiding elder.

2. THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLICATION. The Methodist Book Concern publishes for the Union such books, periodicals, and requisites as the Sunday-school work demands. These publications are of two classes: first, the Sunday-School Advocate and Sunday-school library books; and, second, the Sunday-School Journal and Sunday-school requisites—including books of instruction for scholars and teachers.

3. THE DEPARTMENT OF INSTRUCTION. This department is conducted by a Superintendent, a Corresponding Secretary, and a Recording Secretary, under the direction of a Board of Managers. It provides a course of study for Sunday-school teachers and candidates for the teacher's office. This course is divided into three classes: Preparatory, Junior, and Senior. It is also arranged in a more compact form for seminaries. Through the Department of Instruction the Sunday-School Union promotes the organization of local, district, and Conference institutes and training classes.

4. THE DEPARTMENT OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL INFORMATION. The Union aims to prepare accurate statistical reports of the work in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and give the Church correct intelligence concerning the growth and present status of the work in all parts of the world.

During the last year 41 new books were added to our several libraries. The number of Sunday-school library books bound was 489,166; of books in paper covers, 275,212; of children's tracts, 290,613. The number of pages printed was 12,235,000. The total number of Sunday-School Advocates printed was 368,000.

In the Department of Requisites there were published of bound volumes

227,934; in paper covers, 149,412; of Teachers' Journal, 272,485; of Sunday-school Class-books, 21,483; of other requisites, including Teacher's Leaf, Scholar's Leaf, etc., 1,271,964. The total number of pages of printed matter issued in 1870 by this department is 28,237,400.

For other statistics of our Sunday-school work see the tables printed in another place. The duties of Churches and pastors toward this interest of the Church are laid down in the Discipline, Part V, Section 2.

TRACT SOCIETY.

REV. DANIEL WISE, D. D., CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

REV. JOHN LANAHAN, D. D., TREASURER.

Office, 805 Broadway, New York.

THE last annual report of this Society, presented in January, 1871, gives the following summary of its operations during the previous year:

The total receipts were $16,456.81, being an increase over the preceding year of $1,039.05. Its expenditures were $20,231.33, or an increase of $824.14 over those of the last year.

The Good News had an average circulation of 67,588, a decrease of 4,370 less than that of 1870. The whole number of copies printed was 811,056, which, counting each number equal to thirty tract pages, contained a sum of reading equivalent to 24,331,680 pages of tracts. The Good News is an illustrated tract, treating every topic relating to the Christian life in brief, pertinent articles, and is often read by many who would refuse to look at an ordinary tract.

The number of tract pages printed is as follows:

Pages of 12mo Tracts at home.....	8,168,000
Pages of Tracts in 811,056 numbers of the Good News.....	24,331,680
Pages of 12mo Tracts in Germany.....	5,131,002
Books and Tracts in China.....	2,148,933
Total number printed.....	39,779,620
Total number last year.....	37,705,234
Increase.....	2,014,386

The whole number of new tracts is sixty-three. Several others are in press, and will appear during the current year.

The Society proposes to co-operate with our Foreign Missions by supplying them with the means of translating and publishing tracts and books. It can profitably expend large sums in these important fields. The press is indispensable to our missionaries, and the Tract Society must sustain it. The Society will also co-operate with Freedmen's Associations in supplying them with such books and papers as will promote the education of those large bodies of our emancipated fellow-citizens which are their peculiar care.

The Society will send tracts and papers to almshouses, prisons, and reformatory institutions, particularly those in which our ministers officiate as chaplains, superintendents, teachers, etc. To accomplish these ends the Society depends upon the pastors to solicit the Churches to give an annual collection to its treasury.

Applications for aid, or contributions to the funds of the Society, may be made to J. M. Phillips, Cincinnati; J. M. Walden, Chicago; J. P. Magee, Boston; J. Horner, Pittsburg; H. H. Otis, Buffalo; B. St. J. Fry, St. Louis; E. Thomas, San Francisco; S. W. Thomas, Philadelphia; A. C. Gibbs, Portland, Oregon.

At the last quarterly conference of each year, it is the duty of the presiding elder, in every station and circuit within his district, to bring the Tract Cause before the meeting, and the said conference shall then appoint a committee, who are to devise and execute plans for local tract distribution. This work may be done by ladies, Sabbath-school teachers, class-leaders, and chiefly by the pastor, in his visits from house to house. (See Discipline, Part V, Section 5.)

REV. ALPHA J. KYNETT, D. D., CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

REV. CHARLES C. M'CABE, A. M., AGENT.

A. H. DE HAVEN, TREASURER.

General Committee.

The districts are the same as those of the Missionary Society, and the General Committee is composed as follows:

I DISTRICT. REV. R. H. ROBINSON, Troy Conference.

II DISTRICT. REV. JOHN H. C. DOSH, Baltimore Conference.

III DISTRICT. REV. J. S. M'MURRAY, Central Pennsylvania Conference.

IV DISTRICT. REV. WM. GRAHAM, D. D., North-West Indiana Conference.

V DISTRICT. REV. A. B. MORRISON, Southern Illinois Conference.

VI DISTRICT. REV. E. Q. FULLER, D. D., Georgia Conference.

VII DISTRICT. REV. T. B. LEMON, Nebraska Conference.

THIS Society was organized by direction of the General Conference of 1864, and was duly incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, March 13, 1865. Upon the recommendation of the Board of Managers, its plans and methods were revised and materially improved by the General Conference of 1868, which also inserted an important section on Church Extension in the Discipline. (See Part V, Section 4.) It is thus fully incorporated into the organization of the Church, and is cordially approved as one of the most important of its benevolent agencies.

The object of the Society is to assist indigent and feeble Churches in erecting houses of worship in destitute localities, thus supplementing the missionary cause. From the date of its organization the expenditures for this purpose have been over two hundred and twenty thousand dollars. The receipts from all sources for the year 1870 were $134,445.28, and the disbursements $134,355.65.

Besides actual donations from the general fund, loans are also made to Churches that are too weak to build within themselves, but which would soon become strong by building a suitable church. The loans are temporary, are made with little or no interest, and in no case exceed five thousand dollars. The Society made donations during the year amounting to $78,446.32; loans amounting to $22,367, and received from loans returned, $4,838.

FREEDMEN'S AID SOCIETY.

REV. ISAAC W. WILEY, D. D., ACTING PRESIDENT.

REV. RICHARD S. RUST, D. D., CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

REV. JOHN M. WALDEN, D. D., RECORDING SECRETARY.

REV. LUKE HITCHCOCK, D. D., TREASURER.

Office, Western Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati, O.

THIS Society was organized by a convention of ministers and laymen of our Church, held in Cincinnati, Ohio, August 7 and 8, 1866. It has been formally approved by the Board of Bishops, indorsed by the Annual Conferences, sanctioned by the late General Conference, and earnestly commended to the liberal support of our people. It is a Methodist society, controlled and sustained by Methodists, designed for the relief, and especially for the education and salvation, of the freedmen, to operate in connection with the Missionary and Church Extension Societies of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

We have in Tennessee 17 schools and 33 teachers; in Georgia, 19 schools and 30 teachers; in Alabama, 3 schools and 6 teachers; in Kentucky, 2 schools and 2 teachers; in Louisiana, 6 schools and 13 teachers; in Virginia, 2 schools and 4 teachers; in Mississippi, 3 schools and 8 teachers; and in South Carolina, 6 schools and 14 teachers. Total, 58 schools and 110 teachers. Our Normal schools are located as follows: Central Tennessee College, Nashville, Tennessee; Clark University, Atlanta, Georgia; Rust Institute, Huntsville, Ala.; Claflin University, Orangeburg, S. C.; Shaw University, Holly Springs, Miss.; Fenton Normal School, New Orleans, La.; Thomson University, Baldwin, La. The financial statement, published in the last report, is as follows: Cash contributed for the year, $43,755.49; contributions of freedmen, $14,000; clothing and books, $4,964; and real estate, $20,000. Total, $82,719.49.

It has been a leading object with our Society to concentrate our labors and act in concert with the other agencies employed by our Church in the South. We have occupied the places selected by our missionaries as inviting fields of labor, or acting as pioneers in gaining access to localities inaccessible to other agencies, and thus have co-operated with them, doing that portion of the work in the South which the Missionary Society performs in the foreign field, so that it may concentrate its whole energy to preaching the Gospel, while we engage in the humbler work of establishing schools and teaching the children.

We have sustained these schools for several years, having taught in them about 5,000 pupils the first year, 7,000 the second, 10,000 the third, and about 10,000 the present, making a total of 32,000 pupils enrolled and taught in our schools during their existence. In addition to all this, we have educated a large number of teachers, aided in introducing into the South the common school, and have demonstrated to the people that colored children are capable of acquiring knowledge as well as those of a lighter hue.

The Society has scores of applications for schools, but it has not the funds for the support of the teachers, and it therefore earnestly appeals to the friends of humanity and religion to furnish money for the education of the poor freedmen who perish for the lack of knowledge.

WOMAN'S FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

THIS Society originated in the fact that our male missionaries in India, and to a great extent also in China, were confined in their efforts entirely to the male population, owing to their peculiar social system. Women alone can have access to the women of those countries, whose condition is far worse, in every respect, than that of the men; and until the women there are elevated and converted, the progress of our mission work must be very slow.

For the proper working of this new field the ladies of our Church, in the city of Boston, organized the above-named Society, on the 30th of March, 1869, with the hearty approval of the missionary authorities. An appeal was issued inviting the co-operation of all Christian women. The response was prompt and cheering, and auxiliaries were formed in various parts of the country.

So rapid was its growth, that a change of constitution was necessary, creating, instead of one central Society, at Boston, eight co-ordinate branches, as follows: 1. New England, embracing all the New England States; 2. New York, embracing New York and New Jersey; 3. Philadelphia, embracing Pennsylvania and Delaware; 4. Baltimore, embracing Maryland, District of Columbia, and Eastern Virginia; 5. Cincinnati, embracing Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia; 6. North-Western, embracing Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin; 7. St. Louis, embracing Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Minnesota; 8. Atlanta, embracing Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, and Georgia.

The central organ of administration is the General Executive Committee, consisting of the Corresponding Secretaries of the branch societies and two delegates from each branch. This Committee meets annually.

During the year ending April 1, 1871, the Society raised $22,397, five hundred new auxiliaries were formed, and the circulation of the "Heathen Woman's Friend" increased from four thousand to twenty-one thousand. It is proposed to raise during the year ending April 1, 1872, $37,000, and to undertake besides the support of the four missionaries already in the field, and the maintenance of the Girls' Orphanages, a hospital for women, support of schools, zenana work, Bible women, etc., the sending forward of five more missionaries and the purchase of a "mission home" at Lucknow.

The plan adopted to advance the interests of the Society is to enlist the services of the women of our Church. They can help by organizing auxiliary societies. These auxiliaries spread intelligence of mission work, deepen interest in the cause, and call out the needed funds. Wherever ten ladies can be found who are willing to give two cents each a week, or one dollar a year, an auxiliary can be formed, which will be a blessing to its members as well as to their heathen sisters perishing in the darkness of paganism.

The Corresponding Secretary of the Cincinnati Branch—Mrs. B. R. COWEN, Cincinnati, Ohio—and of the Chicago Branch—Mrs. J. F. WILLING, Rockford, Ill.—will promptly respond to all inquiries as to the details of the Society's organization, and furnish all the necessary information relative to the organizing of auxiliaries in any part of the territory embraced in their respective branches.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

BISHOP EDMUND S. JANES, PRESIDENT.

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D. D. SECRETARY.

OLIVER HOYT, TREASURER.

CHARLES C. NORTH, CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

Office, 805 Broadway, New York.

THE General Educational Fund and the Sunday-School Children's Fund amounted, at the making up of the last reports, to about $90,000. In order to enlarge the latter fund, the last General Conference adopted the recommendation of the Educational Committee, that "the second Sabbath in the month of June, annually, be observed as the children's day, and that in each Sabbath-school we attempt the collection of an average of five cents for each child enrolled. Thus, easily, silently, almost unconsciously, can this fund be made even more than its ardent projectors dared to hope."

For the proper administration of these funds, a Board of Education, consisting of six ministers and six laymen, was elected by the General Conference of 1868, who were authorized to procure a suitable charter from the Legislature of New York. This has accordingly been done, and the Board is organized under the provisions of this act of incorporation. It has its seat in the city of New York, and is composed as follows:

Term expires May, 1872—BISHOP EDWARD R. AMES, REV. WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D. D., HARVEY B. LANE, and ISAAC RICH.

Term expires May, 1876—BISHOP EDMUND S. JANES, REV. J. S. PORTER, D. D., C. C. NORTH, and HON. JAMES HARLAN, LL. D.

Term expires May, 1880—REV. JOHN W. LINDSAY, D. D., REV. THOMAS BOWMAN, D. D., JOHN ELLIOTT, and OLIVER HOYT.

The interest accruing from the funds held by this Bureau is appropriated only to the following purposes: In assisting young men preparing for the foreign missionary work or the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in aid of any of the theological schools now existing, or which may be hereafter created with the approval of the General Conference, and of the universities, colleges, and schools under the patronage and control of the Church.

It is the purpose of the Board, with the consent of the Conferences, to withhold any distribution of interest until the Educational Funds reach $100,000. After that sum has been received and invested, the Board proposes, while annually dividing the interest, still to augment the principal. The objects of the Educational Fund and the Children's Fund are nearly identical—the first embracing as its beneficiaries young men of talents and piety, seeking educational qualifications for the ministry, and the latter reaching down to Sunday-school scholars having marked inclinations for study, and opening the way for their advanced education.

The carrying out of both objects is left to the discretion of each Annual Conference, through such agencies as it may appoint. If the Church will cordially recognize the action of the General Conference, this fund will rapidly swell to large proportions.

TRUSTEES OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

THE following "Trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church" were elected by the General Conference of 1868, and are incorporated under the laws of the State of Ohio:

. PRESIDENT.
JUDGE MARCELLUS B. HAGANS,	SECRETARY, Cincinnati, O.
LUKE HITCHCOCK, D. D.,	TREASURER, Cincinnati, O.
FERNANDO C. HOLLIDAY, D. D.,	HON. WILL CUMBACK,
JOSEPH M. TRIMBLE, D. D.,	JOHN COCHNOWER,
WILLIAM H. GOODE, D. D.,	EDWARD SARGENT,
REV. WILLIAM YOUNG,	AMOS SHINKLE,
HARVEY DE CAMP.

The Board has its seat at Cincinnati, and is authorized and empowered to receive and administer all gifts, bequests, and benevolent trusts made in any part of the United States to the Methodist Episcopal Church. It is composed of six ministers well known to the Church, and an equal number of laymen, who are also men of the highest responsibility. Every member of the Church may be assured of their wise and judicious management of all trusts confided to them. For further information, see Discipline, Part VI, Chapter iii, Sec. 4, or address any of the officers as above.

Form of Bequest.

I give and devise to the "Trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church," a corporation under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, the sum of — dollars for the uses and purposes of said Church, and for which money the receipt of the Treasurer shall be a sufficient discharge.

CONFERENCE CLAIMANTS.

THE Conference claimants are the superannuated preachers, or those who have worn themselves out in the work of the ministry, and the widows and orphans of deceased ministers. The several Conferences determine by vote who shall receive a share of the funds collected, and the amount to be given to each person is determined by a Board of Stewards, who are appointed yearly for this purpose. They inquire, first, how much is necessary for the support of the superannuated preachers, and of the widows and orphans of those who have died in the work, and, second, how much has been collected for this purpose. They then distribute the amount in proportion to the necessities of each. This estimate of the Conference stewards is based on the reports furnished them by committees appointed by the quarterly conferences of the several charges within the bounds of which the claimants reside. Only those are allowed any portion who have not otherwise sufficient means for their support.

The statistics for the year 1871 were not quite complete when the tables here given were made up, and we have been compelled to repeat in about twelve of the Conferences the figures of the previous year. Though the increase of the Church is not large, and in some of the Conferences a decrease is reported, there has been, upon the whole, a healthy progress. Many causes have combined to render the numerical increase small; but in all the Churches, so far as reports have reached us, there has been a quickening of the spiritual life, a development of the Christian graces, and a growth in divine knowledge. So far these successes can not be computed by numbers.

In advance of the publication of the General Minutes, we can not give the number of ministers traveling or local, the number of deaths during the year, the baptisms of adults and children, or the classification of the preachers. The statistics of our Literary Institutions, of the Benevolent Contributions from the Churches, and of our Sunday-school work are given elsewhere.

In many of our Sunday-schools the "Berean Series" of lessons have been adopted and used with great advantage both to teachers and scholars. These lessons recognize the importance of a daily searching of the Scriptures, and it is this which gives them their distinctive title. The passages of Scripture selected for daily study have a bearing upon the lesson for Sunday, and all are thus daily reminded of it. Over 300,000 scholars, or more than one-fourth of all in our schools, are now using these lessons.

H. Vanderhorst, of Georgia. The “Christian Index,” edited by Rev. Samuel Watson, at Memphis, Tenn., was adopted as the organ of the new Church, and Rev. L. J. Scurlock was elected Assistant Editor and Book Agent.

This Church has about 13,000 members. The structure of the new Church conforms in all essential particulars to that of the Southern Methodist Church in doctrine, discipline, and economy. This denomination is now wholly independent of the white element, and does not admit white members into its communion.

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.

JAMES LENNOX, Esq., PRESIDENT.

JOSEPH HOLDICH, D. D.,
REV. EDWARD W. GILMAN, } SECRETARIES.

WILLIAM WHITLOCK, JR., TREASURER.

ANDREW L. TAYLOR, ASSISTANT TREASURER.

CALEB T. ROWE, GENERAL AGENT.

Office, Bible-House, Astor Place, New York.

THIS Society was instituted in the year 1816. Since that time the entire number of volumes issued amounts to 27,680,098, of which 1,107,727 were issued for distribution during the past year, including 938,548 from the Bible-House, and 169,179 abroad, the latter representing some fifty-eight different languages and dialects.

The receipts for the year ending May 1, 1871, were $729,464.70, including $408,888.72 for Bibles and Testaments, $39,416.34 from the Building Fund, $101,078.82 from legacies, $169,659.83 from donations, and $10,420.99 from sundry items.

The gratuitous distributions and appropriations for the year amounted in value to $234,352.28. Of this sum $60,446.93 were for the foreign field. Grants of books for gratuitous circulation have been made to the Society's agents and auxiliaries, to various benevolent institutions, and to individuals. No meritorious application has been declined.

The distribution of the Scriptures in the United States during the year, so far as reported, is shown by the following figures: Number of families visited, 644,476; number of families found destitute of the Bible, 72,306; destitute families supplied, 38,558; destitute individuals supplied in addition, 28,607; soldiers, sailors, etc., supplied, 44,576; freedmen supplied (as far as reported separately), 5,060; Sabbath and other schools supplied, 1,921.

The summary of work done during the past five years, since the re-supply was begun, is as follows: Number of families visited, 2,990,119; number of families found destitute of the Bible, 283,186; destitute families supplied, 228,807; destitute individuals also supplied, 91,811; soldiers, sailors, etc., supplied, 121,497; Sabbath and other schools supplied, 5,537.

The disproportion between the number of destitute families and the number supplied is due largely to the fact that Romanists so generally refuse the Scriptures.

To the distribution effected directly by the Society and its auxiliaries must be added the thousands of volumes circulated through other benevolent institutions to which grants of books have been made.

Our last General Conference, after declaring by resolution that the relations of the Church with the Bible Society have been most salutary in their operations and results, further "Resolved, That we congratulate our people in view of their steady and persistent liberality toward that Society, and we commend it to their continued confidence and beneficence."

OUR CHILDREN'S PAPER.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL ADVOCATE

369,000 CIRCULATION.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL ADVOCATE is acknowledged by many good judges to be the most pleasing and instructive children's paper in the country. There is no duty binding on children which it does not teach in strong but simple words. Without being babyish in its language, it is adapted to the standard of thought among intelligent children. It abounds in facts, piquant remarks, and lively portraiture of child-life. Its illustrations are numerous and beautiful. It is well printed on superior paper, and is not surpassed in general excellence by any other paper of its class. Its circulation is greater than any other Sunday-school paper in the world. It has 369,000 subscribers, and ought to have a MILLION.

THE GOOD NEWS.

An Illustrated Church Paper.

FOR CIRCULATION BY TRACT COMMITTEES, COLPORTEURS, AND CHRISTIANS GENERALLY. DESIGNED TO AWAKEN SINNERS, ALARM BACKSLIDERS, COMFORT MOURNERS, AND BUILD UP THE CHURCH OF OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST.

WE WANT 200,000 NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

PRICE, 15 CENTS A COPY ; OR, $15 PER 100 COPIES PER ANNUM.

LET IT BE SPREAD BROADCAST OVER THE LAND.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL BELL.

(Sonntag-Schul Glocke.)

Published twice a month, and occupies in German Sunday-schools and families the same position that the Sunday-School Advocate does among the English-speaking population.

BEREAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSONS.

Edited by J. H. VINCENT, D. D.

Published by CARLTON & LANAHAN, 805 Broadway, New York;
HITCHCOCK & WALDEN, Cincinnati and Chicago;
E. THOMAS, San Francisco.

"These [at Berea] were more noble than those at Thessalonica, in that ~~they~~ ^{they} received the Word with all readiness of mind and SEARCHED THE SCRIPTURES DAILY, whether those things were so." Acts xvii, 11.

THE AIM.

It is the aim of the Berean Series:

1. To promote the independent labor on the part of teachers and scholars.
2. To give partial aid to the teacher without doing every thing for him.
3. To enlist home help in Sunday-school study.
4. To uphold Jesus Christ as the central theme of every lesson in both the Old and New Testaments.
5. To encourage the DAILY searching of Scripture.

SERIES FOR 1872.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL JOURNAL.

Each number of the Journal contains twenty-four pages, eight of which will be devoted to the Berean Lessons. Here superintendents and teachers will find notes, questions, illustrations, pictorial and anecdotal, blackboard and slate diagrams, directions for conducting Sunday-school concerts, Berean Lesson reviews, Berean drills in Sacred Geography, etc.

LESSON LEAF.

Four pages, monthly, for scholars. These will contain questions, Scripture, Golden Topic, Golden Text, Hymns, etc.

The Lessons in the Journal and Lesson Leaves for 1872 will be as follows:

First Quarter. Twelve Lessons on Jesus after his Ascension.

Second Quarter. Twelve Lessons about Elisha and Israel.

Third Quarter. Twelve Lessons from the Epistles.

Fourth Quarter. Twelve Lessons on Daniel.

The thirteenth Sabbath of each Quarter a Quarterly Review Concert.

LEAF CLUSTER.

For the Infant Class. Fifty leaves, each 36x24 inches in size. Illustrated with cuts. Bold, beautiful type. Printed on paper of different colors. Price, $3. Will serve a class of any size for a year. May be profitably used in mission schools, and for general review in all schools.

Address

CARLTON & LANAHAN,

805 Broadway, New York; or,

HITCHCOCK & WALDEN,

190 W. Fourth-St., Cincinnati, or 36 South Clinton-St., Chicago.

THE PICTURE LESSON PAPER.

Eight pages monthly. May be divided into four papers, so that a new paper of two pages may be distributed every Sabbath. The Picture Lesson Paper may be used with or without the Berean Series. Price, 25 cents a year.

BEREAN QUESTION BOOK.

Sometimes schools prefer the Lessons in book form. We have therefore prepared the BEREAN QUESTION BOOK, a little volume containing every thing needed by the scholars—Scripture, Topics, Texts, Questions, Maps, etc. A rare and beautiful book. Those who use it will not need the Lesson Leaf. Whether using Leaf or Book in the class, the teacher will require The Sunday-School Journal.

EXPENSE.

1. THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL JOURNAL. Twenty-four pages monthly. Single subscribers, 60 cents a year. To clubs of six or more, sent to one address, 50 cents each.

2. THE LESSON LEAVES. Four pages monthly. To schools using the JOURNAL the LESSON LEAVES will be furnished at the rate of five cents a scholar for the year; that is, a school forwarding ten dollars will receive for the year ten SUNDAY-SCHOOL JOURNALS, and one hundred LESSON LEAVES each month. For six dollars we will send each month six SUNDAY-SCHOOL JOURNALS and sixty LESSON LEAVES. [Additional Lesson Leaves at the rate of eight dollars per hundred.]

3. INFANT CLASS LEAF CLUSTER. $3.

4. PICTURE LESSON PAPER. $25 per hundred for the year.

5. THE BEREAN QUESTION BOOK—to be used instead of the Lesson Leaves—will cost 15 cents each, or $15 per hundred.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

254 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

ASSETS, ... $3,000,000.

ADVANTAGES OF THE HOME.

Its Organization is strictly first class, inferior to no other Company.

It is a Mutual Company; all the net profits go to the assured.

Its Assets are kept most securely invested, and are as large in proportion to its liabilities as any other Company.

It declares and pays dividends to its policy holders annually on all policies that at the dividend period (May 1) have run one year. Each assured member gets his full share of the surplus earnings of the Company, based exactly on his contribution thereto.

It has declared and paid a dividend every year since its organization.

Its members have the choice of both the cash and loan systems—they may keep one third the premium in their hands as long as the Policy exists, or they may pay all cash at rates very little above those of the non-participating Companies and receive all the surplus which their Policies earn.

Its Members who pay their premiums wholly in cash may receive their dividends in cash, or it may apply to increase the amount of Assurance on the life, provided the party at the time is in good health.

Its Policies are all non-forfeiting: that is, its members will, under any circumstances, get all the insurance that they pay for.

ITS POLICY-HOLDERS ARE FREE TO RESIDE OR TRAVEL IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD WITHOUT SPECIAL PERMIT OR EXTRA CHARGE.

It affords every facility in making proofs in case of death, and is prompt in the payment of its losses.

It makes a very liberal discount from its table-rates to all ministers of the Gospel and proposes to them a plan of Paid-up Insurance at its actual cost.

The plan provides for issuing,

1st. A paid-up Policy on the life of a minister for the whole term of life, the amount insured to be paid to his family at his death.

2d. Paid-up Endowment Policies, the amount payable to the minister on his attaining 60, 65, 70, or 75 years; or, should he die earlier, the amount payable to his family at his death.

3d. Policies by which the amount will be paid to the minister, when he reaches 60, 65, 70, or 75 years; or, at his option, he may then receive an annuity during his life, the amount of which will be stated in the Policy; or, should he die before attaining the specified age, the amount insured will be paid to his family.

The advantages of this plan are obviously these: 1st. It secures all the benefits of a MINISTER'S LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, and saves the hazards and a great part of the expense of conducting such an institution.

2d. Such Policies give Life Insurance at its net cost. Nothing is paid to Agents, and every element of the contract is arranged so that all the income accrues to the direct benefit of the assured.

Manufactured at Lockport, New York, by

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL COMPANY.

JOHN HODGE, Secretary.

[From the Rural New Yorker.]

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL.—This valuable article is increasing in popularity as its merits become more widely known. The Detroit Commercial Advertiser says: "The celebrity of Merchant's Gargling Oil, and its efficacy in all cases where an external application would seem to be required, are now unquestioned. It has proved itself, by the sure test of experience, to be emphatically 'good for man and beast,' and is the best liniment in the world for which it is advertised. Thousands of testimonials, dating from 1833, have been received by the manufacturers, testifying to the almost marvelous cures wrought by it. Our Western readers know its merits too well to render any thing from us necessary. Mr. JOHN HODGE, Secretary of the Manufacturing Company, Lockport, N. Y., stands high in the esteem of the community where he resides, and has also won the confidence of our merchants and dealers by the fairness and liberality of his dealings."

[From the Independent, (N. Y.) December, 1870.]

It is astonishing to witness the rapid development of the trade in this famous article. Whether for use on man or beast, the Merchant's Gargling Oil will be found an invaluable liniment, and worthy of use by every resident in the land.

[From the Louisville (Ky.) Daily Democrat, of June 4, 1856.]

MERCHANT'S GARGLING OIL has become one of the most popular Liniments for human flesh that is now prepared, while for horses and cattle it has no equal in the world. We are assured by those who have used it for the Piles—one of whom is a distinguished physician—that among all the various Pile remedies, none afforded such speedy relief as the Gargling Oil.

Read the Testimony of the greatest Philanthropist of the age, Hon. GEORGE PEABODY:

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, VA., August 2, 1869.

MESSRS. PEMBERTON, TAYLOR & Co.—Gentlemen: I am gratified to inform you that the GLOBE FLOWER COUGH SYRUP has been of great benefit to me. I have been suffering with Throat and Lung Disease for some time, and used many of the most celebrated remedies on the continent, and can conscientiously say that none proved so pleasant and beneficial in my case as your remedy. With my good wishes for your success, I am,

Yours, respectfully,

GEORGE PEABODY.

SOUTHERN EXPRESS COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA., February 22, 1871.

MESSRS. PEMBERTON, TAYLOR & Co.—Gentlemen: It affords me great pleasure to bear testimony to the efficacy of the GLOBE FLOWER COUGH SYRUP. It has entirely eradicated a cough which had troubled me for a year. During last Summer I was obliged, owing to the delicate state of my health, to give up business in New York and spend that season in Vermont. I came to this city last October, the cough still clinging to me. I commenced using the GLOBE FLOWER COUGH SYRUP, and its good effects soon became apparent. The cough has gone entirely. I would unhesitatingly recommend the use of the GLOBE FLOWER SYRUP to all who are afflicted with disease of the Throat or Lungs.

Very truly,

WM. D. BOWERS.

ROME, GA., January 10, 1870.

MESSRS. PEMBERTON, TAYLOR & Co.—Gentlemen: Having disposed of over three hundred bottles of your GLOBE FLOWER COUGH SYRUP, we now wish to say a word in regard to its merits. We have given the GLOBE FLOWER SYRUP special attention, recommending it in all cases of Colds, Coughs, etc., and in all Lung Diseases, and are pleased to say that in every instance it has not only given immediate relief, but also resulted in a permanent cure.

Yours, respectfully,

W. D. HOYT & CO., Wholesale Druggists.

OFFICE OF HOBBS & HEBBERD, 115 Fulton-street, N. Y., March 13, 1871.

DR. J. S. PEMBERTON, Atlanta—Dear Sir: It is now two years since I purchased from you, in Columbus, some of your GLOBE FLOWER SYRUP, to take with me to New York, for use in my family. My wife, who had been suffering for some time with a severe Cough, and all its unpleasant accompaniments, after taking only a few doses, was entirely cured. We have since then always kept it on hand, and have given it to many of our friends with universal success; but being now nearly out of it, will thank you to send me one dozen more, or say where I can obtain it in New York. With best respects, and hoping soon to hear from you,

Yours, respectfully,

E. MITTLAND.

WE present the following strong and useful features for those desiring to work insurance for this Company, or effect insurance on their own lives:

1. We issue all the various kinds of policies in present use on single and joint lives; namely, Whole Life, Ten-Payment Life, Endowments, and Annuities; and also the following, only issued by this Company: Half-Premium Plan, One-Year Term, and Commuted; that is, a "commuted" policy allows insurers to relinquish their interest in profits, and receive instead an immediate and permanent addition of one-third to the amount assured by their policies.

2. Registered Policies, countersigned by the Insurance Department of the State of New York, certifying that such policies are secured by a special deposit.

3. Travel unrestricted in Northern States and Europe, and after first year throughout the world.

4. All policies non-forfeitable after two annual payments—standing good for an equitable value for the full term, payable when the original policy would have matured, without exchange or conditions; that is, after two annual payments have been made, the Company would require no notification from the party ceasing to make further payments, in order to secure whatever value he is entitled to—an advantage given by no other Company.

5. Loans made, when desired, of one-third of premiums, if amounting to $40 and upward, but no note required.

6. Dividends to policy-holders made on the Partnership Plan, after two annual payments, according to the capital—represented by the premium reserve—which each partner has in the Company, and can be applied, at the option of insurers, to an increase of the policy, to reduction of future premiums, or payable in cash.

7. No extra charge on female lives.

Books and tables fully detailing all the peculiar features of the Company, and tables for all the various assurances, will be sent on application to the Home Office, or to any of the principal Agencies.

The unrivaled character of the Board of Directors of the Company, the recent increase of cash capital, and the change of management, give ample assurance to the public that its distinguishing features shall be Security, Economy, and Liberality.

Reliable Agents wanted. To those who will give their whole time to the business liberal terms will be granted.

Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, and Fever Sores are soon removed by this powerful detergent medicine.

Scorbutic diseases, Dandruff, Scaly or Rough Skin, and Pimples quickly give way, leaving the skin smooth and fair.

Chronic Diseases, Fever and Ague, Disordered Liver, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood are conquered, and give way before this most powerful corrector, the King of the Blood.

A cure is warranted in all cases where the directions are strictly adhered to, and the medicine taken a reasonable length of time—more important diseases requiring a longer time to cure.

LUTHERSBURG, CLEARFIELD Co., PENN., September 7, 1871.

I was attacked with Abdominal Dropsy four years ago. I took medicine from five different doctors; I applied to the sixth, but he declined attempting my case, saying he thought me past remedy. Another thought he might help me if I would be tapped, but I was so weak I thought I could not bear it. I then saw your King of the Blood advertised. My son said he would send to you for it, and did so. When I began to take it I could not lie down nor sit up straight; by wearing a bandage I was able to walk a little. I had not put on my stockings for some months. Persons who visited me thought I could not live any length of time. I very soon felt that your medicine was helping me, and by the time I had used the second bottle I could put on my stockings, and began to feel comfortable. In two months the water was all gone, and I was a living skeleton; but my appetite was good, and I began to gain flesh, and I now look as well as ever I did and feel quite well.

A treatise on Diseases of the Blood, and their proper treatment, with full directions for using this medicine, will be found on each bottle. Send to us for Free Circulars.

PETROLEUM CENTER, PENN., August, 1870.

You doubtless remember recommending your medicine, KING OF THE BLOOD, to myself and wife, and that we took six bottles on your advice. I can now say that what I have of health is attributable to your medicine. It cured my wife of Scrofula and myself of Liver Complaint. Send me six bottles by express, C. O. D.

Yours truly,

M. V. B. FISHER.

ALBION, MICHIGAN, December 14, 1870.

The KING OF THE BLOOD continues to give entire satisfaction. One case of a cancer on the lip, of six years' standing, was entirely removed by the use of three bottles, and the person—M. H. Crane, Esq., ex-Sheriff of this (Calhoun) county—has requested us to communicate the same to you. Send us by rail four dozen more of "King of the Blood," with circulars.

WILLIAMS & O'DONOGHEE.

A prominent gentleman of this city writes: "I cheerfully certify to the good effect of your medicine in my case. I have suffered very much from bilious derangement, loss of appetite, and the usual train of bad symptoms accompanying chronic obstructions of the liver. I can perceive the most marked improvement in all my system, and believe your remedy to be of great value."

COLUMBUS, PENN., September 5, 1871.

For several years past I had been badly afflicted with Gout or Swelled Neck, and it had become so bad that an effort to raise my arms above my head produced a choking sensation, which was almost unendurable. After trying several remedies with no benefit, I was advised to try KING OF THE BLOOD, which I did, and the effect has been almost miraculous. I took nearly seven bottles, and it has not only cured my neck, but greatly benefited my general health. I have not felt so well for years.

ELGIN WATCHES!

THIS Cut represents the upper plate of the famous B. W. Raymond Movement, Manufactured by the National (Elgin) Watch Company. With its quick train—making 18,000 Beats an Hour—Hair-Spring Stud Adjustment, Patent Center Pinion, and the only Complete Dust Excluder now in use upon full plate watches, it is constructed with especial reference to correct time keeping upon Railways—and is commended to all Railroad men as the most correct and durable Watch now in market. The custom of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has long been to purchase the most reliable watches that could be obtained for their engineers. A careful test of the Raymond Movement led, four years ago, to its adoption by them for the use of their engine men, and over two hundred of the Watches are now in use upon that Road. Superintendents and employees speak in the highest terms of their performance.

The following named Railroad Officials, the leading men in their profession in the United States, have also given written testimonials that they consider the Raymond Watch the best time piece for use upon trains now in the market: Col. C. G. Hammond, Ex-Supt. U. P. R. R.; Geo. L. Dunlap, Ex-Supt.; Jno. C. Gault, Gen'l Supt.; Edw'd J. Cuyler and Arthur A. Hobart, Div. Supts. C. & N. W. R'y; P. A. Hall, Gen'l Supt. C. & R. I. R. DOTY'S IMPROVED CLOTHES WASHER, with the Metropolitan Balance Weight.

This machine will wash clothes well and thoroughly, much faster and easier than can be done by hand, and with far less wear in the garments

What is said about it.

You cannot do a better thing for your wife on a washing-day than to provide her a Doty Washer and a Universal Wringer. It will keep aches from her back and arms, wrinkles from her forehead, and roughness from her hands. It will do the work of a hired woman, and save your linen from being scrubbed out and her temper from being chafed out.—N. Y. Weekly Tribune.

The best Washer. A few weeks since we received one of Doty's Washing Machines and Universal Clothes Wringers. We have seen them tried, and do not hesitate to pronounce them the best we have ever seen. They do the best work, and with the least labor, and in shortest space of time of any machines we know of. Hence we call them the best.—Randolph, N. Y., Register.

It gives us pleasure to call attention to the Universal Clothes Wringer. We have had it fairly tested, and are therefore able to speak of it with confidence as an article of real and substantial merit, which only needs to be known to become what its name imports "Universal" in its use, and in the approval with which it shall be received.—*N. TAKE

No medicine which will increase the derangement of a system already disordered by disease. Violent cathartics that sweep through the bowels like a cataract, prostrating the strength and irritating the delicate membrane of the alimentary canal, are never needful. The best that can be given to persons suffering from dyspepsia, bilious complaints, constipation, or any disorder affecting the stomach, the liver, or the excretive organs, is to tone, cleanse and regulate these important viscera with TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT. This agreeable alterative operates the utmost mildness, yet thoroughly restores the functional action of the digestive organs and the intestines, and refreshes and renovates the whole physique. For more than a hundred years the water of the Seltzer Spa has been considered the finest corrective in the world, and this preparation is chemically identical with it. If

COUNSEL

WITH

YOUR complaint is indigestion, costiveness, nervous debility, biliousness, gravel, or any affection of the kidneys, remember that the EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT is not only an unequaled purgative, but also a general invigorant, and that its saline principle has a powerful sanitary effect upon the vitiated secretions and the blood. In an age when the sick exercise their and common sense in determining the merits of a medicine, it seems almost unnecessary to point out the advantages which a specific so gentle, safe, and certain in its operations has over the nauseous and pungent drugs which exhaust the bodily energies of the patient, and literally scourge his internal organization without effecting a radical cure. Invalids, TAKE COUNSEL OF YOUR REASON, and select the remedy which tones while it regulates, and leaves no sting behind.

REASON

FOR THE YEAR OF OUR LORD

1873,

AND THE

107th OF AMERICAN METHODISM.

EDITED BY W. H. DE PUY, D.D.

NEW YORK:
NELSON & PHILLIPS.
CINCINNATI: HITCHCOCK & WALDEN.

"Work While It Is Called To-Day."

DO NOT crouch to-day, and worship
The old Past, whose life is fled:
Hush your voice to tender reverence:
Crowned he lies, but cold and dead;
For the Present reigns, our monarch,
With an added weight of hours:
Honor her, for she is mighty!
Honor her, for she is ours!

NOBLE things the great Past promised,
Holy dreams, both strange and new;
But the present shall fulfill them:
What he promised she shall do.
She inherits all his treasures,
She is heir to all his fame;
And the light that lightens round her
Is the luster of his name:

SHE is wise with all his wisdom;
Living on his grave she stands;
On her brow she bears his laurels,
And his harvest in her hands.
God, who crowns the dying ages,
Bids her rule, and us obey—
I bids us cast our lives before, her
Bids us serve the great To-day.

Astronomy of Ancient Dates.

ASTRONOMERS have been enabled to fix the dates of many events in ancient history by means of the natural phenomena recorded in connection with them by historians. Thus a battle between the Medes and the Lydians is proved to have been fought May 28, B. C. 585, for there was a total eclipse of the sun during its progress, and unerring calculations prove that the only eclipse total in Asia Minor at that era was on the day above named.

ASTRONOMICAL SIGNS EXPLAINED.

♂ Mercury, ♀ Venus, ♂ Mars, ♀ Jupiter, ♀ Saturn, ☿ Uranus, ☿ Neptune, ☉ Moon, s opposition, or half a circle apart, ☐ quadrature, or quarter of a circle apart, ☿ conjunction, or together, having the same Right Ascension. The word near, used above, means the same, and indicates that the two bodies are then on a line running from the North Pole through both. Gr. elong., greatest elongation, or furthest distance from the Sun; Stationary, when the planet is without apparent motion, and is about to move in a direction contrary to that it had last. The above table enables us to find the planets throughout the year.

The Asteroids.

About one hundred and twenty-three little planets, called Asteroids, have been discovered between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter. Many of them are so small that it might seem inappropriate to call them planets, planetoids, or worlds. But any solid body having an orbit, though no larger than a cannon-ball, is entitled to rank as a world. A vast number of these may exist between all the inter-orbital spaces in the solar system, which will never be discovered because of their littleness. Asteroidal bodies appear to be revolving around the Sun in orbits not far from that of the Earth, while others revolve around the Earth like the Moon does, being invisible satellites. The Aerolites, or falling masses of stars, are really Asteroids whose orbits cross the earth's track, or else wind spirally inward. When the Earth and one of those bodies approach each other at the intersection of their orbits the latter must rapidly and obliquely fall to the earth, representing a miniature collision of worlds.

NOTE.—The tides may be expected highest when the Moon is in perigee, and lowest at apogee. The duration of moonlight will be greatest when the Moon is highest, and least when it is lowest. When the full Moon falls about the time of the "highest," the entire night will be lighted by the Moon.

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night.

At any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the Sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

Trusting Man and Christ.

FOREMAN in a factory became anxious about his soul. He was directed to Christ as the sinner's only refuge; but it seemed to be without result. At last his employer wrote a note asking him to come to him at his office.

When he went into the room his employer inquired, "Do you wish to see me, James?"

James was confounded, and, holding up the note, said, "The letter, the letter!"

"O," said his employer, "you believed that I wanted to see you, and when I sent you the message you came at once."

"Surely, sir; surely, sir," replied James.

"Well, see; here is another letter directed to you by one equally in earnest," said his employer, holding up a slip of paper with some texts of Scripture written on it.

James took the paper and began to read slowly, "Come—unto—me—all—ye—that—labor," etc. His lip quivered, his eyes filled with tears, and, like to choke with emotion, he grasped his large red handkerchief, with which he covered his face, and stood there for a few moments, not knowing what to do. At length he inquired, "Am I just to believe that in the same way I believed your letter?"

"Just in the same way," rejoined the employer. "If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater." This expedient was owned of God in setting James at liberty. He was a happy believer that very night.

A Beautiful Incident.

THE following beautiful and touching incident occurred in a New England village during the progress of a precious revival work:

"The pastor, at a prayer-meeting, requested all who were Christians to go in a room by themselves, while those interested in religion, but not professing it, were desired to remain for a season. One by one they offered up short, fervent petitions for the forgiveness of their sins, and for aid to live a life of holiness. It was a solemn time, and it seemed as if each one present must, for himself, offer a prayer. At last a little boy of six years, with clasped hands, fervently repeated the Lord's Prayer, and was followed immediately by his sister of three years with 'Now I lay me down to sleep.' When these babes in Christ, in the simplicity of childhood, had uttered their petitions the room was hushed, as if an angel's voice had been heard, and not a soul remained unmoved, all feeling that they were at the very door of heaven."

A BEAUTIFUL THOUGHT.—A pious cottager residing in the midst of a long and dreary heath was asked by a visitor, "Are you not sometimes afraid in your lonely situation, especially in the winter?" He replied, "O no! for Faith shuts the door at night and Mercy opens it in the morning."

“Nae Strife Up Here.”

IT is related that an old Scotch elder had once a dispute with a minister at an elders' meeting. He said some things that nearly broke the minister's heart. Afterward he went home. The next morning the elder came down, and his wife said to him:

“Ye look sad, John; what is the matter with ye?”

“Ah,” he replied, “ye would look sad, too, if ye had such a dream as I had. I dreamed that I had been at the elders' meeting, and had said some hard things and grieved the minister, and when he went home I thought he died and went to heaven; and I thought afterward that I died, too, and went to heaven. and when I got to the gate out came the minister, and put out his hand to take me, saying:

“Come along, John, there's nae strife up here. I am happy to see ye.”

The elder went to his minister directly, to beg his pardon, and found he was dead. The elder was so stricken with the blow that two weeks afterward he also departed.

"And I should not wonder," said he who related the incident, "if he met the minister at heaven's gate, and heard him say, 'Come along, John; there's nae strife up here.'"

Saturday Night.

Placing the little hats all in a row,
Ready for church on the morrow, you know;
Washing wee faces and little black fists,
Getting them ready and fit to be kissed;
Putting them into clean garments and white;
That is what mothers are doing to-night.

Spying out holes in the little worn hose ;
 Laying by shoes that are worn through the toes •
 Looking o'er garments so faded and thin—
 Who but a mother knows where to begin ?
 Changing a button to make it look right—
 That is what mothers are doing to-night.

Calling the little ones all 'round her chair,
 Hearing them lisp forth their soft evening prayer ;
 Telling them stories of Jesus of old,
 Who loves to gather the lambs to his fold ;
 Watching, they listen with childish delight—
 That is what mothers are doing to-night.

Creeping so softly to take a last peep,
 After the little ones all are asleep ;
 Anxious to know if the children are warm,
 Tucking the blanket round each little form ;
 Kissing each little face, rosy and bright—
 That is what mothers are doing to-night.

Kneeling down gently beside the white bed,
 Lowly and meekly she bows down her head,
 Praying as only a mother can pray,
 "God guide and keep them from going astray."

The Hidden Treasure.

GOOD man entered a house and found it very wretched—no fire, no furniture, no food. Everything bore the appearance of utter poverty. But, glancing around, he saw in a neglected corner a copy of the Bible, and, when he went away, he said to the poor inmates:

"There is a treasure in this house that would make you all rich."

After he had gone the people began to search the house for what they thought must be a jewel or a pot of gold, and finding nothing, they went to dig up the very floor, in hopes of discovering the hidden store of wealth. All in vain. One day after that the mother lifted up the old Bible, and found written on the fly-leaf of it, taken from its own pages, these words:

"Thy testimonies are better to me than thousands of gold and silver."

"Ah!" she said, "can this be the treasure the stranger spoke of?" So she told her thought to the rest; they began to read the Bible, became changed in character, and a blessing came in to stay with them. The stranger came back to find poverty gone, contentment and peace in its place, and a hearty Christian welcome; while, with grateful joy, the family told him, "We found the treasure, and it has proved all that you said to us it would."

Comforters.

EVERY congregation has or ought to have a "grandmother." Ours had one—good, noble, determined, care-chastened Grandmother K. She had a heart big enough to mother the whole Church; and she came near doing it when we were in trouble. Talk about your "right-hand men" among the people! She was worth half a dozen of the best of them, because she had the art and discipline of comfort. God had worked at that woman for nearly seventy years to fit her for this work ; and she had received her diploma—she had graduated as a comforter. She had entered into God's joy ; for he is glad to be supremely known as the Comforter.

As torrents in summer,
Half-dried in their channels,
Suddenly rise, though the Sky is still cloudless,
For rain has been falling
Far off at their fountains.

So hearts that are fainting
Grow full to o'erflowing ;
And they that behold it
Marvel, and know not
That God at their fountains
Far off has been raining.

There is medicine in the bright faces and the joyous, bracing, tender tones of some people. Some are born scientists, some are born horticulturists, and so some are born comforters. They have it in their finger-tips ; it is the oil on their tongues. They know just how to get into the natures and wants of others. They do not meddle with your affairs, nor indulge curiosity ; they deal with you, not yours. The sun never can shine cold ; these people can never act or talk cold. They keep comfort always hot in the cauldron of their great natures. You cannot hide it from them that you have a care, while with a sweet wisdom they send balsam in where the wound is. And there are others who, whatever their other gifts, have none at all of comfort. Good Parson L. always comes into your sick-room with :

"Well, brother, they say you are sick. O! eh! ah! hum! well! eh! I'm sorry to hear it."

But isn't it wonderful, while he is stumbling over his sympathy, how Sister H. has slapped your pillow into comfort, "slicked" the room into a look of comfort, fixed you into a position of comfort, quiet, quick, decisive, a zephyr before and after her, and then,

"There, don't you feel more comfortable now?"

Of course! If I had the naming of you it should be Comfort Israel. Think of the train that followed Jesus—sick, blind, deaf, dumb, lame—all that needed a comforter.

The full character is a great character. It takes in wide sympathies, it cultivates a capacity to feel with others, to understand the poverty of the poor, the riches of the rich, the burden of the restricted, the pain of the lowly, so that out of a great treasure-house we can minister to others as they need.

We may talk independently and grandly ; but there is not one of us but at some time sits at a corner of life, hat in hand, heart-burdened, saying: "For Christ's sake, give me of your fellowship. Drop in the pence of kindly words, for I am very poor—my soul starves. Ah! not cold, formal comfort now, but just a word glowing full of tender sympathy. Show that you have faith in me ; show me that you love me as Jesus loves you"—because we need it.—Independent.

The Turning-Point.

JOHN WINTERS sat at his desk. It was half past five o'clock in the afternoon, and he was supposed to leave off work at six. But in fact he had already left off, for, though he remained on his seat, and even occasionally dipped his pen in the ink, he had not written a word for the last ten minutes. No one was in the office but himself on this occasion. The other clerks were generally called away to another part of the building for an hour before they left work. So no one was watching John, excepting the great God who always sees us. John did not think of him, or perhaps he would not so thoroughly have wasted that half hour as he did. He whistled softly to himself. Then with his pen he idly drew some comic figures on his waste paper. Then he tried to write a few couplets. Then he yawned several times. Then he laid his head on his hands, feeling almost inclined to go to sleep. And so the time was idled away until, looking at the clock, he saw with delight that it was ten minutes to six.

So he got off the stool and closed the books for the day, collected them together, and locked them up. Having done that, he did what, if he were alone at this time, he never omitted doing—he looked carefully about the floor.

He found, lying among scraps of paper, two bits of lead pencil, which he carefully put into his own pocket. He also found three envelopes, which he carefully put into a book which he also carried in his pocket. Then he searched again upon the floor and found eight postage-stamps, and these also he put in his pocket.

Was that right?

I am sure you will all decide that it was very wrong indeed.

John did not seem at all to think so, for no blush came into his face as he reached his cap and waited for the clock to strike

Then he presented himself before the manager.

"Shall I be wanted again this evening, sir?"

"No, Winters, I think not; good evening."

"Good evening, sir."

John went down the street, stopping now and then to speak to lads whom he knew. Presently he was accosted by a boy who lived near him.

"John, have you one or two good lead pencils to sell?"

"Yes, I have two bits," said John, taking the pieces from his pocket.

"How much are they?"

"I want a penny for the two."

"Do you? Why, I can get plenty of lead pencils, whole and new, for a half-penny each."

"Well, you shall have three envelopes as well, and I am sure that altogether it is a capital pennyworth."

"You will have to be a tradesman, John, you know so well how to do business," said the boy as he gave John the penny and received in exchange the envelopes and pieces of pencil.

John went on until he saw a boy who was living away from his friends, and often wrote letters.

"Dan," said John, "I have found some postage-stamps; will you buy them?"

"How many are there?"

"Eight; and I will let you have them for sixpence."

"Very well."

The exchange was made at once, and Dan went on. But a lad who had witnessed the transaction stopped to speak to John.

"John," he said, gently, "perhaps you will say it is no business of mine, but I cannot help thinking that you find a good many things."

"Well, what if I do?" said John, feeling his face grow rather red.

"Why, John, I don't want to make you cross, lad; but it seems strange that you should find so many more things than other people. I hope you do honestly find them."

"What do you mean?" said John, angrily. "I never offer to sell a thing which I have not really found on the ground."

"But if you find it on the ground of your master's premises it belongs to him, and not to you; and I think it is dishonest to take it."

"Do you mean to say that I am a thief?"

"No, I leave that for you to decide. But if your conscience tells you that it is not perfectly honest, leave off doing it, John. It would be such a pity for you to be spoiled for the want of conscientiousness."

Charles Norman spoke so frankly, and yet so gently, that John could not speak violently in return. As for John, he looked, as he felt, thoroughly uncomfortable. He hung his head, for he felt as if he did not care to meet the eyes of his friend.

"Shake hands, John, and then I shall know you forgive me, and I hope you will give a thought or two to what I have said."

John shook hands, and then hastened home. His mother noticed that he was very quiet, and thought he was unusually tired. So she boiled a new-laid egg, and put it before him.

"Here is a treat for you, my boy," she said. "Never mind being tired. Every one who does his work conscientiously must be weary sometimes, but you will feel better after you have had your tea."

John felt as if he did not deserve the egg, but he ate it up, and then went out.

"I am going across the fields for a walk, mother," he said.

"Go, my boy. I am sure it will do you good."

So it did; much more good than his mother guessed.

The words which both Charles Norman and his mother had used rang in John's ear as he walked. "Conscientiousness! Conscientiousness!"

"Ah!" sighed John, "that is what I lack. If not, I should never have acted as I have done."

He walked fast to try to shut out the thought that came next, but it forced itself into his mind, and he could not get away from it.

"I have been robbing my master, both of his time and his property."

This was the truth, and a very painful and humiliating truth John found it. He felt as if he hated himself. It was the turning-point in his history, however, for he made a good resolution there and then.

"I will never, never do it again as long as I live," he said presently. "I did not know how wicked I had been until Charles Norman's words told me. O God, help me, that I may be better in future!"

The next morning John went to his work, and there was no loitering all that day.

In the evening, when he went as usual to the manager's room, he made a confession.

"I feel that I have not been conscientious, sir, and I want you to know all about it."

"Tell me, then, John."

How he managed it John never knew, but with pain and shame he told the whole story, and gave up the money.

"I am very sorry for you, John," said the manager, "because you will not find it easy to forgive yourself, even if I forgive you. I will hope, however, that from to-day you will begin a new life, and never do such mean and wicked things again."

He never did. He soon convinced all about him that he might be trusted, although he had once nearly lost his good character.

He grew up a diligent, honest, conscientious man, and won the respect of all who knew him. God prospered him, and made him a rich man; but the pleasure that he felt in his riches was not spoiled by the thought that he had gained them by unjust means.

No one was more glad of his prosperity than his friend Charles Norman. He often congratulated him, and John frequently thanked him for being a real friend, and telling him the truth about himself at that critical time in his life.

Battle-Song of the Church.

FEAR not the foe, thou flock of God;
Fear not the sword, the spear, the rod;
Fear not the foe!

He fights in vain who fights with thee;
Soon shalt thou see his armies flee,
Himself laid low.

Come, cheer thee to the toil and fight;
'Tis God, thy God, defends the right;
He leads thee on.

His sword shall scatter every foe;
His shield shall ward off every blow;
The crown is won.

His is the battle, His the power,
His is the triumph in that hour;
In Him be strong:
So round thy brow the wreath shall twine;
So shall His victory be thine,
And thine the song.

Not long the sigh, the toil, the sweat;
Not long the fight-days' wasting heat;
The shadows come.

Slack not thy weapon in the fight;
Courage! for God defends the right;
Strike home! strike home!—Bonar.

Five Precious Words.

FIVE of the sweetest words in the English language begin with the letter H, which is only a breath: Heart, Home, Hope, Happiness, and Heaven. Heart is a hope-place, and home is a heart-place, and that man very sadly mistaketh who would exchange the happiness of home for any thing less than heaven.

Speak Tenderly.

THERE is a wonderful power in Christian tenderness. Harsh words are repelled; careless words are unheeded; fretful words patter like rain-drops on a close roof; witty words dazzle and tickle and are forgotten; but tender words go down deep into the bottom of the heart, and heal and soothe and bless.

Father Sewell and the Collection.

HE could not help being absent from the meeting, but his heart was there. His feet would have carried him down to the chapel two hours before, only duty forbade. As soon, however, as he had concluded his business, off the old gentleman walked, saying to himself, "I'm afraid I shall be too late, but I shall at least see how they have got on. The Lord grant a blessing on the meeting and the work in hand!"

It was Father Sewell—an Israelite indeed—the very image of Old Honest in Bunyan's Pilgrim. There had been a meeting to raise money for home mission work, and the collection had just been made when the old gentleman entered, and the deacons had brought all the plates into the table-pew. The pastor no sooner caught sight of his aged friend than he said:

"Our friend Mr. Sewell will, I am sure, close the meeting by offering prayer for God's blessing on the proceedings of this evening."

Father Sewell stood up, but he did not pray. He did not shut his eyes, but, on the contrary, seemed looking for something. He did not clasp his hands, but put them into his pockets and fumbled there with much perseverance.

"I am afraid," said the pastor, "that my brother did not understand me. Friend Sewell, I did not ask you to give, but to pray."

"Ay, ay," said the straightforward, bluff speaker, "but I could not pray till I had given. It would be hypocrisy to ask a blessing on that which I did not think worth giving to."

There was not a bit of ostentation in the old man; it was his honest heart pouring out its true feelings; and, odd as his behavior seemed, his conduct preached the whole congregation such a sermon as they will not soon forget.

Prayer unattended by effort is, before the Lord, as when the churl saith, "Be ye warmed and be ye filled," to a hungry man. It is a mockery, and no more. Clasp in supplication hands that have been free in offering. Let none of us appear before the Lord empty. To be allowed to give to the eternal God is an honor so great that none but brutish worldlings will decline it. If we are liberal in serving the Lord's cause with our substance, we may expect him to grant the prayers in which we ask him to establish the work of our hands upon us.—Spurgeon.

A Story of Faith.

DOCTOR F. W. KRUMMACHER relates of Rev. Mr. Henke this beautiful and simple story of faith:

A Christian friend came one day to this man of God, who unhesitatingly invited him to dine with him, although he knew not what he could set before him. When the bell rang at noon the servant passed several times through the room, with an anxious countenance, in order, unobservedly, to beckon her master out. Henke, however, was not aware of her meaning, and only reminded her, at last, that it was time to lay the cloth. The servant was perplexed, and requested her master to step out to her for a minute.

"Sir," she began, in a mournful voice, "you wish me to lay the cloth; but don't you know we have scarcely a piece of dry bread in the house, and you sent your last penny to a sick person this day!"

"Ah!" answered Henke, with a smile, "is that all you have to say to me? Do but lay the cloth as usual; it will be time enough for the meat when we sit down to the table."

The maid, not a little astonished, did as she was told.

"Let us take our seats," said the friendly host, with a cheerful countenance.

They sit down to the empty table, and the worthy, child-like man offers up a prayer. On his saying "Amen!" the door-bell is rung, and there is a basket with abundance of food, which a neighbor had felt constrained to send to him. Calmly, as if nothing particular had happened, Henke ordered all the dishes to be filled; and then, looking smilingly at the astonished servant, he said,

"Well, have you still any thing to object to our kind entertainer?"

These, says Dr. Krummacher, are valuable facts; but such things cannot be imitated. It is certainly easy to order the cloth to be laid; but nothing is accomplished by that. However, if you possess any thing of Henke's faith, then do not hesitate to order the cloth to be laid. A Royal Host will provide the feast.

Home.

FROM the shores of the summer sea,
 To the home where I fain would be,
 I lift my eyes when the morn is bright,
 And dream of its glory of golden light,
 Till I long for the call to come.
 The call to my own sweet home.

I think how the glad hosts sing
 In the land of the gracious King,
 And wave their palms in the sunny air,
 And rest by the rivers that sparkle there,
 And never shed bitter tears
 Through the whole of the blessed years.

O, home of the good and free,
 There is room in thy walls for me !
 I catch a glimpse of the distant spires,
 And my soul leaps up into strong desires
 To be in the land I love—
 The beautiful land above.

I think of the happy throng,
 I think of the sighless song;
 They sing altogether in sweet accord,
 Playing their harps before the Lord ;
 And they gaze in the Saviour's face,
 So fair in its tender grace.

But I am a stranger yet,
 Though the blessed tribes have met
 In the promised land and beyond the gate;
 I am tired and lonely, but still I wait
 Till I finish the work I do,
 And the Father shall call me too.

"The First Fruit."

LITTLE girl was once made the owner of the grapes upon a large vine in her father's yard. Very anxious was she that they should ripen and be fit to eat. The time came. "Now for a feast," said her brother to her one morning as he pulled some beautiful ones for her to eat.

"I cannot eat these," said she, "for they are the first ripe fruit."

"Well, all the more reason for our making a feast, for they are the greatest treat."

"Yes, but they are the first ripe fruit."

"Well, what of that?"

"Dear father told me that he used to give God the first out of all the money he made, and that then he always felt happier in spending the rest; and I wish to give the first of my grapes to God, too."

"Ah, but," said her brother, "how can you give grapes to God? And even if you were able to do such a thing he would not care for them."

"O, I have found out the way," said she. "Jesus said, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me,' [Matt. xxv, 40]; and I mean to go with them to Mrs. Martin's dying child, who never sees a grape, they are so poor."

And away ran this Christian girl with a large basket of the "first fruit" of the vine and other good things, all beautifully arranged. to the couch of the dying child.

"I've brought Mary some ripe fruit, which I hope will please you," said our little philanthropist to Mrs. Martin.

"Dearest child, may God bless you a thousand fold for your loving gift! Here, Mary, do see what a basket of good things has been brought you."

The sick one was almost overcome with emotion as she clasped the hand of her young benefactress and whispered, "I will love you in heaven for this."

“It is Dark.”

T

HERE come seasons of darkness in all our lives—times when there are neither sun nor moon nor stars in the sky, and we stand still in fear, or grope tremblingly.

A few years ago there fell upon my life one of these seasons, in which I could see neither to the right nor the left. A terror of darkness was upon me.

One night I lay awake, thinking, thinking, until my brain grew wild with uncertainty. I could not see a step in advance, and feared to move onward lest, with the next footfall, I should plunge into hopeless ruin. Very strongly was I tempted to turn aside from the way in which I was going—a way reason and conscience approved as right; but something held me back. Again and again I took up and considered the difficulties of my situation, looking to the right hand and the left for ways of extrication; now inclining to go in this direction, and now in that; yet always held away from resolve by inner convictions of right and duty, that grew clear at the moment when I was ready to give up my hold on integrity.

So the hours went, heavy-footed, until past midnight. My little daughter was sleeping in the crib beside my bed. But now she began to move uneasily, and presently her timid voice broke faintly on the still air.

“Papa! papa!” she called.

“What is it, darling?” I asked.

“O papa! It is dark! Take Nellie’s hand!”

I reached out my hand and took her tiny one in my own, clasping it firmly. A sigh of relief came up from her little heart. All her loneliness and fear were gone, and in a few moments she was sound asleep again.

“O my Father in heaven!” I cried, in a sudden, almost wild, outburst of feeling. “It is dark, very dark. Take my hand!”

A great peace fell upon me. The terror of darkness was gone. “Keep hold of my hand, O my Father!” I prayed fervently; “and though I should be called to walk through the valley and the shadow of death, I will fear no evil. Let not my feet wander to the right nor to the left.”

Sleep fell softly on my eyelids, and morning broke with scarce a seeming interval of time. I felt calm and strong. The day was to be one of severe trial. Dark uncertainty rested over it. But I was resolved to walk steadily through its trials and its pains, holding tightly the hand of my Father.

O, is not the Lord better to us, if we will trust him, than all our fears? There came fierce assaults upon my integrity; I was lured by golden promises; I was threatened with disaster and disgrace; but my hand lay in the firm clasp of One who sticketh closer than a brother, and who is strong to save.

Religion in Business.

SURELY, sir, you would not overcharge us because we are ignorant of the market value of these geraniums?"

"No, miss; I learned long ago that 'honesty is the best policy'—the best for the pocket as well as for the heart. If I were to overcharge you I should be certain to lose your patronage hereafter, and that of your friends, and that, also, of their friends. Besides, Conscience demands integrity in business."

"We are glad to know you are a Christian, sir."

"Alas, my young friends, some professing Christians are not honest; their religion is a sham, unless they carry it into their business. I read this morning a beautiful incident in point, and I will repeat it to you. A poor old crippled cobbler was asked about his spiritual state. 'Ah, master,' he answered, 'I am nothing but a poor cobbler. I can't even make a decent shoe, but I feel, when I sit here and work on my bench, that the good Master is looking at me. When I take a stitch, it ~~is~~ a stitch; and when I put on a heel-tap, it is not paper, but good leather.' Whatever he did he did heartily, as unto the Lord."

Courage at the Last.

THE excellent Sir William Forbes, the biographer of Beattie, uttered this: "Tell those," said he, "that are drawing down to the bed of death, from my experience, that it has no terrors; that in the hour when it is most wanted there is mercy with the Most High; and that some change takes place which fits the soul to meet its God."

When the loyal Earl of Derby came to his execution, although he had said, in previous times, that he could die in fight, but knew not how it might be on the scaffold, he now said he could lay his head on the block as cheerfully as on his pillow.

"Let my people know," said the pious Archdeacon Aylmer, "that their pastor died undaunted, and not afraid of death. I bless my God that I have no fear, no doubt, no reluctance, but an assured confidence in the sin-overcoming merit of Jesus Christ."

So said President Finley: "Give my love to the people of Princeton; tell them that I am going to die, and that I am not afraid of death."

"O, do not fear to die!" said Mrs. East, in dying; "you will find the word of God sure; all will be fulfilled, and you will find it so."

These were the words of Haliburton: "I, a poor, weak, timorous man, once as much afraid of death as any—I, that have been many years under the terror of death, come now, in the mercy of God, and the power of his grace, composedly and with joy to look death in the face."

The Infidel Answered.

SIR ISAAC NEWTON had among his acquaintances a philosopher who was an Atheist. It is well known that the illustrious Sir Isaac, who takes the first rank as a mathematician, natural philosopher, and astronomer, was at the same time a Christian. He had in his study a celestial globe, on which was an excellent representation of the constellations and the stars which compose them. His atheistic friend, having come to visit him one day, was struck with the beauty of this globe. He approached it, examined it, and admiring the work, turned to Newton and said to him, "Who made it?" "No one!" replied the celebrated philosopher. The Atheist understood, and was silent.

A Poor Man's Wish.

ASKED a student what three things he most wished. He said, "Give me books, health, and quiet, and I care for nothing else."

I asked a miser, and he cried, "Money, money, money!"

I asked a pauper, and he faintly said, "Bread, bread, bread!"

I asked a drunkard, and he loudly called for strong drink.

I asked a multitude around me, and they lifted up a loud cry in which I confusedly heard the words, "Wealth, fame, and pleasure."

I asked a poor man, who had long borne the character of an experienced Christian. He replied that all his wishes might be met in Christ. He spoke seriously, and I asked him to explain. He said, "I greatly desire these three things: first, that I may be found in Christ; secondly, that I may be like Christ; thirdly, that I may be with Christ."

I have thought much of his answer, and the more I think of it the wiser it seems.

Lay Preaching.

AID an American minister, "I want to tell you what a layman did for me in Greenfield, Mass. I was only sixteen years old. My mother had died the previous December. I was driving the cows home toward evening through a slight rain. A man with an umbrella overtook me, and holding it over me, said:

"My boy, these are fine cows."

"Yes," said I, "they are fine."

"Why, that one with the short horns and broad back is a Durham."

"His interest in what interested me won me. After awhile he asked:

"Have you got a mother?"

"No, sir," said I; "she died last winter."

"What was the last thing she said?"

"O, sir, the last thing that she said was: "May God have mercy on these children!"

"Well, my boy, aint you a Christian?"

"No, sir."

"Why aint you?"

"I expect it is because I love sin so much."

"Fixing his eyes earnestly on mine and shifting his umbrella so as to grasp my hand with his right hand, he said:

"What, my boy, and you not a Christian!"

"No, sir," said I, with streaming eyes, "but I want to be."

"And then he talked with me so gently and kindly that I shall never forget it. O, the preaching of a seasonable word! It was lay preaching."

The Books of the Bible.

IN GENESIS the world was made;

In EXODUS the march is told;

LEVITICUS contains the law;

In NUMBERS are the tribes enrolled.

In DEUTERONOMY again

We're urged to keep God's law alone;
And these five books of Moses make
The oldest writings that are known.

Brave JOSHUA to Canaan leads;

In JUDGES oft the Jews rebel;
We read of David's name in RUTH
And FIRST and SECOND SAMUEL.

In FIRST and SECOND KINGS we read
How bad the Hebrew State became;
In FIRST and SECOND CHRONICLES
Another history of the same.

In EZRA captive Jews return,
And NEHEMIAH builds the wall;
Queen ESTHER saves her race from death;
These books "historical" we call.

In JOB we read of patient faith;
The PSALMS are David's song of praise;
The PROVERBS are to make us wise;
ECCLESIASTES next portrays

How fleeting earthly pleasures are;
The SONG of SOLOMON is all
About the love of Christ; and these Five books "devotional" we call.

ISAIAH tells of Christ to come,
While JEREMIAH tells of woe,
And in his LAMENTATIONS mourns
The Holy City's overthrow.

EZEKIEL speaks of mysteries,
And DANIEL foretells kings of old;
HOSEA calls men to repent;
In JOEL blessings are foretold.

AMOS tells of wrath; and Edom

OBADIAH's sent to warn;

While JONAH shows that Christ should die,
And MICAH where he should be born.

In NAHUM Nineveh is seen;

In HABAKKUK Chaldea's guilt;
In ZEPHANIAH Judah's sins;
In HAGGAI the temple's built.

ZECHARIAH speaks of Christ,

And MALACHI of John his sign.
The prophets number seventeen,
And all the books are thirty-nine.

MATTHEW, MARK, and LUKE, and JOHN
Tell what Christ did in every place;
ACTS shows what the apostles did,
And ROMANS how we're saved by grace.

CORINTHIANS instructs the Church;

GALATIANS shows us faith alone;
EPHESIANS Christian love; and in
PHILIPPIANS God's grace is shown.

COLOSSIANS tells us more of Christ,
And THESSALONIANS of the end;
In TIMOTHY and TITUS both
Are rules for pastors to attend.

PHILEMON Christian friendship shows;
Then HEBREWS clearly tells how all
The Jewish law prefigured Christ;
And these epistles are by Paul.

JAMES shows that faith by works must live,
And PETER urges steadfastness;
While JOHN exhorts to Christian love,
For those who have it God will bless.

JUDE shows the end of evil men,
And REVELATION tells of heaven;
This ends the whole New Testament,
And all the books are twenty-seven.

Daily Secret Prayer.

E mindful of daily secret prayer," was the advice given by an aged minister to a young friend who came to him for advice.

"But I am in business."

"No matter; you can find time for secret, earnest devotion."

"But my business so presses upon me, overwhelming me at times, for hours together, that I cannot retire for secret prayer."

"You can engage the more earnestly in such prayer before business opens in the morning, and after it closes at night. Besides, you can be much in the spirit of prayer during your business hours. In spirit, in heart, you can often look up for Divine guidance and help during the day."

"I will try it."

"Do so. God will help you. His promises are sure, and apply to men of business as to all others. Never, never forget or neglect secret prayer."

"The Zeal which Conquers."

SOME years ago Dr. Duff, the eloquent and returned missionary, was addressing a great meeting in Edinburgh. He pleaded long and earnestly for men for the work in India. Overcome by fatigue, he fainted in the midst of his speech and was carried away. When he recovered he said,

"I was speaking for India, was I not?"

And they said he was.

"Take me back, that I may finish my speech."

Notwithstanding the entreaties of those around he insisted on returning, and they brought him back. He then said, "Is it true that we have been sending appeal after appeal for young men to go to India, and none of our sons have gone? Is it true, Mr. Moderator, that Scotland has no more sons to give to the Lord Jesus? If true, although I have spent twenty-five years there, and lost my constitution—if it is true that Scotland has no more sons to give, I will be off to-morrow, and go to the shores of the Ganges, and there be a witness for Christ."

Such enthusiasm as this is what the Church needs. Then will Christianity go through the world and teach men by hundreds and thousands.

Just There Now.

CHRISTIAN man was dying in Scotland. His daughter Nellie sat by the bedside. It was Sunday evening, and the bell of the Scotch kirk was ringing, calling the people to church. The good old man in his dying dream thought that he was on the way to church, as he used to be when he went in the sleigh across the river; and as the evening bell struck up, in his dying dream he thought it was the call to church. He said, "Hark, children, the bells are ringing; we shall be late; we must make the mare step out quick!" He shivered, and then said, "Pull the buffalo robe up closer, my lass! It is cold crossing the river, but we will soon be there!" And he smiled and said,

"Just there now."

No wonder he smiled. The good old man had got to church. Not the old Scotch kirk, but the temple in the skies. Just across the river.

How comfortably did God hush the old man to sleep! As one whom his mother comforteth, so God comforted him.

The Triumph of Age.

OVER the river—almost over!" said a veteran minister of ninety years; "but the passage is delightful; my Saviour is on board."

"I am on the bright side of seventy," said an aged Christian, "the bright side, because nearer to everlasting glory."

"Nature fails," said another, "but I am happy."

"My work is done," said the Countess of Huntingdon when eighty-four years old, "I have nothing to do but to go to my Father."

To an humble Christian it was remarked, "I fear you are near another world." "Fear it, sir!" he replied, "I know I am; but, blessed be the Lord! I do not fear it, I hope it."

"One Hundred and Seventeen Years."

THREE or four years ago an aged colored man in Michigan (he had reached the extraordinary age of one hundred and seventeen years) passed away. His life had been one of marked piety and faithfulness, and his death was one of Christian triumph. His pastor subsequently furnished numerous interesting incidents connected with his happy experience in his extreme age.

"One day," said his pastor, while he was at work in his garden singing and shouting, I said:

"You seem happy to-day?"

"Yes, massa, I's jus' tinkin'!"

"What are you thinking of?"

"O, I's jus' tinkin'," (and then his emotions prevented utterance,) "I's jus' tinkin' dat ef de crumbs dat fall from de Master's table in dis world am so good, what will de GREAT LOAF in glory be! I tells ye, massa, da will be nuff an' to spare dare."

At another time, when he seemed very happy, and I had heard him shout, "Lord Jesus, will dere be one for me?"

I said, "You are having a good time to-day."

He answered, "O, massa, I was meditatatin' about Jesus bein' de carpenter, an' so he can make mansions for his people in glory." And then, with uplifted face and with tears, he cried out, "O, Jesus, will dar be one for me?"

Once, after hearing him pray and sing at midnight while a thunderstorm was passing, in the morning I said, "Was that you shouting so last night?"

"Yes, massa, I s'pose."

"Well, I thought the thunder made noise enough without your hallooing."

He looked up, and with astonishment said, "Massa, do you tink I's goin' to lie dere on my bed like a great pig when de Lord com'd along shakin' de earth and de heavens? No, massa; when I hears de thunder comin' I says, 'Ellen, Ellen, wake up here, we's goin' to hear from home agin.'"

One morning, when I had heard him for an hour or two, I went carefully to his door and saw him sitting at the end of his table with a humble repast before him, while his hands were lifted high in gratitude and praise. I said, "You seem happy this morning."

"O yes; Ellen went away to her work, and so I gets me breakfast an' den begins to say grace, an' O, massa, de Lord am so good, seems I neber will be done sayin' grace!"

What a rebuke to those who sit down to their loaded tables with no thought of their Benefactor! Once, after he had been ill for a few days, I said,

"Uncle Johnson, I thought your appointed time had about come."

"O yes, massa; one day I t'ought I could see de dust of de chariot comin' ober de mountains; an' den something said, 'Hold on, Johnson, a little longer; I'll come round directly.' Yes, and I will hold on, ef de Lord will, anoder hundred years, for I'm bound for Canaan."

One day Rev. Dr. H. called on him with me. After conversation, which surely the doctor will never forget, he said, "Well, Uncle Johnson, I must go," and then taking him by the hand, said, "Good-bye. I shall probably hear soon that you have gone over Jordan, but we will follow on." The old man replied:

"Yes, massa, a great many years ago young men like you tell me dat; and den, after a bit, I'd hear dey ha' gone, and I'm a pilgrim yet, but I always manages to send word."

"Well, if I should die first what word would you send?" said Dr. H.

"O, massa, if you get home to glory afore I do, (weeping,) tell 'em to keep de table standin', for Johnson is holding on his way."

A complete sketch, of which the above is an extract, is furnished in the new and beautiful gift-book for old folks, published by Nelson & Phillips, 805 Broadway, New York, and by Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, and entitled, "Three-score Years and Beyond; or, Experiences of the Aged." It may be obtained at any of the Methodist Book Depositories. See page 82.

Doing Good to Enemies.

PAY in kindness," was the advice of an aged minister when appealed to by a member of his Church concerning the evil treatment received from a neighbor. Here is a good incident in point:

The horse of a pious man living in Massachusetts, happening to stray into the road, a neighbor of the man who owned the horse put him into the pound. Meeting the owner soon afterward, he told him what he had done.

"And if I catch him in the road again," said he, "I'll do it again."

"Neighbor," replied the other, "not long since I looked out of my window in the night and saw your cattle in my meadow, and I drove them out and shut them in your yard; and if I again find them there I'll do it again."

Struck with the reply, the man liberated the horse from the pound and paid the charges himself. "A soft answer turneth away wrath."

Little Things.

SPRINGS are little things, but they are sources of large rivers and lakes; a helm is a little thing, but it governs the course of a ship; nails, screws, pins, and pegs are little things, but large things could scarcely be constructed without them. A word, a look, a frown, a smile, a tear, are all apparently little things, but they exert mighty influence.

Come Unto Me.

COME to the clear deep river, come where the pastures call;
Give to the great good Giver the trust that is thy all.
From want eternal fleeing, come to an endless store;
Bring thy whole famished being, for he wants nothing more.

He will not now refuse thee, weak hand and vision dim,
For something he will use thee, but first thou wantest him.
The spirit worn with staying, will find his judgment best;
O, hear what he is saying, and yield thyself to rest.
For one transporting minute the beckoning word obey;
There is a power within it to bear thee on the way.
The voice of mercy speaking is God the Saviour's might,
And all thy heart is seeking lies safely in its light.

The Methodist Episcopal Church—Annual Statistics.

THE following are the annual summaries of numbers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, carefully compiled from the official returns as published in the General Minutes. The numbers of Local Preachers were not reported separate from the numbers of the Lay-membership until 1837. We find no official returns of numbers until the first Conference was held, namely, in Philadelphia, 1773. At this date of compiling:

* By the withdrawal and separation of Southern Conferences in 1844, organizing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Episcopal Church lost 1,345 Traveling Preachers, 3,166 Local Preachers, and 495,288 members. This fact explains the great falling off in the statistics of 1846. So rapid was the growth during the decade, that at its close (two years after the separation) there was a net gain of 654 preachers, and a lack of only 5,574 members of making up the number lost.

Colored M. E. Church, South.

THE Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America was organized by order of the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, December 16, 1870. The new Church consists of the colored preachers and members heretofore belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Two Bishops were elected—Rev. William H. Miles, of Kentucky, and Rev. R. H. Vanderhorst, of Georgia. The "Christian Index," edited by Rev. Samuel Watson, at Memphis, Tenn., was adopted as the organ of the new Church, and Rev. L. J. Scurlock was elected Assistant Editor and Book Agent.

This Church had at first about 13,000 members. The structure of the new Church conforms in all essential particulars to that of the M. E. Church, South, in doctrine, discipline, and economy. The organization is now entirely independent of the M. E. Church, South, though in sympathy with it and fostered by it, and does not admit white members into its membership,

How to Acquire Title to Government Lands.

THERE are two classes of public lands subject to entry: one at $1 25 per acre, known as minimum, and one at $2 50, known as double minimum, the latter being the alternate sections along the lines of railroads. Title may be acquired by purchase at public sale, or by "private entry," and in virtue of the Pre-emption and Homestead laws.

Private Entry.—Lands subject to private entry are those which have been once offered at public sale without finding purchasers. In order to acquire title to these lands, a written application must be made to the Land Register of the district in which the land is located, describing the tract desired. The Register certifies the fact to the Receiver, stating price, and the applicant then pays the money and takes a receipt, and at the close of the month the Register and Receiver make return of the sale to the General Land Office, when a patent or full title issues on due surrender of the receipt, and will be delivered, at the option of the purchaser, at the General Land Office in Washington or by the Register of the District Land Office.

Land Warrants.—When lands are to be located with land warrants, application must be made as in cash cases, accompanied by an assigned warrant. When the tract is $2 50 per acre, $1 25 per acre must be paid in addition to the warrant. Receipts are given and patents delivered as in the preceding case. At the time of location a fee of fifty cents for a forty-acre warrant, and a corresponding amount for larger ones, must be paid to the Register, and a like sum to the Receiver.

Agricultural College Scrip.—This may be used in the location of lands at private entry, but is only applicable to lands subject to entry at $1 25 per acre, and is restricted to a technical "quarter section" and to three sections in each township of land.

Pre-emptions.—Any person being the head of a family, or widow, or single man over twenty-one years of age, and a citizen of the United States, or a person who has filed his declaration to become such, by settling upon and improving any of the "offered," "unoffered," or unsurveyed land of the United States, may obtain a pre-emption right to purchase one hundred and sixty acres so occupied at the regular Government price, whether it be $1 25 or $2 50 per acre. Where the tract is "offered" land, the settler must file with the District Land Office his statement as to the fact of settlement within thirty days thereafter, and within one year must make proof to the Land Office of his actual residence and cultivation, and secure the land by payment in cash or land warrant. Where the land has been surveyed and not offered at public sale, the statement must be filed within three months after settlement, and payment made within twenty-one months. Where settlement is made upon unsurveyed lands, the settler must file statement within three months after the survey, and pay within eighteen months thereafter. No person is entitled to more than one pre-emption right.

The Homestead Privilege.—The Homestead laws give to every citizen the right to a homestead of one hundred and sixty acres minimum, or eighty acres double minimum. To obtain homestead, applicant must swear that he is the head of a family, or over the age of twenty-one, a citizen, or has declared his intention to become such; and that the entry is for his exclusive use and benefit, and for actual settlement and cultivation. When an applicant has made actual settlement upon the land he desires, he must make affidavit of the fact before the Land Register, and pay fees amounting on one hundred and sixty acres of minimum land to eighteen dollars, or an equal sum for eighty acres of double minimum, for which he gets a receipt; and after five years' occupation and cultivation of the land, he is entitled upon proof of such cultivation to a patent or full title to the homestead. Any loyal person in the naval or military service of the United States may acquire a homestead by reason of his family occupying land and making the application in his stead. All officers, soldiers, and sailors who have served in the army or navy for ninety days and remained loyal, may enter one hundred and sixty instead of eighty acres of double minimum lands. The fees above for entering homestead apply to surveyed lands in the various States except to those in California, Nevada, Oregon, Colorado, New Mexico, Washington Territory, Arizona, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, and Montana, in which the fees are $22 instead of $18. A settler having filed a pre-emption declaration may change his filing into homestead, and receive the benefit of the Homestead laws. If a homestead settler does not wish to remain five years on his land before obtaining title, he may pay for it in cash or land warrants. Lands obtained under the Homestead laws are exempt from liability for debts contracted prior to the issuing of the patent.

In the letters above named was found over $92,000 cash, and drafts, checks, etc., to the value of $3,000,000.

New York prints twice as many newspapers as any other State—492,770,868 copies annually, all told. Pennsylvania prints 233,380,532; Massachusetts, 107,691,952; Illinois, 102,636,204; Ohio, 93,592,448; and California, 45,869,408.

There are manufactured in the United States over 2,250,000 packages of pins per annum. Each one of these packages should contain 3,300 pins, giving the enormous amount of 7,425,000,000 pins made annually. One factory alone in Boston turns out eight tons of pins per week. There is good deal of pin money in the business.

The complete census returns of the United States show the total population to be 38,558,371, of which 19,493,565 are males, and 19,064,806 females. Thus it appears that we are only a little more numerous than the Japanese. By the census taken at the end of last year, it appears that they number a little over 37,000,000.

Two hundred and fifty million dollars were spent in this country last year for chewing tobacco, snuff, and cigars, while about $200,000,000 were spent for flour. During the year we consumed liquors costing about $600,000,000. It thus appears that we spend more than four times as much for tobacco and strong drink as we do for bread.

The number of children in the United States under five years old is 5,513,343, of which 2,797,887 are male, and 2,717,456 female. The male children, from five to nine inclusive, are 2,437,442, and female, 2,377,271; total, 4,814,713. The number of male inhabitants of all ages under twenty-one is 10,050,563; female, 9,976,307; total, 20,026,870.

While coal has risen to an exorbitant price in England because it is reported that the field of this mineral fuel in that country will probably be exhausted in one hundred and twenty years, the Chinese coal fields recently discovered cover an area of 400,000 square miles. These are capable of supplying the whole world for thousands of years at the present rate of consumption.

Under the returns made by the census it appears that in addition to the 63,314,627 gallons of home-made spirits, and 7,159,740 barrels of fermented liquors on which taxes were paid in 1871, there were imported of wine, 9,788,983 gallons, and 431,562 dozen bottles; of spirits, 2,629,326 gallons, and 123,667 dozen bottles; and of malt liquors, 832,431 gallons. It appears, furthermore, that the consumers put about $500,000,000 every year into the pockets of the dealers. The proportion of those licensed to sell liquor is about one in every two hundred and fifty of the population.

In 1776 the area of the States were only a little more than 800,000 square miles. The wild lands bordering on the original thirteen, and owned by them, was their magnificent gift to the nation—300,000,000 of acres. Soon followed the Louisiana purchase, which added nearly a million square miles to Uncle Sam's farm. Next we acquired Florida, with its 60,000, and Texas with its 240,000 square miles. In 1846, by the treaty with Great Britain, we gained 300,000, and in 1848, 650,000 square miles of California and New Mexico. Our last and most unprofitable acquisition of territory was in 1867, when we bought Alaska for $7,000,000. Thus, it will be seen, our territory is seven times greater than it was at the birth of the nation.

From the American Newspaper Directory for 1872, which has just been issued, it appears that there are in this country 507 dailies, 105 tri-weeklies, 110 semi-weeklies, 4,750 weeklies, 21 bi-weeklies, 91 semi-monthlies, 685 monthlies, 4 bi-monthlies, and 55 quarterlies—total, 6,432 periodicals. Florida is the only State without a daily. There are 663 papers claiming over 5,000 circulation each. Of religious papers there are over 300; of papers devoted to agriculture, etc., 105; medicine and surgery, 75; education, 95; commerce and finance, 76; insurance, 25; real estate, 43; science and mechanics, 54; law, 23; sporting, 13; and music, 23. The Free Masons have 25 periodicals, the Odd Fellows 10; the woman suffragists keep 5 "organs" going, and the temperance reformers 43. Of periodicals printed in German there are 238; French, 23; Scandinavian, 12; Spanish, 8; Hollandish, 6; Italian, 5; Welsh, 3; Bohemian, 6; Portuguese, 1, and Cherokee, 1.

Health Hints.

WARM bread "packs" the stomach. Don't eat it.

The best and safest tooth-wash in the world is tepid water.

Two sick persons should not occupy the same room at the same time.

A comfortable bed is a great boon in the direction of health and comfort.

Sound, ripe fruit is healthful. Apples are among the best articles of food.

Warmth, abstinence, and repose are three excellent medicines. Why not use them?

In sleeping don't "curl" the body. Sleep as straight as possible. Avoid high pillows.

Never sit or sleep with cold feet. No more important health-rule than this could be suggested.

A mixed diet of animal and vegetable food is the best; the vegetable portion should predominate.

No more food should be introduced into the stomach, during sickness, than the appetite demands.

Regularity of time in eating has much to do with the preservation of health. Do not eat late suppers.

All sleeping rooms should be thoroughly ventilated. The bedding should be often changed and kept well aired.

Water standing for some time in a room becomes impure, by absorbing noxious vapors from the air. Drink fresh water.

"Hay Fever" may be instantly relieved by bathing the nostrils and closed eyelids with spirits of camphor and warm water.

Whoever eats "heavy" pie-crust or "soggy" bread, commits a crime against his physical well-being, and must pay the penalty.

Thoroughly cleanse the cellar. Ventilate it from without, summer and winter. Suffer no decayed vegetables to remain in it.

The average life of seamen is longer than that of persons whose vocations are upon land. The sea air is pure, appetizing, and bracing.

Colds are often "caught" by standing in an open hall or doorway during cold weather. The transition of the cold and warm currents causes the trouble.

An eminent physician thinks that more than thirty thousand deaths are caused annually by tight-lacing. When will this terrible evil be averted?

Wet or damp clothes should be instantly removed. "Why?" Because they rapidly chill the surface of the body, the heat being carried off by evaporation.

Music has a great curative power. An eminent physician says that sweet, gentle music (not sighs and sobs) might frequently save the life of a dying man.

Houses are often rendered sickly by the foul air from the kitchen sinks. The greatest care should be used to keep the sink and other parts of the kitchen pure.

Sunlight is an element of cheerfulness. Do let it into the sick-chamber. Often put the patient into the sun-bath (the direct rays) and note the good effect. Remember that plants in the dark become sickly. Let in the sunlight.

Thousands of persons have been permanently relieved of "sick headache" by giving up the use of tea. Let the patient try it thoroughly for four weeks and "see."

When sick headache is caused by a bad stomach, it will generally be relieved by drinking a tea-cupful of warm water every five minutes until the stomach is filled, and then tickling the throat with a feather or the finger until the contents of the stomach are thrown up. If the headache is caused by "nervousness," sitting in warm water fifteen minutes will generally bring relief. The warm water brings the heat of the body to the surface, and thus relieves the brain and internal organs.

Convenient Home Directions.

STAINS FROM ACIDS can be removed by spirits of hartshorn diluted. Repeat if necessary.

MILDEWEED LINEN may be restored by soaping the spots; while wet, covering them with fine chalk scraped to powder, and well rubbed in.

MEDICINE STAINS may be removed from silver spoons by rubbing them with a rag dipped in sulphuric acid, and washing it off with soap-suds.

TO REMOVE PAINT STAINS FROM WINDOWS.—Melt some soda in very hot water and wash them with it, using a soft flannel. It will entirely remove the paint.

TO CLEAN KNIVES.—Cut a small potato in two; dip one half in brick dust and rub the knives, and rust and stain will disappear like magic from their surfaces.

TO CLEAN FURS.—Shake and whip them well; then brush; boil some flax seed; dip a rag in the water and wipe them slightly. This makes them look nearly as good as new.

TO GET RID OF ANTS.—Wash the shelves with salt and water; sprinkle salt in their paths. To keep out of safes: Set the legs of the safe in tin cups; keep the cups filled with water.

TO WASH OIL-CLOTHS.—Take equal parts of skimmed milk and water; wipe dry; never use soap. Varnish them once a year. After being varnished they should be perfectly dry before using.

TO IMPROVE GILDING.—Mix a gill of water with two ounces of purified niter, one ounce of alum, one ounce of common salt; lay this over gilt articles with a brush, and their color will be much improved.

TO REMOVE IRON RUST.—Dip the rusty spots in a solution of tartaric or citric acid; or wet the spots with lemon juice and rub on hard white soap, expose it to the heat; or apply lemon juice and salt, and expose to the sun.

CLEANING TIN WARE.—An experienced housekeeper says the best thing for cleaning tin ware is common soda. She gives the following directions: "Dampen a cloth and dip in soda and rub the ware briskly, after which wipe dry. Any blackened ware can be made to look as well as new."

SOFTENING OLD PUTTY.—In removing old broken panes from a window, it is generally very difficult to get off the dry, hard putty, that sticks around the glass and its frame. To obviate this, dip a small brush in nitric or muriatic acid, and go over the putty with it. Let it rest awhile, and it will soon become so soft that you can remove it with ease.

BEDBUGS.—One who has tried it gives this way of exterminating the repulsive bedbug: "If any of your readers need a sure remedy for bedbugs they can have mine, and cleanse the house of this troublesome vermin without expense. They have only to wash with salt water, filling the cracks where they frequent with salt, and you may look in vain for them."

FURNITURE POLISH.—One pint of linseed oil, one wine-glass of alcohol; mix well together; apply to the cloth with a linen rag; rub dry with a soft cotton cloth, and polish with a silk cloth. Furniture is improved by washing it occasionally with soap-suds. Wipe dry and rub over with a very little linseed oil upon a clean sponge or flannel. Wipe polished furniture with silk.

AN ANT TRAP.—Procure a large sponge, wash it well and press it dry, which will leave the cells quite open. Then sprinkle over it some fine white sugar, and place it near where the ants are most troublesome. They will soon collect upon the sponge and take up their abode in the cells. It is then only necessary to dip the sponge in scalding water, which will wash them out dead. Put on more sugar, and set the trap for a new haul.

TO CLEAN MARBLE.—Wash with water, soda, and beef-gall; or mix together one part of blue stone, three parts whiting, one part soda, and three parts soft soap; boil together ten minutes; stir constantly. Spread this over the marble; let it lie half an hour; wash it off with soap-suds, wipe it dry with flannel. Repeat if necessary. Stains that cannot be removed in any other way may be tried with oxalic water; but this should be used carefully, and not be allowed to remain long at a time.

Business Law.

THE following compilation of business law is worth a careful preservation, as it contains the essence of a large amount of legal verbiage:

A note made on Sunday is void.

Contracts made on Sunday cannot be enforced.

A note by a minor is void.

A contract made with a minor is void.

A contract made with a lunatic is void.

A note obtained by fraud, or from a person in a state of intoxication, cannot be collected.

It is a fraud to conceal a fraud.

If a note is lost or stolen, it does not release the maker; he must pay it, if the consideration for which it was given and the amount can be proven.

Notes bear interest only when so stated.

Principals are responsible for the acts of their agents.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm, except in cases of special partnership.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

The law compels no one to do impossibilities.

An agreement without consideration is void.

Signatures made with a lead pencil are good in law.

A receipt for money is not always conclusive.

The acts of one partner bind all the rest.

"Value received" is usually written in a note, and should be, but is not necessary. If not written it is presumed by the law, or may be supplied by proof.

The maker of an "accommodation" bill or note (one for which he has received no consideration, having lent his name or credit for the accommodation of the holder) is not bound to the person accommodated, but is bound to all other parties, precisely as if there was a good consideration.

No consideration is sufficient in law if it be illegal in its nature.

Checks or drafts must be presented for payment without unreasonable delay.

Checks or drafts should be presented during business hours; but in this country, except in the case of banks, the time extends through the day and evening.

If the drawee of a check or draft has changed his residence, the holder must use due or reasonable diligence to find him.

If one who holds a check as payee or otherwise, transfers it to another, he has a right to insist that the check be presented that day, or, at farthest, on the day following.

A note indorsed in blank (the name of the indorser only written) is transferable by delivery, the same as if made payable to bearer.

If the time of payment of a note is not inserted, it is held payable on demand.

The time of payment of a note must not depend upon a contingency. The promise must be absolute.

A bill may be written upon any paper, or substitute for it, either with ink or pencil.

The payee should be distinctly named in the note, unless it is payable to bearer.

An indorsee has a right of action against all whose names were on the bill when he received it.

If the letter containing a protest of non-payment be put into the post-office, any miscarriage does not affect the party giving notice.

Notice of protest may be sent either to the place of business or of residence of the party notified.

The loss of a bill or note is not sufficient excuse for not giving notice of protest.

The holder of a note may give notice of protest either to all the previous indorsers or only to one of them; in case of the latter he must select the last indorser, and the last must give notice to the last before him, and so on. Each indorser must send notice the same day or the day following. Neither Sunday or legal holiday is to be counted in reckoning the time in which notice is to be given.

If two or more persons as partners are jointly liable on a note or bill, due notice to one of them is sufficient.

If a note or bill is transferred as security, or even as payment of a pre-existing debt, the debt revives if the bill or note be dishonored.

An indorsement may be written on the face or back.

An indorser may prevent his own liability to be sued by writing "without recourse," or similar words.

All claims which do not rest upon a seal or judgment must be sued within six years from the time when they arise.

Part payment of a debt which has passed the time of statutory limitation revives the whole debt, and the claim holds good for another period of six years from the date of such partial payment.

A verbal promise to pay, made without conditions, is generally held as sufficient to revive a claim otherwise shut out by the law of limitation.

If a debtor owe several debts, and pay a sum of money to the creditor, he has the right to designate the particular debt to which the payment shall apply, and the creditor must so appropriate it.

If, when a debt is due, the debtor is out of the State, the "six years" do not begin to run until he returns. If he afterward leave the State, the time forward counts the same as if he remained in the State.

Except in the case of absence from the State, the "six years" begin when the bill or account is due. In case of note they count from the close of the "three days of grace." In case of a note on demand, they count from the time of the demand.

The Statute of Limitations does not avoid or cancel the debt, but only provides that no action in law may be maintained after a given time. The statute does not affect collateral security.

An oral agreement must be proved by evidence. A written agreement proves itself. The law prefers written to oral evidence, because of its precision.

No evidence may be introduced to contradict or vary a written contract; but it may be received in order to explain it, when such contract is in need of explanation.

Written instruments are to be construed and interpreted by the law according to the simple, customary, and natural meaning of the words used.

The finder of negotiable paper, as of all other property, must make reasonable efforts to find the owner before he is entitled to appropriate it for his own purposes. If the finder conceal it, he is liable to the charge of larceny or theft.

Joint payees of a bill or note, who are not partners, must all join in an indorsement.

One may make a note payable to his own order and indorse it in blank. He must then write his name upon its back or across its face, the same as any other indorser.

After the death of a holder of a bill or note, his executor or administrator may transfer it by his indorsement.

The husband who acquires a right to a bill or note which was given to the wife either before or after marriage, may indorse it.

"Acceptance" applies to bills and not to notes. It is an engagement on the part of the person on whom the bill is drawn to pay it according to its tenor. The usual way is to write across the face of the bill the word "accepted."

The New Postage Law.

This law went into operation July 1, 1872. All manuscripts sent to newspapers for publication are, as heretofore, subject to letter postage.

Postal Cards.—The most important new feature is that authorizing postal cards, but their issue is delayed till Congress shall make an appropriation for the plates and outlay. These are to be of such size, form, and quality as the Postmaster-General may direct, with postage stamps impressed on them, and are to be sold at one cent each. The communications sent thereon may be printed or written, with ink or pencil. The cards, like stamped envelopes, must be furnished by the Post-Office Department, and no others can be admitted into the mails.

Packages.—The most important change is that respecting miscellaneous matter—transient newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, etc. On this class the postage is just half what it was under the old law—that is, such matter can now be sent, in parcels, not weighing over twelve ounces, at one cent for each two ounces. Book postage, under the new code, is two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. According to the new regulations, packages of dry goods, hardware, drugs, (except liquid drugs,) and other merchandise, not exceeding twelve ounces in weight, can be mailed to any part of the United States at the charge of two cents for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces. Much time and money will be saved by this arrangement. Book manuscripts and proof-sheets go at one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof, but this is only between author and publisher, and manuscript for publication in newspapers and magazines must be paid for at letter rates, which remain as heretofore. Nothing weighing more than four pounds, except Congressional documents, will be received. Any mail matter intended to go at the one-cent or two-cent rate must be so inclosed that it can be examined without tearing the wrapper. Newspapers to subscribers go at same rates as heretofore.

Letters.—Postage rates as before. Circulars inclosed in sealed envelopes with corners cut are charged letter postage. Letters paid one full rate of three cents, even if more should have been paid, must be forwarded, unless the postmaster is satisfied that the underpaying was intentional, but deficient postage will be collected before they are delivered. Nothing but matter sent at letter rates can be returned to the sender free.

Letters may be sent free to the President, Vice-President, members of the Cabinet, etc., Senators, Representatives, or Delegates in Congress, the Secretary of the Senate, and the Clerk of the House. So too may petitions to Congress, copyright matter to the Librarian of Congress, if so marked, and publications to the Smithsonian Institute, if marked "Smithsonian Exchange." The scope of the franking privilege is not changed by the new code. Free mail matter must not weigh over four ounces, except in the case of petitions and public documents.

Money Orders.—The rates for money orders are as follows: Orders not over ten dollars, five cents; over ten and not over twenty, ten cents; over twenty and not over thirty, fifteen cents; over thirty and not over forty, twenty cents; over forty and up to fifty, twenty-five cents. This is a reduction of one half on orders not exceeding ten dollars.

International Money Orders.—This system went into operation August 5, 1872, and will prove of great benefit. Money orders not exceeding the amount of fifty dollars on the Post-Office Department in England, payable at any post-office in the United Kingdom, can be obtained. The following are rates of commission, to be paid in United States currency, charged for issuing international money orders, to be transmitted by postmaster at New York to Great Britain: On orders not exceeding ten dollars, twenty-five cents; over ten dollars and not exceeding twenty, fifty cents; over twenty dollars and not exceeding thirty, seventy-five cents; over thirty dollars and not exceeding forty, one dollar; over forty dollars and not exceeding fifty, one dollar and twenty-five cents. No fractions of cents to be introduced in an order. United States Treasury notes, or national bank notes, only received and paid.

N. B. Double unpaid postage is now chargeable by law on letters which are deficient of full postage.

Constitution of the United States.

WE the People of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this CONSTITUTION for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I.

SECTION 1. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

SEC. 2. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States, and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislature.

No person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States, which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and including Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each State shall have at least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.

When vacancies happen in the Representation from any State, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

SEC. 3. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation, or otherwise, during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

The Vice-President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided.

The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice-President, or when he shall exercise the office of President of the United States.

The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief-Justice shall preside: and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two thirds of the members present.

Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment, according to law.

SEC. 4. The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the place of choosing Senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

SEC. 5. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each House may provide.

Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two thirds, expel a member.

Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either House on any question shall, at the desire of one fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

Neither House, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

SEC. 6. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office.

SEC. 7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.

Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall, before it become a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two thirds of that House shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of that House, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each House respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

SEC. 8. The Congress shall have power

To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

To borrow money on the credit of the United States;

To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes;

To establish a uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States;

To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures;

To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States;

To establish post-offices and post-roads;

To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries;

To constitute tribunals inferior to the Supreme Court;

To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offenses against the law of nations;

To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water;

To raise and support the armies, but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years;

To provide and maintain a navy;

To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces;

To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions;

To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress;

To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the Government of the United States and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock-yards, and all other needful buildings:—And,

To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

SEC. 9. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a tax or duty may be imposed upon such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State.

No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one State over those of another; nor shall vessels bound to, or from, one State, be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties in another.

No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States; and no person holding any office of profit or trust under them shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title, of any kind whatever, from any king, prince, or foreign State.

SEC. 10. No State shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money, emit bills of credit; make any thing but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts; or grant any title of nobility.

ARTICLE II.

SEC. 1. The executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the Vice-President, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but no Senator or Representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.

[The electors shall meet in their respective States and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately choose by ballot one of them for President; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said House shall in like manner choose the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the President, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the Vice-President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the Senate shall choose from them by ballot the Vice-President.*]

The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice-President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice-President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

* This clause of the Constitution has been annulled. (See twelfth article of the Amendments.)

He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States, whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law: but the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session.

SEC. 3. He shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; and he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and he shall commission all the officers of the United States.

The Judges both of the Supreme and inferior Courts shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

SEC. 2. The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority: to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more States; between a State and citizens of another State; between citizens of different States; between citizens of the same State claiming lands under grants of different States, and between a State or the citizens thereof, and foreign States, citizens, or subjects.

In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a State shall be party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury: and such trial shall be held in the State where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State, the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

SEC. 3. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture except during the life of the person attained.

No person held to service or labor in one State, under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due.

SEC. 3. New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State formed by the junction of two or more States, or parts of States, without the consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned as well as of the Congress.

The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

SEC. 4. The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion, and, on application of the Legislature or of the Executive, (when the Legislature cannot be convened,) against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V.

The Congress, whenever two thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two thirds of the several States, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid, to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three fourths of the several States, or by Convention in three fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress; provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate.

ARTICLE VI.

The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State Legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound, by oath or affirmation, to support this Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.

The ratification of the Conventions of nine States shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the same.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

254 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

ASSETS, ... $3,500,000.

ADVANTAGES OF THE HOME.

Its Organization is strictly first class, inferior to no other Company.

It is a Mutual Company; all the net profits go to the assured.

Its Assets are kept most securely invested, and are as large in proportion to its liabilities as any other Company.

It declares and pays dividends to its policy holders annually on all policies that at the dividend period (May 1) have run one year. Each assured member gets his full share of the surplus earnings of the Company, based exactly on his contribution thereto.

It has declared and paid a dividend every year since its organization.

Its members have the choice of both the cash and loan systems—they may keep one third the premium in their hands as long as the Policy exists, or they may pay all cash at rates very little above those of the non-participating Companies and receive all the surplus which their Policies earn.

Its Members who pay their premiums wholly in cash may receive their dividends in cash, or it may apply to increase the amount of Assurance on the life, provided the party at the time is in good health.

Its Policies are all non-forfeiting: that is, its members will, under any circumstances, get all the insurance that they pay for.

ITS POLICY-HOLDERS ARE FREE TO RESIDE OR TRAVEL IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD WITHOUT SPECIAL PERMIT OR EXTRA CHARGE.

It affords every facility in making proofs in case of death, and is prompt in the payment of its losses.

It makes a very liberal discount from its table-rates to all ministers of the Gospel, and proposes to them a plan of Paid-up Insurance at its actual cost.

The plan provides for issuing,

1st. A paid-up Policy on the life of a minister for the whole term of life, the amount insured to be paid to his family at his death.

2d. Paid-up Endowment Policies, the amount payable to the minister on his attaining 60, 65, 70, or 75 years; or, should he die earlier, the amount payable to his family at his death.

3d. Policies by which the amount will be paid to the minister, when he reaches 60, 65, 70, or 75 years; or, at his option, he may then receive an annuity during his life, the amount of which will be stated in the Policy; or, should he die before attaining the specified age, the amount insured will be paid to his family.

The advantages of this plan are obviously these: 1st. It secures all the benefits of a MINISTER'S LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, and saves the hazards and a great part of the expense of conducting such an institution.

2d. Such Policies give Life Insurance at its net cost. Nothing is paid to Agents, and every element of the contract is arranged so that all the income accrues to the direct benefit of the assured.

THREESCORE YEARS AND BEYOND;

Or, Experiences of the Aged. A Book for Old People, Describing the Labors, Habits, Home-life, and Closing Experiences of a large number of Aged Representative Men and Women of the Earlier and Later Times. By Rev. W. H. DE PUY, D.D. One volume royal octavo, pp. 512. Illustrated Edition, having six superb Steel Engravings. Price, $3 50.

This is a book specifically about old people for old people, abounding with anecdote and incident, and furnishing a large amount of deeply-interesting information, designed to prove suggestive of the beautiful and useful, and to bring additional cheer in old age. It opens with a chapter of the Longevity of the Early Ages, then gives sketches of the "Aged of the Bible," of Aged Reformers, Founders of Churches, Biblical Commentators, Philanthropists, Educators, Missionaries, Martyrs, Pastors and Evangelists, Historians, Distinguished Women, Poets, Statesmen and Orators, Jurists and Philosophers; also, numerous "Miscellaneous Sketches" and "Poetical Selections," the whole closing with a chapter of "Last Words," giving the closing dying testimonies of Christian Ministers and Laymen, and devoted pious Women.

All the sketches are drawn from real life, and without respect of denomination or profession, and the volume is appropriately dedicated to "ALL OLD PEOPLE."

The Book is printed in extra large type, on heavy paper, and is elegantly bound in various styles for the holidays. The engravings are admirably executed, and are as follows: Moses on Mount Pisgah viewing the Promised Land, (frontispiece;) also, old age portraits of Elizabeth Fry, Martha Washington, and Drs. Bunting, Bangs, and Longstreet.

THE SCIENCE OF ELOCUTION;

With Exercises and Selections, systematically arranged, for acquiring the art of Reading and Speaking. By S. S. HAMILL, A.M., Professor of English Literature and Elocution, Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington, Ill. 12mo., pp. 388. Price, $1 75.

From Rev. O. N. Hartshorn, LL.D., President of Mount Union College.

Feeling a deep interest in the important subject of elocution, and being personally acquainted with Professor S. S. Hamill, a scholar and gentleman of high standing, I take the liberty to introduce him to the favorable consideration of all persons interested in this too much neglected branch of education. Mr. Hamill is the most accomplished, thorough, and systematic teacher of elocution that I have ever met. He has taught some five classes, composed of students and professors of Mount Union College, with satisfactory results. I attended three of these classes with great profit and pleasure to myself. While Mr. Hamill has been here he has arranged a simple diagram, which, in my judgment, gives in one view to the eye an accurate and comprehensive outline of each style of utterance. I have examined it carefully, and think it highly adapted in its plan and execution to illustrate, when explained by him, that most difficult and important, but too much neglected, department of education, the various qualities, forms, stress, pitch, and movement of voice, to be exemplified in the utterance of each style of sentiment.

THE CHARACTER AND CAREER OF FRANCIS ASBURY.

Illustrated by Numerous Selections from his Journal. Arranged in Chronological Order. By Rev. E. L. JONES. 12mo., pp. 615. Price, $2 00.

Rev. Bishop Haven, in "Zion's Herald" of May 23, has devoted more than a column in giving a notice of this work. He says: "Rev. Mr. Jones has done for Asbury what he did so well for Wesley—made him his own historian. He has taken his Journals and gone over them, uniting, arranging, and harmonizing them. This book is crowded with interest: every page is alive. No one can read it without feeling that the founder of the Methodist Episcopal Church was almost as remarkable a man as the founder of Methodism; he has stamped his own nature on the Church as deeply as Wesley did his upon him, and his influence is as deep and unceasing to-day as when he ceased to breathe. Every child in the Methodist Sunday-school, and especially every young and adult member, should read this autobiography.

NEW BOOKS,

For Sunday-School Libraries and Home Reading,

PUBLISHED BY

NELSON & PHILLIPS, 805 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

THE BOOK CONCERN is producing a class of books especially designed for the advanced scholars in the Sunday-school. The purpose is to put within the reach of our Schools a sufficient number of Biographies, Histories, and unexceptionable Miscellaneous Works, to enable them to provide the libraries with Books the reading of which will be a practical benefit to the Scholars. These books are printed on good paper, bound in English cloth and in good style; some of them are illustrated. The most of them are 16mo., containing from 140 to 400 pages of reading matter, and ranging in price from $1 00 to $1 50 per volume. The following comprise the latest of these publications:

STORIES AND PICTURES FROM CHURCH HISTORY.

For Young People. Illustrated. Large 16mo. Price, $1 25.

The author says: "Church history is the history of the Christian Church in different countries. It tells of the persecutions it endured from wicked men; of how good men spread abroad the knowledge of the Gospel; of the sorrows which they suffered, and the good they did; and it tells also how, after awhile, wicked men got into the Church, like wolves into a fold of sheep, and did much evil, and treated with cruelty and put to death those who truly loved Christ."

LAST GLADIATORIAL SHOW.

By JOHN T. SHORT. Large 16mo. Price, $1 25.

This book is from the pen of a young man who possesses no ordinary ability as an instructive author. The following modest introductory note gives us at once his aim and the scope of the work:

"We take pleasure in presenting this little volume to the young people, particularly the more advanced, who are forming a taste for historical reading."

FOOTPRINTS OF ROGER WILLIAMS.

By Rev. Z. A. MUDGE. Large 16mo. Price, $1 25.

The events in which Roger Williams was an actor form an important part of the early history of New England. His career has been traced in a number of biographies, and he has a place in several historical works; but Mr. Mudge is the first to write about him professedly for the young.

HEROINE OF THE WHITE NILE;

Or, What a Woman Did and Dared. A Sketch of the Remarkable Travels and Experience of Miss Alexandrine Tinné. By Prof. WILLIAM WELLS. Large 16mo. Price, $1 00.

This little work has been written with the view of supplying the now loudly-expressed demand for a literature for our Sunday-schools that will be both instructive and entertaining. Its truth is more thrilling than fiction, and its simple story stranger than romance.

THE CHRISTIAN STATESMAN.

A Portraiture of Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton. By Rev. Z. A. MUDGE. Price, $1 25.

The material for this portraiture of Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton has been taken from his Life by his son; from biographies of his relatives, Mr. J. J. Gurney and Mrs. Elizabeth Fry; from memoirs of his antislavery co-laborers, William Wilberforce and Joseph Sturge; from the British reviews of Sir Fowell's own time, and later, which have given critical notices of his labors or character; and occasional extracts from the writings of those of our own distinguished countrymen who visited the British House of Commons during his public labors.

ANECDOTES OF THE WESLEYS.

By Rev. J. B. WAKELEY. Large 16mo. Price, $1 25.

These anecdotes are illustrative of the character and personal history of the leading members of the Wesley Family. The book is divided into four parts: The first relates to Samuel Wesley, Sen.; the second, to Susanna Wesley, "the Mother of Methodism;" the third, to John Wesley, the Founder of Methodism; the fourth, to Charles Wesley, the Bard of Methodism.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM,

FOR THE CURE OF

Consumption, and all Diseases that Lead to it,

SUCH AS

Coughs, Neglected Colds, Pain in the Chest, and all Diseases of the Lungs.

This Balsam is introduced to the suffering public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases have been fully tested. The formula from which it is prepared is referred to by the leading medical journals as being equal to any prescription that can be made up, for such diseases, by the medical faculty. The Balsam is, consequently, recommended by physicians who have become acquainted with its great success.

AS AN EXPECTORANT, IT HAS NO EQUAL.

We copy the following interesting letter from Dr. Harris to the Middlebury, Vermont, "Register:"

MR. EDITOR: It is only to subserve the interests of humanity that I request a short space in your valuable paper to inform the public what Allen's Lung Balsam is sure to do. Two years ago I was attacked with a severe cold; it settled in my throat, which so affected the organs of speech that I could not speak aloud for nearly six weeks. I got through the winter, coughing nights almost incessantly, with cold night-sweats, with increased irritation, which extended into the bronchial tubes, and which kept me coughing all summer. I was at Shoreham on a professional visit, when the "good Samaritan" came along, introducing Allen's Lung Balsam into New England. I procured a bottle and took it according to directions, and found immediate relief. I have now taken two bottles, which has entirely cured me. For the last two years, or during the time of my affliction, I was in a state of constipation, which the Balsam has most effectually regulated. No family should be without this valuable medicine. I see by the Western papers that the physicians of Cincinnati, where the medicine is manufactured, are introducing it into their practice, and I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and the Lungs.

NATH. HARRIS, M. D., Dentist.

Dr. Harris has for over twenty years been a respected resident of Middlebury, Vt.

HARRIETSVILLE, Noble County, O.

SIRS: I take great pleasure in bearing testimony to the good qualities of Allen's Lung Balsam, and would earnestly recommend it to all who are or may be afflicted with coughs, colds, or any disease tending to consumption. In the winter of 1863, after severe exposure in the army of Western Virginia, I was seized with a terrible cough, which continued for some four months. I used several of the medicines so highly recommended through the country, but all to no avail. I then consulted my physician, and obtained no relief, but grew worse. I despaired of recovery, and arranged my business, feeling that my case was beyond the reach of medical aid, and that I must die. With other medicines, I received a box of Allen's Lung Balsam, and by a friend was induced to try it in my own case. I used only two thirds of a bottle, when I was entirely cured, and have not had a cough since. I have no hesitation in stating that it is owing to the use of your excellent Lung Balsam that I am now alive and enjoying health.

I remain respectfully and gratefully yours,

CHARLES LLOYD, Druggist.

The "Daily Star," published at New London, Conn., says:

"We have the best reason to believe that Allen's Lung Balsam is the best preparation for the lungs before the public. Many of its cures are indeed wonderful. It has saved many from an early grave. It is a pure article, and is prepared by the highest medical authority. In Cincinnati, where it originated, the physicians depend almost entirely upon it in their practice. No one who has trouble with the lungs or throat can afford to refuse it a fair trial. There is not a case that it will not do good, and in many effect a complete cure."

Sold by all Druggists and Medicine Dealers.

THE MOST POPULAR MEDICINE EXTANT.

1840. } OVER THIRTY YEARS { 1873.

SINCE THE INTRODUCTION OF

Perry Davis' Pain-Killer.

AFTER thirty years' trial, the "PAIN-KILLER" may justly be styled the great medicine of the world, for there is no region of the globe into which it has not found its way, and none where it has not been largely used and highly prized. Moreover, there is no climate to which it has not proved itself to be well adapted for the cure of a considerable variety of diseases. It is admirably suited for every race. It has lost none of its good name by repeated trials, but continues to occupy a prominent position in every family medicine chest; and is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials to its virtues from persons of the highest character and responsibility. Physicians of the first respectability recommend it as a most effectual preparation for the extinction of pain. It is not only the best remedy ever known for Bruises, Cuts, Burns, etc., but for Dysentery or Cholera, or any sort of bowel complaint, it is a remedy unsurpassed for efficiency and rapidity of action. In the great cities of India, and other hot climates, it has become the Standard Medicine for all such complaints, as well as for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, and other kindred disorders. For Coughs and Colds, Canker, Asthma, and Rheumatic difficulties, it has been proved, by the most abundant and convincing testimony, to be an invaluable medicine. No article ever attained to such unbounded popularity. The various ills for which the PAIN-KILLER is an unfailing cure are too well known to require recapitulation in this advertisement. As an external and internal medicine the PAIN-KILLER stands unrivaled.

Thirty Years is certainly a long enough time to prove the efficacy of any medicine, and that the Pain-Killer is deserving of all its proprietors claim for it is amply proved by the unparalleled popularity it has attained. It is a SURE and EFFECTIVE remedy. It is sold in almost every country in the world, and is becoming more and more popular every year. Its healing properties have been fully tested all over the world, and it needs only to be known to be prized.

Sold by all Druggists.

Origin of the New York Daily Witness.

A DESIRE having been expressed for an account of the origin of this paper, I have much pleasure in complying with it.

Nearly forty years ago, being then a young merchant in Montreal, I became deeply interested in the Temperance Reformation, and having been accustomed to literary labor when a boy in Scotland, I willingly undertook for the Montreal Temperance Society to edit its organ, the Canada Temperance Advocate. This semi-monthly paper was very widely circulated in the British provinces, and the good effects of that circulation have, probably, been worth millions to them in a mere pecuniary point of view, besides all the accompanying moral advantages. After about ten years of this amateur apprenticeship to editorial work, I became convinced that religion should be connected with temperance advocacy in much larger proportion than the organ of a society could admit, and in 1846 I commenced what I had long contemplated, a religious temperance weekly newspaper, (the Montreal Witness,) upon a non-sectarian and non-political basis, but free to promote all the best interests of the community, temporal and eternal, and to testify against evil in any shape or connection. This paper obtained an extensive circulation, which it still holds, reaching nearly every post-office in Canada, and being to the farmers there pretty much what the Weekly Tribune was to the farmers of the North and West.

Ten years later a semi-weekly edition was issued, which was and is widely circulated among ministers, country merchants, etc.

In 1860 a long contemplated daily edition was commenced upon a small scale at one half-penny, being rather less than one cent, and this unpretending edition soon equaled or surpassed the others in importance. Its circulation became greater than that of all the other Montreal dailies together, and this position it still holds. As circulation and advertisements increased this half-penny paper was increased, till it equaled the three-penny dailies in size without increase of price.

The great success of this Religious Temperance daily induced me to ask the attention of the publishers of religious weeklies, and Christian philanthropists generally, to the importance of the cheap daily newspaper as a link between the Church and the world hitherto missing, and a means unrivaled for cheapness, rapidity, and frequency of reaching the masses with the very best religious and temperance writings of the day. In Montreal, in nearly every household where the English language is read, high and low, rich and poor, Protestant and Catholic, the WITNESS is taken on account of its cheapness and of its news, markets, and advertisements, whatever they may think of its other contents. I was thus able to circulate without expense to any one, and in a shape likely to be perused, in ten thousand families in Montreal, daily, the last sermons and articles of the best preachers and writers of Britain and the United States, besides editorials on current questions and the news of the day.

Such a power for good I thought should not be limited to one city, and in articles, circulars, conversations, and public addresses I strove for years to induce Christians in every city to get up similar papers. I visited New York several times in successive years with the object of inducing leading men to undertake the work. I visited Chicago and other cities for the same purpose. I plied leading men in London with letters and circulars to awaken their attention to such an important agency for good. When the Y. M. C. A. Convention was held in Montreal about five years ago, I set forth the whole subject in a series of articles appearing in the same papers that contained extended reports of the daily sittings of the Convention, and sent eight hundred copies a day to supply every delegate with one. These articles awakened considerable attention, and several of the delegates, before leaving, intimated to me their intention of trying to carry out the plan in their respective cities. I was specially anxious for New York, not only on its own account, but to influence other cities through it, and delegates from New York seemed specially interested. I hoped they would go home and start a cheap religious daily for themselves in a city which had no cheap paper at all at the time. The adversary, however, was more diligent, for in less than three months he had a cheap paper in the streets of New York, which still occupies the ground. If the cheap religious temperance daily had started first, how different might have been the state of New York now. Sowing sparingly reaps sparingly, and sowing bountifully reaps bountifully.

After nearly ten years' vain endeavors to induce others to commence cheap religious dailies, I felt it laid upon me in a way I could not decline to attempt the duty myself, and circumstances seeming to present an opening, I commenced the New York DAILY WITNESS on the 1st of July, 1871, at one cent per copy, which has latterly grown into a two cent paper issued morning and evening, the morning edition at four dollars per annum. In January last a Weekly Edition at one dollar per annum was commenced, which probably gives more and better reading matter for the money than any other weekly. Any one sending subscriptions to the amount of eight dollars will be entitled to a gratis copy weekly. Specimen copies sent free on application.

A firm Protestant and a faithful Christian, a prudent Ruler and a skillful General—a chosen instrument in the hand of Providence to defeat the plans and break the power of the Romanists in Northern Europe, his life as sketched in this volume will be read with pleasure and profit by all for whom true heroism has a charm.

Washington Irving.

With Selections from his Works and Criticisms. By CHARLES ADAMS, D.D. Large 16mo. Price, $1 25.

The author says in his preface: "It seems quite certain that a brief and direct history of Irving, such as would be comprised in a single volume of moderate size, and including slight specimens of some of his more popular compositions, would supply a positive desideratum, and be an acceptable service, especially to multitudes of our youth, and others besides, who would shrink from the expense of a much more voluminous biography."

Views from Plymouth Rock.

By Rev. Z. A. MUDGE. With Six Illustrations. Large 16mo. Price, $1 50.

This sketch of the Plymouth Colony is confined to its early history; yet it embraces the principal facts in the career of the Mayflower Pilgrims.

Earth and its Wonders.
